Spanking Breeze Makes Club's Sailpast Success

Clear skies and a spanking breeze graced the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club's annual sailpast on Saturday. Local yachtsmen dressed their boats and spliced the mainbrace in honor of the occasion as about forty sailboats paraded in stately line ahead past the flagship of Commodore Roger Riedel who took the salute. Several visiting craft were on hand and their crews joined in the cocktail party and dinner which followed the sailpast.

Colorful dress was the order of the day with splashes of madras blending with the traditional blue on the decks of the yachts under review. The sight of the long line of sails would gladden any sailor's heart and certainly made it a successful day for the club.

Montreal's Bus Strike Likely to End

MONTREAL (CP) — A quick settlement to Montreal's mass transportation strike was indicated following agreement late Sunday night between union negotiators and the Montreal Transportation Commission on the one remaining issue at stake.

Some 1,000 MTC maintenance men are scheduled to meet today to vote on the wage agreement. The 2,800 bus drivers and 100 electrical workers voted Saturday to accept terms of a new offer but the garage workers balked and the strike continued, entering its 14th day.

The bus drivers accepted a 65-cent hourly increase over a three - year contract with one year retroactive and the maintenance men rejected a 48-cent increase over the same period. Agreement by each group of workers was required to end the strike.

Yvan Blain, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions affiliate representing the MTC, said the maintenance men wanted the same wage increase as that offered the drivers.

Following a strike settlement, the MTC estimated it would take at least eight hours to get the 2,000 buses on the road.

According to this estimate, about 550,000 commuters who usually take buses to work in the Montreal area face another full day of alternate transportation. The strike has tied up traffic, already heavy on the main arteries, and cut retail sales in downtown Montreal.

Singer Killed

WILLIAMSBURG, Mo. (AP) Singer Ira Lonnie Louvin, 41, his wife and four other persons were killed Sunday in a two-car head-on collision in north central Missouri. Louvin sang with his brother Charley as the Louvin Brothers in the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville from 1955 through 1963.

Across Siberia In Pajamas - - Seven Days By Train

CROSSING SIBERIA (AP) They come tumbling out of the cars, some wearing the pajamas that Russians consider daytime train wear, at more than 100 stops on the trans-Siberian railroad.

In the big booming industrial cities of central Siberia they buy loaves of bread and sausages from government vendors. In little log villages north of Manchuria peasant women sell them home-cooked potatoes in bits of newspaper and jars of sour milk pudding.

In a few minutes they climb back aboard as the train creeps off on its 5,775-mile trip from Moscow to Vladivostok — from Europe across the breadth of Asia to the Sea of Japan.

The station purchases, and maybe a bowl of Ukrainian borscht bought for 30 kopeks (40 cents) from a woman who goes up and down the train, are the meals of most people in third class. A boiler at the end of each car provides hot water for tea, drunk from glasses with metal holders.

Everyone has a wooden bunk, thin cotton mattresses, sheets and a blanket for sleeping, which occupies a lot of daylight as well as night time hours on a Russian train. The third class passengers pay 44.90 rubles ($49.90) for the 7½-day trip.

The air is stuffy among the 58 persons in a third class car. Stacked along both sides of the train, they fill the narrow aisle with card games and babies and boredom and unwashed smells.

A few of them use the dining car, mostly sticking to borscht and brandy and seldom trying the caviar carried for the class restaurants.

The one first-class car in a 10 - car train recently was built in 1952 but the design looked more like 1905, about the time the trans-Siberian line was first put into use across Tsarist Russia.

For 94.90 rubles ($94.33) at a minimum, plus four kopeks (4.44 cents) a glass for tea and bringing their own toilet paper, the 32 first class passengers ride in four-person compartments.

Blue velvet curtains fringe dirty windows that have to be kept closed because east of Irkutsk the line is not electrified and lots of soot flies.

Blue metal paneling contrasts with red patterned rugs and embroidered white covers on uncompromisingly vertical backrests.

The few second class cars, for 38 persons a piece, have no backrests and slightly less leg room but are closer to first than third in class of comfort. Some new second-class cars in limited use are actually more comfortable than the old first-class ones.

Over these rolling homes preside conductors who are mostly women. The staff stays with the train for the whole 15-day round trip out of Moscow. Two conductoresses in each car share shifts.

There is something about a long train trip that makes many Russians willing to forget their deeply-indoctrinated suspicions of foreigners and talk. Talk competes with Moscow radio, piped through the train all day and far into the night.

Bored women hold up yellow flags at grade crossings along the way. Sometimes local youths jump into the dining car and try to buy Moscow beer or other things unavailable in eastern Siberia.

Some passengers stay aboard at stations, asleep. Others stick to their card games or Russian dominoes or chess boards and wonder what place this is—without bothering to look for the sign or check the timetable in the corridor.

It doesn't make much difference to them. They just count the days.

SPORTS SLICES

Several years ago the darling of the Parisian boulevards was a dark-skinned American with lightning in his feets and rhythm in his tapping toes. He was known as Sugar Ray Robinson, claimed by some experts as being the greatest champion in the world of any division.

Today the toast of wherever French sportsmen gather is a 20-year-old track comedian, Michel Jazy, who astounded the track world with his smashing of the world mile record held by Peter Snell, the New Zealander, mercury-footed speedster.

Fused by four countrymen, Jazy ripped a half-second off the Snell record of 3:54.1. He has set his mind now to make a new world record for the 5,000 metres held by Ron Clarke of Australia.

He ran second to Clarke in the 5,000 at the Tokyo Olympics—and thereby hangs the strange story of his success in the mile.

Incidentally, if memory is correct, Jazy is the first French national to herald the climb of Parisian champagne glasses since Georges Carpentier, the Orchid Boy of European pugilism, knocking their rage, had the Germans and fighters running in circles.

Jazy's defeat by Clarke at Tokyo proved the fuel to fire his desire to do something outstanding to wipe out the memory of his loss to Clarke.

His desire became known to his bitterest French rival, Michel Bernard, when the latter learned of Jazy's intention to break the Snell mile he immediately volunteered to help.

Jazy agreed. Then four other rivals, Kerrebrouck, Wadoux, Nicaise and Laval offered to help. All took turns at pacing him and each one announced he was out to set his own world mark.

A French newspaper, France-Soir, commented: "It was on this last image, that of amity, that a new world record was established."

Disk (Montreal Gazette) Carroll columns that Jazy, who 25, five-foot nine and weighing 143 pounds, was born in Oignies where his father learned the grandfather's diet of silicosis. Jazy, too, was destined to become a miner—but maternal intervention changed his course.

She took him to Paris when he was 12. His first job was that of a grocer and later he became an apprentice in a printing shop. He took up running by accident. He was enticed to enter a cross-country race which he won and was urged from there to become a French national leader champion.

Strangely enough, it seems Jazy's greatest insecurities is with is defeat. Carroll says it is desire to surpass others, and to wipe out that Tokyo setback that makes him run now.

He is quoted as saying, "that 5,000 metres of Tokyo was martyrdom. I felt for a long time that I would never forget it. I had to prove to myself that I had what it takes to become an Olympics champion.

He had to start all over again to regain his confidence and the enjoyment he derived from running.

He undertook, it is reported, a "Spartan regime of training" — 25 miles every day and watches his diet carefully. He rises at 6 a.m., gulps black coffee, doesn't shave and heads for the track.

For two to three hours he runs and runs and runs.

He puts in his public relations office, works until 6.30 p.m., then resumes training. He takes deep breathing exercises and runs six miles. Then he goes home to his wife and two young daughters.

He is diet-conscious. He says for athlete, in my opinion, to keep in top form should be as whimsical in his choice of food as a pregnant woman."

French track experts consider him to be the world's greatest middle distance runner and predict that he will break all records for distances from 1,500 to 5,000 metres.

Ron Snell and Clarke may have something to say about Jazy's record-breaking. The great New Zealander, whose track world crashed under him before Jazy's, is determined to retrieve the mile record he's had to give up his spikes. Clarke is still young enough to go on to new world marks. It will be interesting.

Parsons Win Over Falls 3-1
Belleville Parsons registered their third Kingston and District Soccer League win in five starts on Saturday by copping a 3-1 decision over Smith's Falls, in Kingston.
The local club is still waiting word as to further league games.
Parsons dominated play in the first half but came out of it with a slim 1-0 lead. That goal came on a penalty kick just before half time. Dave Kleigl boosted the free kick home after a Smiths Falls player handled the ball in the goal-mouth.
Earlier, while pressing, the same player hit the crossbar and team-mate Alan Brown bounced another shot off a goalpost.
Play opened up in the second half but both clubs missed some great chances before Belleville made it 2-0. Alan Brown put Kleigl's hard rocket in the net after it came off a post.
Minutes later Smith Falls roared back into contention when left winger Rinus Devries broke through the defence to sink a hard drive off the crossbar.
The goal spurred Smiths Falls' attack and they pressed hard, coming close to tying the score on several occasions. Belleville goalie Herb Mueller came up with two fantastic diving saves to help keep his club ahead.
Bob Main eased the pressure for the winners by leading an attack to the losers' goalmouth. He lobbed the ball over the goalie's head and Bob Vangroen was on the spot to put it home for the final 3-1 count.

Player, Nagle Open Title Defence

—Playoff Today

By BOB GREEN

ST. LOUIS (CP)—A couple of foreigners — Gary Player and Kel Nagle—squared off in an 18-hole playoff for the U.S. Open golf championship today—each with different goals.

Nagle, a 46-year-old globe-trotting Australian, was shooting for his first tournament victory ever in the United States. If he makes it, he also will become the oldest player ever to win the Open.

Player, the pressing, black-clad little giant from South Africa, sought to add his name to the tiny roster of Gene Sarazen and Ben Hogan as the only men ever to win all four of the world's major golf titles—the U.S. and British opens, the Masters and the PGA.

Either will be the first foreigner to win it in 45 years. Should they tie after 18 holes, a sudden-death playoff will begin immediately. The 1-hole, seventh in the last 36 holes, is scheduled to begin at 2:15 p.m. EDT over the 7,191 yards trating yards of the Bellerive Country Club course.

SLOWS LEAD BUT SMILES

Player, strangely, was all smiles, even talking about his back, blaming a "freak" stroke lead—and perhaps the chance of a lifetime—in the last three holes and falling into a tie with Nagle at 282.

"The way it worked out," said Player, "it's lucky to be in a tie after having it locked up."

The tourney had dragged through most of four days, largely lacking in interest with the collapse of Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer's failure to make the cut and the vast, sprawling course which limited the number of sub-par rounds.

But the final four holes, played before a gallery of 17,430 and a national television audience, turned into a gripping duel.

Nagle, playing one hole ahead of Player, had the lead, then trapped into the 15th for a two-over-par six, which put him three strokes back.

"I thought to myself, 'She's gone. I've blown it,'" Nagle said. "But the next thing I knew, Gary had a double bogey and we were all even again."

BITS GOOD SHOT

Then, on the 406-yard par-4 17th, a beautiful iron shot set up a 4½-foot birdie putt for Nagle while Player was three-putting the 16th to go two-over and square the match.

Then on the 18th, with Nagle watching and heading a pair four to tie and a three to win, Player made a brilliant recovery from a trap and left himself a 30-foot putt for a birdie.

Nagle, who first entered the final round in a second-place tie with Nagle, shot a final round 70 for second place at 284. Al Geiberger and Julius Boros were tied for fourth at 287. Raymond Floyd, co-leader of the day, got him a share of sixth with Bruce Devlin at 288.

Tony Lema, native of Toronto, the only Canadian in the tournament after Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., missed the cut, off with Palmer Friday, wound up in a four-way tie at 294, good for $1,087.30. He shot a final round 72 to go with rounds of 69 and 73 after a disastrous opening 80.

Card Strategy Pays Off

Mad Mets Maul Dodger Drysdale

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Mets finally caught up with Don Drysdale—and so did Sandy Koufax.

But neither the rain nor Milwaukee Braves could catch up with St. Louis Cardinals, who overcame the first stall-in of 1965 by playing an ingenious game of surrender.

The Mets, handcuffed by Koufax and Drysdale in 24 consecutive losses to the Los Angeles pair, rose up in the night-cap of a doubleheader Sunday, chipped away at Drysdale for nine hits and whipped the National League leaders 9-5.

The Mets gained a split-up in the opener as he set the Mets down 2-1 on one hit—Jim Hickman's fifth-inning homer—tying his pitching partner at 11 victories for the season and 12 in a row over the New Yorkers.

The split increased the Dodgers' lead to four games over Milwaukee, who lost to the Los Angeles 6-4 despite the rain-making efforts of Milwaukee manager Bobby Bragan.

TRIED TO STALL

With the Cardinals leading 5-0 and rain threatening their loner in the bottom of the frame, Malloc clinched it with Gray's home run for the seventh.

Trenton ran into base-running trouble and twice had men called out on appeal plays for leaving the base too soon on fly balls. In the eighth, Mets led off with a pinch-hit triple and tried to score on McAlpine's ground out. Mitts was called out at the plate and in the argument that followed, he and coach Leo Durocher were ejected from the game by plate umpire Herb Pointer.

Bob Lott was the loser before giving way to Bob McAlpine in the ninth. They allowed seven hits. Lott whiffed eight and walked one while McAlpine got one of each.

Darrel Kramp and Brian Gray had a homer and single apiece for Malloc while Atkinson also homered. Albert Reid and R. Stewart completed the attack with singles.

Madoc Wins First Over Trenton 4-1

TRENTON (Special) — Winless in their first six starts, the young Madoc softballers upset Trenton Commercial Printers 4-1 here Saturday night in a postponed Belleville and District League tilt.

The loss completed a strange week for the hot and cold Trenton boys. Earlier they downed the first place Bloomfield team and the then-runner-up Tweed Lombanks.

Home runs told the story for Madoc with three solo smashes all with two out, providing the victory margin.

Madoc moved ahead 3-0 in the fourth when Kramp slammed his third homer of the season and Atkinson came right up behind him with another circuit blast.

Another run in the top of the sixth made it 3-0 before the Printers bagged their loner in the bottom of the frame. Malloc clinched it with Gray's home run in the seventh.

Trenton ran into base-running trouble and twice had men called out on appeal plays for leaving the base too soon on fly balls. In the eighth, Mitts led off with a pinch-hit triple and tried to score on McAlpine's ground out. Mitts was called out at the plate and in the argument that followed, he and coach Leo Durocher were ejected from the game by plate umpire Herb Pointer.

Elsewhere, Willie Mays stroked seven hits as San Francisco Giants swept a double-header from Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in 15 innings and 7-3. Philadelphia Phillies downed Houston Astros 3-2 and 7-1 and Cincinnati Reds gained a split by beating Chicago Cubs 8-5 after losing the opener 8-3.

Saturday, Cincinnati dumped Chicago 9-4. Milwaukee defeated St. Louis 8-5, Pittsburgh downed Houston 5-3 in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader as Willie Stargell connected New York 2-1 and Los Angeles turned back Philadelphia 5-0.

Koufax, now 11-3, walked only two and struck out 13 for a major league-leading total of 167. Drysdale now is 11-5.

FOUR HIT HOMERS

Phil Gagliano hit a three-run homer in the fortnight's five-run second - inning uprising and Brock hit a solo shot in the eighth. Ron Taylor and Jack Jones homered for Milwaukee.

Johnny Callison took care of most of the hitting for the Phillies, slamming a two-run triple in a decisive three-run eighth-inning uprising in the opener, then clubbing a three-run homer as Philadelphia struck for six runs in the third inning of the night-cap.

Ron Santo drove in seven runs for the Cubs in their doubleheader against the Reds while hitting his 14th and 15th homers. Billy Williams joined him with a three-run homer at Chicago won the opener.

The Reds fell behind 8-7 in the eighth inning of the night-cap on Ernie Banks' homer, a hit off Frank Robinson's homer in the ninth and later in the inning scored the clincher on Hoyt Wilhelm's bases-loaded single.

It Has Everything

Arctic Golf Not Funny

By JANE BECKER

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP)—Playing golf in the subarctic is no cinch.

When the wind is up, the ball is lifted into rock crevices and sand, pockets and the golfer showered with sand on every fairway shot.

And there are always the ravens which have a habit of racing the golfer to his ball, and playing with it before carrying it off. Determined golfers pack a rifle with their clubs and frighten off the birds with a well-placed shot.

It was 44 degrees for the annual midnight tournament of the Yellowknife Golf Club Saturday. Earl Curry, a Yellowknife businessman, topped the 32 entrants, including three women, by covering the 4,850-yard sand-trap layout in 96. Members say the club is the most northerly in Canada, and probably one of the most northerly in the world.

Since the club opened June 20, 1948, members have traditionally teed off on the Saturday nearest the year's longest day.

Golf can be played around the clock through June and most of July, but the sun sinks only for about four hours a night, and the sky is never dimmer than mild twilight.

Yellowknife greens are a mixture of waste fuel oil and sand and are almost coal black. Golfers drag a matting sweeper behind them when they putt to leave the turf smooth for the next players.

The nine-hole layout has been some unique rules. A ball can be teed up on the sand anywhere on the fairway and moved two club lengths anywhere to improve the lie.

The mid night tournament ends with a corn roast under bright summer skies, shortly after midnight.

Lightning Kills Player

Three other players near him and the referee were knocked to the ground and suffered shock.

City Minors Split Over Weekend

A Belleville team suffered the elder's first defeat in minor baseball action when Cobourg topped the peewee Merchants 6-5 in an exhibition game Saturday.

On Sunday, the Ellis Printer bantams copped a 6-4 decision over Trenton midgets, also in an exhibition.

In Cobourg, the home club scored pairs in the first, second and sixth frames, while holding Belleville to singletons in the third and seventh.

Dafoe pitched nine-hit ball for Cobourg, fanning six and walking the same number. Quigley caught.

For the Merchants, Stan Brooks worked until the sixth when both Moe Thompson and Art Walmsley saw action. They gave up only five hits while striking out four and walking one. Paul Hall did the catching.

Vanderslip had two singles, Lewis and Guilbridge triples and Dafoe a single for Cobourg.

Frank Hall got a triple and two singles, Terry Meagher a double and single, Mario Vanetti two singles, Glen Coleman and Frieson a single each, for Belleville.

The Printers used a four-run outburst in the seventh to top Trenton, snapping a 3-2 tie. Other Belleville runs came in the third and fifth. Trenton potted pairs in the fifth and ninth frames.

Bob Pinke, Fewell in the 6th and Gallo in the 7th, hurled five-hit ball for Trenton, fanning 10 and walking four. Campbell and Kelly caught.

Joe Lumsdon starred on Belleville's attack, driving in four runs with a triple and double. Brian Coughlin, Jim Potts and Barry Burnette added singles.

Trenton hits, all singles, went to LaVere, with two, Campbell, Kelly, Wallings, Burks and Moore.

Toronto Hakoah increased its lead in the National Soccer League although held to a tie on the weekend.

Hakoah waited until the final minute of the game Saturday to pull out a 1-1 tie with Sudbury. The result left Hakoah with 15 points, six more than Toronto Ukranians, Toronto Hungarians and Sudbury, who are all tied for second.

Kitchener - Waterloo Kickers downed Toronto Olympia 3-2 Saturday and Toronto Abbruzzi defeated Windsor Teutonia 3-1 Sunday.

Warners Defeat Cheeseman

Stewart Warner ran their win streak to five games in a postponed fixture on the weekend, defeating Black Diamond Cheese 5-4.

The winners built a 4-0 lead in the first three frames and held on to it after the Cheesemen scored two in the third and four in the bottom of the fifth.

Harry Powers started and gave way to L. Master in the fifth. Gary Rowbotham was the Warner crew. They allowed eight hits. Master fanned five and, without scoring, Powers had one strikeout and five walks.

J. Francis was relieved by Sam Holmes after two outs for Black Diamond. They also gave up eight hits, whiffed 10 and walked three. Scoring in both frames charged with the game's lone error. Holmes threw hitless relief ball.

Chuck Rowbotham poked 3 triple and single, John Trenaby a double and single and Jack Caddick two singles on the winners' behalf. Rod Turner and Ron Hobday completed the attack with one-bagger.

Don Holway slammed a home run for the losers while Cruickshank had a brace of singles. Other base hits went to L. Woods, R. Empey, P. O'Connor, C. Clapp and Archer, with a triple.

JUDY WILL JUDGE

NIAGARA FALLS (CP) — Health Minister Judy LaMarsh will be the judge at the Miss Dominion of Canada beauty pageant on July 3, it was announced Friday.

Planes Nip Read 3-2

In the South Hastings Baseball League on Saturday Plaines Concrete edged Read 3-2. Butch Clapp's sixth inning, two-out double which drove in two runs was the margin for Plaine's.

Butch Clapp also had the pitching chore for the winners, giving up five hits, walking four and striking out five.

Frank Farrell was the losing pitcher, being tagged for seven hits, walking four and striking out five.

Leading the winner's seven hit attack were Don Forsyth and Butch Clapp, each hitting a double and single. Hugh Pettigrew a double and Ross Empey and Ron Urch both hit singles.

Frank Farrell's home run with one man on base accounted for Read's only run. Gerald Freeman hit two singles and Carm Milligan and Ted Abrams each had one.

Jazy Plans To Meet Ron Clarke

PARIS (AP) — Michel Jazy, France's world mile record holder, decided Sunday to postpone a vacation in hopes of meeting Ron Clarke of Australia, who recently broke the world records for 5,000 metres and three miles.

Jazy ran a mile in 3:53.8 at Rennes, France, June 9, breaking Peter Snell's world record.

Jazy said that instead of taking a long vacation which he had planned, he would enter several international meets in order to meet Clarke.

Western Teams Eye Junior A

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Acceptance of London Nationals into the provincial Junior A hockey league has been favourably received from three Western Ontario Junior B teams.

Harold McFarlane, Chatham Maroons' general manager, said London's entry into the provincial league opens the gate that much farther for the rest of us to make it in a year or two.

Jack Cassidy, St. Thomas Barons' manager, said London could serve as the wedge western Ontario centres have been looking for to attain junior A recognition.

Marty Sorica, Sarnia Legionaires' coach, said London's new rank might provide the impetus for other western Ontario centres to improve their hockey standards.

London officials said they would continue to operate a B team in the Western League, but it would be based outside of London.

Western B centres this year applied to the Ontario Hockey Association for Junior A rating as a league. They received assurance from the OHA this permission would be granted if the league found a fifth team.

"A western Ontario A league certainly isn't dead because London has left us," Cassidy said. "I think our chances now are better than before.

"The OHA will have to consider us when cities like Brantford and Guelph, Stratford, Sarnia, Chatham, Windsor get into a position when they can afford that calibre of hockey. The day isn't far off."

AMERICAN ENTRY THIRD

PARIS (AP)—Hyeres III, a seven-year-old French horse ridden by Jockey Lucien Demaus, won the $64,000 grand steeplechase of Paris Sunday for the second straight year. The American favorite, Jay Trump, tired near the finish and came in third, 1½ lengths behind the winner. Vasco, another French entry, was second.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Joey Heatherton and Troy Donahue enjoy an idyllic interlude at sea on a sailing-boat before the hill horror of Donahue as a killer is revealed. The film stars Donahue and Miss Heatherton, together with Barry Sullivan, Nicolas Coster and Jeanette Nolan. "My Blood Runs Cold" was directed and produced by William Conrad, Hollywood's newest specialist in spine-tingling movies. 2nd first-run feature attraction is "Youngblood Hawke" featuring James Franciscus, Suzanne Pleshette and Genevieve Page.

AT THE PARK — Cameron Mitchell and Eva Bartok star in the breathtaking, horror-packed Technicolor spectacle "Blood and Black Lace", opening at the Park Theatre tonight. On the same program the second shocker in color "The Black Torment", start Heather Sears, John Turner and Ann Lynn. Both attractions are first showings with complete shows at 7.00 and 8.45 p.m.

Couple of 'Special' Shows Did Not Live Up to Name

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The word "special" as some television programs offered during a rather busy weekend applied, it seemed, more to their sponsors than to the shows themselves.

There was ABC's Everybody's Got a System Friday that was supposed to be a "lighthearted" inspection of the gambling urge. Actually, it was a heavy - loaded, perfunctory survey of the obvious aspects, loaded with what are now clichés of the TV news special.

The threat, if any, was the narration by British comedian Terry-Thomas who had a difficult time with his leaden script.

Saturday brought the CBS premiere of Fanfare, a summer replacement of the Jackie Gleason Hour and it looked to be a minor edition of the Ed Sullivan Show.

The new show presented the usual assortment of singers in the usual assortment of styles from folk to beat. It had trumpeter Al Hirt as host-etc. He is fine when blowing his horn, but something less than adroit in a comedy sketch, dancing and singing.

A transmission failure ruined the Saturday morning effort, but North America was in on the finish Sunday. It proved, among other things, that Le Mans is not a good auto race for television mostly because its eight - mile course is too spread out.

Viewers who enjoyed the first part of The Hollow Crown on CBS earlier this season certainly were tuned in Sunday night for part two—more dramatic readings of memoirs, diaries and speeches by and about British royalty. The viewers were not disappointed by the Royal Shakespeare Company. The final show was witty and beautifully produced.

It was all done with such grace and humour that one wished the words "dramatic reading" could have been changed to something that sounded less educational and culture-conscious.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (CP) — Or at Argent, a French - bred fouryear-old gelding owned by Colin Campbell of Vancouver, stack his nose in front one-eighth of a length in a time and earned off the challenge of Hot Dust for a one-half length victory in the $30,000 Bowling Green Handicap at Aqueduct Saturday.

Walter Blum, leading U.S. rider in the last two years, sent the son of Prince O'Pare-Taxalas over the 1 1-4 mile grass course in stake record time of 2:03 2-5. The clocking was only three-fifths of a second off the track record held by Kelsey.

Prince O'Pilsen moved into contention at the head of the stretch and opened a clear lead for third, three lengths back.

In earning $36,312 for the retired Canadian contender, Orel Argent paid $15.20, $8.70 and $4.20. Hot Dust paid $4.40 and $3.20 and Prince O'Pilsen $6.00 to show.

At Inglewood, Calif., Two Jacks, an invader from Argentina, scored an upset victory in the $50,000 Inglewood Handicap.

The heavily - backed Quadrangle and Viking Spirit were involved in a stewards' inquiry.

With Tronado the winner by a neck over Hill Rise, the favored Quadrangle was placed third and Viking Spirit moved from third to fourth. The winner was timed in 1:40 2-5.

Viking Spirit, with jockey Ken Church aboard, lost the decision for the show position because he drifted over on Quadrangle and Bill Hartack near the 16th pole, leaving Mr. Rokeby Stable's Quadrangle to ease up for several steps.

Tronado paid $14.40, $7.80 and $4.60.

The $1 Pico Ranch's HD Rise returned $7.20 and $3.60. Quadrangle paid $2.60.

At Chicago, Fast Star, owned by Mrs. Ada L. Rice of Chicago, matched the world record for 1965 in winning the $46,750 Equipose Mile at Arlington Park.

Fast Star, ridden by Johnny Sellers, was timed in 1:33 1-5 while leading Quita Dude and Troy Our Boy, in second, a five-lengths victory.

The winner paid $8.00, $4.80 and $4.00. He earned $28,720. Quita Dude returned $4.80 and $3.60, while Troy Our Boy was $11.40 to show.

Eight B.C. Players Suspended

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Lacrosse Association announced suspensions of eight lacrosse players from British Columbia who played this year in the unsanctioned National Lacrosse League in Montreal.

Frank Gallo of Brampton, secretary of the CLA, confirmed the suspensions of five players — John Hendry, Ray Beech, John Allen and Alex McLean of Victoria; and Harry Wilson of Westminster, B.C.

Mr. Wilson said the suspensions, believed to be for one year, resulted from the players' refusal to obtain a transfer from their own association to play in the NLL, which is not recognized by the CLA or the Eastern Lacrosse Association.

In Long Sault, Ont., Hugh McAleer, secretary - treasurer of the Eastern Lacrosse Association, also confirmed the suspension of the five players named.

But he said the three others —Bob Holness, Jim Butterfield and Wayne Wilkins — had not been registered with the B.C. association last year and therefore were free agents. They had joined Soref Titans of the Quebec Lacrosse League after the unrecognized National League, grouping Montreal-area teams, folded two weeks ago because of financial difficulties.

Your Car

Approach All Intersections With Care

By EUGENE B. HILHOE

The average motorist might profit from this list of safety guides regarding intersections. It's published by a taxicab fleet in a large city for all the drivers who man their cabs.

A careless, overly aggressive or stubborn attitude can be suicidal at intersections, especially where there are no traffic lights. Never take challenge of right another driver for the right of way . . . and never depend on him to avoid you. Even when the other driver is required to stop or yield, don't assume he will. Be ready for any mistake or violation on his part, or possible failure of his car brakes.

At intersections where traffic signals are in operation, beware of the reckless motorist who tries to "beat" the light. This is a common habit and causes many of the worst accidents. Don't risk improper turns — turn left from the left lane, right from the right lane.

Finally, don't depend on your horn (or your good judgment) to avoid pedestrians. It's a risk riders. Slow down and brake that right foot ready on the brake pedal.

E. V. asks: "Does fuel pump pressure really affect engine heat?"

If pump pressure is weak, it causes too fuel mixture which will promote overheating. In addition, weak pressure will also permit fuel bubbling and vapor lock.

From H. L.: "Oil deficiency was blamed when all my hydraulic valve lifters failed in our V-8 engine. . . . Yet, there was always a quart of oil in the crankcase."

The most oil might have been the trouble, causing air bubbles and foaming.

W. Q. writes: "I've always had my tires about six to nine pounds harder than specified, but I was advised not to do this with our new car, which has power steering. Will it affect the steering?"

It's true that over - inflated tires can make power steering too sensitive for safe driving.

K. W. asks: "Is the resale value of a car most dependent on mileage reading, engine response or appearance?"

Used -car dealers will tell you that appearance is most important. To the prospective buyer it offers the good looks he wants and indicates the general care that has been given to the car.

Vice President Calls de Gaulle Visit Fruitful

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey reports to President Johnson today on what he called his "fruitful and most constructive" visit to France with French President de Gaulle.

"It couldn't have been better," Humphrey said Sunday night after a three-day visit to Paris with Gemini astronauts James McDivitt and Edward White.

Humphrey's visit with de Gaulle Sunday took place against a back-drop of strained Franco-American relations, especially over Viet Nam.

The vice-president refused to comment specifically on the discussions, saying only that he and de Gaulle covered "a wide field and went over" during their 30-minute meeting.

In Paris, Humphrey said "my mission was not on matters of substance." He said he had "no information" on the possibility of a meeting between the two presidents.

McDivitt and White said they had been most impressed with the air show. McDivitt said the two had a pleasant but brief chat with Soviet cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin, the first man in space.

Vancouver Driver Second

Heimrath Wins At Mosport

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP)—Ludwig Heimrath of Toronto, top Canadian racing driver of 1964, drove his Ford-powered McLaren-Elva to victory Saturday in the feature event of the British Empire Motor Club's Spring Trophy races.

The German - born garage owner averaged 90.9 miles per hour in the 73.5-mile race over the hilly, twisting Mosport road circuit.

Bob McLean of Vancouver in a Lotus 23B was second with an average of 87.5 miles an hour. He completed 29 of the full 30 laps.

McLaren's second position, worth seven points for the leader in the under-two-litre class, gave him a total of 13 and the leading spot in the contest for the 1965 Canadian driving championship. Heimrath's win was worth seven points in the over-two-litre class and left him two points behind the Vancouver driver in the national contest.

SURVIVES CRASH

Eitel Maier of Thornhill, Ont., driving a Lotus 23B, survived a spectacular crash in the first few laps, limped across the finish line in time to win third place.

Eppie Weitzes of Toronto finished fourth in a Mustang GT and George Chapman of Winnipeg won fifth place with a Lotus 23B.

From the time the green flag fell, Heimrath, who operates a garage in east-end Toronto, left no doubt that he would be the class. He surged into the lead and held it, lapping almost the entire field of 39. Early in the race he was averaging 94 miles an hour.

The Vancouver driver held tightly to second place through out the race but was unable to catch sight of Heimrath's tailpipes.

Interest centred on the duel between Maier and Wayne Pressley of Preston, Ont., whose Porsche twice passed Maier's Lotus. Kelly was in third place on the 38th lap when the two machines collided. The Porsche went off the track with it's right rear wheel torn off but Kelly was unhurt.

WINS TROPHY

As a result of his over-all victory, Heimrath won the Dunlop Challenge Trophy.

Production sports cars, up to 1,300 cc. — Francois Favreau, Montreal, Lotus 7.

Sweep First Three

Ferraris Top Le Mans

LE MANS, France (AP) — Ferrari again is the winner of the 24-hour auto race in the Italian firm's sixth consecutive and apparently unbeatable combination of speed, durability and all-weather.

The Ferrari onslaught which captured first, second, third, sixth and seventh places Sunday, virtually overwhelmed the second successive factory-backed challenge of Fords and Ford - powered Cobras — although two of the Fords proved themselves faster in short spurts.

The German Porsches placed fourth and fifth in the 33rd running but also were recognized as the most gruelling route race in the world. The best of the American entries in the contest, which was free of serious accidents, was an eighth place for the single factory Ford-powered Cobra, and a ninth for an Italian Iso Grifo powered by a Chevrolet engine.

Leafs Split With Jets, LoseGround

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs dropped farther behind the leading Atlanta Flames and got some bad news to boost in weekend International League baseball action.

The second-place Leafs split a doubleheader Sunday with Columbus Jets, winning the opener 5-0 but dropping the nightcap 3-0, while the Crackers downed Rochester Red Wings twice, 4-1 and 9-4. The results left Atlanta six games ahead of the Leafs in the first-place Columbus within a half-game of Toronto.

The Leafs also learned Sunday that catcher Russ Nixon, the team's leading hitter with a .325 average, will be lost to the parent Boston Red Sox of the American League following tonight's exhibition game between the two clubs in Toronto.

GET FOUR RUNS

The Leafs broke up a tight first game with a four-run eighth inning. Ronnie Mejias' second homer of the year sparking the rally. Jack Damaska's third home run of the season in the fourth inning was enough to give Columbus the win in the seven - inning second game.

Buffalo Bisons split with Toledo Mudhens. Steve Bilko won the first game 4-2 behind Bill Haas who had a single, a double and his eighth home run of the year. Toledo bounced back to win the second game 3-1.

In a single game, Syracuse Chiefs scored four runs in the first inning to down Jackson ville Suns 6-3.

Saturday, Columbus won 6-3 over Toronto, Rochester tripped Atlanta 3-2, Toledo outlasted Buffalo 6-5 and Syracuse split with Jacksonville, the Chiefs winning the first game and the Suns taking the second 10-2.

Answered Today

Questions At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON (CP) — Two major questions were to be answered today as the Wimbledon tennis classic opened.

How much will an injured thumb hamper Dennis Ralston, the United States' prime hope for the men's singles title?

2. Will the Russians stage another walkout over South Africa's racial segregation policies?

Both issues are to be resolved early. Ralston, who is seeded No. 4 here, has a first-round match with Ian Gulyer of Australia today as play is fully underway on all the singles finals against Australian Roy Emerson, the champion.

EMERSON IS TOP SEED

Keith Carpenter of Montreal meets Pat Cramer of South Africa.

Russians withdrew from matches against South Africans here last year and Lejus, when out of 51 starters were British; the Rover BRM turbine in 10th place, followed by the single MGB entry, and an Austin Healy and two Triumph Spitfires.

IS FIRST WIN

Winning driver Masten Gregory, an American, in eight previous Le Mans races had never placed better than fourth.

Gregory-Jo Siffert team was 23-year-old German Jochen Rindt. Eleven Ferraris started and only five finished. Of six Fords and five Ford Cobras, only one Cobra finished.

The winds started falter ing with transmission and overheating problems, world champion Surtees of Britain took the lead in a Ferrari and held it through the evening hours.

Surtees' car developed a first tire and another Ferrari took the lead but blew a tire. From that point, Rindt moved into first on a joy ride to the finish line.

Expansion Battle

Pro Leagues Square Off

NEW YORK (AP) — Pro football's rival leagues step up their expansion campaigns today with the American League surrender to the National in the battle for Atlanta expected to trigger a shift in the fighting fronts.

NFL club owners meet here and are almost certain to admit Atlanta the 15th city in their lucrative operation, starting with the 1966 season.

At the same time AFL officials, admittedly with little hope of realizing their dream of putting a team in the Dixie stronghold, will have a session here that could result in the invasion of two NFL cities — Philadelphia and Chicago.

Ostensibly, the AFL expansion committee will screen applicants for a Philadelphia franchise, but Commissioner Joe Foss has said other expansion matters could develop.

The AFL blueprint is to expand from eight teams to 10 in 1966. With Atlanta and its new $18,000,000 stadium a dim chance, the five-year-old league new turns to other centres of population.

If Atlanta gets into the NFL for 1966, the 45-year-old league undoubtedly will add another club in 1967. An AFL charter member, Houston, with the glittering astrodome as an attraction, is a good bet to be the 16th NFL city.

Expo Sports Package

Multi-Million Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The men responsible for amateur sports have put together a multi-million dollar package of events they'd like to see run off in 1967.

"A great deal to think about," commented Robbins Elliott, director of planning for the Centennial Commission at the close of a two-day conference on a possible major sports program.

The commission picked up the tab to bring about 200 delegates here from all parts of the country.

Mr. Elliott said the total cost of staging all the suggested competitions would be between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

WILL SELECT BEST

Arnold Charbonneau, head of the centennial sports program, said the suggestions would be looked into and the best selected.

The delegates also made a few recommendations. One asked that 100 athletic scholarships be awarded in 1967 and another suggested that each province be the scene of at least one major sports event in the centennial year.

Many of the events planned by sports bodies concerned holding a world and national championships, some of them for the first time.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said it wanted to sponsor a coast-to-coast loop by Canada's national hockey team and clubs from three other countries.

Jack Van Pelt, recreation director for the Northwest Territories, said he needed $35,000 to work out an exchange of athletes between northern and southern Canada.

One committee said lack of facilities is harming some amateur sports. Its report said that "the recognition of Canada as an international competitor depends to a large extent upon our obtaining adequate facilities."

This will probably bring to a close a controversial situation which has been plaguing the town for nearly five years.

SEEK DEFERMENT

CHATHAM (CP) — Ontario grain elevator men agreed Friday to ask Labor Minister MacEachen to defer placing their industry under restrictive provisions of the federal labor code for at least 18 months. The move was approved at the annual meeting of the Ontario Elevators Association. The association also approved amalgamation with the Ontario Retail Feed Dealers' Association.

Other Charges Will Be Laid

EMBRUN, Ont. (CP) — One person has been charged in connection with a series of scuffles here Friday night but police said other charges probably will be laid this week.

"We still have to sort things out," Cpl. William Campbell of the provincial police detachment at nearby Rockland said Sunday night.

"There are grounds for several charges but we have to find out who did what."

The trouble started in this community 20 miles southeast of Ottawa when police seized a bottle of liquor at a stag party in a hotel beverage room licensed only to serve beer.

GIVES PARTY

The party was being given by hotel owner Paul Valiquette for his prospective son - in - law, Maurice Emard, also of Embrun.

A fight started when police took the bottle, but later settled down and police left. Paul Duquette, of Embrun, was charged with assaulting a police officer during this scuffle.

Later, the men left the party, starting minor scuffles on the street. The three officers in the community called for help from police detachments in nearby areas and by 12:30 a.m. there were 25 policemen on the scene.

At one point police asked Reeve Ernest Burton of Russel Township to read the Riot Act, but the crowd, estimated at 100 persons, dispersed before this was necessary.

Plan Bylaw To Let Stores Stay Open Six Full Days, Two Evenings

More shopping hours per week for Belleville residents appear almost certain following lengthy discussion on the subject at city council yesterday.

Two delegations—one from the Downtown Business Men's Association and the other representing the Belleville Plaza merchants—presented their respective cases to council, the former asking for a by-law allowing shops to remain open six days and two evenings per week (Thursday and Friday) and the Plaza delegation seeking the late closing six nights a week.

In the end council authorized the city solicitor to draft a by-law providing for retail shops desiring to do so to remain open six days to 6 p.m. and two evenings per week, to 9 p.m. Opening hours now vary from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m.

The issue will again be up for discussion when the by-law comes to council, but a number of the city fathers indicated they favored the proposed by-law.

Local solicitor Ormonde Butler appeared for the Plaza merchants asking the present store closing by-law be rescinded and that no further action be taken, thus allowing complete freedom of shopping hours.

He maintained that a store closing by-law interfered with the right of merchants to serve the public and also the public's right to service.

Mr. Butler said that the shopping habits of people had changed and that many cities, including Kingston and Peterborough, no longer had early closing by-laws.

He said that nothing had been done locally to allow city shop owners to compete with out-of-town merchants.

Mr. Butler admitted the downtown merchants' proposal allowing for six days and two nights a week shopping was good.

"But it is five years too late and does not go far enough," he maintained.

Mr. Butler made known the results of a recent poll on shopping hours conducted by Metropolitan Trust, which now controls the Belleville Plaza. He said that of residents returning votes approximately five out of six favored freedom of shopping hours.

Mr. Redden, speaking for Metropolitan Trust, said the aim of Plaza merchants was only to serve the public. Restricted shopping hours were unfair to the public, he said.

Plaza spokesmen intimated that K-Mart, a large discount store operation, would be interested in locating in east Belleville if late closing was in effect.

Ronald Keel, president of the Downtown Businessmen's Association, said his association wanted store closing by-law allowing stores to remain open six days and two nights a week.

He disagreed with a previous statement that store closing by-laws in certain other centres were thrown out because of a desire to provide longer shopping hours.

"Most of them were thrown out because they were legally invalid," he said.

Neither did he agree that the poll taken by the Metropolitan Trust favoring freedom of shopping hours, was actually indicative of customers' wishes.

Mr. Keel maintained that the interests of city customers would be best served if all stores within the city operated under a uniform by-law.

Also speaking for the downtown merchants were Irving Shulman and Douglas Duminie, both of whom urged council to pass the requested by-law.

Mr. Shulman said the requested by-law was patterned after the Hamilton by-law which had proved to be valid.

Mr. Duminie claimed that restriction and freedom go together. Only a uniform store closing by-law would be fair to all, he maintained.

Council ahied away from immediately approving retail store closing hours as proposed by the Downtown Businessmen's Association and instead carried an amendment tabled by Ald. Ben Corke calling for the city solicitor to draft the by-law.

In proposing the amendment Ald. Corke said it had not been the intention of the finance committee to have the store closing by-law on the night's agenda.

A number of councillors favored the store closing by-law, while Mayor J. Ellis said Ald. Corke's amendment would give the solicitor specific directions as to what was required in the by-law.

Ald. Corke's amendment was carried unanimously with Ald. Don Whalen abstaining because of a claimed pecuniary interest.

U.S. Bombers Raid Barracks North Of Hanoi

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP)—U.S. fighter-bombers made their deepest penetration of North Viet Nam today and for the first time poured bombs and rockets into targets north of the "Hanoi line."

A U.S. spokesman said one raid was against army barracks 40 miles west-northwest of Hanoi and only 30 miles from the Chinese border. It also was 55 miles from Dien Bien Phu, where the French Army went down to final defeat in Indochina.

Another group of planes attacked an ammunition depot 70 miles west northwest of Hanoi, the spokesman said.

In all, some 60 U.S. and South Vietnamese Air Force and U.S. Navy planes dropped about 300 tons of bombs on widely scattered targets in North Viet Nam today, U.S. spokesmen said. Targets included barracks, supply depots, bridges and ferries.

TERRORIST SHOT

In Saigon, a young Viet Cong terrorist died before a firing squad today, defiantly shouting "Down with the Americans" and "Long live Ho Chi Minh."

In the glare of television lights, 23-year-old Tran Van Dang was executed at dawn in Saigon's central market square as thousands of South Vietnamese watched.

Dang was shot for trying to blow up a United States military billet in a Saigon suburb but was caught when the explosive charge failed to go off.

It was the first public act of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's new government, sworn in Monday.

Ky promised he would use an "iron fist" to control terrorism, black-marketeering and speculation.

There were unconfirmed reports that the execution of Dang might be followed by those of a senior military officer and a Chinese businessman, both charged of manipulating the rice market.

OTHERS TO DIE

Several other Viet Cong terrorists, caught this year are scheduled to die before firing squads. Since January, terrorists have bombed the U.S. Embassy, the civilian airport terminal and several bars in Saigon.

The Viet Cong has threatened to execute a captive American aid official, Gustave C. Hertz, if Saigon authorities carry out the death sentence against Nguyen Van Thai, a Communist terrorist condemned to death a part in the bombing of the U.S. [illegible]

Indian Claims To Board

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—Revised legislation to set up the long-discussed Indian claims commission was introduced in the Commons Monday and immediately drew arrows from the opposition.

New Democratic leader T. C. Douglas accused the government of offering Canada's 200,000 Indians a sop in the manner of the "land grabbers" and "whiskey pedlars" among early white settlers.

An NDP spokesman said his party will vote against the bill unless the government declares its willingness to accept several major amendments in committee.

Citizenship Minister Nicholson said the five-member commission will deal with old Indian claims in justice and fairness and with more flexibility than was possible in courts of law.

He expressed the hope that bitter Indian grievances, some dating back more than a century, would be settled.

Spokesmen for all opposition parties urged a strong commission that could redress all forms of official injustice against Indians. They criticized several features of the legislation.

Medicare Bill Is Approved

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature gave final approval Monday night to the government's medical care insurance bill after a 24-hour debate on the third reading.

The Progressive Conservative majority defeated the combined Liberal and New Democratic Party opposition, 52 to 20.

The legislature also:

—Heard Lands and Forests Minister Kelso Roberts announce a six-day tour of Northern Ontario for 45 members, and —Heard Stephen Lewis (NDP —Scarborough West) propose that licensing of nursing homes in the province come under one government body.

The medical care insurance legislation is to go into effect June 1, 1966, Health Minister Matthew Dymond said earlier.

It provides that all insurance companies or other groups that are in the medical care insurance business must sell standard government physicians' care contracts to all would-be purchasers, whether sick or well, old or young.

SETS MAXIMUM

The government will set the maximum premiums that the insurance carriers may charge. The rates will be available to anyone to buy medical insurance, but contracts will be available from the private carriers for anyone who can afford the premiums.

The government itself will provide a medical care insurance service for low - income groups. The province will pay the cost of premiums for persons or families that have no taxable income.

For those with low rates of taxable income—up to $500 for an individual and up to about $1,200 for a family—the government will provide subsidies towards premium costs. The amount of the subsidies will decrease as taxable income increases.

"This bill will never become law in its present form," said Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury). He said the government will amend it in face of the Sundewall of protest.

Ken Bryden (NDP—Toronto Woodbine) said the government will withdraw the legislation when it becomes aware of public resentment.

'Draft Pearson' Move Grows For Viet Nam Peace Mission

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — A "draft Pearson" move was reported to be growing as China and North Viet Nam pointedly rejected the Commonwealth peace mission and ridiculed the leadership of Prime Minister Wilson. Published reports suggest Afro-Asian delegates will urge the Canadian leader to join the mission as a member or as a leader.

The gloom that has spread throughout the Commonwealth conference on the prospects for a negotiated peace in South Viet Nam contrasted with the elation in the African camp that Britain at last may be forced to take action to speed the removal of repression against natives in Rhodesia ruled by a minority white government.

Algerian Troops Guard Against Demonstrations for Ben Bella

From AP-Reuters

ALGIERS (CP) — Algerian troops and police maintained a maximum alert today to guard against more demonstrations in support of ousted president Ahmed Ben Bella.

For the second time in 24 hours, hundreds of youths took to the streets of Algiers Monday night to shout support of Ben Bella, deposed in a coup Saturday.

Riot police fired repeatedly into the air to disperse the crowds shouting "Ya-hyah Ben Bella" (long live Ben Bella) or the French version, "Vive Ben Bella!" Numerous arrests were reported.

But each time a group of demonstrators scattered, another seemed to form in the next street.

Troops ringed the government palace, the central bank and other public buildings as well as the student quarter.

Travellers arriving in Marseille, France, from the east Algerian city of Bone reported 10 persons were killed during demonstrations there shortly after word of Ben Bella's ouster reached the city. Tension was reported high in Bone.)

Informed sources in Cairo said President Nasser of Egypt has offered to grant asylum to Ben Bella. The sources said Algeria's new leaders insisted, however, that the ousted president must face a trial. The new regime informed Nasser that Ben Bella would not be executed, the informants said.

Few Hours of Privacy In Queen Mother's Visit

TORONTO (CP)—The Queen Mother arrives here Wednesday for a "private" visit that will in fact allow her very few hours of privacy.

However, she has let it be known that she wants to see and be seen by as many persons as possible and so has rejected the closed, bullet-proof car that was to be provided by the Canadian government.

Instead, she has chosen a big, open — almost completely surrounded by glass so that she can be seen even if rain makes it necessary to put the top up.

Lt.-Col. Robert H. Hilborn, former commanding officer of the Toronto Scottish Regiment and Canadian equerry in her majesty for the visit, told a press conference Monday.

The Queen Mother, 64, has been colonel-in-chief of the Toronto Scottish since 1937 and the main purpose of her visit is to present it with new colors. The presentation and ceremonial trooping of the colors will take

Rhodesian Nationalists Threaten Underground

LONDON (CP)—A black nationalist brought to the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference Monday a threat that an underground "people's Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith seizing independence illegally. This might let Zapu claim wider recognition as an African government-in-exile, it was suggested.

Nyandoro replied the threat of white rebellion is "hypothetical" to Africans because Smith is already "installed" the British government will not precipitate a crisis for him.

"But we will have an African government—not in exile, but in Rhodesia," he added.

Later he said the underground plan would be proceeded with if Commonwealth leaders failed to back up the African demands.

A signed statement by Nyandoro, circulated at the press conference, threatened that British failure to meet his party's demands in Rhodesia would "court an unfortunate situation of bloodshed whose prospect is imminent."

Pearson Urges Britain To Give Africans Voice

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson called on the British government Monday to speed action toward providing the African majority with a substantial voice in the government of Rhodesia.

Pearson made his plea in a 30-minute summary of Canada's position on the problem of Rhodesian situation at an overtime session of the conference of Commonwealth leaders.

Pearson, whose initiative at last July's Commonwealth conference produced a declaration laying down the principle of racial equality and non-discrimination in Commonwealth countries, warned about the danger of violence erupting from tensions between black and white in the present Rhodesian stalemate, conference informants said.

The Canadian prime minister said fast action is needed to bring representative governments to the self-governing British African territory of 3,000,000 Africans and 220,000 whites, now ruled by a minority white regime.

Pearson said it no longer is enough to prepare measures—such as economic pressures—designed to deter the white Rhodesian government of Premier Ian Smith from illegally declaring independence. He said positive action is needed to bring about fair play for the Rhodesian Africans.

He suggested the release from detention of African nationalist leaders and the repeal of Rhodesian laws restricting the political activity of Africans, with the ultimate aim of a constitutional conference paving the way to independence on the basis of majority rule.

Pearson warned, however, against the danger of using force to remove Smith—a measure supported by several African leaders.

McVicker Urges Deseronto Secede From Hastings

DESERONTO — The town council at Deseronto is being asked to consider a notice of motion from the municipality to secede from the county of Hastings.

At last night's meeting Councillor Dr. D. C. McVicker placed a notice of motion asking that Deseronto council make application to county council to release and separate the town of Deseronto from the county, thus opening the way for Deseronto to make application to join Lennox and Addington county.

Several reasons were listed by Dr. McVicker for wanting Deseronto to be released from Hastings county.

Among these were that any time the town has administration of justice work it has to go to Belleville; the town pays county roads taxes but little county work is done in the area; there is a new hospital at Napanee and most patients would be going to this hospital instead of Belleville; Lennox and Addington county was more instrumental than Hastings in getting the new Quinte Skyway, the county didn't want the town in the Bay of Quinte District High School Area, and finally Hastings county council insulted the town by terming it a village.

To Start Work On Pinnacle St. Early in July

A start on the re-construction on Pinnacle Street will get underway sometime early in July.

This was indicated at city council yesterday with the announcement that a special meeting would be called July 8th, with the express purpose of awarding the contract for the underground work necessary before actual street re-construction can commence.

When re-construction work does get underway it will be a one-lane traffic along Pinnacle Street until the job is completed.

Plans call for removal of the old CN railway tracks, renewal of the underground sewer and watermain services and finally rebuilding and repaving the street.

CITY ENGIN%

City Engineer, Wilbur Purcell stated today that it was hoped the contractor would be able to start the underground work by July 12th.

"The Contractor may be able to start sooner than that, but this is unlikely".

All underground work is expected to be completed by September 30th.

- Unless there is something of a miracle by way of increased rainfall, even lower future water levels than last year can be expected in the Moira River watershed in the future.

This was stated yesterday by former city alderman George A. Wishart as he reported to city council on the Moira River Conservation Authority.

Mr. Wishart noted that while precipitation during January and February had been up, the rainfall since April had been less than half of normal and the lakes and river were now lower than last year at this time.

Stoco Lake at Tweed was down six inches from last year and the Moira River at Corbyville was three inches lower.

ONLY PART OF PROBLEM

But low water level was only part of the problem, according to Mr. Wishart who said that pollution from industrial wastes, increased use of detergents and also sewage pollution from municipalities is the cause of water supplies.

Mr. Wishart said benefits to Moira Lake were expected from the new dam at Downey's Rapids, but indicated summer evaporation could reduce the present lake levels unless there was more rain.

Mr. Wishart said the Moira Authority with 13,310 acres had been organized under any authority in the province. More than two and a half million trees had been planted.

Established back in 1947, the entire administration set-up of river authorities was now being considered by a select committee appointed by the Ontario Legislature. Municipal membership on authorities, the system of provincial grants to conservation and other aspects of authority programs, were to be considered, Mr. Wishart said.

Clock Repairs More Costly Than Expected

Repairs to Belleville's old city hall clock are going to be a bit more costly than was expected to the authorized some weeks ago.

An amount of $1,000 was voted by council to get the job underway with the understanding that this additional cost would not be known until the clock was dismantled and the worn parts discovered.

Yesterday council got the estimate for the repairs, a total of $1,400, including just over $400 for labor.

Included in the cost are four pairs of heavy aluminum hands at $300, to replace the former wooden ones and $155 for hiring of a cherry-picker to remove and replace the hands.

But when the job is completed the city is expected to have a serviceable timepiece.

Rotary Club Ponders What To Tell Youth

The problem of what advice should be given to young people in high school classes was discussed at the Rotary Club luncheon yesterday. Rotarian John Legate introduced the subject by suggesting that all students should not be told that they must have a college education. Overemphasis of this point has resulted in a lack of young men entering trades such as bricklaying which, he said, could provide a very good living.

Harold Mott, guidance teacher at BCI, said students had access to a great deal of information on jobs but that it was up to the employer to sell the job to the applicant. William MacKay, another BCI teacher, would have the businessmen at the Sophisticated Ball students that their success was not due to the current trend toward a soft job with a high salary. Teachers cannot tell them this, he feels, because "students believe that their instructors urge further education on them solely because they have it themselves.

The discussion turned at this point to the reasons why a young person might accept a job which, despite its lower salary, offered an opportunity for education and advancement. The consensus was that too many applicants wanted as much money for as little effort as possible.

A host of applause greeted W. J. Morrison, retired principal of the Ontario School for the Deaf as he told Rotarians that all his life he had tried "to inculcate by precept and example the virtues of truth, justice, honesty, sobriety, temperance and all the others" and that young people in high school could receive no better advice than this.

Charge of Threatening Witness Is Dismissed by Magistrate

Magistrate T. Y. Wills, "with some reluctance" has dismissed an 18-year-old Belleville youth from a charge of threatening a witness.

In a carefully-weighed decision—three months after hearing the case—the magistrate found in favor of Rodney William Salter, on the grounds of reasonable doubt.

Salter pleaded not guilty on March 30 to attempting to dissuade Michael Douglas Normington, 19, from testifying in an assault.

Both youths were classmates in an educational re-training program at Quinte Secondary School when the alleged offence occurred.

(Normington, however, did testify as the victim in the assault case and the accused man was subsequently sent to the penitentiary.)

Testifying later in the Salter case, Normington agreed with defence counsel G. M. Ross, his impression was Normington was just passing along a friendly tip.

ADVANCES ARGUMENT

Mr. Ross then argued that a warning was distinct from a threat and intent had to be proved to get a conviction.

He followed up with a lengthy written argument to the court.

In his judgment Magistrate Wills noted: "In the best consideration I can give to this case, I feel unable to conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that accused had the necessary intent to constitute an offence."

"However," he added, "I come to this conclusion with some reluctance as I cannot help but feel that the means of conveying a threat, such as in this case, can be a very serious instrument in the obstruction of justice."

Construction Round-up.

BY BARRY McCULLAGH

Activity on the Belleville building scene has been relatively quiet of late, although home construction and work on existing projects continues as usual.

One contractor went so far as to say the industry locally was in the "doldrums," a somewhat encouraging estimate in view of the big things predicted for the construction industry during the next decade.

Belleville building inspector Grant Sickle says permits issued up to the present time are fewer than at the same time last year.

At the time of writing 113 permits have been issued this year, representing a total value of $1,604,300. At the end of June last year 218 permits, total value $2,132,500, had been issued.

Mr. Sickle said that construction work involving new building, alterations and repairs is more scattered than it was last year. Development is taking longer to complete.

Hugh Murray Ltd. reports that work on the brick and stone and tunnel at the general hospital will be 75 per cent complete by the end of June.

The new branch of the Bank of Montreal and medical centre occupying the floors of a building at Dundas Street East has been topped off and masons are starting the brick and stone work at the Park Dale School extension this week.

Work on the concrete floor and installation of freezers and pipes at the Quinte Curling Club are underway.

The Murray firm also reports concrete work at the Coin Car Wash at 305 North Front Street and the handing over of a new Liquor Control Board building at Tweed.

The Melville Building Construction Ltd. has about 30 homes under construction in Belleville, Napanee, Trenton and Kingston and is putting the finishing touches to others built under the winter works program.

Charles W. Lambert Ltd. and DeMille Construction also report some starts on home construction.

The firm of John Cresswell and Associates, Belleville, has the masonry contracts for the extension at Cobourg town hall and to Eric Technological Products in Trenton, as well as the Scarborough and Hamilton Township (near Cobourg) public schools.

A retirement party for H. S. Robbins was held at the Legion Hall here. Mr. Robbins had been with the C.N.R. 45 years and at the time of his retirement was material supervisor here.

J. A. Bly was the master of ceremonies and introduced many guests from Montreal, London and Toronto who were closely associated with Mr. Robbins during his service with the C.N.R.

Mr. P. W. Dawson, general material supervisor at the St. Lawrence Region made the presentation of a gift on behalf of Mr. Robbins' many C.N.R. associates.

Contracts Totalling $95,000 Awarded by City Council

Sidewalk, storm and sanitary sewer contracts totaled at approximately $95,000 were awarded yesterday by city council.

Revoy Construction was given the contract for sidewalk repair and replacement at $26,633.

Lightfoot Construction Ltd. was awarded for installation of storm and sanitary sewers on Palmer Road and for storm sewers on Symington Drive, Herchimer Ave., and Victoria Ave. The amount of the contract was for $68,482.

The Maple Lawn Tree Service tender for $7,028 was accepted for cutting out the city's annual tree program.

WILL BUILD UNITS

In other business council recommended that the Ontario Housing Authority be requested to construct 30 senior citizen housing units on Turnbull Street and that the Authority be requested to expedite this development as soon as possible.

Earlier this year council requested the construction of 24 senior housing units on North Front Street but the project has been abandoned due to the noise factor.

TENDERS ACCEPTED

The tender of Moira Schuster Ltd. for stoker coal at $17.05 per ton was accepted, and that of Harry Smith Fuels for No. 2 fuel oil at 14.5 cents per gallon and stove oil at 16.2 cents was accepted.

The installation of traffic lights at the corner of West Moira and Coleman Streets was approved at an estimated cost of $10,000.

The final class of fifty young people, consisting of Saint John Cadets and Crusaders under its superintendent, Mrs. H. W. Field, some members of Roseboro Public school, and parents completed their short course in artificial respiration at the St. John Centre, Dundas Street, last night.

They had all previously received instruction on what to do to restore breathing and demonstrated the Sylvester Method of resuscitation.

The meeting at the centre was to see a film entitled "Rescue Breathing" and "Mouth to Mouth Artificial Respiration". Mrs. Field and Mrs. James, secretary of the local branch. After the showing of the films each of those qualifying were required to demonstrate their proficiency on a full size rubber inflatable mannequin, commonly known in first aid instruction circles as "Resusci-Anne". This was loaned by the Bell Telephone Special First Aid Centre and demonstrated the centre's instructor, Mr. G. Gorham.

The students and others qualifying were Sharon Marsh, Wendy Tripp, Marilyn House, Brenda Tripp, Patricia Dawkins, Sandra Colquhoun, Gordon, Linda Gordon, Helen Wring, Elizabeth Reid, Christine Storms, Betty Rashotte, Christine Reed, Susanne McReary, Brenda La Rice, Bonnie Partridge, Mary Cunningham, Lynn Graham, Karen Lourey, Karen Morton, Marion Lumley, Eileen Marsh, Bonnie Forestell, Frances Goyer, Debbie Cunningham, Fran Carmen, Betty Seaman, Margaret Seaman, Susan Short, Mary McGuire, Louise Ewing, Lois Scott, Carolyn Lewis, Nancy Langabeer and Beverley Lewis.

Every school in Belleville has been visited in order to give this short course in artificial respiration to the senior grades. A certificate is given to each person who has successfully passed with a special St. John badge indicating this qualification. This save a life course is given free each summer by St. John Ambulance to children and adults and takes two hours in which both instruction and practical work is given, and is one of the many community services given by St. John and made possible in part by the Belleville United Appeal.

Quinte Student Wins Chess Club Championship

Robert Snefjella, 17-year-old Quinte Secondary student, won the Belleville Chess Club championship tournament last night, in a match played at the Recreation Centre, Playing the black side of a Grunfeld Defence, Snefjella picked up a piece with a pawn fork at the 13th move and went on to defeat Dick Payne easily. The players had finished the tournament proper with 5-1 scores.

Snefjella faces one more hurdle if he is to claim the T. R. Moore Trophy. He has accepted a challenge from Terry Silsbury, last year's winner, who is working in Kingston and was not able to play in the club tournament.

Council Learns Delays Can Be Costly

Delays can turn out to be costly!

And this was learned yesterday by city council when it approved a contract for the construction of a new outfall sewer. Belated last year from the overall project when the new pollution levels have been built on Wallbridge Crescent.

Mayor Jack Ellis said that by delaying construction, costs of the building had increased, he noted. Last year the open garage had been included in the overall tender for the works here but was deleted by council to keep the cost down.

The open garage, 168 x 72 feet, will accommodate all public works vehicles. Electric outlets will be provided to facilitate easier winter starting.

Some Motorists Paying Double For Parking

A few unlucky motorists are paying double for their parking this week-end and incidentally along Front Street.

According to Alderman Enos David at least one motorist a day gets fouled up by parking regulations at certain meters designated as loading stations.

For the convenience of Front Street merchants, meters on these loading stations are designated and no parking is allowed for certain periods in the morning. There are special signs designating the areas but meters are separate from the parking metres.

The result is that motorists seeing the empty parking space drive in, deposit their nickel and depart. On their return they find a $2.00 ticket for parking in an unloading zone.

Special signs for attaching to empty parking meters were suggested.

"Wilson Driven into a Corner," headlined the Daily Mail in reporting a six-hour Commonwealth assault Monday on British policy in Rhodesia. Afro-Asian leaders demanded that the Rhodesian natives be given the vote even if this means the removal of Prime Minister Ian Smith by force.

A relatively mild statement issued by the conference Monday night said hope was expressed that a way would be found in which Rhodesia "could proceed to independence at the earliest practicable date on a basis acceptable to the people of Rhodesia as a whole" was considered by Afro-Asian delegates as only a halfway mark.

LEND SUPPORT

Pressure to get Britain to call a constitutional conference on Rhodesia, from Prime Minister Smith to release political prisoners and reduce discrimination, got less support from Prime Minister Pearson and to some extent from Sir Robert Menzies of Australia and Prime Minister Keith Holyoake of New Zealand.

A new assault to force British action will begin when the experts gather to draft the communique to be issued by the conference Friday.

Meanwhile, the big issue was how to get the peace mission started. Britain's critics argued that the rebuff from Peking and Hanoi, published in official Communist organs, was not the final word, and that the British leader will await receipt of a formal diplomatic reply to the Commonwealth mission before he visit all the capitals involved in the Viet Nam war.

An article in the People's Daily of China, written by a high Communist official described Wilson as "a nitwit making trouble for himself." It succeeded, as did other reports from other Chinese sources, in making clear that Wilson was too much a backer of United States policy to undertake objective discussions on Viet Nam.

PEARSON 'UNAWARE'

Some conference delegates noted that none of the criticism was aimed at either of the Canadian members — the leaders of Ghana, Nigeria and Trinidad-Tobago. They said that Lester Pearson appears "blissfully unaware" that a strong draft movement in his favor is developing among a number of Afro-Asian leaders to get him on the mission, either as a member or as a replacement for Wilson. The Daily Telegraph says the name of Pearson has been put forward by delegates.

"He stands alone as one not so deeply 'committed' and would be acceptable, if necessary, to take the place of Wilson," the newspaper reports.

A Canadian informant said Pearson at present is not an official American retreat would almost certainly result in a healthy diminution of prospects for a stabilization fund. Moscow has said several times that it would participate in one as Article 19 is put on the shelf.

The UN could then proceed to the normal business of peacekeeping, making up the ground lost when last year's session was wined out by abuse of the peacekeeping dispute.

That still would not settle the central issue revived by the Soviet - French contention that only the Security Council, not the Assembly, can set up peacekeeping forces and vote funds for them.

It would leave UN peacekeeping on a catch-as-catch-can basis, with each force set up by whatever means are feasible in each particular circumstance.

But some diplomats say UN peacekeeping has always been like that — and no better arrangements are likely until East-West relations improve.

Embassy March 30. Herts was seized by the Viet Cong last February.

Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, commander of the Vietnamese army in the northern part of the country, said in an interview that the Viet Cong battalions—perhaps as many as 8,000 men — are operating in South Viet Nam's five northernmost provinces.

The called for a massive U.S. arms buildup to bring the war to an end quickly.

"I want to see the U.S. marines go into action," he said. "We need them to win this war."

Council Concurs In Resolution On School Taxes

Belleville city council members feel that steady property owners over 65 years of age should get some relief from school taxes.

Yesterday council concurred in a city of St. Thomas resolution asking that the Ontario Mayors and Reeves Association join in petitioning the provincial government to adopt a system where on the presentation of a valid tax receipt the province will, with a means test, pay a school tax rebate to taxpayers 65 and over.

The rebate requested would apply on owner-occupied property only and would be one half the school taxes levied or $75, whichever is the lesser.

Hockey Player Paid Claim By Council

Close to six years after the obligation was incurred, the city is about to clear up its salary debts in connection with the operation of Belleville McFarland's hockey team.

Most members of the team signed off all claims against the city but three claims have been outstanding until this year. They were from Lou Smrke, Floyd Crawford and Flori Goegan.

Early this year Mr. Smrke secured court judgment against the city for roughly $1,800 in back hockey salary. Then a few weeks ago council authorized payment of about $1,100 to Mr. Crawford for his claim, and yesterday an amount of $3,611.07 plus $65 legal fees was authorized paid to Mr. Goegan.

Several Dept. Officials Get Pay Increases

Salary adjustments for several senior city hall department officials were approved at city council yesterday.

The deputy city engineer will receive an increase of $200, the assessment commissioner and the director of welfare, $400 each.

At the same time the salary of the city engineer was increased $500 to $11,500, this salary figure to remain constant until December 31, 1966.

The position of the assistant to the director of welfare was re-classified to deputy director of welfare with a salary scheule ranging from a base of $5,400 to a $6,800 maximum six steps.

Draft Trickle in On U. N.'s 20th Birthday

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United Nations celebrates its 20th birthday this week, and presents are already beginning to trickle in.

Britain came up with $10,000,000 Monday. Four Scandinavian countries provided $3,780,000. A Canadian pledge of $4,000,000 was announced Monday by External Affairs Minister Martin, who said this does not exclude the possibility of a supplementary Canadian contribution.

But a big question remains: What will the United States and Soviet Union be prepared to offer?

One report is that the U.S. may mark the occasion by officially laying to rest the corpse of Article 19. The New York Times says President Johnson's advisers are urging him to announce this Saturday at the anniversary celebrations in San Francisco.

CLEAR AIR

That would clear the air at UN headquarters and perhaps encourage the Russians to help the UN pay off its debts.

If Johnson does make such an announcement, it would be the first U.S. admission that the Article 19 fight is over; that the U.S. and its allies stand no chance of forcing Russia, France and 11 other UN members to pay peacekeeping dues or lose their guaranteed General Assembly votes.

Article 19 stipulates that the countries whose debts exceed the equivalent of two years' assessment have no vote in the assembly.

American attempts to enforce the article—and the refusal of the debtors to recognize the legality of the assessments—have left the assembly helpless for more than a year. Fifty-five bills have continued to pile up.

As a result the UN had a deficit of about $108,000,000 until Monday's gifts were announced.

Privately, some Western diplomats have a feeling that the agreed with the view of assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey that "the article 19 issue is dead."

But publicly, U.S. spokesmen have continued to insist that the fight is still on. The aim apparently is to get the most concessions possible from Moscow before giving in.

By and large, the whole issue has been played down by the U.S. as a simple attempt to make the Russians pay their UN debts, rather than a dispute over the principles of how peace forces are to be organized and financed.

Any American backdown thus will add strength to right-wing criticism of President Johnson, which is being pushed around at the UN and should get out.

On the other hand, an official American retreat would almost certainly result in a healthy diminution of prospects for a stabilization fund. Moscow has said several times that it would participate in one as Article 19 is put on the shelf.

The UN could then proceed to the normal business of peacekeeping, making up the ground lost when last year's session was wined out by abuse of the peacekeeping dispute.

That still would not settle the central issue revived by the Soviet - French contention that only the Security Council, not the Assembly, can set up peacekeeping forces and vote funds for them.

It would leave UN peacekeeping on a catch-as-catch-can basis, with each force set up by whatever means are feasible in each particular circumstance.

But some diplomats say UN peacekeeping has always been like that — and no better arrangements are likely until East-West relations improve.

Trent Waterways System Best Tourist Attraction Says Councillor in Report

TRENT — In his first report to council Paul Tripp, chairman of the town's Industrial and Economic Development committee noted that the Trent Waterways system is still Trenton's foremost tourist - attraction. He suggested private enterprise be encouraged to develop the proposed yacht basin at the entrance to the canal system indicating the municipality desired development in this area but was not in a financial position to consider the proposition at the present time. He said his committee believed industry could be induced to locate if provided suitable accommodations. He explained how this avenue had been explored. Councillor Tripp reported.

"Although the Industrial and Economic Development Committee has not made a formal report to date this year, I assure you we have not been idle. We have held eight formal meetings to date and contacted a number of industrial prospects and rumored prospects.

Terms of reference were not laid down by Council when the appointment was made but we have operated under the assumption that we were to do anything to stimulate economic development of Trenton.

"This falls into three major groups: Industrial, Commercial, Tourism.

"We have no illusions about new industry. It isn't possible to pick them off trees and the competition from Metro Toronto and Western Ontario is formidable to say the least.

"With the assumption that the first obligation towards industry is to those which are already here, we invited every Trenton manufacturing industry to meet with us. The response was about 80%.

"We discussed mutual problems frankly and requested their frank criticism of the local conditions. I'm happy to report that, in summary there was not a wide variety of complaints.

"Some of them were serious to the general well being of the town and we are taking steps to offer opportunities for correction.

"The meetings also gave us an opportunity to discuss municipal problems which affect the taxpayers. It is my contention that the better informed we keep the taxpayers, the more understanding they will be. I think I can fairly report that some of the industrialists were impressed with the ground work being laid for the future development of Trenton.

"We offered to discuss the town's budget with them at any time.

The Committee is presently considering the encouragement of a course on business accounting for small business. It is our belief that this could solve some of the problems experienced by industry. If these small businesses could be operated more efficiently, it would provide better service for the public and, we hope, a more successful business in Trenton.

"This course is provided through the Federal Department of Labor under the guidance of the provincial Department of Education. "Also, the Committee has been in touch with Industrial Development Bank for a clinic to be held in Trenton. About twenty (20) business people had private interviews on matters relating to the services of the Industrial Bank and how it could them.

"These activities may not be spectacular but they were promised on the evidence that such services would be useful to the community. Successful businesses in Trenton lead to a sound economy.

"The Committee has also met with builders in Trenton concerning the construction of factory buildings. We believe that a factory building can be an inducement to secure new industry, provided the rental or sale price is a reasonable one.

"There is one factory building available now and we are endeavoring to secure an occupant for it.

NEW MAP COMING

The new map of the Town, which shows industrial sites and the centennial development, is promised for delivery within the next two weeks and will be distributed across Canada through the printer.

A new brochure is being compiled for distribution to industrial prospects and the business development agencies of the banks and railways.

Newcomers to this area invariably remark on the town's potential. The urban renewal study makes this same comment. There is no doubt this potential has not been realized.

The most likely tourist attraction is the Trent Canal system which is drawing more and more water craft every year. The Government Dock and the former Central Bridge building on the east side of the river are being operated for the benefit of boat users.

The development of the yacht basin in the Community Centre area is desirable but financially it is difficult to say when this might be achieved by the town. It is probably more practical that private enterprise undertake and produced to develop this basin. We are investigating this possibility now.

I wish to express my appreciation to the Committee members, Wilfred Wilkinson and George Kempf. They are busy men but they take time out to attend meetings and their respective business backgrounds are invaluable. Through George Kempf, who is also the President of the Chamber of Commerce, we have a liaison with the members of that Association.

The attraction of new industry is not easy but the more contacts that the better chance there is of securing one, and this is what we are endeavoring to do.

Council Ponders Threat Of Damage Suit by Firm

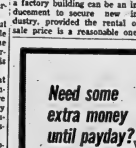
TRENTON — Councillors last night pondered the threat of an east side business concern to take legal proceedings against the town. Town solicitor Rod Campbell told them he had received notice from Barrett and Lally of Belleville their client Lange and Fetter of Trenton intended to seek damages for $25,000 for injurious effects. Cases of this nature are heard by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Lange and Fetter claims their business deteriorated since the reconstruction of Dundas St., E., at Gilmour Hill. Alterations to the one time steep incline were deemed necessary as the designers of the traffic interchange located at the junction here called for raising the street in front of the claimant's parking lot. Associated properties underwent renovation accordingly.

Reference to the impending action came to light during discussions relating to a request for the release of holdback due to the general contractor Bayley Construction, now defunct, when the major reconstruction project including the Gilmour Hill complex was completed to the satisfaction of the town. Mention of the damage suit was followed by a period of strangled silence. Then council decided to postpone consideration of the holdback request and moved the meeting be adjourned.

Earlier council vetoed a by-law to authorize right of entry. Councillor Ross Burtt wondered whether parties the legislation would affect should seek a ruling from the courts and council could then take the appropriate steps on the legal decision.

APPLICATION DEFEATED



Right of entry is legal permission to trespass on another man's property to make repairs to your own. The application was defeated by a 5-1 recorded vote with councillor Ross Burtt signifying in the affirmative.

Town solicitor Campbell was instructed to advise Belleville barrister Louis Maraskas that the town was not responsible for land leased to proprietor Peter Deduke and was holding him (Deduke) liable for any damage to the property as he was the leasee. The correspondence is contained in a letter from Mr. Maraskas for client Lyle Hartman claiming damages against the property adjoining the DeDuke parking lot on Front St.

The town, providing a clear deed can be obtained, will consider purchase of the Morden property on Front St. Barrett and Lally has made an offer to sell at a suggested price of $3,500. and the town to assume 1/2 arrears.

Resolutions pertaining to grants and subsidies sought by three Ontario municipalities received support and approval.

Whitby desires an increase in school grants as a means to lighten the burden of the municipal taxpayer, St. Catherines seeks a subsidy to put toward the cost of sewage disposal station; Tilbury requests a subsidy for police operating costs. The Province is being asked for an amount equivalent to 9 than in the year before.

Matter of Urgency

It is a measure of the "population explosion" facing not only Belleville but every community in Canada and abroad that city administrators here have been caught napping on local requirements.

Mayor Jack Ellis admitted as much when he said last week that Council had been shocked by Planning Director P. J. Beavis' report of Belleville's population growth and the dilapidated state of some of its houses.

According to the Mayor, Mr. Beavis' report came as a surprise to most aldermen.

Mr. Beavis said that reconstruction of 600 sub-standard houses should begin immediately and that one half of the city's 9,500 residential units will have to be replaced within the next 25 years unless steps are taken to see they are properly maintained.

In addition, said Mr. Beavis, 300 new houses and apartments must be built each year until 1971, 470 per year until 1975 and 530 per year until the year 2000 to absorb the additional population. Nearly 300 new school rooms will be required within the next 25-years.

The planning director predicted that Belleville's population will reach 74,000 by the year 2000.

That Council must move quickly on this problem is indicated by the statistics alone. An official plan was to have been ready by fall according to earlier estimates but Mayor Ellis has indicated it will now take longer to prepare.

The planning board has suggested hiring additional staff for the survey work ahead. Such is the urgency of the matter.

Conciliation Is Not Compromise

The Canadian Medical Association met at Halifax last week.

It has issued a statement on universal medical care insurance.

It describes this statement as "conciliatory." In this controversy any statement which tends to soothe the feelings of the opposing side, rather than to ruffle them, is welcome. Conciliation is desirable.

But conciliation itself is not enough. To serve any permanent useful purpose, it must be utilized as a tool with which to reach a compromise.

The doctors' "conciliatory" statement favors health insurance being available to all Canadians who want it, providing both doctors and patients have the right not to participate.

There is no hint of compromise here.

For it is the essence of the argument of those who favor universal medical care insurance is that everybody should be covered, in order that those in the low-risk age brackets may help shoulder the cost of insuring those in the high-risk groups. And it is also the essence of their conception of such a scheme that it is no concern of doctors who pays their bills, providing that they are paid. There would probably be relatively little opposition to doctors retaining the freedom to charge fees above those established in any insurance plan, but there would be great opposition to them insisting that they would not accept part payment from the "medicare" authorities.

No matter how friendly the advocates and opponents of compulsory universal medical insurance may become, no settlement of the dispute is possible until both sides either accept or reject the compulsory and universal features of such a plan. No matter how conciliatory the atmosphere, neither side has shown signs of budging even an inch in search of a compromise.

Seaway Attraction

A new tourist attraction has been opened in the Thousand Islands region by the Ontario Minister of Tourism and Information, James Auld. It is a 370-foot high tower at Hill Island on the Canadian side of the Thousand Islands bridge region.

Described by Mr. Auld as a "magnificent structure," the tower affords a panoramic view over the island region, including the Seaway channel.

An elevator with a capacity of 25 takes tourists to the glass-enclosed lower deck, souvenir store and snack bar. Steps lead from here to another deck equipped with coin-operated binoculars.

The Skydeck, as it is called, was constructed by a Canadian company headed by Captain Raymond Phillips and his brother Adrian.

If High Pressure Relieved Glaucoma Damage Stopped

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does glaucoma always eventually lead to blindness? I know the condition is irreversible, but if it is detected in the early stages is a fairly young person (48) can it be controlled at that point? Or does progression continue in spite of treatment? — R. A.

Generally speaking, the answer to your question is no. Glaucoma does not always lead to blindness. If we couldn't do something about glaucoma, there wouldn't be much promise in urging people to have their eyes tested for it.

The first step of it, before any other symptom appears, is an increase in pressure in the eyeball. Testing for this is a relatively simple matter. Relatively! It requires a special instrument. Medication is then applied to the eye to prevent it from being sensitive. Then the instrument (a tonometer) is touched to the surface of the eyeball, to measure the tension of it.

There is an increasing trend toward having this test performed by doctors other than eye specialists. If a reading is definitely high, or high enough to be suspicious, then the patient is referred to a specialist.

This pressure, in itself, does not interfere with vision. The danger lies in the fact that the pressure, long continued, destroys the delicate inner portions of the eye. Once that happens, it is irreversible — it cannot be undone.

But if the pressure is relieved before the damage has occurred or before too much damage has occurred, the eyesight is saved.

Keep the pressure down to a safe level, and the damage, if any, will be arrested at that point. Maybe no harm done! But if too much damage has occurred already, then vision may continue to fail.

And that's why it is so necessary to discover glaucoma early.

Methods of controlling pressure vary, and include such things as medication, diet, weight control, adequate rest, easing of nervous tension and in some cases, surgery. The purpose of surgery is to open a wide sufficiently so that pressure will be equalized, approximately, inside and outside the eyeball.

It should be remembered that it is not easy to find the cases that are just alike. Sometimes glaucoma develops very slowly, other times very rapidly. The treatment, obviously, will depend on the type of case, the amount of pressure which has developed, the readiness with which a patient responds to treatment. It is therefore better for me, in th ecolumn, not to try to be too dogmatic about specialists.

But I will say this: If your doctor has told you that in your case the glaucoma has been detected early, you have every reason to anticipate that you will not become blind.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son has been told that his thyroid gland is too active and that he should have surgery. How serious is this operation? Is any kin to Hodgkin's Disease ?— Mrs. P. M.A.

It has nothing to do with Hodgkin's Disease (which attacks lymph glands all over the body.) Surgery for a strongly overactive thyroid is not unusual at all and while it requires hospitalization, it is not a perilous thing.

Removal of part of the gland reduces the amount of hormone produced by the gland, and halts "jitters, "nerves", and other symptoms.

Naturally it is not a remedy for all types of nervous tension, but is very useful for such cases as are caused by overactive thyroid.

Note to C.D.E.: I agree with you that food is important, and a balanced diet is one rule of good health. But I disagree that anything is to be gained by such intricate diets as you urge. And the phrase about "you are what you eat" is much overdone. If you kept 32 birds, of 12 kinds, different sizes and colors, and fed them all the same bird food they'd all stay the same color and size.

Prove Kilts Male Attire

Cape Breton Post

The Caledonian Singers and Dancers of Scotland did more than one good deed when they performed in Sydney the other day. In addition to putting on an entertaining show, they conclusively demonstrated that the kilt is a male garment—something that seems almost forgotten in the Dominion nowadays.

The kilt is a masculine and even warlike garment, as any pictorial history of military uniforms would testify across a span of many centuries. It is unknown here whether there's any authentic record of how the kilt came to be worn by the Scots. Its origin dates from the mists of time immemorial.

The soldiers of the ancient Roman Empire wore kilts of a sort between their armor breastplates and their bare knees, and so did the soldiers of other old-time nations. The kilt was regulation male attire before trousers were invented. The surmise here is that the kilt was a little garment long before Celts migrated westward, from Europe to the islands.

Even Morgan Was Knighted

After carefully perusing all the available printed opinions about the Queen's birthday award of the MBE to the Beatles, I find that I'm still a little confused. They may be relieved to find that, at present, I am unable to decide whether I'll send my MBE back or if I had one to send back. I do, however, have several friends who have received the OBE, which is higher than the MBE, and they maintain that they're certainly not going to send theirs back. They figure there's enough room in the Order of the British Empire for both them and the Beatles.

Furthermore, some of them have teen-aged daughters who never displayed the slightest bit of interest in their fathers' honors until the Beatles received them. Now they look upon their doddering old paters with new respect and even, repeatedly asking them to bring the decorations out so they can have another look at them. PBMBE (Prior to the Beatles' MBE) these decorations had about the same standing among the daughters of my friends that a 1942 bowling trophy might have had. My own initial reaction to the news of the Beatles' great good fortune was one of mingled hurt pride and disbelief. I figured that something must have gone wrong with the computer down at Buckingham Palace when the Queen's honors list was being drawn up this year. My next thought (and this one may be nearer to the truth) was Prince Philip had been indulging in another of his pranks, because it is a well-known fact that he's quite a practical joker.

But then I took a second look at the whole ghastly situation as they might say at the Drones Club, and began to recall why not? I remembered that when Elizabeth II old was handing out the honors, there was no way have been a few spiraled eyebrows. In those days it was understand it, when buccaneers and other adventurers went off to the New World and returned laden with loot for the Queen's coffers, she often showed her appreciation by handing out a title or two. Sir Henry Morgan, you may recall, was not exactly a paragon of virtue in the days when his pirates sailed the Spanish Main.

He not only murdered many of his victims, but after he was given a title and made Governor of Jamaica, he hunted all of his old pirate pals to a big blowout and then treacherously marched them all off to the gallows.

In the low Elizabethan era, the Beatles may have murdered the occasional song here and there, but made many payments with they could just find a plank to walk. But there's no denying that they may have brought a lot of loot home to Merrie England, probably more than Henry Morgan ever did.

Cabinet "Failures"

Ottawa Journal

Mr. Pearson has 24 ministers in his cabinet, including proven failures. Only a few are blameless, loyal-to-friends prime minister could retain in his cabinet after their repeated and crass ineptitudes such ministers as Finance Minister Gordon, Health Minister Miss LaMarsh, State Secretary Lamontagne, Postmaster-General Pressdee and Industry Minister Drury. They should be fired.

The Overt Signs of the Career Man 'In' External Affairs

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — So how do you spot that VIP — Very Important Bureaucrat — the special species known as The Ottawa Man?

Like a peacock.
By his fine feathers.
His status symbols.

Other lesser mortals, the ordinary Civil Servant, even so awe-inspiring a figure as the Deputy Minister of National Revenue for Taxation Division — Income Tax, that is — works for his department.

So do lesser men, Civil Servants from the rank of Deputy or Director General down to Messengers and Office Boys, all work for this or that Federal department.

But you don't, you simply don't, work for the Department of External Affairs.

Altogether too common.
Vulgar, even.
You are In External.

The bureaucratic pecking order, this Civil Service class distinction gets high marks as the Cabinet Minister in command of the department.

At the Trade and Commerce Department, it is simply Trade Minister Sharp.

BY THEIR LEATHER GOODS

Even Prime Minister Pearson is familiarly known as The PM.

But IN External, Hon. Paul Martin, or "Oom Paul," as he's affectionately known to everyone, where else on Parliament Hill and around the National Capital is properly addressed with elaborate formality as the Honorable, the Secretary of State for External Affairs.

Maybe short cringe.

So alright, how DO you know who's IN External and who's not, especially the younger set, with some lesser, no-snob-appeal, ordinary, down-to-earth department?

By his leather goods, you know him.

And don't expect him to carry a briefcase.

In his class-conscious world of the Big Bureaucracy, the briefcase is for office boys.

It still may be perfectly in order for such taxpayers as Financier E. P. Taylor, CPR Board Chairman Norris Crump or even Donald Gordon of the CNR.

But they are "outsiders." And in the eyes of the External Affairs types, all but strangers from an Almost-Other-World.

The Man Who's Going Places IN External packs neither briefcase nor neat-and-so-tidy attache case.

Instead, the badge of High and Chosen Office is a small, economical-size shabby sack or dog-eared at the corners, and with London, Paris, Bonn, Delhi, Cairo and, never Washington — decals plastered on it.

And then there are the doors.

In most other departments — Finance, Health and Welfare, Northern Affairs and such — they're just doors.

You can't mistake 'em.

They're solid, they are, with knobs and keyholes.

And they're carried away.

It isn't all that easy IN External.

Then, you could mistake a door for an up-ended pool table.

Padded and covered with baize.

But that's Junior Grade stuff.

Up at the top, you get the air is thin and they do all that intellectual space - walking, the doors are padded and turned out in gorgeous cherry pink leather.

Then, if he carries one of those old suitcases, has a green baize or a cherry pink leather-padded door, check his briefcase.

Suede? Brown?

Finally, if he drives a Mercedes, an Austin-Healey, a Beetle or a Volvo . . . but never, never ever anything so crass as a Ford or a Chev, they lack prestige — you've got your man.

Three Fronts

Christian Science Monitor

The commitment of troops to an active role in particular world trouble-spots all too easily obscures the fact there are two fronts besides the military on which the struggle against tyranny must be fought. There are the economic and the political. If the United States is to succeed in Viet Nam, clearly it must act with vigor and imagination on all three fronts. It should be fired.

A recommendation that no city park be disposed of to any organization was strongly supported by the majority of Rotarians at the weekly luncheon of the service club on Monday.

In moving the recommendation, the chairman of the City Board of Health stated that he felt it was time the busin ess people and residents of the city let the City Council know that they would not stand for any such action. He included in his motion for recommendation, Zwicks's Island, Pinder's Park, Victoria Park, Firemen's Park and city playgrounds. He further recommended that another site be offered the Canadian Legion for its building that had been proposed to be erected on Firemen's Park.

The Parks Board Commissioner stated that he wished to put on record that he was definitely opposed to any disposal of city parks to any organization.

U.S. Wine Policy Chauvinism

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When does nationalism, or patriotism, turn into a parody of itself and become mere stupid chauvinism? One minor, but vivid, example of this sort of thing is President Johnson's ruling about wine.

Only U.S. wines are now served at the White House, and State Department officials abroad have been asked to serve only U.S. wines at diplomatic functions. The officials have even been provided with booklets enabling them to discuss our native wines as they are being served.

But American wines, alas, are not very good, except for a few types of rose, which compare favorably with the French. Why should we drink inferior wine—and, moreover, compel foreign guests to do so at official functions abroad — when we should be grateful to the French for providing us with superlative wine?

This is not patriotism; it is insanity. True patriotism insists that a country should be proud of its singular accomplishments, of what it does best. It should not be proud of the second-rate, and insist that our second-rate is as good as someone else's first - rate. This is the way children behave, until (hopefully) they learn better.

As Chesterton once pointed out, it is as silly to say, "My country, right or wrong," as it is to say "My mother, drunk or sober." You may love her drunk or sober, but when she is drunk you try to sober her up. Likewise, when the country we love is wrong we try to make it right again, not pretend that the wrongness is really a right.

Let us, by all means, cultivate the art of growing wine. Let us try to make wine as good as the best French vintages. And when we do, let us drink them and promote them and chant their praises in U.S. embassies all over the world. But let us not embarrass our guests (most of whom know wine) and make fools of ourselves by compelling some home-grown red ink to be a rival of St. Mouton Rothschild.

One drinks tea in England because English tea is so wretched. Luckily for us, the British do not insist on serving coffee in their tea. Each country has its own gastronomic strengths and weaknesses, and no intelligent cosmopolitan offers its strengths and apologizes for its weaknesses. Anyone who visits the average barber in France has only himself to blame.

We have dozens upon dozens of American products and commodities that are demonstrable superior to their counterparts anywhere else in the world. Let us drink a universal toast to these leaders — and not in wine that a French peasant would spit out.

Phone Call From A Tiny Stranger

(Letter to Hamilton Spectator)

On a recent night about 11:30, our telephone rang. A small voice of a girl about 6 or 7 said, "Hello."

"Hello," I said, "who's speaking?"

"This is Annette," she answered.

"What do you want, honey?" I asked.

"I want some candy," she answered.

"You must have the wrong number, dear," I said. "Are you all alone? Where's your mommy and daddy?"

"They're not here," she said. Then she hung up.

Later I began to worry. Wherever she was there was a television or radio playing, but no sound of human voices. Was she really all alone? Should I have tried to get her last name and address; and asked the police to check? What should I have done?

If this child was left alone in a house or apartment at 11:30 at night, then something must be wrong with the parents. As a responsible citizen, am I or any grandmother, what was my duty? I am still haunted by this little voice in the night.

GETS GALLERY JOB

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Maurice Stubbs, assistant curator of the London Public Art Museum, announced Monday he will quit his position to become senior assistant education officer at the National Gallery in Ottawa. His new duties begin July 2.

Toronto Stocks

Industrials were mixed—but with a firmer undertone — in light morning stock exchange dealings today.

The main list, after dropping Friday and Monday, made small headway. Consolidated Paper, conventional Pipe and Union Gas each tacked on ¼ to 43¾, 88⅝ and 28½, respectively. Union Carbide gained ¼ to 29 and Bell Telephone and CPR ¼ apiece to 60¼ and 63½.

Bank of Nova Scotia dropped 1⅛ to 73⅝. T.C.E. Ford 1 to 57, Trans Mountain Pipe ¼ to 20 and Algoma Steel ¼ to 68. Trans-Canada Pipe fell ¼ to 35¼.

Silver base metals advanced. Inco and Falconbridge each added ⅛ to 93 and 98¼ and Calmingo ¼ to 42. Hudson Bay fell 1 to 71.

Golds were quiet and mostly unchanged. Home B rose ¼ to 19½ on a dull senior western oils list.

On index, industrials rose .27 to 167.18, the Toronto Stock Exchange base .32 to 136.3 and base metals .09 to 78.87. Golds fell .22 to 132.22 and western oils .19 to 99.32. Volume at 10 a.m. was 519,000 shares compared with 858,000 at the same time Monday.

Leading loser was Bank of Montreal which fell 1⅛ to 63¼. Losses of ¾ went to Algoma Steel at 68¼, Consolidated Paper at 43¾ and Toronto-Dominion Bank at 63¾. Atlantic Acceptance, which went into receivership last week because it couldn't meet certain financial obligations, dipped ¼ to 5¾. Before its troubles last week it sold around $20.

Losses to the leaders threw the industrial index a 1.09 minus sign at 166.79. The 1965 index low was recorded last Tuesday at noon when it stood at 164.94.

Base metals were weak although losses were mostly fractional. Falconbridge dipped ⅝ to 98⅜ while losses of ½ went to Conlgo and Inco at 324, Hudson Bay at 71¼ and Labrador at 31½.

On index, base metals were down 1.01 at 78.78 and the exchange index 1.07 at 158.51. Volume for the session was 2,614,000 shares compared with 3,733,000 traded Friday.

COMING DOWN! — Believed Belleville's oldest public building, former Market Square police station is under wrecker's hammer. Extra parking space will take its place.

Wrecking Old Police Station for Parking

Parking spaces will soon mark the spot where Belleville's oldest public building once stood.

Now being junked is the former Market Square police headquarters — once the municipality's community hall.

Last night, Mayor Jack Ellis told council the Belleville Parking Authority would convert the cleared space into parking lots.

In return, the Authority will cede to police space for 18 cars on its Pinnacle Street lot behind the new headquarters.

Says Dollar Fair Price for 850,000 Acres

WAWA, Ont. (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party said Monday that $1 would be a fair price for the Ontario government to pay the Algoma Central Railway for its 850,000 acres of land in this area.

Mr. MacDonald told a public meeting sponsored by the Wawa NDP Association "any sizeable payment to the ACR cannot be justified."

He said the railway has enjoyed the benefits of more than $4,000,000 which should have gone into the public treasury.

In the last 23 years the ACR has enjoyed more than $1,000,000 in tax exemptions on the land, he said. In addition, it has been discovered that the railway has not paid taxes on mineral rights, a sum estimated by a department of mines spokesman at $3,250,000.

WAS EARLY GRANT

The ACR land is part of a tract that was granted the rail way by the province around 1900 as an incentive for railway construction.

The land, mostly in the Wawa area, 150 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, became a centre of controversy in 1962 when the railway began issuing permits at $2.25 and $6.50 to persons using it for hunting and fishing.

The permits were dropped last year but public pressure has prompted the government to investigate the possibility of reclaiming the land.

Press Dispatch on Report To Be Reviewed by Police

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP has been ordered to investigate whether a press dispatch purporting to preview the findings of the Dorion report may have sprung from a security leak of the report itself.

Acting Prime Minister Martin, in announcing the step Monday, told the Commons the his RCMP inquiry will be a preliminary affair centred on "the security of the arrangements" made for publication of the report on charges of attempted bribery and influence-peddling by federal ministerial aides.

He indicated further action will depend on whether receipt of the report itself from Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec superior court confirms that a leak occurred.

Mr. Justice Dorion has told the government the report will not be delivered to the cabinet before the end of the week.

Mr. Martin said h had seen numerous reports of "an alleged leak" of the highly-confidential report in connection with a dispatch Friday by George Brimmell of Southam News Services.

EIGHT POINTS

The Southam dispatch listed eight basic points which it said will form the basis of Mr. Justice Dorion's report. Mr. Brimmell said they were drawn from "a source who claims to be informed and whose record in situations of this sort in the past has been remarkably accurate."

Mr. Martin made no attempt to judge whether the dispatch did involve a leak of the report itself. No member of the government has yet seen the report and, until it is available, "none of us can form a precise or preliminary view" on this question.

Mr. Martin said he had been assured the subject with Mr. Justice Dorion and even he expressed no opinion on whether there had been a leak.

The acting prime minister said he first asked Mr. Justice Dorion to undertake an investigation to do so and expressed the view that any formal inquiry would be inappropriate, at this stage at least.

BRINGS IN RCMP

"We agreed, however, that a preliminary examination of the facts relating to the security of the arrangements could be undertaken. I have accordingly asked the RCMP to carry out a preliminary investigation of this kind in close co-operation with Chief Justice Dorion."

Mr. Martin said that, in light of speculative reports, Prime Minister Pearson, now at the London Commonwealth prime ministers' conference had asked that the official report be delivered to the government as soon as possible.

Mr. Justice Dorion had replied, however, that work on translation and publication of his findings is proceeding as quickly as possible. He doubted whether the government could have the report before the end of the week.

Once it is received by the cabinet, it will be tabled in Parliament.

The report, said to run some 40,000 words, will contain Mr. Justice Dorion's findings on testimony collected during almost four months of public hearings in Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec City.

The one - man inquiry was launched after Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne charged he was offered a $20,000 bribe and subjected to various pressures to withdraw his opposition to bail for Lucien Rivard, a narcotics suspect who has been on the loose since escaping from Montreal's Bordeaux jail in March. Mr. Lapontagne was representing the United States government in attempts to have Rivard extradited to face narcotics smuggling charges in Texas.

Hold Funeral Of Officer

PICTON, Ont. (CP)—Funeral services were held at Camp Picton today for Lieut. John Rexford Guitar, 33, 1st Battalion Canadian Guards, who died Thursday after becoming ill in a fellow officer's car while driving from Belleville to Picton.

Coroner Dr. C. B. Richmond of Picton performed an autopsy but withheld results pending an army investigation.

Ottawa Valley In Grip of Severe Drought

OTTAWA (CP) — Many Ottawa Valley areas remained in the grip of a prolonged crop-wilting drought Monday — the first day of summer.

Below - average rainfall has plagued eastern Ontario counties. The Ottawa district appeared to be among the hardest hit.

In nearby Lanark County, J. R. Steele, the Ontario government's agriculture representative, said the first 1965 hay crop was a third of normal. Many farmers"are "running out of pasture" for their livestock.

Spring - planted grain crops are bearing up a little better. Some good, soaking rains would bring them around.

Mr. Steele said Lanark appears to be better off than Renfrew county to the North. Carleton County has been hard hit among the three chatered areas around Ottawa.

SOME FACE RUIN

Many farmers on the Quebec side of the Ottawa River are also suffering. Officials say some face ruin.

G. W. Robertson, chief of the agro-meteorological section of the federal government's experimental farm here, said less than a half—inch of rain has fallen at the capital in the past five weeks.

The .46 figure is the lowest for this period since records were first kept at the farm in 1890. In a statement, he said the current drought is part of a dry spell that began 13 years ago.

WORSE THAN OTHERS

It is worse than two earlier long-term dry spells, one in the 1904-15 period and the other from 1930 to 1936. Precipitation since September, 1952, when the latest long dry spell began, is 12 inches below normal.

The amount that fell in the past five weeks is some three inches below normal.

Everett Biggs, deputy minister of agriculture for Ontario, was quoted as saying Monday that prices of some farm produce could go up if the drought continues.

There were reports that some farmers were selling their cattle because of lack of pasture and hay. Hay was being trucked into Lanark County from the outside.

An Irate Student Replies

The following letter was received recently, following my column about Grade 13 students who show no initiative in their studies and are simply passing the time in school.

"Dear Mr. Hoy:

"I'd like you to take one good look at my notepaper. In case you find it difficult to remember what it's called, it happens to be examination foolscap. I've been using it for the past two weeks to sweat over, while I wrote my Grade 13 finals.

"I'd like to tell you something. This has been the most frustrating, nerve-wracking two weeks of my life. My fellow pupils and I, for the most part, have been tearing our hair trying to spread enough over a page to have the nerve to ask do we care. We sit in hot, stuffy boring classrooms trying to absorb a little of the great knowledge of the world just for fun. We, who already have a fair education, could be sitting in air-conditioned offices, and don't tell me that's not so because I had a very nice job last year when I quit school because my nerves just couldn't take it any more.

"I'd like to see a few of you pen-pushing old folks fight it out in a classroom for a couple of months. I'd also like to ask you something. Which one of your neighbors turned criminal you wouldn't class the rest of the world in the same category or would you? That's exactly what you are doing with we Grade 13 students and your supermarket friend. I'm sure she was one. Her IQ is 18 instead of 18 because unfortunately Grade 13 isn't void of children.

"As for us being pampered, I'll have to admit to a certain degree of comfort but we didn't ask for it and we don't consider it pampering when five in luxury doesn't mean we couldn't survive without it. The staff kids are made of hasn't changed, it's just the world around them. The older generation sure didn't have a smaller bomb thread to live with and they didn't have to learn how it works.

"So while you sit at your nice desk and consider your next subject just remember me. I only have four more exams to write—biology, chemistry, botany and geometry, and if I fail one I won't be laughing, I'll be crying along with the rest of the brokenhearted students who have created disaster this year on sheer intestinal fortitude because that's what it takes. Grade 13 is where they get the men from the boys. Why don't you take a peek at last Friday's history exam, sir.

"By the way I don't need a B.A. or Grade 13. I'm going to be a nurse but I'm a typical student, the kind you've never failed to.

Sincerely,
Disgus Ford.

Dear Disgus:

Thank you very much for the lovely letter. I've excused the penmanship and spelling and thrown in the mistakes in grammar as well — I'll attribute the whole thing to nervous exhaustion.

Your letter is a very nice criticism of something I didn't even say. Are you sure you didn't read somebody else's column? I never suggested all Grade 13 students don't care, I simply said there are some and asked how many. Further, I never failed you for being too pampered, I finished the paragraph.

I just hope that you read the questions on your examinations better than you read my column.

Mill Workers Summoned to Meet Board

The members of Local 290 of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Papermill Workers (CLC) walked out June 14. The mill has been idle since.

The action came as the board held a hearing into a walkout at Kimberley-Clark of Canada Ltd.'s paper mill at St. Catharines. The company is seeking to have the walkout declared an illegal strike.

A paper mill operated by the Ontario Paper Co. in the area was also shut down June 15 when about 170 employees left their job. The shutdown affects some 1,300 workers.

MR. AND MRS. GARY E. R. LIDSTER

Lidster – Haney

Standards of spring flowers was the decor in Walford United Church for the recent marriage of Lynne Roberta Haney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winfred Haney, Walford, Ontario, to Gary Ernest Roy Lidster, nephew of Mrs. Sarah Cronkwright of Trenton. Rev. Crossley of Walford, officiated at the ceremony.

Mr. Donald Prince, brother-in-law of the bride from Rosseville, Michigan, U.S.A., played traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length bouffant bridal gown of organza over taffeta, featuring a fitted bodice with portrait neckline and long fitted sleeves ending in lily-points. A modified train flowed from the center back of the skirt. An elbow length veil of tulle illusion was held by a cluster of satin roses. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Sandra Cronkwright of Trenton, cousin of the bridegroom, wore a blue organza over taffeta dress with lace jacket and matching headdress. She carried a nosegay of white Shasta mums entwined with tinted blue mums. Miss Wendy Withers of Walford as bridesmaid was similarly attired, but in pink organza over taffeta and carried a nosegay of white Shasta mums centred with pink.

The groomsman was Mr. Norman Johnstone, Trenton and Mr. Wayne Phillips of Trenton and Mr. James Prince of Roseville, Michigan, U.S.A., were the ushers.

The reception was held in the Institute hall at Walford, where's the bride's table was most attractive, centred with a three-tier wedding cake flanked with tall candles. Colorful bridal bouquets completed the nuptial setting.

The guests were greeted by the bride's mother who wore a beige lace over taffeta dress, white accessories and a corsage of fuscare mum and yellow roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's aunt, dressed in a two-piece turquoise embossed silk dress, white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and points east the bride chose a peony pink two-piece suit, white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

A number of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Miss Sandra Cronkwright, Trenton, to honor the new bride at a cup and saucer shower.

Mr. and Mrs. Lidster will reside in Spanish where the bridegroom is stationed with the Ontario Provincial Police.

Successful Living

Wife Irritated by Hubby's Attentions to Stranger

DEAR DORIS — Is it socially correct for a husband to ask a young girl (about 18 or 19), a complete stranger, to dance when we are out at a dinner dance at a public gathering? Previous to this he had made comments to the effect that she was the best looking girl in the place!

We had been invited to this affair by a fellow employee of my husband's. We sat at a table with him, his friend (neither of them had dates, were bachelors and were trying to make time with the unattached girls), and his friend's sister with her husband. In all, there were four men and two women. We knew no one else there.

We are in our mid-thirties. Before marriage we discussed jealousy and I made it clear just what I felt — in other words, look but do not touch. Let's face it; all men like to look at attractive girls and women.

DORIS CLARK

My husband claims I am very narrow minded. — GREEN-EYED MONSTER.

* * *

DEAR GREEN-EYED MONSTER — If this was a company dance where there was a lot of mixing going on, then your husband's action would not be inappropriate.

However, if this girl was in an entirely different group, then he was incorrect. Maybe he was just trying to show his bachelor friends how to operate!

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Mrs. V.J.'s letter prompted me to write concerning never hearing from those advertisements which promise to send something on request plus ten cents or 25 cents. This has happened to me twice and I am wondering if all ads are the same set-up.

Imagine the money accumulated from these parties if people from all over the country are writing in and treated in the same way! — DISGUSTED.

* * *

DEAR DISGUSTED — It really could add up! — one good reason for buying nationally advertised brands or checking fly-by-night offerings with Chambers of Commerce or Better Business Bureaus. Sorry you were twice bitten.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My problem concerns my one-year-old niece. Her father has disliked her ever since she was born. He slaps her all the time when her mother isn't present. Now he has started to bang her head against play pen or crib, and he also pulls her hair until she cries. There is also a twin brother whom he adores.

He brings home around four hundred dollars a month; owns his home and car. I don't want to interfere, but isn't there something I can do before something happens to the little girl? — WORRIED AUNT.

* * *

DEAR AUNT — The plight of the battered baby is of deep concern to social workers; and people like you are asked — and expected — to bring such things to light. The victim of this abuse is likely to suffer serious personality damage as well as physical injury.

Go to the Children's Aid Society of Belleville and Hastings County, 63 Moira St., Belleville, and tell the worker exactly what you have told me.

* * *

Confidential to GRATEFUL — Write again enclosing ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet on the career of social work.

Stewart, Belleville Division Commissioner; Mrs. M. McCall, N.P. District Commission; Mrs. K. Bertrim and Mrs. R. Reid, both lieutenants, and Janice Hogan, Provincial cadet, were head table guests.

The centrepiece consisted of the traditional blue and gold flowers with the blue candles, Brenda Durrant, Barb and Durrant and Dorothy LeBaron were presented with blazer crests for being the best dressed Guides of the year.

The Kingfisher patrol was announced as being the best all round patrol and each girl received a Guide pen. The members of the patrol are: Patrol Leader Marie Gulis, Wendy Bell, Cathy Holland, Ann Varcoe, Joan Pixley, Arlene Burchill, Bernice Pamela Durrant and Jean Walt.

Division Commissioner Mrs. D. Stewart made another plea for more leaders.

The Brownies who walked up were as follows: Lorna Pidwell, Marilee Joais, Janice Cook, Ruth Cook, Susan Bramley, Linda Stairs and Pattie Wagar. There was only one Brownie, Beth Gerow, who flew up, and received her wings. Mrs. D. Stewart commended the Brownies on their achievement of the past year even though these Brownies were not able to attend their meetings because they did not have a leader to help them with their work.

Study Laws Governing Family Life

TORONTO (CP)—Family welfare organizations and women's clubs expressed full support Monday of a study of laws governing family life in Ontario.

The Ontario law reform commission has assigned a committee of seven to review every such law in the province with a view to possible reform. The study will be financed by the attorney - general's department.

Joan Wilson of Guelph, provincial president of the Business and Professional Women's Club, said: "We will be behind it completely. The review is long overdue."

She suggested the committee should review briefs already presented to the government by women's organizations.

Her club has prepared several briefs on succession duties with the support of many other women's organizations throughout the province, she said.

She said the government also has been presented with briefs on obscene literature and its effect on the family, equal pay for women, income tax deductions and many other topics.

William Turnbull, deputy commissioner of welfare for Toronto, said he was surprised at the far-reaching aims of the project.

He said it would be of real benefit to welfare departments but that it would be about two years before a study could be completed and many more before recommendations could be made law.

EAT TONS

100 Children Mothered in Last 27 Years

Two were her own. The other 98 have been foster-children. She has brought them into her home in an unending stream despite the fact that during the period she had three operations for cancer.

Most have a story connected with them.

Muriel, 14, with the family eight years, underwent an open heart operation in 1962; Kim, 4, was emotionally disturbed when she arrived at the age of eight months but now is normal; John, 16 months, was born with PKU, a disease that affects the acid balance of the body, and needs a strict diet.

David, 3, born with water on the brain, lives with a tube in his brain to drain off excess fluid but leads a normal life; Vicki, a year old, has a slight heart murmur, and David, three months, is an albino whose skin and eyes are sensitive to bright light although he can otherwise be treated as any child.

Esperanto Universal Language

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Jacob Biely found five years ago that 10 languages were not enough—she learned one that covered them all.

Mrs. Biely says her eyes were opened on a four-month trip to Europe in 1960.

Even though she spoke 10 languages, many more than most travellers, she couldn't communicate with the people of all the lands she visited.

On the train she settled down to learn Esperanto, the universal language invented 77 years ago by Dr. L. L. Zamenhoff.

Mrs. Biely says Esperanto is neutral, phonetic and logical. It contains about 900 words, to which can be added prefixes and suffixes to supplement

Esperanto is promoted by guages for the school board for groups in some 80 countries— some years before she started and by night classes Mrs. Biely on Esperanto.

1 envelope (1 tablespoon) plain gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, ½ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 3 egg yolks, one 6-oz. package chocolate chips or four 1-oz. packages "choco-bake", 1 teaspoon rum flavoring, 3 egg whites, ¼ cup sugar, 1 cup 35% cream, about 1-oz. sq. unsweetened chocolate (for decoration).

To Make Pastry: Cut shortening and butter into flour and salt with pastry blender until size of peas. Drizzle in water, tossing with fork, until flour is dampened and dough may be pressed into a ball. Roll out on lightly floured board to fit deep 9" pie plate. Line pie plate, trim and flute edges, prick pastry with fork and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. 8 to 10 minutes, being sure you watch it during last 2 or 3 minutes to prevent scorching. Cool.

To Make Filling: Soak gelatin in cold water. Mix ¼ cup sugar (first amount) with flour in a saucepan. Stir in milk and egg yolks and cook, stirring, until it boils. Cook one minute longer, stirring constantly. Measure 1 cup of hot custard into a bowl and stir in chocolate bits (or choco-bake) and rum flavoring until blended. Pour this chocolate mixture into cooled baked pie shell. Let cool at room temperature. Stir gelatine liquid into remaining hot custard and stir until dissolved. Chill until partially set. Beat egg whites until frothy, add ¼ cup sugar (second amount) gradually and beat until stiff. Fold into partially set custard mixture. Pile on top of chocolate layer in pastry shell. (This is a lot of filling so pile it high in the centre). Chill until firm (overnight is best). Spread whipped cream over top with 1 cup cream, whipped until stiff, and decorate top with curls of shaved bitter chocolate.

Ann Landers

Natural to Have Moods Concerning Ourselves

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a 13-year-old girl with a horrible problem. Nobody likes me. Last year when I was 11 everybody was just crazy about me. I was the most popular girl in the whole school. All of a sudden I turned ugly and now I don't have a single friend in the world.

There are times when I am sure my own mother doesn't even like me. She yells at me for no reason at all. When my little brother does some bratty thing that isn't a bit cute, she laughs and says, "Look at him. Isn't he darling?"

Why has the world turned against me overnight? Has this ever happened to anyone else that you know? I need some advice on how to return to my former popular self. Thank you. — MISS JEKYLL.

DEAR MISS — I'll bet by the time you read this letter you will have returned to your former popular self — with no help from me.

Everyone has days when he feels ugly and unloved. Then suddenly he snaps back to his sunshiny, beautiful self. He loves everybody and he's sure everybody loves him. This is called human nature and no one can explain it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Here's a word to Dixie, the woman who wanted to know what to say to people who ask her why she has married. I am also 32, single and amazed that so many clods have the guts to ask such a personal question.

In my mid-twenties it dawned on me that I might never meet a man I wanted to marry, so I began to plan for my future. I started at the bottom of this organization and I've worked my way up to an executive position.

What gets me is that so many rockheads are concerned about my love life. What do you do for a man?" they inquire solicitously, "Get normal." (Can you imagine such cruel?)

If the Good Lord has decided that I'm going to make this earthly trip solo, I'm going to travel in style, first-class. I take a lovely vacation ever year, I drive a new car and I wear a mink coat. So, Dixie, when the clods ask you why you aren't married, look 'em in the eye and say, "Just lucky, I guess." — CAREER GIRL.

DEAR GIRL — I like your spirit, Toots. I've said it before and I'll say it again: Marriage is not for everyone.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My brother is a wonderful person. He is considered smart by everyone who knows him, but when it comes to his personal life I'm afraid he's just plain stupid.

Mel is engaged to a girl who keeps this whole family in an uproar. They are together every evening. He usually gets home about 11:30 p.m. Every fifth or sixth night, after Mel gets home, she telephones him and says she is sick and she needs him. These calls come at about 2:00 or 3:00 in the morning. Mel rushes to her bedside, which, of course, breaks up his night's sleep and he is no good at work the next day.

Mother has told Mel that the girl should see a doctor. He says her attacks are not serious and that she needs emotional support. I think she is playing him for a fool in order to get more attention. What do you think? — LITTLE SIS.

DEAR SIS — It takes two to play that game and your brother seems to be a willing participant.

Don't waste any sympathy on a fellow who would allow his girl to run him ragged. He must get satisfaction out of catering to her demands or he wouldn't hold still for the treatment.

* * *

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Smoking," enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Who Cares Whether She Can Play?

By EDDY GILMORE

She was Carol Anne Castell, 20, of Miami.

Carol failed to qualify for the actual tennis but as one of a squad of bag-eyed photographers said:

"Who cares whether she can play?"

GUSSIE STARTED IT

The dress gimmick at Wimbledon began 18 years ago when Gorgeous Gussie Moran of the United States appeared in—for those days—a shocking pair of lace-trimmed panties.

Years later it was Karol Fageros in a pair of golden panties. Then came Brazil's Maria Bueno in dazzling bloomers.

Miss Bueno's pink shocked the championships organizers into issuing a no-color edict. From that time onwards the girls longer. They reduced the skirt to a tiny frill, often only eight or nine inches long."

Sweeping his veteran eyes across the Wimbledon arena, Tinling said:

"People don't come here to see tennis. They come to look at my dresses."

WOMEN WIN EQUALITY

ROME (CP)—The Italian parliament has approved a law guaranteeing women teachers equality with men in civil service competitions for vacancies in public schools. A law of 1928 tended to limit the number of female teachers.

Susanna's Family Fare

COOL, CLEAR WATER!

What to do with those house plants when you leave them unattended for a few weeks? Here is everything I have ever heard of, read about, tried or been told of. Take your pick:

There is always that old one about setting them in the bathtub or the laundry tub in a few inches of water — the only trouble is if there isn't a window nearby the leaves are apt to turn yellow from lack of light, so watch it on that score.

In all cases it is wise to water the plants thoroughly, shortly before you leave. Covering the soil itself with wet cotton or commercially treated peat moss helps to deter that old drying out process.

Here's one I'll bet some of you have never tried: If you would like to leave them right in the windows where they are, you can make larger outside containers of heavy duty aluminum foil and then surround the porous earthenware pots with welldampened layers of moss. Just be sure to make these foil "trays" water-proof so that your window ledges don't get rotted.

Or, tie a plastic bag loosely at the top around the plant, pot and all. Support the bag with tall stakes so that it doesn't rest on the leaves, and poke a few holes in the plastic to allow a little air to circulate.

Many houses plants love a little change of scenery during the summer months, so says the Dept. of Agriculture. Choose a cool, dull day to do the digging and plunge the parous pots to their rims in the soil - select the location, sunny or shady, according to the plants' particular needs.

Here's a final creepy bit of advice gain. Place a stone or piece of slate under the pot to prevent earth worms, etc., from crawling into the roots growing right through the drainage hole! How was that for a liltchcock ending? — SUSANNA

STOP REMOVER

Dear Susanna: I imagine lots of other things will do the job just as well, but because I'm a woman I'll tell you about a certain use for such items as my nail polish remover.

It is just great for clearing paint streaks and splatters off windows.

Apply some to the corner of a dry cloth or a piece of absorbent cotton and rub those spots right out of sight. —B. Love

Daily Shopping for Soviet Housewife Becoming Easier

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Soviet housewife's daily shopping is gradually becoming easier. But it is still much more difficult than in the West.

Premier Alexei Kosygin has announced an all-out effort to raise the standard of homeproduced goods and make enough of them to satisfy everyone's wants.

Many of the methods his economic experts intend to use are well tried in the capitalist world but were anathema to old-style Stalinist planners. Russians insist, however, that their country is not "going capitalist," because the means of production remains in public ownership.

This year 400 factories making clothes and shoes have stopped taking their orders from the planners. They now supply the shops with what they can sell profitably to the public.

Shopping can still take a long time. On a busy day it can take 20 minutes of queuing to buy a loaf of bread. But every month newspapers all over the Soviet Union report the opening of new shops.

Most shops still have cash desks separate from the counters, so that sometimes a housewife has to line up three times to make one purchase—first to choose, then to pay and then to collect her purchases.

SPECIAL SHOPS

For the privileged shopper who has Western currency there are a handful of special shops where everything from a bottle of milk to a carpet is readily available.

Many things are cheaper than in capitalist shops and luxury goods like caviar and translator radios are in more plentiful supply.

The drive to satisfy consumers' desires recently resulted in the big price reductions on a whole range of textiles and clothes. The cuts brought a rush of eager buyers to the shops and will help the average Soviet citizen to have a bigger wardrobe than he is used to.

Another side of the drive to improve the shopper's lot is the bid for better quality.

Outboard Races Will Feature Beauty Contest

PICTON (Staff) — Drivers from Belleville as well as Picton will be participating in the season's first Picton Outboard Club sponsored race to be held on Sunday, July 11, at North Bay near Consecon. This is not a C.R.F. race as is usually held but is strictly a race involving only the two municipalities. This race always has drawn large crowds in the past to North Bay and this one is expected to be even larger.

A feature of the afternoon's program will be a beauty contest to crown Miss Quinte Isle. There will also be a draw for an outboard motor. Proceeds of the race will be donated to the newly-formed Association for the Mentally Retarded. North Bay will be closed to boating and swimming, while the races are in progress, however the beach on the lakeside will not be closed and everyone is welcome. The Department of Lands and Forests have asked that people attending the races please co-operate.

Member Named To Three Committees

PICTON (Staff) —A. Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P. for Prince Edward-Lennox has been appointed to three of the House of Commons standing committees. These are industry, research and energy development, miscellaneous private bills and northern affairs and national resources.

The report recommending the composition of the House's 19 standing committees was accepted last week.

Mr. Alkenbrack took part in many of the events during the Ontario Historical Society convention held in Picton during the weekend. Mr. Alkenbrack came in for some good naturedribbing at making history himself—being possibly the last member for Prince Edward-Lennox. Lennox will probably lose its identity in the proposed new riding boundaries.

KEEP WATCHFUL EYE

Ontario Provincial Police have been keeping a watchful eye on the beaches and camping areas near the Outlet and Sandbanks park over the weekend. Hundreds of high school students have been holding "class parties" in these areas and police have been standing by to maintain order "just in case" of some unexpected disorderly conduct. Police have reported, however that the weekend passed without incident and the students have now returned to their summer routines.

MONUMENT TO A LYNCH — This monument in Galway, Ireland, a jail window, marks the spot where Irish folklore has it in 1493 the town's mayor personally executed his own son and originated the word "lynch." James Lynch Fitzstephen carried out the death penalty after the public executioner refused because of public sympathy for the youth, a jealous lover who admitted killing a friend by mistake. place Friday night at Varsity Stadium.

The bullet - proof car was used last October for the Queen's visit to Charlottetown, Quebec City and Ottawa and officials said then that it would be used for future visits by important people. However, a number of spectators complained that the car was so built as to make it difficult to see the passengers.

Governor - General Georges Vanier and Mme. Vanier will fly here from Ottawa Wednesday to welcome the Queen Mother to Canada.

Others who will be presented include: Lieutenant - Governor Earl Rowe of Ontario and Mrs. Rowe; Trade Minister Michell Sharp, representing Prime Minister Pearson who is attending the prime ministers conference in London, and Mrs. Sharp; Lt.-Col. J. D. Learmont, a native of Truro, N.S., and commanding officer of the Toronto Scottish Regiment, Lord Thomson of Fleet, the regiment's honorary colonel; Mayor Philip Givens of Toronto and Mrs. Givens, and William R. Allen, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto Council, and Mrs. Allen.

A highlight of the Queen Mother's schedule is a banquet Thursday given by the Empire Club of Canada in honor of her regiment. Earlier that day she will have lunch with the Lieutenant - governor at the Ontario Legislature and visit the Red Cross Lodge at Sunnybrook Hospital.

Friday she will visit the National Stud Farm at Oshawa, followed by luncheon with Viscount Massey, former governor-general, at his home, Batterwood House, in Port Hope.

After the race she will present the 50 "Queen's guineas" and the trophy to the winning owner and the trainer and jockey will be introduced to her. She first witnessed this racing event in 1939 during a visit to Canada with the late King George IV.

Also on her Saturday schedule are visits to the Royal Ontario Museum and the Women's College Hospital.

Sunday she will attend service at St. James' Cathedral, have lunch with the serving officers of her regiment and attend a service at Knox Presbyterian Church.

She then will go to University College at the University of Toronto to take the salute at a march past of her regiment before leaving for Toronto airport for the flight home aboard an RCAF Yukon.

History of Lynching Lives in Irish City

By ROD CURRIE

GALWAY, Ireland (CP)—On a tiny back street in this ancient seaside city there is a grim monument to a tragedy which the Irish insist gave the word "lynch" to the English language.

Tourist brochures and guide books make the claim unequivocally, although most authoritative language sources say the origin of the word is obscure. Several even suggest the dubious honor possibly should go to a Virginia planter and justice of the peace named Charles Lynch.

Galway people maintain the word was known here before the New World was even settled. This is true. But they apparently gave it a meaning different than that commonly applied today.

Whatever the merit of the Galway claim, the story that goes with it is a fascinating one.

One of the main characters in the drama played out many years ago in this west coast resort centre was Walter Lynch Fitzstephen, ib. If a handsome, charming and an outstanding athlete, he was a great favorite among the townsfolk.

Another was his father, James Lynch Fitzstephen, wealthy trader and descendant of the Lynch family, one of the 14 ruling families who gave the city its present slogan "City of the Tribes."

The father was elected mayor in 1492 and later returned from a trip to Spain with a youth named Gomez, a quiet, reserved boy who was to spend a year in Ireland.

BECAME JEALOUS

At the time Walter was courting a local girl named Agnes who, so the story goes, was of "striking beauty and grace." The three became fast friends and were frequently seen at social gatherings until one night when Walter—apparently without reason—accused Agnes of being too attentive to Gomez.

They quarrelled violently and Walter was still in a dark mood the following evening when he passed Agnes's house and saw a man departing. He chased him into a dark, deserted part of town, stabbed him through the heart and threw him into the river.

Only then did Walter realize the victim was his friend Gomez. Overcome with remorse, he wailed by the riverside until dawn when a posse headed by his father, as chief magistrate the town's supreme legal authority, arrived to arrest him.

Walter openly confessed but claimed that, being blinded by jealousy, he thought the man was someone other than Gomez, whom he knew to be a frequent visitor to Agnes's house to give Spanish lessons to her father.

The townspeople, almost to a man, were on young Walter's side and wanted his release. But the father, although distraught, went through with the trial and sentenced the boy to death.

The official executioner refused to carry out the sentence and the father decided against letting his son be taken to the town square for the traditional public execution for fear the people would rescue their favorite and spirit him away.

HANGED SON

Instead he went from his ancestral home—now a bank—to the nearby jail where he embraced his son and then hanged him.

Years later he died of grief, it is said, and Agnes and her family lived in seclusion for the rest of their lives.

Today all that remains is the front wall of the tiny jail, with its "Lynch window" and a sculptured skull and crossbones dated 1624. Below the window, through which townsfolk could see the boy hanging, is a stone inscribed:

"This ancient memorial of the stern and unbending justice of the chief magistrate of this city, James Lynch Fitzstephen, elected mayor a.d. 1482, who condemned and executed his own guilty son, Walter, on this spot, has been restored to this, its ancient site, a.d. 1854".

Although there seems little doubt the Irish used the word "lynch" first, the use of the words "justice" and "guilty" in the inscription tends to accredit they put to it a different meaning than that used today—execution of a person by a self-constituted illegal court.

For while the Galway magistrate was within the powers of his office, his son having been tried and sentenced, the American Lynch used extralegal methods and in fact was indemnified by an act of the Virginia Assembly in 1782.

However, at the time Charles Lynch was operating as a law unto himself, the punishment generally was flogging. It was later, when the illegal execution of people often Necroes, became more common that the word was extended in America to include hanging.

The new agency would go out of existance in 10 years. Bands would have three years to submit claims in writing, stating exct the particulars "with reasonable certainty and details."

Debate opens today on the second - reading stage, after which the 23-section bill will be referred to a special Commons-Senate committee for public hearings and detailed study.

—Amendments to the Customs Act and tariff rates proposed in the April 26 budget of Finance Minister Gordon were given approval and sent to the Senate.

—Third reading was also given to a bill to increase maximum loans under the Fisheries Improvement Loans Act to $10,000 from $4,000. The maximum repayment period was extended to 10 from eight years.

—A bill authorizing the CNR to build a 12-mile spur line near Sarnia, received first reading.

—A motion to re-establish the special committee on consumer credit also was debated but did not come to a vote.

The Indian claim bill is basically the same as an earlier proposal introduced Dec. 14, 1964, and later withdrawn in the face of stiff criticism from Indian leaders and opposition MPs.

Three changes have been made, however, to meet some of the requests from Indian bands.

The revised bill provides that one of the five commissioners must be a treaty Indian. The government may give financial aid to bands to prepare and pursue claims. And the deadline for filing claims is extended to three years from June.

MAY ORDER PAYMENT

The full-time commissioners, who would be required to live in the Ottawa area, could order cash payments to Indian bands when they accepted claims falling in any of five classes. The claims are classified as follows:

Lands taken from Indians by agents of the Crown without any agreement or undertaking to provide compensation; lands on Indian reserves that were sold or granted to non-Indians by the government without paying compensation or when the compensation was "so inadequate as to be unconscionable;" Indian funds that were "improperly used" by the government; treaty obligations and undertakings by the Crown that were not discharged; and any transactions other than land transfers where the Crown failed to act fairly and honorably toward Indians.

Boumediene's revolutionary council recalled Ahmed Medegri to be interior minister, in charge of the police. He had been fired six months ago by Ben Bella, who took over the ministry himself. Medegri also was made provisional finance minister, replacing Bachir Boumaza.

In Washington, U.S. government sources said the Boumediene regime appeared in effective control.

They said the U.S. expected to announce formal recognition of the new government in a day or two.

Moscow seemed to be waiting. So were Britain, Canada, Malaysia and other countries of East, West and non-aligned policy.

The British government announced Monday it was accepting the new regime and then withdrew the statement.

The Afro-Asian members of the Commonwealth also called on the new government to postpone the Afro - Asian summit conference, scheduled to open in Algiers a week from today. The revolutionary council announced Sunday that the conference would go on as scheduled.

Two Algerian emissaries arrived in London to talk to the Afro-Asian Commonwealth leaders. Other envoys were sent to other capitals.

Burma and Malawi now say they will not attend, Japan postponed sending its delegation.

FAMILY ALLOWANCE STOPPED

If the family allowance is stopped before the child is 16 for some breach of the requirements, such as failure of the child to attend school, taking employment or being confined to an institution, the parent is not allowed to claim the $550 exemption. The $300 allowance is all that may be claimed as the child is still qualified for the allowance once the reason for it being stopped is cleared up. It is the qualification of the child, not the receipt of the allowance that governs.

Children of Canadian parents who have had the allowance stopped due to the residence rule, are immediately qualified for it, on their return to Canada. If the children were outside Canada at the end of the year, and no family allowance is being received then the parents may claim $550 for the child.

When the family allowance ceases due to the child reaching 16 years, the parents may claim $550 for the child in the year it attains that age. For instance, if the child became 16 years of age late in December, the parents could claim $550 for the child in that year regardless of the fact family allowance may have been received for the entire year.

When the family allowance stops because the child has become deceased, $550 exemption may be claimed regardless of the date of death or the age of the child. I have received numerous letters in the past few years asking if the family allowance received before the child became 16 or before his death, has to be returned in order to claim an exemption of $550. In no cases such as these does the family allowances received have to be returned. If the child is not qualified for family allowance on December 31 of the taxation year, $550 is the exemption allowable.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed, five cents stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: Our baby died in January before the family allowance cheque came. Do we claim $300 or $550?

Answer: Claim $550.

Question 2: My 15 year old son was sent to a boys' training school. The family allowance was stopped. Can I now claim $550 exemption for him?

Answer: No. He is still qualified for the allowance if he is released before he becomes 16.

Diefenbaker Lays Foundation For Federal Election Campaign

By KEN KELLY

VICTORIA (CP)—John Diefenbaker seems to be laying the groundwork for election campaigning, just in case Prime Minister Pearson should call one in the next few months.

On his current western swing, the 69 - year - old Conservative chieftain has been acting more and more as though an election was in the offing.

But apart from polishing up his election oratory, Mr. Diefenbaker may be busying himself deliberately and publicly just to prove that his years don't count as much against him as people might think.

Both his public engagements and his two-day fishing holiday at Campbell River, B.C., have been exhausting. There are no visible signs of physical strain.

He returns repeatedly in formal speeches such as at Weyburn, Sask., and here or in informal groups such as at Campbell River, to this question of health and his future.

HAS NEW MISSION

Somehow he manages to get into each occasion the question "what have I got to gain by staying in active politics?"

Then he replies, possibly building the foundation for a crusading - style election campaign, that he stays in public life because he feels a sense of mission.

"I'll do anything for my country but I will not sell out its birthright for votes."

Usually his point, he has attacked the Liberal government as corrupt, said "my government did not have any ministers touched with the taint of corruption" and sounded his familiar one-Canada theme.

It is clear from what he says that his sense of mission is to "restore" honesty to government—"I don't care what your political faith may be, you expect honesty in public life."

At a Progressive Conservative nominating meeting here Monday night, he said, the No. 1 issue in the next election campaign will be whether Canada will become a republic.

The proposal for a new flag last year, he said, was the first step along the road to a republic in Canada.

sick and the aged—would pay higher insurance premiums that governments.

In other business, Lands and Forests Minister Roberts announced that 45 members of the legislature will make a six-day tour of Northern Ontario outposts, arranged by his department to allow members to see parts of the province they would not otherwise have visited.

About 12 planes—Otters and Beavers—will be made available to fly a party of 90, including members, press and government officials on the lake-skipping tour.

The only official event on the program will be the opening of the Nakina airport across Rainy Lake in the Fort Frances area where Premier Roberts and Highways Minister MacNaughton will officiate.

Shelley Lewis (NDP-Scarbore West) opposed that licensing of nursing homes in the province come under one department, with the enactment of legislation similar to the existing Homes for the Aged Act.

The New Democrats' welfare spokesman said the statute should cover licensing, administration and operation of all nursing homes and sheltered care residences.

Mr. Lewis said Ontario's nursing homes are fraught with scandal, neglect and malpractice and "nothing short of a new and stringent nursing homes act will alleviate the situation. . . ."

DISTRICT CHURCH PARADE

STIRLING — The Moira Valley Scout Association held its first district church parade on Sunday in commemoration of Robert Baden Powell the founder of Boy Scouts.

Over 400 Scouts, Cubs, Guides, Brownies and Rangers gathered at the Stirling-Rawdon High School grounds and were marshalled to parade to the Henry Street Recreation Grounds by Cdr. Blake Faulkner.

At the Stirling Public Library a saluting base was set up and Mrs. Hall of Belleville Guide Commissioner and Joe Irish District Commissioner, Stirling took the salutes from the Guides and Scouts groups.

The Stirling and Rawdon District High School band under the leadership of Mr. Maurice Bell provided the marital music.

All of the groups in the Moira district were represented and included, from Marmora, Tweed, Madoc, Bonarlaw, Thomasburg, Plainfield, Bayside and Stirling. The colour party was composed of seven flags representing Canada, Ontario, the Union Jack, St. George, Guides, Cubs and Scouts.

LARGE ATTENDANCE

A large number of interested folk were in attendance at the Recreation Grounds where a special printed program was given to each participant with the order of service. Rev. J. H. Thompson of Madoc, president of the Moira district was in charge of the prayers and hymns honoring the life and service of Robert Baden Powell. He also gave an informative address on the theme of St. George the patron saint of Scouting. Mr. Thompson later dedicated the new flags.

Robert Temple M.P. made the presentation to Mr. Thompson of a 15-years of service pin. He also presented Bill Baker of Stirling and Alex Newman of Thomasburg with Queen's Scout badges. At this service Bruce Woodbeck and Bill Baker were eligible for their region and life badges and Bruce received his award.

The two commissioners Mrs. Hall and Mr. Irish each took part in the service. At the close of the program the group paraded back to the school grounds where Legion members assisted with serving soft drinks to the marchers before they were dispersed. Another group served coffee to the dignitaries at the Recreation Grounds.

Many Legionnaires and officers of Scouting were in attendance also Warden Frederick Beckett of Hastings County.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

17th BELLEVILLE GROUP

Saturday morning, June 5, Cubs from A and B Packs with their leaders journeyed to Camp Sagonaska. Fifty boys and six leaders worked feverishly to set up tents and other equipment after which the various events got under way.

An excellent program was laid on, consisting of a wide variety of games, a Kentucky Derby, trekking Nature Trails and the usual campfire.

All Sixers took part in various skits and stunts. The weather was on the cool side, but otherwise good on Saturday night. The usual barrage of mosquitoes was somewhat bothersome and as sometimes happens those clowns of woods, "raccoons"—had a field day invading the camp. Rumor has it that one adult member of the camp is working on the development of a new formula probably to be called "Racoon-Off".

Mrs. Joan Dixon, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, and other members of her group prepared excellent meals for the campers.

Rev. Alex McDowell was Group Padre, Scouter Murray Maw acted as camp chief. Other leaders attending were: Lou Kline, Al Frazer, Wally Rudolph, George McLean and Hugh Beach. The came came to successful conclusion on Sunday afternoon.

Reds Say Nerts To K's Yurts

MOSCOW (AP) — Former premier Khrushchev's scheme to give his central Asian sheepherders modern yurts made out of synthetic material instead of wool and animal skins is a resounding flop, a Moscow newspaper reported today.

The youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda said shepherds on the plains of Kazakhstan have been sticking to the old fashioned portable tents their ancestors used.

The newspaper reported Khrushchev's yurts "were cumbersome, heavy and took five or six husky men to set them up—even with the help of a truck crane."

The Chinese recently reported they have outfitted their Nomad sheepherders in Inner Mongolia with the synthetic yurts and they are a great success.

A group of 26 teenagers from Belleville is spending this week learning to be playground leaders.

The Belleville group, along with boys and girls between the ages of 16 and 20 from Trenton, Picton, Cobourg, Peterborough, Napanee and so on, numbering 141 in total is staying in Camp Quin-Mo-Lac.

Norm Carter, Assistant Director of Recreation, Belleville, is the Camp Director. "We give the kids here a really good basic training as to how to conduct playground activities," he said.

"Most of the kids get a lot out of their week here. The total cost of the camp for the week is about $3,000."

The day begins early for the training playground leaders. They get up at 7 a.m. and have a swim before breakfast at 7:45. In fact, they will have a swim three times each day, just before each meal.

"The swim in the morning helps to wake them up," Mr. Carter said. "The ones at noon and before supper help to alleviate the heat of the day. It gets pretty hot sitting in classrooms listening to lectures when it's 80 or 90 degrees outside."

A mid-morning and mid-afternoon break is provided and during those times, they all head for the well-stocked tuck shop, Lectures begin at 9 a.m., and except for meals and recreation periods, go right through to 9 p.m.

MANY DIFFERENT AREAS

The boys and girls at camp are lectured in many different areas. They're taught playground philosophy, working with children, playground safety, group control, quiet games, active games and individual games.

They're shown leadership principles and practices, arts and crafts, special events, program planning and publicity and public relations.

The course content is designed to make them aware of their summertime jobs and give them the knowledge to be able to plan and operate a satisfying playground operation for the children of the city.

"Students leaving this course," Mr. Carter said, "are adequately trained in the basic principles of playground operation and are able to offer the children using the playgrounds an interesting and informative program for the summer."

Local people involved in the training of the playground leaders are Norm Carter, Lloyd "Red" Doran, director of recreation, Belleville; Robert Hall, safety officer, Belleville City Police; Mrs. G. Wilson, St. John Ambulance, Belleville, camp nurse; Mr. W. Ring, Director of Recreation, Picton; Mr. W. Workman, Director of Recreation, Trenton; Mr. D. W. Maddocks, Belleville, Department of Education; and Sgt. M. LaPorte, Recreation Specialist, RCAF Trenton.

After lectures are over at 9 p.m. everyone gets together for a social time which could include dancing, camp fires or hootenanys. On Thursday, there is a huge talent show in which everyone in camp, including instructors, participates.

Lights are out at 11.30 p.m.

Each of the students in training have a duty day during which time they may be required to do dishes, or act as waiters or, if they are qualified, to perform waterfront duty.

And just in case some of the city's boys are wondering whether they would want to go to the camp or not, the girls outnumber the boys by a count of six to one.

Mr. Carter reported that Belleville's 22 supervised playgrounds will open Monday, July 5, and continue in operation until Friday, August 27.

Higher Education Becomes Major Plank in PC Platform

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—A group of Conservative members of Parliament are working informally together to draft a party policy on higher education which would become a major plank in any future election.

The package of proposals probably will go before a party caucus within a few weeks.

It has been indicated for some time that the question of financing higher education would be a key issue in the next Conservative election campaign. Party speakers have been advocating an increase in university grants in $3 from $2 for each student and making municipal taxes paid by home owners a deductible expense for federal income tax.

When Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound - Muskoka) advocated in the Commons last Thursday that part of the loans made available under the student loan plan be written off as a reward for scholastic achievement, he was representing the views of a group of the party members who are unofficially working on the education platform. Mr. Aiken's proposals would create a bursary system within the loan plan.

LOAN PLAN BEGUN

The student loan plan, begun last year, makes bank loans available to students with guarantees from the federal government. The Commons was told last week that by April 1 a total of 41,284 loans had been made under the program.

Mr. Aiken proposed that students gaining a clear pass should have 25 per cent of the loan "forgiven." And those in the top quarter of their class should have an additional 15 per cent lopped off the loans.

He also advocated that the loans be extended to post-graduate studies, and that the repayment period be extended for students, such as medical and legal, who must serve an "apprenticeship" after graduation.

The Canadian Universities Foundation has estimated that the proposals made by Mr. Aiken for the student loan fund would cost about $79,000 a year, based on existing university population.

APPLY RATIO

The figure was reached by taking the enrolment total for the University of Toronto in 1962, then establishing the numbers that earned clear passes and those in the top quarter of their classes. The ratio was then applied to Canada's 178,000 students.

Conservative members are also discussing various forms of federal - provincial machinery that might be established to co-ordinate a new effort on bringing university education to more people. An estimated seven per cent of Canadians of university age actually go to university.

Rhee, known as the "Tiger of Korea", before losing power in 1960, was taken to hospital here Saturday when he began bleeding internally.

Councillors Rescind Motion To Cut Wages

PEMBROKE (CP) — Councillors in this Ottawa Valley town Monday night rescinded a motion to cut their salaries 10 per cent.

Council members voted the salary reduction at a recent finance committee meeting to keep an increase in the 1965 mill rate to a minimum.

But when the motion—which had to be ratified at a regular council meeting—came up Monday night only three of the 12 members supported the measure.

"I am a $1,000-a-year councillor and if $100 costs me votes, well, that's the way it will have to be," said Councillor Clare O'Neill.

"As far as I am concerned not one man on this council is overpaid."

Mayor Angus Campbell also said he was opposed to the motion.

And Patrick Weir will soon be going home — via a long, long trail awinding across Europe, the Middle East and India.

The 24-year-old high school teacher and his wife Beverley, left Australia after their marriage in January, 1963. After a trip through the British Isles they arrived in Canada — and Belleville — last fall. Patrick went on staff at St. Michael's Academy. His wife took a secretarial post at Quinte Secondary School.

Now, they are going home — by car.

"We'll cover 15,000 to 20,000 miles altogether," says Patrick. "I'll take about four and a half months to do it. We won't be back in Australia until November of this year."

The car — purchased in Britain en route to Canada last year — was scheduled to be shipped out today. It will go from Montreal to Le Havre.

Beverley Weir already has started out and has joined her parents in London. Patrick will follow next week.

After a brief pause in Britain the foursome will cross to Le Havre, pick up the automobile and settle down to the long, overland trek.

Then comes the longest stretch of road — a route through Turkey, Iran, Pakistan and India. From there they travel onto Ceylon and embark at Colombo for home.

The adventure has necessitated painstaking preparations.

Patrick has no fears on that score. The car has been kept in tip-top condition. Some extras have been added, among them an extra set of headlights and a mesh rock guard beneath the motor.

The addition of a roof rack and cabinets built into the trunk should accommodate all the luggage needed by the Weirs and Patrick's parents-in-law, the young Australian says.

Former Minister Convicted On Tainted Evidence Says Lawyer in Appeal Court

TORONTO (CP) — Russell Horsburgh, a former United Church minister in Chatham, was convicted of contributing to juvenile delinquency on the basis of tainted evidence, his lawyer said Monday.

Horsburgh, 46, was sentenced last Oct. 16 to a year's imprisonment after a trial in which 18 teen-agers testified he aided and abetted them in having sexual intercourse in Park Street United Church where he was pastor.

The trial was held in Chatham juvenile court last September and October before Judge W. H. Fox of London.

Horsburgh, who resigned his pastorate two days after his conviction, served 10 days in jail but has been free on $2,500 bail since November. He entered custody in Kent County Jail in Chatham Monday to await the outcome of his appeal.

The information sworn against Horsburgh last July alleged 24 acts of contributing to juvenile delinquency within the previous year. He was tried on eight charges and convicted on five.

Teen-aged witnesses testified Horsburgh encouraged them to have intercourse and knew they had intercourse in the vacant minister's apartment in the church and in the church parlor.

Horsburgh denied all charges.

Mr. Dubin said the 14 teen-agers were actually accomplices, not least they were tainted witnesses. He said the youths could have been charged with carnal knowledge of girls between the ages of 11 and 16, and one youth of his own testimony could have been charged with rape.

All of the teen-agers "were of the lowest character," Mr. Dubin said. He said they themselves "were involved in the very crime which they tried to pin on their pastor for."

He said the witnesses "tried to exonerate themselves by blaming the accused."

At the time of the trial, he said, none of the Crown witnesses was charged with offences in connection with activities revealed in their testimony.

He said he intended to argue that the trial contained fundamental errors of law "of such character and nature that the convictions cannot stand."

He said he was seeking an outright acquittal for Horsburgh, or direction for a new trial.

Three Charged With Fraud, Conspiracy

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Masses of documents and exhibits were admitted as evidence Monday at the opening of a preliminary hearing of three men charged with fraud and conspiracy to defraud a government agency of almost $2,000,000.

Charged are London developer M. Peter Robinson, 36, developer Richard Ross Bird, 35, of San Diego, Calif., and Toronto real estate businessman John William Brackett, 38. All are free on bail—Robinson on $25,000, Brackett $12,000 and Bird $4,000.

The charges involve two loans, one for $834,374 and the other for $989,035, made by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation between 1960 and 1963 for construction of Kipps Lane Gardens here.

The three also are charged on two counts of conspiring to defraud with various firms in connection with the loans. Listed in the charges are Ocean Developments Limited, Hudson's Bay Sales Limited, Granite Builders' Supplies Limited and Island Building Supplies, all of Toronto.

NO PLEAS ENTERED

Special prosecutor Mayer Lerner said he would attempt to prove the trio—all whom have elected trial by judge and jury and have elected no plea —unlawfully conspired with each other and with various firms to produce exaggerated sub trade costs in preparing their estimates for the housing corporation's loans.

Such action, he said, would have given them a greater loan than the project merited and would also have realized a higher profit investment depends on how smoothly their return from the project than the terms of the loan allowed.

In 20 exhibits of documents admitted by Magistrate Donald Menzies, 11 involved incorporation of companies, most of which were formed in early 1960. Evidence given by G. A. McCormack, supervisor of records for the provincial secretary, said the accused were individually or together officers or directors of seven of these firms.

Consumer Credit Higher Than Year Ago

OTTAWA (CP) — Outstanding consumer credit stood higher by $4,811,000,000 at the end of March, less than one per cent more than was outstanding at the end of February but nearly 14.5 per cent higher than at the end of March, 1964.

Among the main advances in March from February were sales increases in balances outstanding of 23.4 per cent in chartered bank personal loans and instalment credit given by the small loan companies. Outstanding chartered bank personal loans, not including fully secured and home improvement loans, amounted to $1,848,000,000 at March 31, compared with $1,497,000,000 a year earlier.

Sales finance companies, consumer goods $958,000,000 (up 8.1 per cent); small loan companies, cash loans $865,000,000 (up 15.3 per cent); department stores, $400,000,000 (up 11.1 per cent); furniture and appliance stores, $190,000,000 (up 0.5 per cent).

Not included in the DBS figures were amounts owed to doctors, dentists, service establishments such as hotels, restaurants and utility companies.

Parliament At a Glance

MONDAY, June 21, 1965

The Commons debated a resolution to set up an Indian claims commission after passing amendments to fishermens' loans.

The loans bill increases the maximum to $10,000 from $4,000 and extends the repayment time to 10 years from eight.

Citizenship Minister Nicholson said the claims commission should settle problems that have built up over 100 years.

The legislation would incorporate many suggestions made by Indians themselves on ancient treaty rights.

The bill was introduced and given first reading.

The Commons approved changes in customs duties and tariffs set out in the latest budget.

Under the tariff changes a magazine with more than five per cent of ads aimed at Canada would be prohibited entry.

TUESDAY, June 22

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. for second reading of the Indian Claims Commission Bill. The Senate meets at 8 p.m.

Dominican Strike May Spread

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — Pro-rebel-union leaders claimed more workers would stay home today to demonstrate support for the Dominican rebellion. But the response on the first day of the three-day general strike was spotty.

Miguel Soto, one of the strike leaders, said workers at nine of Santo Domingo's 40 factories went on strike Monday and others would join today.

He said the strike also shut down three sugar mills and the U.S. Aluminum Company's operations.

The anti-rebel junta said the strike was a "complete failure."

The strike was called by the Autonomous Confederation of Christian Unions. It and affiliated organizations claim to represent more than 100,000 workers, or most of the country's organized labor.

No violence was reported. Rebel spokesmen charged many union leaders had been arrested by junta troops to prevent walkouts. Junta officials said a number of civilians had been detained for "precautionary reasons."

Unionized public transportation workers in Santo Domingo were all at work and traffic was heavy. Small shops and gasoline stations were open.

The junta had cut telephone communications between Santo Domingo and the provinces. In Santiago, the second largest Dominican city, workers told reporters they had not heard of any strike plan.

The rebel leaders said they were playing no part in the strike. But Virgilio Meynardi, rebel secretary of labor, said they favored this strike as a demonstration of support of the constitution."

Taxes Eat Up All Estate Of M. Monroe

NEW YORK (AP)—Actress Marilyn Monroe's estate, far from providing $1,000,000 in bequests for her friends, was reported Monday to have been eaten up by taxes.

The New York Post said "the heirs to her estate are being formally notified that their legacies will be completely devoured by federal income, state and estate taxes, and that there will be no significant amount for any beneficiary."

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada did a double take-in Monday on two principles it had long advanced in the United Nations.

External Affairs Minister Martin conceded Canada had made a reluctant retreat but said it was desirable and necessary for the preservation of the UN.

Mr. Martin announced in the Commons a special $4,000,000 pledge by Canada to the UN to help pay off a $108,000,000 debt incurred by 13 UN members, including Russia and France, which refuse to put up their share of peacekeeping costs.

Canada has long held that peacekeeping costs must be a collective financial responsibility of all 113 UN members.

Later, in the Commons external affairs committee, Mr. Martin said Canada won't insist at the September session of the UN General Assembly on the application of Article 19 of the UN charter.

COULD LOSE VOTE

This article says UN members in arrears for two years or more in their payments lose their voting rights in the General Assembly.

Mr. Martin said insistence on application of article 19 would leave the General Assembly in the same situation in which it has been since 1963: Inability to discuss — and consequently vote on—important issues.

"This must not be allowed to happen," he said.

Nobody wanted to see Russia leave the UN and it was the "overwhelming sentiment" of the world body to waive Article 19.

Mr. Martin said Canada will be among the waivers.

Mr. Martin said if you will which we have accepted with reluctance but it is desirable and necessary," he said.

The special pledges by Canada and seven other countries totalling $18,800,000 were made in response to a British plan advanced only last Friday. It was learned authoritatively.

Informants said Britain wanted such pledges to coincide with the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London. But the pledges were made only by Canada, Britain, New Zealand, Ireland and the four Scandinavian countries. There were no contributions from any country in Asia, Africa or Latin America—or by the United States.

Mr. Martin said he would be "very surprised" if the U.S. doesn't make a substantial pledge.

He added that he hopes the pledges by the eight countries would encourage other nations to contribute and thus lead, perhaps, to negotiations among the major powers on such issues as Viet Nam.

He suggested that Russia, which owes the UN more than $600,000,000 contribute $22,000,000 and France $15,000,000.

Mr. Martin said that despite the $4,000,000 pledge to help pick up the slack of the defaulting nations Canada still abides by the principle of collective responsibility for peacekeeping.

Apart from peacekeeping, Canada's financial contributions to the UN and its agencies now amount to about $32,000,000 a year.

Montreal Bus Strike Is Ended

MONTREAL (CP) — Some 3,900 employees of the Montreal Transportation Commission returned to work today, ending a city bus strike that began exactly two weeks ago.

But 900 employees of the Provincial Transport Company, which operates between Montreal and many suburbs, as well as to other parts of Quebec, are still on strike.

Donat Quimper, deputy labor minister of Quebec, is to meet separately with PTC management and union officials today. The PTC strike is in its 11th day.

Chairman Lucien Saulnier of the Montreal executive committee, and Yvan Blain, president, andYvan Blain, president of the Montreal Transport Workers Union, a Confederation of National Trade Unions affiliate, have all said they are "very happy" that the strike is settled.

FOLLOWS VOTE

Settlement followed a vote Monday by maintenance men of the MTC in favor of a new wage offer. Bus drivers and MTC cashiers had already accepted separate offers in a new three-year contract.

MTC drivers, whose basic rate had been $2.12 an hour, will get an increase of 30 cents retroactive to last July, plus an additional 15 cents this July and another 15 cents in July a year from now.

On the last day of the contract—July 11, 1967—there will be a further increase for bus drivers of five cents an hour. The wage increases will raise their hourly rate to $2.77 at that time.

Maintenance men will get 30 cents an hour retroactive, 10 cents this July, and eight cents next July when the work week will drop to 40 hours from 44½ with no reduction in pay.

Mr. Blain said the new contract is "one of the nicest—if not the nicest—the union has signed with the MTC."

As for the continuing PTC strike, which affects some 50,000 commuters, on suburban Montreal runs, there have been virtually no negotiations since the dispute began.

PTC bus drivers want a reduction in the work week and an increase in salary to $15 a day from $11.

Scheduled meetings today between Mr. Quimper and representatives of both sides would be the first known effort by the Quebec government to deal with the strike.

Almey Crab Is Centennial Tree Chosen

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Reid wants Ottawa to be just as pink as Washington—in the spring that is.

He suggested Monday the capital city's school children plant 50,000 Almey crabapple trees as a special centennial observation.

The Almey crab, chosen by nursery men as Canada's centennial tree, flowers a rich lavender pink in the spring—and there is a bright orange fruit throughout most of the winter.

"Washington is known around the world for its cherry blossom festival," the mayor told reporters. "The Almey crab apple is just as attractive and would bloom at the same time as Ottawa's tulips."

Plan Summer Courses To Rescue Grade 12 Failures From 'New Maths'

TORONTO (CP) — Boards of education across Ontario are planning special summer courses for the 6,000 grade 12 students expected to fail mathematics this year.

The summer courses are to fill the gap between the old and the so-called new maths. The new course has been instituted progressively in high schools as students trained in its language moved up from elementary schools. It will replace the old course in Grade 12 in September, and at the end of 1966 all upper school maths will be of the new order.

Students who do not pass the old maths in Grade 13 this year would have to drop back to learn the language of the new course probably in Grade 11, meaning a loss of one and possibly two years.

The board of education of North York has already sent a letter to grade 12 students urging them, if they fail, to take the summer course.

Education officials estimate that 12 per cent of all students writing the exam usually fail the first time—6,000 of the 52,000 pupils writing papers this month.

Andrew McKague, superintendent of supervision at the Ontario department of education, said Monday he believes staffs at local schools will make every effort to insure that as many students as possible pass the exam this year.

"I expect there will be few marginal failures," he said, adding that teachers are working closely with weaker students and he expected the percentage of failures to drop.

The new course stresses reasoning behind the subject rather than the memorizing of rules. Students who do not make up the Grade 12 maths failure at summer school will probably be expected to take the new maths course in grade 11 next year.

This will be accepted at the equivalent of grade 12 maths. However, if the student wishes, to take grade 13 maths eventually, he must take the new course in both grades 11 and 12 —a loss of two years.

Mr. McKague said there is a possibility that these students might be put in a combined grades 11 and 12 course, but metropolitan Toronto education officials doubted that such students could handle two years in one.

Mr. McKague said a bigger problem than curriculum changeover is finding teachers qualified to handle new courses.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

The fascinating story of the origin of the Queen's Plate, came to light the other day in a yellowed two-page sports edition of a Toronto Saturday Globe dated "Saturday, April 28, 1894."

It contains an article by Lord Durham who was chief steward of Britain's "veddy veddy swank" Jockey Club.

Said His Lordship: "First and foremost racing is the only possible means of obtaining a true test of a horse's stamina, courage and endurance. Further, it is a mistake to suppose that the turf generates suspicion, fraud and untruthfulness in any greater degree than other sporting pursuits. Nowhere is generosity, confidence upon which bottles transactions, more conspicuous than among all classes of men—bookmakers, jockeys, trainers and owners."

"There is sufficient truth and the requisite amount of exaggeration in Lord George Bentinck's dictum that "all men are equal upon the turf—and under it," wrote Lord Durham.

The story says "Royal plates have for centuries been given as an encouragement to horse racing. James 1st was the first royal patron who bought the first Arab horse to be brought to England. Cromwell was fully alive to the importance of good breeding . . . Charles II instituted royal plates all over the country. Anne also loved her horses and imported the Darley Arabian. George I instituted the first 100 guinesa."

In Canada "loyal colonial sportsmen" ran their own "plates races," with no more authority than their loyalty to the British crown and British racing traditions.

The origin of the present royal donation was a petition sent to the Queen on April 1st, 1859, by the governor-general of that day, Sir Edmund Head. The petition called for 50 guineas and on July 18th of that year the request was granted.

The petition also stated the plate "to be run at Toronto of such other place as Her Majesty may appoint."

For four years, 1860-1863, the race was run at Carleton when under pressure from members of parliament the feast become a movable one. The boys in Ottawa kicked it around as a vice-prefer.

Every member whose constituency boasted a race track and who figured his seat might be in jeopardy lobbied for the Plate. In all some eighteen out-of-Toronto centres had the classic.

I do not know if the Conservative member for Prince Edward county of that day had any qualms over losing his seat, but he got in his stickle's worth of lobbying—and won.

If you are a scion of a family of Little Spain your grandpappy could have been one of the tall-hatted, long-dresses galaxy of socialites who thronged the Picton fair grounds track back in 1879 and saw a horse called "Moss Rose" win from a field of a dozen platers.

The "guineas" practically swept the province in the plate-politics race. After four years at Carleton, it was run consecutively at Guelph, London, Hamilton, St. Catharines, London again, Whitby, Kingston, Ottawa, Barrie, Hamilton again, Woodstock, the Woodbine, Prescott, London, Picton, back to Ottawa and London. The chase finally ended in 1883 when it settled once and for all at Toronto.

But not before the current Governor-General, Lord Lorne applied to the Queen for royal sanction to place the plate and guineas under the permanent jurisdiction of the new Ontario Jockey Club because "there was a general decadence of interest taken by our more respectable inhabitants."

Dodgers Lay 2nd Egg In Met Nest

Lightfoots Blast Out 9-5 Win

New York Mets were sentimental for six innings Monday night. Then Joe Christopher spoiled it with a bunt single leading off the seventh inning. Billy Cowan made it even worse in the ninth inning when he slammed his first homer of the season, giving the Mets a 1-0 victory over the National League - leading Los Angeles Dodgers and Claude Osteen.

The triumph came exactly one year after Jim Bunning pitched a perfect game against the Mets for the Philadelphia Phillies, who also were in first place at the time.

The Mets appeared to be staging a fitting observance of the first anniversary, if not with a perfect game, at least with a no-hitter. But Christopher broke up the celebration, and all the Mets wound up with was a second consecutive 1-0 Monday night victory.

The Mets recorded another laudatory along the way to immortality. The victory enabled them to compile a two-game winning streak against the Dodgers for the first time in their four-year existence.

ALLOW FEW HITS

Osteen allowed the Mets only two hits while the Dodgers managed just three off Al Jackson, who never had beaten them before.

Jackson, however, allowed only one runner to reach second base after the Dodgers failed to score with the bases loaded and two out in the first inning.

Jim Gilliam doubled, and Jackson walked Wes Parker and Jim Lefebvre. The lefty ended the threat by throwing out Jeff Torborg on a grounder. The only other hits of his five were singles by Parker in the sixth and Osteen in the eighth.

In the only other game in either major leagues, Lee Maye's two-run triple in the seventh inning snapped a 2-2 tie and sparked Houston Astros to a 6-2 triumph over Philadelphia Phillies.

Maye, who earlier singled across a run, drove in Bob Lillis and Joe Morgan, who had walked.

Dick Farrell brought his record to 5-2, holding the Phillies to six hits as well as driving in two runs with an eighth-inning single. Wes Covington homered for the Phillies in the ninth.

Canadian Closed Chess

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lionel Joyner of Edmonton, Mark Schulman of Winnipeg and Dr. Elod Macksasy of Vancouver had first-round victories in the Canadian closed chess championships which opened here Monday.

Joyner defeated, Walter Liwiscruk of Calgary, Schulman defeated Ron Leonard of Edmonton and Macskasy beat Brian Potter of Vancouver.

Joyner, Schulman and Macskasy now have one point each in the standings while Kerr and Vessely have a half point each.

The 11-round round robin continues until July 2.

Aussies Win At Wimbledon

Reds Pose World Tennis Threat

WIMBLEDON (CP) — Stand by for a record Soviet invasion of the world tennis circuit next year.

The Soviet plans for expansion were outlined today by Victor Kolegorsky, veteran general secretary of the Soviet Lawn Tennis Association.

—To compete in 1966 in the U.S. nationals at Forest Hills, where the Soviets made their debut three years ago.

—To send players to the Italian, German and Australian championships where, said Kolegorsky, no Soviet player has ever swung a racket.

—To enter the French, Swedish and Wimbledon championships, completing a major assault on top titles never before attempted.

Tennis has become big time sport in the U.S.S.R.

"We now have more than 50,000 players in training," Kolegorsky said, "a number that doubled in the last five years."

The budding Soviet talent is coaxed along by some 300 state-paid coaches—and it's come a long way since Soviet players made their first nervous appearances at Wimbledon seven years ago.

Lejus opened his Wimbledon campaign Monday with a first-round 6-1 3-6 6-3 6-4 victory over South Africa's Frew McMillan.

Meanwhile, Frank Froehling, No. 4 in the U.S. succumbed to British Davis Cupper Mike Sangster 4-6 3-6 16-18.

Another Australian, Marty Mulligan, runner-up at Wimbledon in 1962, defeated Harald Elschaibrolch 6-3, 6-1, 7-5.

Seventh-seeded Tony Roche of Australia defeated fellow countryman Bob Ruffels 6-2, 13-10, 6-4.

Mexican champion Rafael Osuna defeated Istvan Gulyas of Hungary 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 3-6, 6-3. Osuna is seeded eighth.

Only 17 of a scheduled 64 matches were completed due to rain.

Ready For Henley

Oarsmen Want Debris-Cluttered Course

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Hungerford and Roger Jackson have headed for Henley-on-Thames, leaving behind the faint hope there may be driftwood on the Thames.

If driftwood clutters the Thames, or a fast tug tears up and down through the stately four-day regatta, Jackson and Hungerford have an excellent chance in the double skulls.

If the Thames is its usual serene self, they have only their plain gold medal Olympic experience to rely on.

Jackson and Hungerford, University of British Columbia students, met for the first time one day last year in Tokyo.

For the last few weeks, they have rowed together morning and night in the dirty, debris-laden waters of Vancouver's Burrard inlet, dodging the driftwood, shaking off the seaweed, and wobbling violently in the wash of passing tugs.

Friday night, they slipped quietly out of town two days ahead of schedule, and flew to England.

Pocock believes a rudderless shell, steered by one of the oarsmen thickening off for two strokes, can be three lengths faster over a 1¼-mile course than ruddered craft.

The shell was a $1,200 gift from Hungerford's father and grandfather.

He said the national fitness council backed out on a promise to contribute $2,600 for the Henley trip, and instead is paying only half their fares and to tell bill.

Gillanders has followed them in a power boat through the choppy Burrard inlet waters, dodging the deadheads and floating bottles, shouting instructions and warning them with a loud hailer.

Another constant watcher has been Jack Carver of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

"It might kill the stewards at Henley," said Carver after a recent workout, "but supposing there was driftwood on the course.

"And supposing we could send a fast tug ahead for the wash — these boys could win for sure."

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian and amateur sports fitness council, June 8 pared $3,000 from the requested budget needed to get the Canadian eight - oared and doubles entries and their shells to England for the annual Royal Henley Regatta June 34.

The council, upon advice, decided then that the shells agreed to pay the usual half-would be purchased in Eng-fare and half-living expenses for land.

the crews, cut out the budget Dion said June 8 that the to-for shipping the shells to $4,432 tal budget for sending the crews from the asked $7,432 because and the boats was $12,000 and they were told the craft could that "when we are beaten, every-be bought in England and sold one jumped.

Roger Dion, chairman of the to ship the shells than a flock council, said at that time it was of athletes."

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that the improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.®

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Player Gives $25,000 Purse Away

To Show Gratitude

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Gary Player of South Africa won $26,000 by capturing the U.S. Open golf championship Monday and immediately gave it all away, plus another $1,000.

He gave $25,000 to U.S. Golf Association with a suggestion that $5,000 go to the cancer fund and $20,000 to the development of junior golf in the United States.

He paid $2,000 to his caddie, Frank Pagel. This is the largest amount ever known to have been given a bag-carrier.

Player said the donation of his winning cheque—$25,000 plus $1,000 playoff bonus—was fulfillment of a promise made to Joe Dey, executive director of the U.S. Golf Association.

"I wanted the open so badly, that I promised that if God ever gave me the privilege of winning, I would donate the purse to a good cause," he said.

"I want $5,000 to go to the cancer fund, because my mother died of cancer.

"The rest I would like to be funnelled into junior golf —as thanks for all that American golf has done for me.

"I have made most of my money and won most of my golf honors in this country. People have been wonderful to me. I think it is only right that I show my gratitude in this way."

Third To Sweep Big Four

Wins Open By Three Strokes

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Gary Player of South Africa deftly etched his name among a select list of golf's immortals Monday and said: "The money is immaterial — the honor is the thing."

So after clinching the U.S. Open golf championship he turned his $25,000 winnings over to the U.S. Golf Association.

His three-stroke victory over Australian Kel Nagle in the 18-hole playoff made him the first foreign winner in 45 years and only the third man ever to sweep the four big prizes of professional golf—the U.S. and British opens, the PGA and the Masters.

Gene Sarazen and Ben Hogan are the only other golfers to win all four.

"I have made most of my money and won most of my golfing fame in this country," Player said.

"I feel I owe this country a great deal. I feel it is my duty to do something for this country and for golf.

Player leaped into command at the start, taking a birdie four while the 44-year-old Australian bogeyed the first hole of the frustrating 7,191-yard Bellerive Country Club course.

Player ran in birdie putts of 35 feet each on the next two holes, went two-up and, for all intents and purposes, it was over. Nagle was never even again.

The Australian, who forced the tie when Player blew a three-stroke lead with three holes to play the day before, wrecked his chances with a shattering two-over-par on the fifth.

Gary had a five-stroke advantage at the turn. He held it, playing his usual brand of conservative, control golf, until the last two holes when he took cautious one-overs.

Player said he now plans to return to South Africa to be with his wife and five children, including 15-day-old Theresa, whom he hasn't seen.

"I feel I can now cut down my travel and spend more time with my family," he said.

"Now I can pick what I want to do. I don't have to be rushing off to Australia, rushing off to Spain, rushing off to Mexico.

"I can pace myself, choose my tourneys as Hogan used to do."

KEL NAGLE AND GARY PLAYER

Nagle In Canadian Tourneys

TORONTO (CP)—Ken Nagle of Australia, loser of the 18-hole playoff for the United States Open golf championship Monday in St. Louis, has entered both the Canadian Open at Toronto and the professional-amateur tournament July 12 prior to the open.

Nagle, who lost to Gary Player of South Africa in St. Louis Monday, will be the featured player in the pro-am event here.

Belvedere Shades Warners

A six-run explosion in the third inning provided Belvedere Hotel with a 7-6 Commercial Softball League win over Stewart Warner, at Zwick's Island, last night.

Belvedere had taken a 1-0 lead in the first but the losers were out front 3-1 when the Hotelmen exploded for six. One in the fourth and two in the seventh left AM Rowbotham's crew one run short.

Joe King gave up seven hits while hurling the victory. He struck out a pair and walked four.

V. Levesque gave up all the runs before being replaced by Harry Powers in the third, for the Warners. They allowed seven hits, fanned two and passed three.

Two-run homers by Jack Lucas and R. Belch sparked the Belvedere attack while G. Perry hit a double and single. D. Reid, D. Lucas and Joe King added singles.

Garry Wood and Chuck Rowbotham each clouted a double and single in a losing cause. Harry Powers tripled, Elvin Bryant doubled and Jack Caddick had a single.

ROBIN SIGNED

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, former world middleweight champion, will fight in a five-round exhibition match here June 28, it was announced Monday. Promoter Ron Brothers said arrangements to bring Robinson here were completed during the weekend. He will meet Milo Calhoun of New York, one of his sparring partners.

Beat Bailey—Or Else

Says Chuvalo On Spot

TORONTO (CP)—Irv Ungerman of Toronto, manager of Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo, said Monday night he is demanding a referee from outside Regina when Chuvalo Fights Dave Bailey of Philadelphia there June 30.

"I'm insisting that we get an experienced referee and—we won't accept the bout if we don't get one from outside Regina," Ungerman said.

He said Chuvalo has been hindered in past bouts by what he called hometown officiating.

Bailey, a six-foot-one, 212-pounder served as a sparring partner for Cassius Clay before the world heavyweight champion knocked out Sonny Liston last month.

Ungerman said that he received a copy of a letter Monday from Clay's manager, Angelo Dundee, in Miami. The letter was sent to Nick Zubray of Regina, promoter of the June 30 bout, and warned that a loss to Bailey would practically eliminate any chance Chuvalo might have for a shot at Clay's title.

Lombanks Blank Stirling

MADOC (Special) — Blaine Healey flashed some of his former style here last night while pitching Tweed Lombanks to a 4-0 Belleville and District Softball League win over Stirling.

Healey stopped Stirling on seven scattered singles over the route and spiced his shutout with 14 strikeouts. He walked one batter while chalking up his first win of the season.

Wayne Shaw was the losing pitcher, giving up half the runs before Bob Hunter took over in the fourth frame. They allowed eight hits. Shaw fanned five and passed two, Hunter whiffed four and walked a pair.

Lombanks climbed into a three-way tie for first place with Ellis Juniors and Bloomfield with the win but the other clubs have games in hand.

Tweed runs came in pairs, in the third and eighth innings. Merow led off in the third with a home run and Gray made it two in a row off Shaw to snap open the scoreless battle.

Both Stirling errors hurt in the eighth. The first miscue put one on and Gorr's fluked single to centre got through the outfielder for a three-base error and a 4-0 score.

McDougall Back With Argos

Grid Training Camps Hum With Action

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonauts welcomed back fullback Gerry McDougall after a two-year absence and discovered a holdout in all-star linebacker Ron Brewer as four Canadian Football League clubs settled down to training Monday.

McDougall left the Argos after playing out his option in 1962. He spent the last two seasons with San Diego Chargers of the American Football League and returned to Canada after a mediocre season last year.

Brewer, a Toronto high school and junior football product who is one of the most heavily-fined players in the CFL, turned down Argos' offer of a $500 increase.

"It would only pay the fines I got last season," he said.

The 26-year-old Brewer wasn't among the 38 players on hand when Argo coach Bob Shaw opened a week-long preliminary camp in Toronto for bookkeepers, cooks and Canadian rookies in preparation for the opening of regular camp Sunday.

SEEK LEGAL AID

Brewer, meanwhile, contemplated seeking legal aid to avoid playing out his option this season at 95 per cent of last year's salary.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders also got the training wheels in motion Monday and Calgary Stampeders held their second day of workouts.

In Ottawa, the Riders opened a four-day tryout camp that attracted 40 candidates, most of them high school students. The pick of the crop will be sent to colleges in Canada, and the United States to complete their education and sharpen their football skills.

The Tiger-Cats had a record turnout of 117 at their rookie camp in Hamilton. Regular camp doesn't start for another two weeks.

Coach Jerry Williams sent his Stampeder aspirants through a mile run before 9,000 fans to open drills in Calgary and the team got down to two regular sessions Monday.

Read Wallops Foxboro 11-1

A three-hit pitching performance by Ted Abrams coupled with a 12-hit attack by his teammates gave Read an easy 11-1 victory over Foxboro ACME Electric in South Hastings Baseball.

Abram's shutout attempt was ruined by a sixth-inning home run by Keith Dickey. The other two hits were scratch singles. He struck out six and walked three.

Foxboro used two pitchers, with Gary Little starting and Gord Campbell relieving him in the third. Together they gave up 13 hits, struck out five, and walked four.

With two men out in the first Enright doubled and Percy Milligan drove him in for Read's first run.

Read added three more runs in the third on two singles, a triple and a walk and coasted to victory from there.

Pete Enright had a double and two singles to lead Read to the victory. Carm Milligan, Percy Milligan and Pat Steele hit two singles each. Ted Abrams had a triple and Charlie Steele and Pascoe both singled.

Campbell and Skelly singled for Foxboro.

Leafs Whip Parent Red Sox

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dick (The Monster) Radatz wasn't as monstrous as usual and Toronto Maple Leafs produced a monster of their own to help defeat Boston Red Sox 3-2 in an exhibition baseball game Monday night.

Jerry Barron, at six-foot-five the same height as Radatz, gave up only two cheap hits in six innings to lead the Leafs to the win over the parent American League club.

Radatz, pride of the Red Sox bullpen last season with an earned run average of 2.29, pitched one inning in relief and gave up a single and hit a batter.

In the only league game, Syracuse Chiefs defeated Jacksonville Suns 8-3. Toledo Mud Hens were rained out of their game with Buffalo Bisons. In another exhibition game, Baltimore Orioles of the American League outlasted Rochester Red Wings 8-6.

Gail Harvey Equals CLGU Rate

TORONTO (CP)—Former Canadian women's golf champion Gail Harvey of Toronto, already on the Canadian intercontinental team, scored a one-under-par 76 and equalled the Canadian Ladies Golf Union course rating in the first of a series of eight test matches leading to team berths.

Each player gets 13 points if she equals the course rating and one more point for every stroke above it. The three golfers with the most points qualify for the team.

Mrs. Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto and Sandra Post of Milton, Ont., tied for second with 78 each.

Other scores included:

Pam Miller, 17, of Oshawa, 83, and Mrs. John Stevens, London, Ont., 85.

Art Linkletter Will Host New Talent Scouts' Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The question: Why is a 53-year-old man with a thriving 30-year-old daytime program and a fortune invested in everything from soft drinks to cattle, willing to spend a long, hot summer as host of a vacation-time television program?

The man, of course, is Mouse Jaw-born Art Linkletter whose Houseparty program is a daytime institution. His new assignment is CBS' Talent Scouts, which will emerge tonight for what will probably be another short summer exposure.

"Well, I've had an idea for a long time that television needed an evening program built around real human interest," said Linkletter. "I talked to CBS about it and we developed an idea—why not try it out on Talent Scouts this summer. And if it goes, who knows what then?"

The title has been around for a long time—Arthur Godfrey presided over the show for seven years.

Linkletter hosts took over for a season, introducing stars and celebrities who in turn introduced their proteges.

Linkletter, however, insists that he's about to do something different with the old show. He's going to introduce fans to Hollywood from New York. It's official title now is Hollywood Talent Scouts.

"We're still primarily interested in young professional talent," Linkletter said. "But we're going to present stars, too, and we'll use them in a variety of ways."

Debbie Reynolds will be the top star attraction tonight.

"The Housepartv show has a sort of magazine form—I can put anything into it that interests me," Linkletter said. "And I'm planning to do pretty much the same thing with this show. And if it works . . . oh, it's bound to work because it isn't contrived and there won't be any tricks."

NEW DRAMA "SYLVIA" STARS CARROLL BAKER

Carroll Baker, one of Hollywood's most talented and beautiful actresses, has one of the most important roles of her skyrocketing career in Paramount's "Sylvia," showing tonight and Wednesday at the Belle Theatre.

Along with Miss Baker, the cast of this Martin Poll production includes such personalities as George Maharis, Joanna Pettet, Peter Lawford, Viveca Lindfors, Edmond O'Brien, Aldo Ray, Ann Sothern and Lloyd Bochner.

Carroll Baker's win stardom in the first motion picture, "Giant," Miss Baker started out professionally as a dancer and she eventually went to New York to try her luck in the big city. In New York, Carroll did commercials and was a model and girl. It was after working in TV that she became seriously interested in becoming an actress. She auditioned and was accepted to the actor's studio and she studied under Lee Strasburg. Carroll made her Broadway debut in "Escapade" and then went on to such roles as Ruth in Robert Anderson's "All Summer Long."

Stardom was just around the corner for Miss Baker and she never stopped climbing to the top.

"Sylvia" tells the story of Sylvia West (Carroll Baker), a budding poetess who is engaged to Fredric Summers, Peter Lawford, an eccentric multi-millionaire. Summers not quite sure if Sylvia loves him or his money, hires detective Alex Macklin, George Maharis and has him make a thorough investigation of "Sylvia" background. Macklin's search for information takes him to many parts of the United States and Mexico, and slowly, he pieces together the incredible panic of "Who is Sylvia"?

Personal Managers Give Awards to Frank Sinatra

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There is something about the movie business trend that provides the inescapable urge to organize and give awards.

Cleveland has its Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame. Variety has its Showmen of the Year. Hollywood has the Golden Boot Awards.

They all do it: Writers, directors, costume designers, makeup artists. I thought I had heard of all the organizations and their awards until I was invited to a banquet by George (Bullets) Durgom.

Bullets is nowhere near as menacing as his name. He is about the size of Mickey Rooney, whom he has managed. He is the man who manager for Jackie Gleason, but they aren't speaking now. Bullets' present clients include Elizabeth Ashley, Trini Lopez and Kate Smith.

"Hey, we're having our annual banquet of the Conference of Personal Managers, West," Bullets announced. "We've given two awards to Frank Sinatra as Performer of the Year and Man of the Year. Why don't you come?"

Richard Link, its president, explained at the conference what the members do.

"Please don't call us agents," he said. "We're managers, and there's a difference. Agents get jobs for performers; We don't. We discover, mold, guide and advise careers."

Unlike most Hollywood banquets, the program was tastefully brief. Two brief speeches, presentation of old and new offices and back to the bar.

Sinatra seemed delighted with his award and said it was, in a way, a culmination of 35 years in show business.

Health Minister Foresees Sports Centres

FREDERICTON (CP) — Health Minister Judy LaMarsh says she favors establishment of a Canadian training centre for sports and physical fitness.

She told the Canadian Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation she also foresees the day when there will be regional sports centres, similar to those in West Germany and Finland.

The European centres train coaches and athletes in such subjects as swimming, track and field, football, skiing, tennis and basketball. Miss LaMarsh visited some of them recently.

Association delegates applauded when she said: "I was impressed with the idea of having a sports centre and I think we should have one in Canada or maybe one in each province."

QUESTIONS POSED

But a lot of questions have to be answered first, she added, including the source of the money. Ottawa was already appropriating up to $5,000,000 a year for a sports program and such sports centre would cost millions.

However, she said some facilities now used by the armed forces might become available for use as trained centres, because of the current integration program.

Miss LaMarsh also told the amateur sports and fitness officials to improve their relations with the press. She said there are constant complaints that the national fitness program and amateur sports in general don't get the publicity they should.

She said Canadian sports editors and writers are used to the "Stalling" Does'nt Pay

Managers Fined $200

CINCINNATI (AP)—National League President Warren C. Giles slapped $200 fines Monday on managers Bobby Bragan of Milwaukee Braves and Red Schoendienst of St. Louis Cardinals for what he called "cruel play" of the Braves and the Cardinals in Sunday's game at Milwaukee.

The incident involved stalling and speed-up tactics in the top of the fifth inning when the Cards were batting. The wet storm clouds hovered over the ball park.

The Braves, hoping rain would come and wash out the game, used three pitchers in that half inning. Second baseman Frank Bolling committed an intentional error. Two Cardinal runners on base walked into outs in an effort to end the half inning.

Giles warned Bragan and Schoendienst that the fines must be paid by them personally, and that he would impose heavier fines on their clubs if he learned there was no personal payment of the levies.

In the midst of the Braves' pitching changes, the rain came and the Cardinals singled and trotted to second where he was tagged by Bolling.

Lou Brock then walked and started ambling toward second. Pitcher Dick Kelley threw to Bolling who dropped the ball and then threw it back to Kelley.

Brock then walked toward third and was thrown out.

With all the fuss, the rain skirted the area and the game went with St. Louis winning 6-4.

Atlanta Joins National

NEW YOR K(AP) — Atlanta will become the 15th team in the expanded National Football League in 1966 with a franchise headed by insurance man Rankin Smith, Jr., of Atlanta the likely owner.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle will screen the four or five applicants with the understanding that a lease on the new $18,000,000 stadium if a must.

Although the 14-club American League also voted a 1966 franchise to the Cox Broadcasting Corp., of Atlanta on June 8, baseball-man stadium authority is reported to be overwhelmingly in favor of the NFL.

Arthur Montgomery, chairman of the board, has set a July 1 deadline for a decision on the lease.

Rozelle announced the award of the franchise Monday by a unanimous vote of NFL directors.

Atlanta will operate as a swing team and will play each of the 14 other teams once in 1966 and will count in the eastern conference standings.

Brydson Leads Seniors

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Gord Brydson of Mississauga took a step towards his third straight Ontario professional golf championship at the London Hunt Club Monday.

The former Canadian match play champion carded a 76, four over par to hold a one-stroke lead over Dick Borthwick of Anaster.

The second leg of the third annual $5,000 event ends Tuesday with the top 36 holes declared winner.

The competition is open to senior pros and amateurs over 50. Both divisions compete for individual trophies, while the best ball is decided from the combined scores of both pros and amateurs.

Bob Gray of Scarborough, second to Brydson, had difficulty for a spell, playing the par-five 545-yard 10th as his first hole, he took an eight and was five over par after four holes but recovered for nines of 36-40-76.

Swedish Horse Entered

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—The selection of Sweden's Pluvier III to compete in the $100,000 International Trot July 10 was announced Monday by Roosevelt Raceway.

Pluvier, a six-year-old who is unbeaten in Sweden and has won top events in three other European countries, is the first foreign entry announced for the 1¼ - mile race.

The Canadian standard bearer will be determined Friday night in the Canadian championships at Garden City Raceway in St. Catharines.

Claire Eyes 40 Rookies

OTTAWA (CP) — About 40 Canadians who someday hope to play for Ottawa Rough Riders began a four-day tryout camp Monday at Lansdowne Park.

The pick of the crop—most of them high school students—will be sent by the Eastern Conference club to colleges in the United States and Canada to complete their education and to sharpen their football skills.

It's the first of two special camps head coach Frank Clair Clair has planned prior to the opening of the main one next week. On Thursday U.S. and Canadian rookies whose aim it is to make the 1965 Riders will check in for drills.

Not as many high school players as expected turned out for the Monday opening. One reason might have been the heat—temperatures hit the high 80s by mid-afternoon.

A number of American and Canadian university coaches have been invited to the camp to see if there's anyone around they might be interested in selecting.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Two outsiders vaulted into Queen's Plate prominence Monday, wiping two records divisions for the Queen's Plate trial stakes at Woodbine.

Whistling Sea, who has had difficulty finishing first, and Good Old Mort, considered washed up after a spectacular two-year-old season, were first to the wire in the final warmups for plate hopefuls.

Lightly regarded, Whistling Sea returned $21.50, $3.80 and $2.10 while Good Old Mort paid his backers $5.40, $2.70 and $2.30.

Both divisions of the late trials were worth $11,275 with $2,275 going to the winners.

Whistling Sea's victory gave rise to hopes of Western Canada fans that their part of the country finally has a chance to win the $50,000 added 1¼-mile test Saturday for the first time in its 106-year history.

Whistling Sea, owned by Paul Oliver of Calgary, romped home ahead of such favorites as Flyabout and Champlain while Good Old Mort's victory with Alv Elino Gomez in the saddle, came at the expense of Rex Erables and Isle of Mull.

Jockey Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., who returned from circuits in the United States to ride Des Erables, may have cost his horse the win when he reined him in on the back-stretch after keeping pace with Good Old Mort.

U.S. Removes 'Nuisance' Tax On Many Items

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shoppers in the United States for the first time in years won't have to pay a federal retail tax on jewelry, cosmetics, luggage, pocketbooks and many other items.

The so - called "nuisance" taxes on these items were among the federal excise taxes wiped out at midnight Monday when President Johnson signed the $4,700,000,000 tax cut bill in a White House ceremony.

Other excise taxes are being reduced in stages. The first stage cuts of two big ones—on cars and air conditioners—are retroactive to last May 15, so that if shoppers bought one of these anytime since then they will get a refund. On cars the refund should average about $70.

Johnson said: "This excise tax bill will make its maximum contribution to our economic health only if businesses pass along the reductions in the full amount of the reduction in the tax. And today I urge every manufacturer and every retailer in this country to do just that."

In the first stage, $1,750,000,000 in excise taxes will be reduced.

The second step next January will cut excises by an equal amount. Some of the cuts, such as on autos and telephone calls, will be done in stages up until Jan. 1, 1969.

Despite the cuts, excise taxes bringing in more than $10,500,000,000 a year will remain in effect. They are levied on alcoholic beverages, cigarettes and gasoline.

The 10-per-cent factory tax on passenger cars was reduced five per cent retroactive to May 15, along with air conditioners.

It will go down progressively each year until it reaches a permanent one per cent Jan. 1, 1968.

The tax on telephone and telegraph service goes down to zero by Jan. 1, 1969.

Also eliminated at that time will be admission taxes on theatres, movies, athletic events, dues, night clubs and cabarets, as well as a 10-per-cent tax on club dues.

DETROIT (AP) — Ford and Chrysler began lending today an estimated 330,000 excise tax rebate cheques to car buyers who made their purchases after May 14.

Nazi Leader Says Advisor Was Abducted

TORONTO (CP) — Neo - Nazi leader William Gaetz, Beattie, 25, filed a complaint with Toronto police Monday charging that his "Christian advisor," Rev. Charles Philip Thompson, 28, was abducted Saturday by a Jewish underground organization.

Police confirmed they had received the report and will investigate.

Mr. Beattie said in a telephone interview here once in a car approached Mr. Thompson, a Pentecostal minister, as he was about to make his "clerical rounds".

The men implied they were police officers and had Mr. Thompson step into the car, he said.

They threw him to the floor, covered him with burlap and drove him to an interrogation by about 20 persons "with the physical characteristics only found on the back streets of Jewish race," Mr. Beattie charged.

Mr. Beattie added that Mr. Thompson was one of thousands of people entering Canadian Nazi headquarters here and was told that he would be treated as a Nazi.

About 11 hours after the alleged abduction, Mr. Thompson was dumped along the Mardonald Belair Freeway about 15 miles from his home, Mr. Beattie said.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A 37-to-one longshot won the feature race Monday night at Garden City Raceway and returned $75.90 to win.

Admiral Byrd C., owned by Max Webster of Brantford, was driven to its first victory in six outings this season by 20-year-old Brian Webster, a student at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute in Toronto.

Indian War Club Tops Field

NEW YORK (AP)—There's a small reason other than pitching why Cleveland Indians have forged back into the thick of the American League pennant race.

He's Vic Davalillo, the five-foot-seven 150 pound outfielder.

While the Indians' moundsmen have been keeping opposing hitters consistently in check, Davalillo has taken a 22-for-70 cut at the circuit's batting race.

The little Venezuelan collected 12 hits in 33 times at bat last week and his average remained at .325. Cleveland, meanwhile, has won its last nine games and Indian pitchers have allowed only three runs in the club's last six outings.

Willie Horton of Detroit, runner-up to Davalillo, fell 10 points to .343 in last week's action. He managed only seven safeties in 25 attempts.

Felix Mantilla of Boston and Jimmie Hall, Minnesota remained in a third place tie at .325. Each lost one point, Mantilla garnering eight hits in 25 tries and Hall six for 19.

Veteran outfielders Hank Aaron of Milwaukee and Willie Mays of San Francisco are waging an interesting battle for the National League lead. Aaron took over the top spot with an eight point pickup to .343. Mays is batting .342 after climbing 11 points on a 12-for-25 performance.

Milwaukee's Joe Torre held third place despite a three point drop to .332 and Philadelphia's Richie Allen remained fourth, gaining two points to .33; with nine hits in 28 times at bat.

The leaders are based on a minimum of 150 times at bat and the figures include games of Sunday.

Mays slammed one home run last week, lifting his leading total to 21. Ernie Banks of Chicago is the runner-batted-in leader with 56. He drove in four last week. Mays is second with 51 RBI.

Horton is challenging Mantilla for the RBI lead. The Tigers's outfielder drove in 10 runs for a season's total of 48. Mantilla has 50, only one more than a week ago.

Expo Engineers Waging Battle Against Time

Canada will celebrate its centenary by playing host to the world at Expo 67, a $2,000,000,000 extravaganza to be staged in Montreal in 1967. This is a progress report on preparations for the big fair.

By MICHAEL BLAIR

MONTREAL (CP) — A battle against time is being waged by men and computers in the headquarters here of the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition.

The task is to transform two bare islands in the St. Lawrence River and a rock-fill pier—covering a total of more than 900 acres—into a glittering showplace for the $2 or more nations and numerous companies who have announced they will participate.

The cost of staging the six-month fair—April 28 to Oct. 27—has been estimated at $2,000,000,000 by Robert F. Shaw, deputy commissioner-general of the corporation.

The figure includes access highways, the $275,000,000 Montreal subway system (which will serve Expo and later pay for itself), internal transit, the island and displays.

"The corporation itself expects to spend $167,000,000 and to collect revenue of $120,000,000," Mr. Shaw said in an interview.

Expo's estimated deficit, which now exceeds by $7,000,000 the original $40,000,000 figure set by Parliament, will be absorbed by the federal government (50 per cent), the province of Quebec (37½ per cent) and city of Montreal (12½ per cent). Its bond debt is guaranteed in the same proportions.

Despite the cost, officials believe the debt will be small compared with the tax revenue collected from an estimated 30,000,000 visitors expected to spend $400,000,000. In addition there will be building taxes on some $225,000,000 worth of pavilions and displays put up by participants.

FIRST SINCE BRUSSELS

Gerard D. Levesque, Quebec's minister of industry and commerce, is even more optimistic and has estimated the fair will draw at least $600,000,000 in tourist spending on food, gasoline, lodgings, souvenirs and entertainment.

Expo, sanctioned as a Class I fair by the International Bureau of Exhibitions, is the first in this category to be held outside Europe. The last was in Brussels in 1958. The current New York fair is not sanctioned by the bureau, and the Seattle exhibition in 1962 was a Class II fair.

The world's showcase will emerge over the next 22 months on St. Helen's Island, Ile Notre Dame and MacKay Pier in the river south of Montreal. The site, provided by the city at a cost of $25,000,000, was created mainly with rock-fill from the river bed and subway construction.

It now is complete—all facilities including water and sewage have been installed—and building of some pavilions and administration buildings has started, including Canada's $21,000,000 centre.

Despite the immense sums being spent, visitors to Expo will field prices reasonable, said Mr. Shaw. The anticipated admission charge is $2 a person, with an outside chance it will be as high as $2.50.

Entrance to all pavilions will be free and the $2 will cover an unlimited number of rides on the Expo-express, a $12,830,000 fully automated ground - level rapid-transit system connecting all parts of the fair.

PARK FOR PICNICS

There will also be a $9,000,000 monorail system providing secondary transit on the two islands for a charge.

For the person who doesn't want to spend money on food, a large city park incorporated in the site will be available for picnics.

There will be food for gourmets at restaurants—the Iranian pavilion will feature a restaurant serving 120 kinds of shish-kebab—but there will also be plain food at reasonable prices.

"The easiest way to put a visitor off is to charge too much for meals," says Nathan Steinberg, administrator, of concessions. "We want to provide the opportunity for adventure in eating, but many people will want exactly the type of food they get at home."

He estimates 23,000 restaurant seats at Expo will be used by 30,000 to 40,000 persons a day. And "because most people will be on a definite budget the largest percentage of concessions will serve meals" costing less than $1.75. Prices, portions and quality standards will be set by Expo.

Apart from displays in the ADD X143—Expo pavilions, there will be little entertainment at what will cost money. However, for reasonable prices there will be events at Expo's 25,000-seat stadium, including a horse show, military tattoo and sports.

In arts, Expo will present world-famous orchestras, ballet and opera companies and other entertainment at Montreal's concert hall, Place des Arts, which it will take over for six months.

SITES FOR CAMPING

He said a central bureau, Lodge-Expo, will be set up to co-ordinate accommodation for an estimated 130,000 visitors a night during peak periods.

Mr. Beaubien says that by 1967 there will be hotel accommodation for 62,500 people within a 60-mile radius of Montreal, and that another 47,500 will be accommodated in three large camping sites being planned, private homes, trailer parks and possibly on ocean liners which may be anchored here for the summer.

Accommodation prices will be controlled, say Expo officials, and any motel or hotel raising prices above set levels will be struck off Lodge-Expo's computerized booking centre.

To date the corporation has spent nearly $19,000,000 on administration—it now has 600 employees—and has entered into contracts worth approximately $26,000,000, for a total of $45,000,000.

Much of the cost is the corporation will involve construction of "theme" buildings which will centre on Man and His World.

This will be divided into subthemes: Man the Explorer; Man the Producer; Man the Creator and Man the Community, all co-ordinated by Montreal planning consultant Jean-Claude Lahaye, and intended to emphasize man in search of his true existence and his relation with nature and the world."

RECORD FOR FAIR

Theme buildings are expected to be finished and exhibits installed by late 1966. The remaining time will be used to train staff and iron out problems.

In addition to the theme buildings, 52 governments have agreed to participate in the fair and will probably spend $200,000,000 on individual or joint pavilions. The U.S.S.R. is expected to spend about $14,000,000 and the U.S. $9,000,000.

Forty-five countries took part in the Brussels fair, the largest previous number to participate in a world's fair.

To date, 16 industrial exhibitors have taken out options to build pavilions at the fair—the largest participant being the Telephone Association of Canada which plans a $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 pavilion. In total, about 700 Canadian companies will participate by themselves, or through trade associations and spend an estimated $25,000,000.

Few American companies—or Canadian subsidiaries of American concerns—have announced intention to participate, and officials have indicated they are unhappy with the lack of interest.

They were particularly unhappy because of the possibility that the big Canadian car firms might not participate. A campaign to get them to come in succeeded with the announcement by Ron W. Todgham, president of the Canadian Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association, that car makers would sponsor a "major facility" at Expo.

WORK ON SCHEDULE

For all the planning at Expo headquarters, and construction going on to get people to the fair grounds, the islands still appear to be in a somewhat barren state.

Mr. Shaw however has no doubts about whether the fair will be completed on time and his view is backed up by H. F. Prothero, engineer in charge of Expo's "critical path" computer planning.

"It keeps an electronic eye on projects and reports any delays —but it is merely an electronic aid to the efficient husbanding of tasks and priorities," says Mr. Prothero, adding that every deadline has been met.

"Use of the computer planning represents saving of from 10 to 25 per cent in time and two to 10 per cent in cost."

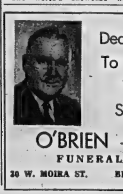
An example of planning is the bridge linking MacKay Pier and St. Helen's Island, which will be finished this July, six weeks ahead of schedule.

In addition to odd-shaped pavilions, the monorail, and other futuristic-looking features, the fair will have a centrepiece.

Paris had the Eiffel Tower, Seattle its space needle, and on St. Helen's Island the cities of Montreal and Paris plan to construct jointly for $20,000,000-plus a 1,066-foot reinforced concrete monument to commemorate the 325th anniversary in 1967 of the founding of Ville Marie—Montreal's predecessor.

FAIR SITE SHAPES UP — Arrow points to bridge which when finished in July will link MacKay Pier (left foreground) with St. Helen's Island, site of the Montreal World's Fair. It will provide a service road to the island as well as carry a rapid transit system which will connect all parts of Expo 67. The larger island is Ile Notre Dame. Both islands, mostly rock-fill, will house Expo pavilions. Crossing the islands in the background is Jacques Cartier bridge. Photo was taken early in June. (CP Photo)

No Appeal Will Be Made Against Verdict



TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Monday his department will not appeal last week's acquittal of former Orillia mayor Wilber Cramp on three separate charges of municipal corruption in the granting of a Northern Ontario Natural Gas company franchise.

Mr. Cramp was acquitted Wednesday on charges that he accepted shares in NONG for a consideration for granting the Orillia franchise to the company in 1956; That he accepted NONG shares to block a franchise application by a rival firm; and that he conspired in these dealings with Ralph K. Farris, then president of NONG.

Mr. Wishart also announced that no further action would be taken against former mayors Wanda Miller of Gravenhurst, Glen S. Coates of Bracebridge and Leo Landreville of Sudbury, the latter now a justice of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Similar charges against them reached the preliminary hearing stages before it was decided there was insufficient evidence to warrant a trial.

North Vietnamese MiG Jets Taking To Air To Hit U.S. Raiders And Then Run

SAIGON (AP)—The North Vietnamese air force seems to be adopting some of the tactics the Viet Cong guerrillas have used on the ground for years—hit and run, and fight only when you think you are stronger than your opponent.

North Vietnamese MiG-17 jets are coming up to do battle with U.S. raiders more often. There were eight aerial clashes over North Viet Nam last Thursday and Sunday. Both times, the MiGs lost.

Some U.S. officers speculate that North Viet Nam may have more MiG-17s than the U.S. raids began earlier this year. Hanoi may have enough planes to be willing to risk some of them in battle, these officers speculate.

The North Vietnamese also may be worried that their air bases will soon be primary targets for the American planes, even bases close to Hanoi. The Hanoi air force may feel it is better to give its planes a fighting chance in the air while these bases still are able to operate.

U.S. officials do not believe the North Vietnamese air force has any of the high performance fighters made by the Soviet Union, such as the MiG-19, MiG - 21, MiG - 23, Sukhoi or YAK-28. All the latter are supersonic jets with sophisticated armament. If these planes were available, they probably would have been fighting the Americans by now.

But the MiG-17 can be a dangerous enemy if flown by experts. It first went into operation in 1954 and was a big improvement over the workhorse fighter of the Korean War, the MiG-15.

The maximum speed of the MiG-17 is about 650 miles an hour—just under the speed of sound, and less than half the top speed of the American F-4B with which it may have to tangle. But the MiG-17 carries two 23-millimetre and one 37-millimetre cannon, which give it a dangerous bite.

Kenya Requests Wilson To Quit Peace Mission

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—After conferring with a Chinese diplomat, Kenya's External Affairs Minister Joseph Murumbi has openly asked Prime Minister Wilson to step down as head of the Commonwealth peace mission. There is no indication, however, that Wilson will do so.

Murumbi and President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana held separate talks Tuesday with Hsiang Hsiang-hui, China's charge d'affaires in London. It was understood part of the discussions dealt with the peace mission's prospects of visiting Peking and Hanoi and meet with Chinese attempts to persuade the 13 Afro - Asian Commonwealth leaders to attend the Afro-Asian summit at Algiers June 29.

Two Algerian diplomats also called on various Afro - Asian prime ministers to plead with them to attend the summit. The 13 prime ministers had urged a postponement in view of the unsettled conditions in Algeria following the coup against President Ben Bella.

Both President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania and Prime Minister Hastings Banda of Malawi have announced they will not attend the summit despite the Chinese-Algerian urging. Kenya also is not going.

There have been widespread reports in the British press that many of the Afro-Asian leaders are dissatisfied with the choice of Wilson as peace mission leader on the grounds that he is too closely associated with the United States position in the Vietnamese war.

The Commonwealth leaders, including Wilson, met briefly in talks Friday, now turn to such issues as how to expand Commonwealth trade and aid to needy partners.

Wilson has pledged an increase in Canadian aid to the West Indies, amounting to $10,000,000 a year. He also announced a statement by Colonial Secretary Anthony Greenwood that Britain would call an international conference in the fall to provide independence for British Guiana by 1966.

His most impassioned plea, however, was in urging the prime ministers to help push back the money-short United Nations. Several leaders immediately voiced support and it was recommended their countries make contributions to the UN towards meeting peacekeeping costs.

While the Commonwealth leaders still have much to discuss—the world economic situation, the situation in Cyprus and in dependent countries—the major talk in the corridors touches on the final decision the Commonwealth will take on the Rhodesian issue.

Many of the African and Asian leaders have demanded

Ontario Session Is Ended

By BO BEXELL

TORONTO (CP) — After 98 sitting days, the Ontario legislature ended its 1965 session Tuesday, counting as its handiwork a total of 176 new acts for the statute books.

Some of the acts will not seem into effect for a year or more, yet the accomplishments of the record-length session—the previous longest was 81 days—should in a large way reshape the face of the province.

As LL-Gov. Earl Rowe prorogued the third session of the 27th legislature at 5:30 p.m., he gave royal assent to 75 bills, one providing for establishment of community colleges.

The first of these — to be known as colleges of applied arts and technology — may be opened by the fall of 1966, precipitating a revolutionary change in the educational structure of Ontario.

It will see students who might otherwise leave school after Grade 12 or Grade 13 carry on for two more years in junior colleges, and others who normally might not make the grade in university graduate with diplomas in technological skills.

Perhaps 20 or more of the two - junior colleges, designed as a continuance from Grade 12, will be established within the Fall confirmation costs are to be borne by the provincial government.

Reserve Judgment In Appeal

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice Eric Moorhouse of the Ontario Supreme Court reserved judgment Tuesday until Friday on Russell Horsburgh's appeal against his conviction and five charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Horsburgh, former pastor of the Park Street United Church in Chatham, was sentenced to a year in jail after a trial last fall in which six teenagers testified he had aided and abetted them in having sexual intercourse in areas of the church.

He resigned from his pastorate after his conviction and later resigned from the ministry.

After he served 10 days of his sentence, Horsburgh was released on $2,500 bail pending his appeal. He entered Kent County jail in Chatham Monday pending the outcome of the appeal.

Argument at the two-day appeal turned on whether Judge W. H. Fox of London, Ont., who conducted the Chatham trial, ought to have believed the teenaged witnesses or the defendant.

U.S. to Continue to Bomb North Viet Nam - - Clarke

Fifteen years ago Friday, a North Korean force crossed the 38th parallel and touched off the Korean War. In the following interview, Gen. Mark Clark, who signed the truce that ended more than three years of fighting, discusses what that war taught him after the present Viet Nam conflict.

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH

CHICAGO (AP)—Gen. Mark Clark, who led the United Nations forces in Korea, said today that the United States must continue to bomb North Viet Nam or face "another Korea."

The U.S. must realize, Clark said, that "the way to win is to hit hard and use all our air force and naval aviation powers."

He added: "The great lesson I learned in the Korean War was that we must not fight the Communists in a manpower war.

"Even if we wanted to, we wouldn't sacrifice our men the way they're willing to sacrifice theirs. I wasn't willing to trade one dead American for a thousand Chinese in Korea."

Clark, who was in Chicago for a speaking engagement, expressed his views in an interview.

Clark said he supports the actions of the Johnson administration "thus far," but he cautioned against involving U.S. forces in a "manpower war."

"I fear indications that we're reluctant to use sea or air power to their full extent. I don't know if it's true or not, but if we're willing to engage in a manpower war, I just feel we can't win."

Many sources have been highly critical of the air raids which, the sources say, have done little to improve the bargaining position of the United States.

Told of those opinions, Clark said:

"Don't think they (the Viet Cong) wouldn't be in a much stronger position if they weren't being smacked. I feel that these attacks are doing a lot of damage to them and the more remunerative targets we pick out the better off we'll be."

Asked if the United States is doing the right thing by bombing North Viet Nam, Clark said:

"I've had lots of experience with communism and I know they respect force and stop, look and listen when they see it. But when they find weakness they exploit it and despise it."

Asked what he thought of the control Washington exercises over military activity in Viet Nam, Clark replied:

"... I must admit in these modern complicated days of warfare, political considerations must be given weight and must be balanced by military consid-

WASHINGTON (AP)— Eyewitness reports of police brutality to demonstrators jailed in a compound at the State Fairgrounds at Jackson, Miss., were delivered to Congress Tuesday.

Two demonstrators,- Maggie Gordon, Lexington, Miss., and David M. French, Washington, both Negroes, told a group of eight House of Representatives members of beatings.

Dr. David M. French, Washington, vice-president of the medical committee on human rights, urged federal action be taken to assure medical attention to jailed victims of the alleged brutality so at least that his group be given access to the compound.

Chief of Detectives M. B. Pierce, who directed operations at the compound, said "99 per cent of those accusations are false."

She was charged with assault.

Nearly 800 demonstrators were placed in the compound last week after being arrested for attempting to stage protest marches to the Mississippi Capitol. They were charged with parading without a permit.

As of Tuesday, police said 304 remained in the compound, the others having been transferred to regular jails or released on bond.

Three members of the committee on civil rights and race of the U.S. National Council of Churches who returned from Mississippi and Alabama Tuesday told of conditions in the compound which they described as a "concentration camp."

In a statement, they reported on interviews with more than 100 persons in the compound, listing such cases as these:

—A young man, already wounded, had to be carried by a guard when medical assistance had been requested.

—Women prisoners subjected to "constant lewd and suggestive" remarks and given medical attention only in the presence of "staring police officers."

—Male prisoners forced to run a gauntlet of club-wielding policemen.

—Prisoners since the first arrests a week ago with no blankets and only a single mattress for every three people.

—Medicine prescribed but not delivered.

"We are absolutely convinced," the three said, "that the primary purpose of the Jackson concentration camp is not to serve as a place of incarceration but rather to serve as a place to break the spirit, the will, the health and even the body of each individual who dared to assert unreasonably to seek redress of grievances."

Pearson Not Likely To Accept

By WILLIAM NEVILLE

OTTAWA (CP) — Informed government sources say there is strong doubt that Prime Minister Pearson will agree to any request to join the Commonwealth Viet Nam peace mission.

They suggest he has solid diplomatic and political reasons for his refusal.

Publicly, the government remained mum Tuesday on London reports of a growing draft-Pearson movement at the Commonwealth prime ministers conference there.

Acting Prime Minister Martin, questioned on the subject Tuesday in the Commons, reiterated that Mr. Pearson originally had declined to serve on the five-man mission on grounds his presence along with mission Chairman Harold Wilson of Britain would give the group a pro-Western, pro - North Atlantic Treaty Organization imbalance.

Mr. Martin declined to say whether the prime minister still held this view in the light of reports of growing disenchantment with Wilson's chairmanship.

SEE NO SIGN

Behind the scenes, however, government sentiments are said they could see no indication Mr. Pearson has altered his position since Monday, nor is there any sign he will do so.

In the first place, they suggested that substituting Mr. Pearson for Mr. Wilson on the mission would do little to halt the bitter verbal assault launched against it by Communist China and North Viet Nam.

While the Canadian leader has taken an independent stand on Viet Nam, he has been almost as consistent as the British premier in supporting Washington's overall policy and objectives.

In addition, Peking and Hanoi have indicated little faith in Canada's independence on Viet Nam since publication of last February's International Control Commission report in which this country's representative split with India and Poland and declined to criticize U.S. actions in Southeast Asia.

On the political side, sources said Mr. Pearson could face a difficult situation if he gave any encouragement to moves to have him replace Mr. Wilson.

Press Protest Ignored

By WILLIAM NEVILLE

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon says the government isn't wedded to its proposed legislation to guard against foreign take-overs of Canada's daily newspapers.

But in wedlock or out he's determined to push it into law as quickly as possible.

Mr. Gordon made this point clear—and won a vote to back it — in the Commons Tuesday night as the House wound up yet another busy and productive day.

Faced with a request from Canada's newspaper publishers to postpone final action on his newspaper bill, the finance minister told the House "the government is not wedded to this particular method it has presented for retaining control of Canadian newspapers in Canadian hands."

"Perhaps there is another method which we have not been able to find. If so, we would be quite ready to consider it."

WILL SUBSTITUTE

In fact, if the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association can come up with a better method than the proposal to prohibit advertising expenditures in a foreign or Canadian newspaper as a tax deduction, "then the government will be prepared to recommend its substitution for the present legislation at the appropriate time in the future."

In the meantime, however, the government is not prepared to put the whole issue aside while the CPNDA tries to find a final alternative method.

To do so might open the way for foreign interests to move in before intervening years let us acquire more than the 25-per-cent interest Mr. Gordon proposes in Canadian newspapers. He wants the present legislation written into law — at least until something better can be found.

The CDNPA, in its meeting last Friday with Mr. Gordon and Acting Prime Minister Martin, said it has canvassed its membership and made alternatives to the government plan and has come up with two or three suggestions. It needed time, however, to check them out with legal authorities and refer any decisions back to member papers.

R. A. Graybiel of the Windsor Star, CDNPA president, told reporters after Friday's meeting the association feels the issue at stake warrants a postponement.

"We're not sure if we have an alternative solution," he said. "We just asked for a chance to try to find one to a proposal which is so objectionable to the vast majority of Canadian newspapers."

Mr. Gordon's answer Monday night amounted to an invitation to the CDNPA to try to find such a solution—but he is not prepared to wait until they do.

Despite some opposition criticisms, the House accepted this procedure in a subsequent vote. By a tally of 102 to 38, it gave second reading — approval in principle — to the income tax amendments embodied in the newspaper measure, a some-

Iroquois Delegation Seeks Status As Separate Nation

OTTAWA (CP)—Pressure on behalf of Canada's Indians was brought to bear both inside and outside the Commons Tuesday.

An attempt by New Democrat MPs to beat back a government bill setting up an Indian claims commission to iron out difficulties sprouting from old treaty rights was trampled in a 153-to-13 vote.

And in a meeting with Citizenship Minister Nicholson on Parliament Hill Indian leaders were told that the minister did not have authority to confirm that the tribes constitute a separate nation and are entitled to huge land parcels and contingent mineral rights.

New Democrat speakers during the Commons debate maintained that the current bill did not offer enough safeguards for Indian rights. Their amendment suggested a complete revamping.

But all other members present voted against the NDP amendment and the bill was given second reading—approval in principle—and sent off to a special committee. New Democrats called "on division" to record their opposition.

Before their delegation met with Mr. Nicholson, Indians of the five-nation Iroquois Confederacy paraded before the Parliament Buildings. They carried placards reading "Abolish the inhuman Indian Act" and "British - Canadian governments, hands off mineral royalties."

"We have our own nation and the white man has no right to make laws for the red man," said Chief Louis Hall of the Caughnawaga reserve near Montreal, spokesman for the Indians.

The few royalties that had been set aside for Indians went into a fund controlled by the government, he said. "They give with the one hand and take away with the other."

The marchers distributed copies of a letter the band sent to Governor-General Vanier claiming Indian rights on nationhood and lands were confirmed by a proclamation by King George III in 1763. Mr. Hall said the proclamation recognized Indian rights to one-third of the value of mineral rights.

The delegation that met the minister pressed for confirmation of separate-nation status for Indians. Mr. Nicholson said he couldn't give it.

He said he would walk out of the meeting if the delegates kept pressing their point.

"We're not getting anywhere," one Indian commented. "I didn't invite you here. this meeting is at your request," Mr. Nicholson replied.

Drastic Action May Be Taken To Clear Up Pollution Sources

A suggestion that drastic action may be taken to clear up sources of pollution in the lower Moira was made at a city council Monday from Ex-Alderman George A. Wishart, chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority.

Giving a report to council on the activities of the authority, Mr. Wishart said that the Ontario Water Resources Commission was making a survey of the lower Moira to check on pollution sources.

He said that drastic action may have to be taken to clear up the trouble.

A check yesterday revealed that Dick Barrens of the OWBC has been in the Belleville area for a week or more checking on types of pollution both in the river and in the bay.

Mr. Barrens has already looked at several sources of pollution both along the river and in the Bay of Quinte. Samples from privately owned septic tanks also from the city's sanitary landfill garbage disposal area along the bay are being considered as sources of pollution.

British leader's personal initiative with accompanying implications on the domestic British political scene. Any interference with it seems certain to produce resentment with the Labor government.

While shooting down the idea that Mr. Pearson planned anything in fairly strong terms sources here acknowledge some factors which could generate a draft-Pearson drive in London.

They pointed to the fact he had considerable experience, and some success, in dealing with the Chinese over Korea. It also was suggested his stand at the previous and current London conferences on the Rhodesian issue has put him in good stead with most Afro - Asian delegations.

In balance, however, informants here say they are convinced other Commonwealth premiers are more likely to back the Viet Nam mission than is Mr. Pearson.

Almost as the possibilities suggested here are Julius Nyrerere of Tanzania and Pakistan's Ayub Khan, both of whom have good relations with Peking, a point considered essential at this stage in the mission's difficult birth.

Warkentin Inquest Set For June 30

The loquest probing circumstances surrounding the death of Jacob Bernard Warkentin will be held in Belleville one week from now.

Summonses now are being issued to witnesses in Belleville and Kingston ordering their appearance before the inquest opens at the Coroners Office Supervising Coroner, Dr. H. B. Cotman.

Mr. Warkentin, 61-year-old greenhouse operator on Highway 2, west of Belleville, died June 7th at Kingston General Hospital after operations there and in Belleville General Hospital.

Yesterday, Inspector J. S. Kay of the provincial police criminal investigation Branch was in both cities in connection with the inquest. The date of the inquiry at any rate was set yesterday after the inspector had made a report to Dr. Cotman following a preliminary investigation last week—when the inquiry was first revealed.

Ontario County Crown Attorney W. B. Affleck will assist at the inquest which will call witnesses, including doctors and nurses who attended Mr. Warkentin at both hospitals.

A city police officer has been assigned to the coroner's constable to summon witnesses and five local citizens who will act as jurors and return a formal verdict on the cause of death.

SIU Head Requested to Give Statement

MONTREAL (CP)—Leonard J. (Red) McLaughlin, president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), was committed Tuesday to voluntary jail for a term of Oct. 5 on charges of conspiracy in a march on Ottawa 20 months ago.

Judge Emile Trottier of court of sessions also committed eight other officials of the SIU at that time to voluntary statement in the case.

They are charged with conspiring to have SIU members abandon their ship for the Canadian National Railways strike in Quebec legal proceedings during a preliminary hearing at which an accused may attempt to show cause why he should not be sent to trial.

ACQUITS FOUR

In his statement, Judge Trottier quoted the words of Hal Banks, then the SIU president, who has since skipped the country. He said it was "the most vicious legislation passed against any union in the Western Hemisphere in all history."

In committing McLaughlin, Judge Trottier said: "He cooperated in organizing the march and was seen acting as one of the chiefs of the adventure."

The judge added: "The court must understand that its sole purpose at preliminary hearing was to find if there was apparent basic proof against the accused.

"The court's duty was not to decide if the accused were guilty or not guilty but to decide whether or not there was matter for trial. It is sufficient for the magistrate to ask himself if there is a probability of conviction."

Conference Underway Here On Planning for Centennial

A general blueprint for planning of celebrations to fittingly mark Canada's centennial year in 1967 was presented today, during a Centennial Planning Conference held at the Hotel Quinte in Belleville.

Host for the conference was the Ontario Centennial Planning Branch of the Ontario Department of Tourism and Information. Close to 50 municipal leaders and representatives of different organizations in the Bay of Quinte district, attended.

The conference, the 38th such meeting to be held across Ontario, consisted of the showing of films blending ideas for suitable centennial celebrations and an outline of the centennial organization from the Federal level down to the municipal level.

Also discussed were viewpoints for the centennial year, taking into consideration the tourist, recreation and community development aspects. Provincial grant program the women's role and the senior age groups.

FILM SHOWED

Shown during the morning session was a special color film, "Centennial Trilogy Edition," outlining possible centennial projects, and showing others already carried out in various parts of the country.

Chairman for the conference was Anthony Adamson, centennial liaison officer, who emphasized that a successful centennial celebration could be best accomplished by full participation from all citizens.

Mr. Jack A. Brickie, representing the provincial centennial planning branch, said that centennial celebrations should have a lasting significance and retrospect deserving of a nation celebrating its 100th birthday.

Rather than being a one-day or one-week effort, celebrations should last throughout the year with special events for the young and old, and for the entire family.

Direction for planning celebrations must come from municipal leaders but full participation from all age groups was important. Planning for the celebration would be in the hands of someone conversant with the geography and history of the area, so that programs in keeping with the area's historic background, could be staged.

Turning to centennial projects, Mr. Brickie warned that the projects be "tailor made" for application for municipal centennial project applications.

Proper organization and committee program consisted of the showing of the film, "The Norwich Plan," on community organization, together with a slide presentation of more ideas for centennial projects and another film "Salute to a Century of Achievement," showing how the people of Drumville, Ont., celebrated the town's centennial.

Three B. C. I. Teachers Honored on Retirement

Over a century of service to Belleville was recognized last night as three teachers were honored on their retirement. 90 former pupils, colleagues and friends of Miss M. H. Dwyer, Elton Burgess and Les Shiels gathered at the Quinte Motor Hotel to pay tribute to their combined 100 years of dedicated teaching in Belleville. Mr. Bruce Porte expressed the thanks of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board to the trio and the Superintendent, Mr. E. A. Orr, also acknowledged the gift of a gold watch to each retiring colleagues.

Miss Kathleen Morrison, in making the presentation to Miss Dwyer mentioned that although she was known primarily as a Belleville teacher she taught a selection of subjects that amazes younger teachers. Miss Morrison, a concert pianist herself pointed out that her former students and colleagues would never be forgotten, she said. An engraved silver tray is the gift of the BCIVS teachers to Miss Dwyer.

Mr. H. F. Wilkinson in presenting Mr. Burgess with a substantial cheque on behalf of the BCIVS cadet corps and his many friends in sport pointed out a standard of excellence not often equalled in the area, Mr. Burgess is the only person to win three trophies in the Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association.

Mrs. Ray Pryor wrote words to several songs honoring the retiring teachers and she was joined in singing them by Mrs. D. Rowe, Mrs. Mr Woolry, and R. Robertson. Mr. L. Lennox played the violin solos accompanied by Mr. C. E. Templer.

Mr. Jim MacKay, chairman of the committee that organized the banquet, presented his own special thanks in a song that Mrs. Pryor wrote to thank him for making the evening the success that it was.

David Selznick, Film Producer, Dies Suddenly

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A heart attack has taken the life of film producer David O. Selznick, who gave up millions in 1939 to get Clark Gable for his cinema masterpiece, Gone With the Wind.

Selznick, 63, was stricken in his lawyer's office Tuesday. Actress Jennifer Jones, his second wife of 16 years, was with him. The actress called his physician to Mt. Sinai Hospital, where he died about an hour later.

Selznick made many famous pictures, but Gone With the Wind exemplified his high regard for quality and his willingness to spare no expense. He was determined to have Gable for the role of Rhett Butler when the production was being cast over 27 years ago.

Gable, who died in 1960, then was at MGM. Louis B. Mayer, boss of MGM, told Selznick he could have Gable provided that reissue rights to Gone With the Wind would go to MGM—which it did. But to MGM. The film now is in its 10th reissue and has grossed an estimated $80,000,000 at the boxoffice—the all-time champion money maker. Selznick once said:

"I have never regretted it. I wouldn't have made the picture without Clark."

Try! Try! Try!

Most people like to try something that is strange to them before they will buy it. We think that this is true also in buying goods especially, such as golf clubs, tents, and camper trailers.

We, at Canadian Tire, have every size and type of these items to view in the store today, weekend, or month. It makes sense that people who are not sure if they like to buy, would prefer to rent equipment rather than to buy it.

This applies to other rental lines of ours, such as mechanics' tools, household equipment, Rug Shampooers, floor polishers, scrubbers, etc . . . recreation equipment, sporting goods, painting equipment, and plumbing tools.

Our motto is, "Try Before You Buy." We rent what we sell, and we sell what we rent. Call us at 968-6701, or visit our store at the corner of Coleman and Harriet Street.

Homeowners Blame Council For Unrest and Controversy

Ontario

surance Act, likely will be remembered as the most important pieces of legislation from the session.

Neither act will take effect for a year or more, but next month residents will see more liberal drinking laws that will allow beer parlors to remain open between 6:30 p.m. and 8 p.m.—the normal supper closing period — and will see the introduction of music and games into beverage rooms.

Other changes will allow the serving of alcoholic beverages in aircraft, in live theatres, in dining rooms attached to bowling alleys and curling rinks and in open-air portions of licensed restaurants.

The government introduced legislation emphasizing the prevention of child neglect by offering home services to families where circumstances might lead to neglect of the children.

ASSUMES WARDSHIP

Whereas children's aid societies formerly were the guardians of neglected children by court order, the provincial government now will assume wardship. CAS care of children will be maintained under a new financial arrangement.

The government's medical services insurance legislation is not scheduled to take effect until June 1, 1966, and opposition members have already predicted that even then it will not become a reality for many of what they say is growing public opposition.

Passed after the bitterest most prolonged debate of the season, the law establishes controls over all private or non-profit companies which offer medical insurance to the people of Ontario.

The insurance carriers will be required to sell standard insurance contracts at stipulated maximum premiums to any person who asks to buy them, whether sick or well, old or young.

The government will subsidize persons whose income is so low that medical care insurance coverage may be beyond them. Those with no taxable income will have the full subscription costs paid for them.

SUBSIDIES GRADED

A graded scale of premium subsidies will be provided for individuals with taxable income of up to $500, couples with taxable income of up to $1,000, and families with taxable income of up to about $1,200.

The government has not yet said what the maximum premium rates will be under the plan. Costs are to be set by a new medical services insurance council. The scheme basically will offer only physicians' and surgeons' services.

Diefenbaker Has Concluded Western Tour

By KEN KELLY

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Diefenbaker wound up a western tour Tuesday night by calling on the Progressive Conservative party to unite, mobilize for an election soon and take the offensive against the Liberal government.

Speaking after an introduction by British Columbia leader Davie Fulton, often spoken of as a contender for the national leadership, Mr. Diefenbaker made it plain he plans to stay on as leader

"I've been everything but dead," he said referring to rumors of a leadership change. "But I tell you I've never been more alive for the opportunity."

"I believe that in facing this problem of one Canada I have something still to contribute to building this nation and releasing Canadianism from the throttle hold by this government. . . ."

HINTS AT MANIFESTO

The Conservative leader dropped hints of an election manifesto embracing aid to education and to municipalities, a national highways policy, national water conservation program, Asian trade expansion and re-emphasis on the roads to resources and northern development policies of his administration from 1857-63.

The Amelisburg Homeowners' president told council last night zoning regulations should be designed to comply with the wishes of township residents not shaped to fit on a "piece of paper". Fred Evans was referring to the zoning by-law now under review and subject to final approval. Mr. Evans acted as spokesman for a delegation including area representatives and the Association attending the council meeting. He showed council a number of discrepancies in the legislation it proposed to adopt.

Mr. Evans explained that the Association assumed council had made the necessary preparations to sanction the authority along with the normal business proceedings on the agenda. The Association on this basis decided to make another attempt to have the legislation revised, he pointed out.

Mr. Evans blamed council for the unrest and controversy that has developed in the township since its Planning Board permitted an outside developer to build a house for sale on bayshore frontage 78 feet in width. He charged that the developer contravened council's sub-division control by-law that specifies no lot created on the shore of residential area on a lot under 100 feet wide. Township clerk William Nightengale contended the developer in this case was using the "last remaining piece" privilege as laid down in the control regulation. "Why was Doug Myers not given consideration when he sought to dispose of a piece 87 feet wide" he was asked.

The developer should have been held to divide his 378 feet into three property lines of two lots, Mr. Evans maintained. "I don't think this man should be allowed to continue unless you plan to throw out all the planning that's been started, he suggested. "The principle of being consistent is involved here," he said.

ASKED TO CHANGE CLAUSE

Council was asked to change a clause in the zoning by-law whereby only professional people would be permitted to use their homes as a place of business. Referred to as an obvious example of discrimination it was suggested the clause be reworded to include "etc." or "any legitimate business." Whether the by-law could restrict building on property that fronted a public street was questioned due to the existence of so many long lanes and roadways in the township. It was pointed out that two sections in the by-law referring to hedges differed. Council was asked to include a requirement for farmers to provide a survey with a request to make structural alterations to existing farm buildings.

Under the proposed regulations only the small property owner is obligated at an approximate cost of $135. The homeowners requested the size of lots in the residential areas be reduced from 30,000 feet to 15,000. "I would like council to tell me the name of any person accepting members of council and the Planning Board who has voiced preference for the larger amount," Mr. Evans said. He wondered if council considered it was in the best interest of the property owners that its Planning Board chairman, William Tatham, officiated as a member of the Court of Revision. He said he had heard criticism of this arrangement.

Parks' Gardener Says Drought Is Serious

TRENTON — Commenting on the current drought, Trenton's parks' gardener Bart Boers says today the land in the Trenton area was "dry to the bottom."

"The hay crop is cut in half this year," said Mr. Boers, "all the parks are showing the lack of moisture, and particularly the Stanley Heights park where Crown Vetch was sown a month ago."

Mr. Boers said the erosion saving Crown Vetch would be resown in the former gravel pit if it failed to make progress.

Town residents who had Crimson Maples planted on their boulevards this year would be doing themselves and the parks' board a favor if they watered them during this dry spell, Mr. Boers said.

SAY GOODBYE

Although Trenton area public school students have to the end of this week to occupy their seats, the "special" children in the Trenton-Brighton and district school for the retarded (west of Trenton), said goodbye to school books last week and are looking forward to a summer of fun. (Actually, the fun has started already, as the children were taken on a tour of Toronto Zoo last week). Many will attend the summer playground in Hanna Park and some will be going away to an organized summer camp, geared to their special needs.

PREDICTS SHUFFLE

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Donald MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader in Ontario, predicted Tuesday that three provincial cabinet ministers will be replaced before the fall session of the legislature. He said Welfare Minister Louis Cecile, Transport Minister W. Irwin Haskett and Mines Minister George Wardrope will leave their posts.

Edward Heagle Renewing Old Friendships

TRENTON — Edward (Ed) Heagle, a one-time Trenton resident, has been visiting in town this week, and renewing his friendship with several school buddies, among them, Nostrand Sprague.

Mr. Heagle, who attended a make-shift school with "Nos" in the municipal building when Dufferin Ave. school was burned down, later went to Detroit, where he worked for a machinery company until his retirement six years ago.

Neither Mr. Sprague nor Mr. Heagle will say just how long ago it was since they raised suction in the makeshift school, but admit "it was quite a few years ago."

Classes were held in the old Masonic hall on Front Street where Happy Harry now locates, and these two classes, along with the two in the new municipal building carried on in these locations until a new Dufferin school was built.

TRENTON — At a meeting in Warkworth Monday night, Reeve Douglas McMaster of Murray Township was elected president of the Northumberland Progressive Conservative Association. Reeve McMaster is a former warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham.

Mrs. Stanley (Mary) Ketcheson, of Carrying Place, Trenton, was elected women's representative.

Call Tenders For New Shed In Township

TRENTON— Tenders for the construction of a township shed in Murray Township may be called within a month.

The members of the township council, meeting in Wooler last night discussed many changes in the design of the proposed $35,000 building. The building has been approved at both government levels as a Centennial Project and as such will be eligible for a $10,000 subsidy. Council has already arranged for the remaining financing.

One feature of the new building, which will primarily provide council with a meeting place, is a separate room where road workmen may wash, shower or eat their lunches.

At the insistence of Councillor Leo McAuley, the township clerk, Angus Gunter, will contact the district engineer, J. C. Callighan, to find out how much of a subsidy the Department of Highways would pay toward the black-topping of streets in Wooler. Councillor McAuley charged that council had devoted all its attention to the proposed new municipal building and "forgotten" about the problems of the village.

MUST STOP WINGS

Bart Boers, the owner of the Hollandale Nurseries, west of Trenton, has received notice from the Ontario Department of Highways to "stop" the wings of his display windmill from turning. DHO officials seemingly fear that the turning wings might distract passing motorists and cause accidents. Mr. Boers, who thinks otherwise, has retained the services of Picton lawyer R. E. Nourse.

MUST MOVE SHED

York Road resident, Jack Alyea, has been advised by Murray Township council to move back a machine shed, which say the councillors, was built on six feet of township road allowance. Council has, through its lawyer, advised Mr. Alyea that failure to comply with this request might lead to legal proceedings.

AUSSIES PAY UP

Australians paid £1,835,200,000 ($4,459,536,000) in state and federal taxes in 1963-64, equivalent to $372.73 a head.

Pleads Guilty To Fraud Count

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday, Charles O. White, Jr., 27, of Thomasburg and St. Catharines, pleaded guilty to a charge of false pretenses, in connection with the passing of a worthless cheque, and was placed on a year's suspended sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

White, who gave a cheque for $200.85 to Card Motors on May 8, was apprehended by police in St. Catharines on May 17. He has since made restitution in full.

Norval A. Aitken, 51, of the Trenton area, pleaded guilty to driving his car on May 29 while his ability to do so was impaired by alcohol, and was fined $75 and ordered to pay $4 costs.

Erwin Vincent Lange of Bay St., Trenton, charged with driving the wrong way on a one-way street, was tried by the magistrate in absentia, found guilty on the evidence and will be required to pay a fine of $5 plus $4 costs.

OPEN IN JULY

A spokesman for the Kingston firm of T. A. Andrea and Sons said on Tuesday that a "tentative" date for the opening of Trenton's bowling alley on Front St. federal building had been set for "sometime during the second week of July," but that the lack of an electrical power transformer might delay the date.

Floors in the new building will be completed this week, as will the painting of the walls. Outside paving is finished.

Post office, customs and employment office personnel have not started to move is as yet, but are "at the ready" for the date, when it is announced.

83 BOATS LOCKED

To date, 83 boats have been locked through Lock No. 1 on the Trent since navigation's opening, May 15. That's ten better than last year at the same time.

Chinese on Their Own

There are conflicting reports on China's industrial progress since the withdrawal of Soviet aid. John Haylock, a teacher and writer who has lived in Asia for the last six years, said in a report for the Associated Press that the termination of Soviet aid had made China depend on itself.

The Chinese, said Haylock, point with pride to the fact they now produce enough oil to satisfy the country's needs. This is certainly a remarkable achievement for a country of 600 million people.

Cars are also being produced, but they are apparently not of modern design.

If Haylock hints at modest industrial progress in China, Charles Lynch, chief of Southam News Service, who has just returned from a visit there, says: "China has been at a standstill since 1960 when Soviet aid was withdrawn and has apparently been unable to overcome this loss."

Significantly, when he arrived in Peking, Lynch was told that China had suffered setbacks in its drive forward.

There is the nuclear bomb of course. China now has one or more of these devices, but this is of little comfort to the masses struggling to wrest a living from the vast expanses of their homeland.

Yet there is no mention of the spectre of famine that haunted China a few years ago. Canadian wheat evidently tided the country over the worst period and in recent times there have been bumper harvests.

"There is no doubt," Haylock said, "that people have enough to eat"; and while rice is rationed the allowance at the time of his visit was liberal.

Life nevertheless is hard for the Chinese, and the women, as in Russia, perform many heavy tasks. According to Charles Lynch, Chinese women are told they have been emancipated. "This means they have been freed to work in the fields 'pulling 500 pounds of rock up hill and down dale'."

China, for all its difficulties, is a country to be reckoned with. Anyone who doubts this should read the periodic pronouncements of the top men in Peking. China's leaders are a belligerent lot and the propagandists have the people so brainwashed with "anti-imperialistic" propaganda that the Russians by comparison seem a friendly, reasonable people. In which words China can not be ignored.

Security Issue

The justice department's written reply to David Orlikow (NDP-Winnipeg North) on the case of Mrs. Ciel Sauve does little to illuminate the North Bay woman's curious involvement in questioning by the RCMP following an article she wrote on the security of the NORAD communications centre at the Northern Ontario base.

Mrs. Sauve claimed the base's security was loose, that manned bomber detection was obsolete in a missile age and that civil defence in the area was a joke. She tried unsuccessfully to check out her article with Air Vice-Marshal James Harvey, NORAD northern region commander; and subsequently it was turned down by the Toronto Globe and Mail and by Maclean's magazine. However, word of its undiluted criticism evidently aroused official interest and she was questioned by the RCMP.

In a recent interview with Maclean's, Mrs. Sauve, whose home is near the NORAD base, said she was "scared stiff" by a warning she had received information and should not publish the article. Later she recalled most of her facts had come from a standard press kit issued at the centre.

As we have noted, the justice department has shed scarcely any light on the matter. However, in its reply to Mr. Orlikow it states in part: "Mrs. Sauve hadn't been informed of her rights." This is surely significant, although there is no explanation of the manner in which her rights may have been infringed.

In the absence of such details the issue of individual rights is of prime importance, for the broad inference is that no one should criticize the security of any military establishment less he incurs the displeasure of the authorities.

What Mrs. Sauve said in her article, if published, could have been of national interest, because it suggested security was lacking at the North Bay base.

Back at Work Seven Weeks After Two Discs Removed

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: About six months ago two discs were removed from my spine. I came through the operation wonderfully, can walk without any help and went back to work seven weeks afterwards.

So many friends said I would not be able to walk, and would not be able to get to work for a year. I wish you would let people know you can have that operation and come out so well.

But, Dr. Molner, I'm so nervous anything upsets me. Does that go with the operation? Also, my legs hurt. The discs were in the lower part of my back. A. A.

One thing which constantly puzzles me is the penchant of certain people to be calamity howlers, to tell their friends how badly something is bound to come out. The doctor, on the other hand, wants the patient to be a realist and — when justified — an optimist. Because a hopeful outlook is often an important factor in actual recovery.

I don't mean that anyone should be a Pollyanna, and pretend that everything always comes out right. Only partial success is possible, then one is a fool to expect perfection.

How to be nervous after surgery: In the early days, they were risky because surgeons were only beginning to find out how to do them. Wisdom grew from failures.

For quite a few years now, it has been a different story. True, we do not resort to surgery on the spine for trivial reasons, but when it is needed, there is no substitute. As in your case, the results were well worth the effort.

A disc is the sort of soft cartilage between the bones of the spine. It helps the spine move smoothly and easily. It also provides spaces for nerves to radiate out from the complex spinal cord inside the hollow vertebrae.

When a disc becomes damaged or out of shape, it can put pressure on some of these nerves. This can often be corrected by surgery, the typical procedure being to "fuse" two (or more) adjacent bones to use another piece of bone to hold them rigidly in place.

True, this particular part of the spine will no longer bend. At the same time, a protected place is provided for the nerves and pressure no longer will be exerted on them.

There is no connection between these nerves, or the operation, and "nervousness." Except, of course, that the very fear experienced from the gloomy warnings in advance may very well have set up such anxiety that now you have developed an unconscious sense of uneasiness over many things. Just telling your doctor about it may undo this feeling for you. (Or he might perhaps find that some medication for a time may help you settle down.)

As to the leg pains, I cannot say definitely. Your posture may have changed slightly. Or the leg pains may be entirely independent of the operation. Or possibly there may have been some unavoidable stress on a nerve, muscle or ligament which requires more time to return to normal. By all means report the pains to your doctor.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain the possible effects of a chest X-ray on a woman who is beginning her eighth month of pregnancy. Mrs. D. N.

No effects at all. The X-ray exposure is for only a fraction of a second, so brief that there is no deleterious radiation effect.

• •

Note to Mrs. C. K.: Spurs of the heel are calcium deposits, not gout. Injury or pressure are the usual causes. Padding inside the shoe heel often helps. In severe cases surgical removal is the answer.

Slum Issue In Kingston

Kingston Whig-Standard

As something of a postscript to our comments last week on Kingston's slum areas, Hon. J. R. Nicholson, Minister of Citizenship and Immigration, who is also responsible for the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, added a few more truths on the subject generally when he spoke later to a meeting in Winnipeg. What he had to say should shame every citizen in this land of plenty and cause people to ask why something isn't being done to eliminate slums everywhere.

Technically it is inaccurate to say that nothing has been done. But what has been done amounts to nothing more than a token gesture in providing decent living accommodation for those unable to provide it from their own resources. In 16 years, Mr. Nicholson said, "we have only approved 12,700 public housing units — a mere 0.7 percent of the total addition to Canada's housing stock." As a matter of fact that dismal record isn't much better than nothing.

According to the Minister there are about a quarter of a million Canadian families still forced to share accommodation with others. (And how some Canadians delight in pointing to the fact that in "backward" Russia people actually have to share accommodation with strangers!) "Close to one-fifth of our dwellings still lack modern bathing facilities and 15 percent of all housing units do not have even such simple fundamental requirements as ordinary toilets". If the slum pockets which exist in Kingston are any indication, it is quite possible that Mr. Nicholson understated the actual situation.

What intelligent, concern'd person would disagree with him when he said that "in the great wealth of 20th century Canada, no one should have to spend his life in third-rate housing, in second-class surroundings, whilst living in a first-class country"? But what is going to be done to change all that? Mr. Nicholson has already revealed that $2.6 billion is available for housing in Canada, which includes federal assistance for the redevelopment of slum areas. Are we going to, make use of such funds by eliminating the present condition and red tape which have arrested nearly every genuine attempt to attack the problem of blight? Or are we going to continue to pretend that the problem doesn't really exist, or think, as many seem to think here in Kingston, that because one slum area is cleaned up the task is finished? The truth of the matter is that, as Mr. Nicholson has reminded us, the work has not really begun.

Ontario's Flying Boom

JOHN GILLIES in The Globe and Mail

The flying-for-fun boom is on in Southern Ontario.

Visit the flight office or lounge or any of the growing number of flying clubs or schools and you are liable to find your next-door neighbor watching for you at the door after making a perfect three-point landing.

Ask the airport operators and they say everybody seems to be flying as a recreational pastime — office girls, housewives, doctors, lawyers, service station attendants, students and house painters. And the airports are expanding their facilities to accommodate them.

Just the other day, two small-looking women walked across the parking ramp at Toronto Airways near Buttonville, looking every bit like the fashion models who moments earlier had posed for fashion shots beside an aircraft. But they didn't stop for pictures.

Mrs. John Williams, who eight months ago was "scared to death of flying," said confidently into the left seat, and with her instructor beside her, fed in the throttle as the aircraft rolled down the runway on takeoff.

On the ground Mrs. Williams' J. Dunn, who received her private pilot's license four months ago, watched and has enjoyed a cup of coffee and a cigarette and chewed the fat in the day.

The two women are not Dunn is a grandmother with four grandchildren — are typical of the hundreds of part-time and student pilots who are responsible for the upsurge in flying.

In the first four months of this year members of the Royal Canadian Flying Clubs Association flew 8,084 hours compared to the same period last year. Last year 4,180 student pilot permits were issued and 1,200 private pilots won their licenses. This with the 485 commercial licenses issued, brought to total to 7,225. In 1963, a total of 5,930 licenses were issued.

Flying is still one of the most inexpensive hobby but although airplanes and maintenance costs have increased, the cost of a pilot learning to fly or renting a plane has actually increased nominally.

Fifteen years ago it cost $14 an hour to rent to fly on a $6,000 airplane. Today a $10,000-plus aircraft with instructor, fuel and landing fee $23 an hour. And you can still learn to fly for $14 an hour in the popular two-place Aeronca Champ.

Thirty-five hours of instructional time is the basic requirement of a ground school course and a federal Department of Transport flight test and written examination will win a pilot his private licence. Cost runs between $500 and $600 depending upon the aircraft he flys. If the pilot is under 25 years of age, the pilot and the flying club or operator which taught him each receive a $100 grant from the Federal Government.

In addition to the pilot-training grants the federal government has been offering for years, the Government has recently announced a $5-million-a-year program for secondary airports. The Government proposes to pay $85 for every $100 a municipality or public body put up for the improvement or establishment of airports, airstrips or seaplane bases.

At Toronto Airways on the northeast fringe of Metropolitan Toronto everything has been redoubled since operations began two years ago. The training fleet has increased from five to ten and offers everything from the two-passenger Aeronca Champ at $11 to the sleek, fast, 210 hp engine Piper Apache at $45 an hour.

More than 175 student pilots are on course this year compared with 75 last year. More than 70 aircraft are based on the field compared to 30 two years ago. Flying is becoming such a family recreation. Flying schools are offering, with great success, "husband-and-wife" wives which give them enough knowledge to take over while hubby reads a map or changes radio frequencies.

Toronto Island is Canada's busiest airport for private pilot landings and most of it is in a first-class country" But what is going to be done to change all that? Mr. Nicholson has already revealed that $2.6 billion is available for housing in Canada, which includes federal assistance for the redevelopment of slum areas. Are we going to, make use of such funds by eliminating the present condition and red tape which have arrested nearly every genuine attempt to attack the problem of blight? Or are we going to continue to pretend that the problem doesn't really exist, or think, as many seem to think here in Kingston, that because one slum area is cleaned up the task is finished? The truth of the matter is that, as Mr. Nicholson has reminded us, the work has not really begun.

More than 80 aircraft are based at Brampton. In the past year the club has added three beamas to its original fleet of one Cessna and three Aeronca Champs. Its membership reached 300 this year, a 200 percent increase over last year.

Mr. Briscoe says it is not necessary to spend thousands of dollars to own an airplane. A good used airplane can be acquired for the price of a second car, he said.

To meet the demands of the flying-for-fun trend two unique ventures are under way in Southern Ontario—one a flying country club northwest of Milton and the other an airpark near Stouffville.

Dominion Flying Club, Ontario's first flying country club perched high on the Niagara escarpment northwest of Milton, is scheduled to open later this month. The project is the brainchild of Donald Hopkins, a pilot, Frederick Oliver, a businessman and Michael Ross, an aeronautical engineer.

A 2,000-foot landing strip tops the 240 acres wooded site on which offers the visiting or student pilot fishing, horseback riding, a supervised children's play area, swimming, camping, shuffleboard, tennis, archery, checker and chess courts.

Weekly dances are planned along with fly-in corn roasts, barbecues, hayrides, pool parties and other events.

At Stouffville two former Royal Air Force bomber pilots, John Lewandowski and Henry Marks have leased the Toronto Markham Airpark which received its charter last month.

Located on the field will be a restaurant and motel providing on-the-field accommodation for touring flyers. The airpark will also offer flying instruction, charter flights and aircraft rentals.

In most cases where the wives are flying it has been the husbands who have led them into it. Both Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Dunn's husbands own and fly twin-engine aircraft for pleasure and business.

"The only dangerous part of flying is driving to and from the airport", Mrs. Dunn said.

Prove Death Penalty Not Deterrent

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

People think they are talking facts and logic when they are talking emotions. It is extremely hard for any of us to see that our "reasons" for holding a certain opinion are based on feelings we may scarcely be aware of, and not on the "facts" we trot out in defence of such opinions.

Consider the vexing question of "deterrent punishment" for criminals. Most psychologists and judges have shown that "deterrence" does not deter, but the advocates of capital punishment refuse to believe this evidence.

In Great Britain, the Homicide Act of 1957 changed the law relating to murder. The Homicide Act abolished the death penalty for all homicides except for a group called "capital murders" — those committed in furtherance of theft, in resisting arrest, murdering a policeman or prison officer.

These exceptions, of course were aimed at habitual criminals. It was argued that the Act would have a deterrent effect upon them, making them less eager to kill. However, since they accidentally kill someone while doing a job and be convicted for capital murder.

In an evaluation published by the British Home Office in 1961, it was found that exactly the opposite had occurred. The increase in murder taken place since 1957 has been entirely in that group; the habitual criminal has actually become more homicidal, even willing to risk any hang for it.

Conversely, it was feared, when the Act was first passed, that if the death penalty were relaxed for particular kinds of offenders, murders by them would multiply greatly. But there has been no increase. As Dr. Howard Jones, the British sociologist, remarks in his new book "Crime and the Penal Society," it is among those for whom the deterrent, in all its horror, has been retained that murder has increased.

In those American states in which the death penalty has been abolished, there has been no rise in the homicide rate; while those states' still administering the death penalty have a

Three delegations awaited upon the council at the regular meeting of that body on Monday evening and as a consequence the session was rather lengthy.

The president of the Army and Navy Veterans and member of the Rehabilitation Committee, suggested to the council that a loan be secured by the Corporation be placed at the disposal of returned men without cost, in order that the returned veterans might build a home within a year and with the usual building clause inserted. It was stated that many of the boys have from $1,000 to $1,500 gratuity coming to them and there is no better way to get rehabilitated than to build a home. "These homes could be built by one contractor and the returned men could assist in the building and thus save approximately $500 on the home."

murder rate just as high as, or higher than, the states in which it have abolished it.

None of this, of course, will have any effect upon those who want murderers to die. They will find no reason for another for clinging to their viewpoint. Because crimes of violence are on the increase, they are frightened (as we all should be); but rather than seeking to prevent the underlying causes of violence, they want society to retaliate with its own kind of institutionalized violence.

This is an emotional reaction, not a rational one; it is illusory, not realistic; it strikes at symptoms, rather than probing the psychosocial origins of murder; and it merely legitimatizes the taking of human life. Like war, capital punishment is a mark of man's inability to master his most primitive strivings.

what similar provision for magazines and a 10-per-cent cut in personal income taxes.

The vote had all the earmarks of a cliffhanger with the government's life resting on the outcome. That is, until the counting began.

The division bells summoning MPs to their seats rang for a full 33 minutes prior to the vote. They stopped only when Health Minister Judy LaMarsh made a breathless entry into the chamber after rushing from a plane which had carried her back from Fredericton.

HASTE WASTED

Her haste was somewhat wasted, however, for 83 Liberals, with surprise support from 12 New Democrats as well as five Social Creditors and two independents, easily carried the day over 32 Conservatives, three Creditistes and three New Democrats.

Ralph Cowan (L—York-Humber), who previously had criticized part of the legislation, was in his seat, but did not vote either for or against the measure.

The surprise of the vote was the action of 12 New Democrats, including Leader T. C. Douglas, in supporting the government.

They had backed the newspaper measure from the outset, but had been highly critical of the magazine proposals, particularly the government's decision to exempt the Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest from the penalties against advertising in foreign-owned publications.

Douglas Fisher (Port Arthur) Andrew Brewin (Toronto Greenwood) and Max Saltzman (Waterloo South) stuck by this position and broke with their NDP colleagues to vote against the over-all bill.

Standings in the 265 - seat Commons: Liberals 129, Conservatives 93, NDP 18, Creditistes 13, Social Credit nine, independent two, vacant one.

WANTED OTHER PARTS

It appeared the 12 New Democrats put aside their objection to the magazine proposals to vote for the parts of the over-all bill—the newspaper and tax cut measures—which they have supported.

If so, they will get an opportunity today to register both points of view when the House gives clause-by-clause study to the bill. This means each item will come up separately and MPs can vote on them one at a time.

As well as outlining the government's view on the CDNPA request for a postponement of the newspaper measure, Mr. Gordon also answered critics of his decision to exempt Time and Reader's Digest from the magazine proposals.

He realized some members on all sides of the House look on this as "a surrender to the power and influence of Mr. Henry Luce," president of Time International. But others felt the two publications have earned the exemption through 20 years of operation in this country.

"I do not believe there is a solution of this problem which will please everybody. However, to do nothing — to defer any action—would be the worst course of all. Accordingly, the government has accepted its responsibility and has placed a definite proposal before the House."

OFFERS SOMETHING

The finance minister wound up by offering something to the critics of Time and Reader's Digest. When a review of postal rates is completed this fall, action will be taken to remove "the discriminatory subsidy" given the two magazines.

Prior to the vote, Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) hammered the government on both the magazine and newspaper proposals.

By exempting Time and Reader's Digest, the government was protecting the very two publications against which Canadian periodicals say they can't compete. As for the newspaper measure, the government should admit "this is not the best way to meet this problem."

"The government says to us: Pass this little bit of legislation and, if we find something better, we'll change it. I say that, if this legislation is bad, it shouldn't be on the statute books."

Mr. Fisher said the legislation is an oddity and shows ministerial inconsistency. Mr. Gordon was a tiger in opposing foreign ownership of newspapers but turned into a mouse when it comes to tackling Time and Reader's Digest.

He also said Judge Fox should not have allowed their testimony without corroboration.

And he said they were accomplices in the acts they testified to, and were "youthful offenders engaged in criminal activities under the Juvenile Act."

"Judge Fox never questioned the credibility of crown witnesses was "completely opposed" and yet Judge Fox raised no question of discrepancies.

IT'S UNLIKELY

He said it was highly unlikely that Horsburgh, servant of the Church and God for 14 years, would suddenly become "an instrument of the devil, as testimony led the court to believe."

"Would he refer to his own church as the 'biggest whorehouse in town'? Or does the language seem more in line with the gutternipe talk of teen-agers of low character who were having sexual relations in the church building?"

Crown Attorney C. M. Powell said Horsburgh claimed he had taken his stepson to a movie on the night a Crown witness, a 19 - year - old youth, claimed Horsburgh made the remark.

He asked why the defence never called the stepson to confirm Horsburgh's claim.

WAS AGENT OF DEVIL

Horsburgh, Mr. Powell said, was indeed "an agent of the devil."

"The only question of credibility was the credibility of the accused," he said.

"The children of Chatham, regardless of their background, must not be put on the level of common prostitutes, and the testimony must be accepted as given."

Children imagine things, he said, but it is not thought that children would imagine the same untruth.

He said Horsburgh "was trying to get these children to do these things because of some quirk in himself—because he got some satisfaction."

Britain take steps to end the minority white rule of Premier Ian Smith and provide the Africans with a vote, even if this means using force.

President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia told reporters Tuesday he has offered Britain facilities for a military base in Zambia if Smith tries to throw off British authority and unilaterally declare Rhodesian independence. Kaunda and other African leaders would want Britain to respond with military force in that event.

Britain is reported ready to accept the Commonwealth view that the Africans in Rhodesia should get the vote through a revision in the constitution but the British government wants to be in a position to move at its own time.

African leaders are demanding Britain agree to a deadline and to declare this in the Commonwealth communique now being drafted.

Some reports suggest a compromise may be worked out that would not tie the British government to a specific deadline though British negotiations with Smith would not allow to drag on indefinitely.

Immigration also is reported to be a sticky point, with Britain hoping to get co-operation from the Afro-Asian group to restrain the flow of their people to the United Kingdom. Some of the Commonwealth leaders already have spoken out against planned British restrictions, saying they would impose counter-measures of their own if Britain discriminates against their people.

eration. But as far as Viet Nam is concerned, it must be hit just as hard as it can. We must hit in North Viet Nam and do all the damage because that way we are more apt to get satisfactory conditions for peace talks."

He also said the chief strength of the communists—as an army—was their hordes of manpower and their willingness to kill them off by the thousands.

Night Classes Success Says Supervisor

PICTON (Staff) — The success of the past year's night school classes has prompted a number of recommendations by D. A. Baker, supervisor of the night school at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

In his annual report to the board, Mr. Baker included a number of recommendations for next fall. These are: "That the planning for the 1965-66 night school program be undertaken in sufficient time to provide advertising at least one month before registration. "I believe this should result in increased registration", said Mr. Baker. "Especially in the credit courses, where some time is required to plan a course of action."

"That the night school program be extended to a basic 20 weeks with provision for extensions where advisable, for example Grade 13 mathematics.

"That consideration be given to implementing the advanced technical evening classes on a limited scale. This will enable us to offer technical courses leading to technician rating and certification rating and certification which appear to be in demand by local industries.

"That consideration be given to a night school "graduation" night which could serve to publicize the night school program. This could take the form of an open house, display of student work and presentation of certificates.

"That more of the school exits be unlocked during night classes. With upwards of 200 people scattered throughout the building on any given night, I believe that more than one exit should be available in case of emergency.

WOULD INCREASE FEES

"That consideration be given to increasing the registration fee to $10 with a $5 rebate to those who attend 75 percent of the sessions.

"This could serve to eliminate the fair-hearted from our drop-out list.

"That consideration be given to increasing the hourly rate for night instructors. Although it might appear that the night school instructor merely uses the lessons he has used for day classes, such is not the case. New lessons must be prepared because of the different approach that is usually necessary for the adult student. Several instructors have found the night school lessons much more difficult to prepare. They have also found, in many cases, that they are working for less per (per hour) than they are for day classes.

"That an assistant principal of night school be appointed in order to accomplish the following: (A) assist in planning the night school program for next year; (B) provide administrative experience in operating an adult training program; (C) relieve the writer from some of the night school supervision duties in order to provide more time for the school expansion program."

The high school board authorized Mr. Baker to proceed with planning next year's night school program, but wanted more time to study the above recommendations contained in his report.

Country Dogs Did Well at Kingston Show

In the conformation show, Saturday, Mrs. John Sorensen's Scotch Collie, "Sovereign's Sweet Talk" came first in the Canadian bred class and in the senior puppy class for collies.

Dr. L. Dockrill's German Shepherds made a good showing.

In the obedience show, Tom Robinson's Weimeraner, "Duke Dombarton Holtz" came third. Pat Beaumont's German shepherd "Pola Von Altenburg" came fourth.

At Sunday's show, Mrs. Sorensen's collie again came first in the Canadian bred and senior puppy classes.

Pat Beaumont did not show on Sunday but Roger Sesebourg's German shepherd, "Quinte's Nero Von Altenburg", came first in the obedience trial, winning a lovely silver dish.

Tom Robinson's Weimeraner came second.

In training in the present local class to graduate July 6 is the German shepherd "Quinte Tasha Von Altenburg", owned by Robert Jardine, which will attend the Hamilton show on June 26-27.

Centre Manager Selected by Commission

PICTON (Staff) — At a special meeting Wednesday night, the County Centre Commission engaged Jim Burtt of Lucan as Centre manager, Mr. Burtt, married and with three children, will assume his duties on September 1st. He is currently manager of the arena at Lucan, near London, Ontario.

Mr. Burtt is also recreation director in that town and has completed courses in business administration, recreation and promotion. He holds refrigeration operators papers, an important requirement for any arena.

Three candidates, who had been selected for interviews for the position, were interviewed by 14 members of the Commission who, representing various organizations, operate the Centre eight months of the year. They were favorably impressed with Mr. Burtt's qualifications and methods used in the operation of the Lucan arena.

Mr. Burtt's family were formerly connected with Prince Edward County and he is known to Picton and Wellington hockey teams who have played at Lucan.

FIRST WERE FEW

The world's first telephone directory was published for Washington, D.C., in 1878, and included 188 subscribers.

The Rural Scene

PICTON (Staff) — The 1966 Quart Strawberry Club is a group of strawberry growers who have produced an average of at least 6,000 quarts of strawberries per acre on four or more acres in one season. Since 1958, 42 growers have become members in this Club.

Only a few growers in this area have four acres of bearing strawberries in any one year, but it is interesting to see what sort of results can be obtained with good varieties, good cultural practices and good weed, insect and disease control practices. How do you compare to this average on your smaller acreage?

The Strawberry Council of Ontario Club and the administrator of the Club expect many new applications this year from across the Province. Competition for the honor of having the highest average yield on four acres for all of Ontario is expected to be keen.

If there are those who would like to take part in this competition and have four or more acres of strawberries they can receive an application form from the nearest Ontario Department of Agriculture Office.

JUNIOR ACTIVITY

June activity has been resumed with three local clubs having meetings on Monday and Tuesday night. The Milford and District 4-H Calf Club will meet on Thursday night, June 24th, at the farm of Clifford Walker, No. 1, Picton. On Monday, June 20th Prince Edward 4-H Corn and Barley Clubs will meet in the Centre Church Hall at The Picton Kiwanis 4- H'Potato Club will Kiwanis 4-H Potato Club will meet in Fred Hiscott's Island Road. All meetings will start at 8 p.m. Visitors are welcome.

Workmen Busy On Caissons For Skyway

Workmen were placing the sixth of a series of 11 underwater caissons at the weekend. The caissons are located 150 feet apart and allowance has been made for a ship channel 200 feet wide. Depth of the caissons ranges from about 15 to 47 feet, Mr. Mackie stated.

Almost 100 steelworkers, carpenters and laborers are engaged at the project which links Green Point to Desoronto across the half-mile stretch of the Bay of Quinte.

Erection of the pier caps is expected to be completed by early October, the supervisor reported.

Workers on the Desoronto side have completed one upright support and forms are being prepared for pouring concrete into the caissons. Plans for the skyway call for a 90-foot clearance for the busy boat lane.

and Barbara Dezzee, No. 8, Picton. There will be free ice cream, chocolate milk and cheese for everyone in attendance.

Ice cream will be donated by Quinte Milk Products, Wellington and cheese will be donated by the following Cheese Factories in Prince Edward County: Ben Gill, Mountain View, Black Creek Waller's Bay and Ebenbrook. Milk has been donated by Picton Whole Milk Producers and the processing and cartoning will be done by Prince Edward Dairies.

A total of 117 boars were approved by premium under the Boar Premium Policy during the month of May. This number included 91 Yorkshire, 18 Lacombe and 8 Landrace. If food is taking too big a bite out of your budget...it's time you shopped Food City.

There's one fact you should understand about the retail food business, all food stores are not alike. Store A has a higher price line than store C, which is higher than store B. So, it's important for you (especially when the overall market prices on fresh meats and produce are higher than usual) that you shop a supermarket that gives the best quality as well as the lowest prices in town. That's us. We do both, six days a week. No waiting for a handful of week-end specials. Over 6000 items discounted daily. A visit to Food City this week could save you up to 15% on your total food bill. That's food for thought.

Bringing Up Baby
BIRTH CORRECTED BY MRS. IDA GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

At one time or another, almost every toddler comes down with a minor misery that requires skin-deep treatment. Big problem is how to keep a run-about happy in bed (when active amusements are denied him). Aside from favourite stay-put toys, TV or mother-stories, have you given thought to these chemo-zippers?
• An old purse, filled with hankies, tissues, for the important business of putting in and taking out things.
• Crayons and a brown paper bag to pursue "artistic tendencies."
• A jolly game of "name and patter" at sponge-bath time, followed by a surprise snack of a Gerber Fruit Juice.

Convalescent mealtimes take on special magic when you offer eye-appealing trays. (Gerber Junior Foods are famous for appetizing colours). Appetites are encouraged mightily, too, when you serve the foods your baby is fondest of.
For a luscious lunch, how about one of the tasty Gerber Junior Dinners? They're happy combinations of vegetables, meat and cereal, deftly blended for flavour interest: subtly seasoned to bring out the best in the basic ingredients. And, they're processed to protect food values.

Have you treated your baby to Gerber Junior Vegetables and Chicken or Junior Vegetables and Beef, lately? These two delightful combination dishes are especially popular with the high-chair set.
Important news from Gerber. "Improvement of processing methods to protect food values has always been a basic part of Gerber's continuing research program. Take Gerber Egg Yolks. Our technicians developed an exclusive method for processing egg yolks which reduces the cooking time. The happy result? Better preservation of food values than is possible with other methods—plus uniform consistency, improved colour and flavour." Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

U.C.W. Meetings

SCOTT'S U.C.W.

SCOTT'S SIDNEY — Mrs. Carman Frost was hostess to Scott's United Church Women Thursday evening with 13 members present.

The president, Mrs. Cameron Sine used as her theme "personal service."

Mrs. Earl Dafoe read the scripture. Mrs. George Pollard read a meditation which was followed by a lively discussion.

The minister, Mr. Cooper, presented a questionaire on "The United Church Women" which brought many important points.

As this was the last year mark each convener gave a short report telling what her specific duties were, naming her presbyterial officer and telling what had been accomplished so far this year.

Mrs. Maurice Dafoe favored with a beautiful solo.

As Mr. and Mrs. Cooper are leaving the end of June the ladies presented Mrs. Cooper with a lovely cup and saucer to show their appreciation of the help given during the past four years.

The hostess served a delicious lunch after the close of the meeting.

Susanna's Family Fare

FRUSTRATED NURSES AT HEART

Dear Susanna: For years after I was married I never had a really proper supply of first aid items. I used the same tube of salve for everything, and strips of old sheeting sufficed for bandages.

Looking back, I realize that I simply didn't have that much money to spend all at once (a few dollars means so much then.) It wasn't 'til just recently that I have experienced the joy of really playing nurse and doctoring up someone's minor wounds with all those wonderful sterile items in a good first aid kit.

Because of this experience, I hit on what has proved to be a tremendously popular idea. I have several pretty cookie tins with hinged lids, and now, whenever I am invited to a shower I fit one of these with all the basic first aid supplies. The amount spent can vary considerably, depending on how close a friend the bride-to-be is.

Your "cause for gause" is most convincing. — SUSANNA

MARSHMALLOW TOPPING

Dear Susanna: I was making a few cupcakes for my grandchildren's lunch when they were visiting me, but when I went to prepare the icing I didn't have a sprinkle of sugar left.

What I did have in my cupboard was part of a bag of marshmallows, so minutes before I removed the cakes from the oven I topped each one with a marshmallow and allowed it to melt. They were all delighted with grannie's "new" dessert. — Mrs. B. Bennett

SAYS PROFITS POOR

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian banks return poor profits, Stewart B. Clifford, executive vice-president and general manager of the United States-owned Mercantile Bank of Canada, said Tuesday. Mr. Clifford, addressing a service club, said profits last year for all Canadian banks amounted to $80,000,000 on assets of $24,000,000,000. This was equivalent to about .38 per cent —"a poor return compared with our southern neighbors."

Ann Landers

Fears of Idleness Haunt the Retiring

DEAR ANN LANDERS — People are basically self-centred, aren't they? They never think about a problem until it is their own.

I am about to retire. At least a dozen people have asked, "What are you going to do?"

I've given all sorts of answers but they aren't satisfied. They keep boring in — pressuring for something more. Why? What difference does it make to them? Recently when a neighbor asked me this question I tried to be evasive. She kept repeating "But what are you really going to do?"

ANN LANDERS

Most people who are retiring don't know what they are going to do and it worries them. The fear that they might not be able to keep busy is terrifying.

So, if any of your readers know someone who is slated for retirement, please give them a break. Instead of asking, "What are you going to do?" give him a good wish. Say, "You've worked hard for many years and you deserve to be free of the daily pressures." Or, you could simply say, "We'll miss you. Good luck." — RETIRING.

* * *

DEAR RETIRING — Folks who have never given this a thought, will appreciate your well-worded tip-off. Thank you for opening some eyes — including mine.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I hope my letter will shake up some women who are playing dumb because it is easier than living up to their responsibilities as mothers.

I support myself by running a day nursery in my home. At the moment I have six children whose mothers work. It is understood that the children are supposed to eat breakfast before they come to my place.

One mother who leaves two of her youngsters with me never feeds them in the morning. The minute they get to my house they beg for something to eat. When I serve my own two children hot cereal it's difficult to let the other children sit by and not give them some cereal too.

I've asked these youngsters why they don't eat breakfast at home and they tell me, "Mommy didn't have time."

What should I do? — IMPOSED ON.

* * *

DEAR IMPOSED ON — So you have to fix two extra bowls of cereal. Big deal.

Since you consider it such a hardship, I suggest that you raise your rates 25 cents a day to include a bowl of hot cereal and a glass of milk in the morning.

Pastor Says Should Raise Child at Home

EDMONTON (CP) — Families should regain full responsibility for raising their children and not farm them out to various institutions for their upbringing, says an Edmonton clergyman.

Rev. Ian Macmillan of St. Paul's United Church, a father of three, was addressing a symposium sponsored by the Alberta Home Economics Association.

"At one time the family was responsible for raising its own children," he said. "I think it is time the adolescents were brought back into their own homes and not farmed off for education, religion and properties for marriage to the church, the school, various social agencies or their own peer group."

Boy Jilted by Girl Friend Because of Hand Injury

DEAR DORIS — What is wrong with the young people of today? About six months ago I had four fingers of my left hand taken off. I didn't think people would laugh and joke about such things.

Even the girl I was going steady with broke the news that she couldn't see me any more. Her dad said this and her dad said that. I've seen her on dates with other boys. I know this is not an easy thing for a girl to go through, to date a boy with only six fingers; and it is not a very nice thing to look at, but we were only blessed with ten fingers and that is all.

BOBBY CLARK

I have gone through a lot myself with very little help. Why couldn't she come up to me and say "I don't want to date you any more on account of your hand"? — BOBBY.

* * *

DEAR BOBBY — Why couldn't she? Because she was ashamed of such a reason. If you knew she laughed and joked about your accident it simply must have been from embarrassment.

Take heart. Some of our most talented people have had a physical handicap. Did it beat them? No! And it needn't beat you.

When you meet the right girl she'll love you for more important reasons than the number of fingers you have.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Tell Bowlegged Bessie to see a specialist.

You see, I have legs that could be straighter so I went to one and I wish I'd gone to him sooner. I can be helped through exercise since mine are not bad. But to have an operation is a major one so she should go to the best in town. And also get all the information she can about it before she agrees. — SYMPATHIZER.

* * *

DEAR SYMPATHIZER — I've written her. Hurrah for the bends and stretches!

FAVORITE STRAWBERRY JAMS

Is there some way I can persuade you to put these recipes for these all-time favorite strawberry jams in your permanent file — so permanent your daughters can find them when you and I are gone? Clip them now, please.

STRAWBERRY JAM:

2 qts. strawberries (approximately), 7 cups white sugar, 1 box (1¾ oz.) powdered pectin (certo crystals).

In large preserving kettle mash the washed and hulled berries. You should have 4½ cups when mashed. Mix in pectin and bring to boil, stirring. Immediately add sugar, stirring constantly, and boil rapidly 1 minute. Remove from heat, skim off foam and stir and skim for 5 minutes to suspend fruit in jam uniformly. Pour into sterile glasses. Cover with hot paraffin, adding second coat when first is set.

WEDNESDAY
(Gemini)

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Hawaiian Pork (see Monday); Fluffy Boiled Rice (see Monday); Baby Limas; Cucumber and Radish Angle on Leaf Lettuce; Black Bottom Pie (see Tuesday); Tea.

FROZEN STRAWBERRY JAM (uncooked — stored in freezer):

2 cups mashed strawberries, 4 cups powdered fruit (berry) sugar, 1 box (1¾ oz.) powdered pectin, (certo crystals), ¾ cup water.

Wash berries in a sieve, hull them and drain well. In a flat-bottomed pan mash them, and measure 2 cups. Add the berry sugar, stir very well and let stand 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Meanwhile mix together the water and powdered pectin and cook stirring until they come to a hard boil and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Immediately add to fruit-sugar mixture and stir for 3 minutes. Pour into clean dry 8-oz. jars to within ¼" from top (to allow for possible expansion when frozen). Cover with lids at once. Let stand at room temperature 24 hours. Store in freezer. If this jam is to be used within 3 or 3 weeks it will keep in storage part of refrigerator — not frozen.

STRAWBERRY PINEAPPLE AND RHUBARB JAM:

1 cup chopped raw pineapple, 1 cup sliced rhubarb, ¼", 1 cup crushed raw strawberries, 4 cups sugar, 1 box (1¾ oz.) powdered pectin (certo crystals).

Combine fruits in large saucepan. Add powdered fruit pectin and mix well. Place over high heat and bring to a full boil, stirring constantly. At once stir in sugar. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes, to cool slightly to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into about 7 medium sterilized glasses. Cover jam at once with ⅛" hot paraffin, adding second coat when first is set.

Manor W. A. Ends Activities

A particularly large number of members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Hastings Manor met in the library on Monday afternoon for their final meeting of the season.

The president, Mrs. A. Danielt, welcomed everyone and gave some thoughts on life entitled "Boomerang" and "Ingredients" from the book "The Quiet Hour" written by Patience Strong.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. M. Hobbs, followed by committee reports. Mrs. J. Kilburn, the treasurer, gave the financial report which was very gratifying. Mrs. A. Gneadinger reported on the visiting at the Manor. During the past month it was recorded there had been 108 visits in all made to the Manor by various churches of the city. Mrs. A. Kingston reported seven flowers in tiny bowls were sent to residents while in the Belleville Hospital during the past month.

It was unanimously voted upon to add another sum of money to the "Chapel Fund" this month.

The birthday cards for the months of July, August and September will be sent out to the residents by the Quinte Women's Institute. This gesture is much appreciated.

Mrs. H. Ketcheson was nominated to convene the yearly fall tea and bazaar at the Manor which will be held in October.

With the business concluded the ladies met with the residents in the dining room for the birthday party. Since there will be no meetings or birthday parties held during the summer months, the months of June and July were combined with 25 celebrating birthdays.

After the ladies had formed a large circle around their guests to sing the birthday song, the oldest guests present, Mrs. Winnifred Davidson and Miss Mary Cole, cut the beautiful large birthday cake. Both these ladies have reached the grand age of 98.

Mrs. A. Mitchell and Mrs. D. Atkins poured tea and a social time was spent with the residents with all enjoying a delicious lunch.

Mr. Robert Odendahl thanked the ladies, on behalf of the residents, for the lovely party and also their many other acts of kindness over the years.

Nurse Saw Strange Sights In Duty in Viet Nam

By HAL BOYLE

NHA TRANG, Viet Nam (AP) — She was close to tears.

It was the last day on duty for Lieut. Julie Klebaum, 24, of Wapato, Wash., one of seven American nurses at the 8th U.S. Army field hospital.

She was going home after a year here, a year in which some 5,200 ailing, injured and wounded men went through the hospital.

Julie is five-feet-three and has dark hair, blue-green eyes and a nice figure. She would be called pretty in any part of the world, but it is her friendly, outgoing personality that has made her a favorite here.

As one of seven American women among several thousand men, Lieut. Klebaum naturally received a flattering amount of male attention.

"You become a combined mother, wife, sister and girl friend," she said, laughing. "They all want you to help them shop for things for their women back home.

"It's an honor in a way. It's a very unusual position, one I've never been in before. The men are interested in you first because you are around, second because you speak English and only third because you're an American girl. But they're great. They'll do anything for you."

BE FEMININE

"But we all do here," said Julie. "The patients want us to. They also want us to wear lipstick and nail polish. They want us to look very feminine. To them we're the idealization of American women because they don't see any others."

The nurses work a 12-hour day or longer six days a week.

"I've helped nurse everybody from a Vietnamese baby with tuberculosis to GIs with worms, malaria, dengue fever, anoncidicitis and gunshot wounds."

Nurses in training are taught not to become emotionally involved in the condition of their patients—to give them empathy but no sympathy.

"That's impossible here," said Julie flatly. "These men are under terrible strain. They need someone they can talk to who will give them human understanding."

The case that most upset her was a pilot about 30 whose abdomen was riddled by ground fire.

"He stayed at the controls for half an hour until he got his plane back," she said. "He died so well. He knew he was dying but he wouldn't give up.

"He wrote a letter to his wife. He joked. He shouldn't have lived even to land that plane. He talked about being operated on the next morning, but there was nothing that could be done for him.

"He lived 20 hours. He died just before daybreak and was alert until 15 minutes before he end. He never got to see the sun come up. I never saw a braver man."

U.C.W. Meetings

SALEM U.C.W.

MINTO — The June meeting of Salem U.C.W. was held Tuesday evening in the hall with Mrs. Albert Twiddy as hostess. The president opened the meeting and extended a welcome to all. A psalm was read in unison and Mrs. Thompson led in prayer. Mrs. Stewart Brady reported for the visiting committee. Correspondence was read and business discussed.

Mrs. Albert Twiddy presided over the program. The theme was "Courage." She read a short Scripture passage and offered prayer. A hymn was sung and Mrs. H. Holden read the selected Scripture lesson. Mrs. Twiddy gave a meditation. Ruth Hagerman and Cathy Wickens played a piano duet. Readings were given by Mrs. E. Broadworth and Mrs. Arnold Ray. Seven girls sang, with Mrs. Donnan as accompanist on her accordion. Mrs. Donnan also gave a piano selection.

Mrs. Twiddy introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. John Wallace, who gave a timely address on "Missions."

Mrs. Tom Clements thanked the speaker and all who took part in the program. The hostess and her assistants served lunch.

Taped Shrieks Now for Sale

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuters) — Everything comes in plastic containers nowadays—even screams.

In Brisbane, canned screams have gone on sale as self-protection for women against possible attackers.

The scream comes in a handy plastic case four inches long. It weighs 3¼ ounces and looks like a flashlight.

If a woman holding it clenches her fist, an automatic reaction when she is frightened, the case gives off a sound spine-chilling enough to scare away the most determined of attackers.

It costs $4.

Nebraska's Wild Bill Tucker Ancestor of Buffalo Bill

By MEL SUFRIN

TORONTO (CP) — John William Tucker is a tall, broad-shouldered Nebraskan with flowing white hair, a sporty beard and sideburns and a strong preference for flamboyant cowboy clothes.

He's 73 and bills himself as Wild Bill Tucker, a carryover from his days on the vaudeville circuit. It's no accident that he looks and dresses like the late Buffalo Bill Cody, famed American Indian fighter and showman.

For in addition to being distantly related to Buffalo Bill, Tucker is an expert on the Cody family tree, including branches that reach into dozens of Canadian communities, especially in Ontario, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

In Toronto for a convention of the Guild of Variety Artists, Wild Bill reeled off a bewildering string of facts about the Codys, mentioning that Buffalo Bill's father Isaac was born in Ontario's Peel County more than a century ago.

And he produced a well-thumbed book on the Cody genealogy that reflected the results of a migration from New England which has spread the family to all corners of the continent.

CANON WAS COUSIN

An examination of the book showed, for example, that the late Canon Henry John Cody, an Anglican clergyman who served as Ontario's minister of education and president of the University of Toronto, was a fourth cousin once removed of Buffalo Bill. Both were direct descendants of Philip Cody (originally known as Legody), who came from France and settled in Massachusetts in 1686.

Oxford County in Western Ontario seems to have been a favorite area for Cody settlement, although just about every community in the southern part of the province is represented. And such Prairie cities and towns as Red Deer, Camrose and Calgary in Alberta and Prince Albert, Moose Jaw, Regina, Forget, Stoughton and Arcola in Saskatchewan are prominent.

Isaac Cody, born in the farm country just west of Toronto in 1811, moved to Cleveland with his family at 17. Buffalo Bill was born in Iowa in 1846 to Isaac's third wife.

A staunch opponent of slavery, Isaac was stabbed while making an anti-slavery speech in Weston, Kan., in 1855, and died two years later, more or less as a result of the attack. Buffalo Bill was 11 at the time and the responsibility of being the eldest of six children gave him an early maturity that helped prepare him for his later role as a scout for the military.

SOUND EFFECTS MAN

While able to recite the Cody family tree in great detail, Wild Bill Tucker is no slouch when it comes to tracing his own colorful life.

He'll remind you he was Hollywood's original sound effects man and isn't shy about entertaining listeners with surprisingly realistic imitations of wild elephants, jungle frogs, tigers and hurricanes.

He likes to recall the time when he was headlined at Radio City Music Hall in New York and doesn't mind admitting he's the "world's best turkey caller."

Wild Bill lives in Hollywood now—he's an official greeter—but keeps his "seven singing voices" in shape and is ready at the drop of a ten-gallon hat to launch into one of his severa. hundred "true stories about the West."

APPROVES LICENCES

TORONTO (CP)—The liquor licence board of Ontario announced Tuesday its approval of licence applications from the following Ontario hotels and taverns: Rod 'N' Gun Hotel, Port Rowan (lounge licence); J. and E. Tavern, Baldwin Township in Northern Ontario; King Edward Hotel, Guelph; Holiday Inn Hotel, Kitchener (dining lounge, public house for men only and public house for women only or women escorted by men.)

RELATED TO BUFFALO BILL — At 73 John William Tucker still dresses in a cowboy outfit. But it's all part of his background as a Hollywood character and his ancestoral links with the late Buffalo Bill Cody who, he says, has descendants reaching into dozens of Canadian communities, especially in Ontario, Saskatchewan and Alberta. OKAY CNE TRANSFER

TORONTO (CP)—The executive of Metropolitan Toronto Tuesday approved transfer of ownership of the Canadian National Exhibition from the city of Toronto to Metro. Members of board of control said the move was aimed at giving the exhibition a broader financial base for needed capital expansion. The move now needs the approval of both Metro and city councils.

Mall Doll Said Okay By Police

OTTAWA (CP) — A sultry-eyed brunette clad only in a golden bracelet and a scarf of green satin isn't, in the opinion of at least one visitor to Ottawa, quite befitting the dignity of the nation's capital.

Especially when she's on open display in the city's main downtown tourist and shopping attraction, the Sparks Street Mall.

But to Ottawa's municipal police, the mall doll is okay.

An oil painting of the bare-bosomed lady, hanging in the outdoor gallery on the mall, has been attracting a variety of reactions from passersby. Some stand and stare. Some glance and look guiltily away. Some snicker. Some scowl.

At least one scowler was a teacher who brought a class of 15 high school students here from out of town to see the nation's capital. After they strolled down the mall the other day, the teacher complained to police about indecency.

"If this is what Ottawa is like," she said, "we're never coming back."

Police dutifully went around to have a look at the untitled canvas, which bears merely the name of the artist, Nielsen, without further identification. There is no price tag on the nude as there is on other paintings hung in the mall gallery.

Bare bosomed though she is, police decided the pose and the green satin discreetly masks all that needs to be discreetly masked.

The mall doll remains on view.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, June 22, 1965

The Commons continued study of the bill to establish an Indian claims commission, voting down a New Democrat amendment 133 to 13.

The amendment called for scrapping of the government bill and replacement by one with greater protection for treaty rights.

Citizenship Minister Nicholson said the 10-year life of the proposed commission should be adequate to hear all claims.

Gerald W. Baldwin (PC—River) said there should be a longer limit than three years for bands to file claims.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) said there should be no set lifetime for the commission.

The Commons voted 102 to 38 to give second reading to the government's tax measures to protect Canadian newspapers and magazines.

The budget resolution also included the proposal for a 1% per-cent cut in personal income taxes.

Blank Cheque Issued For Baby Bonus

OTTAWA (CP)—An Ottawa mother of four received a pleasant surprise from the government this week—a post-fill-in-the-amount family allowance cheque.

However, Mrs. William Slade isn't going to be allowed to cash the cheque which was mailed to her with the space for the amount left empty.

Her husband wants to frame it or "negotiate" with the government about returning it. But a treasury official says Mrs. Slade will be asked to return it without delay.

The official said odds against a blank being mailed are about 5,000,000 to one.

Southam News Reporter Is Questioned

OTTAWA (CP) — An RCMP preliminary investigation into a purported leak of the Dorion report started Tuesday with questioning of George Brimmell, a Southam News Services reporter.

Mr. Brimmell wrote the Friday story which listed eight-points he said will form the basis of Mr. Justice Frederic Dorion's report on the judicial inquiry into charges of attempted bribery and influence-peddling by federal ministerial aides.

Acting Prime Minister Martin told the Commons Monday the RCMP has been ordered to conduct the investigation, centred on "the security of the arrangements" made for publication of the report.

Mr. Brimmell said Tuesday night he had been questioned in his office by Insp. Jean-Paul Drapeau, but would not give details of the meeting.

EXPECTED NEXT WEEK

The Dorion report is not expected to be receive by the government until next week. Mr. Martin said in the Commons Tuesday that everything was being done to issue the report as quickly as possible but it wouldn't be available this week.

When he announced the investigation Monday, Mr. Martin said further action would depend on whether receipt of the report confirms that a leak occurred.

The report, said to run some 6,000 words, will contain Mr. Justice Dorion's findings collected during almost four months of public hearings in Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec City. The report has been written in French and translation into English is delaying its presentation to the government and tabling in the Commons.

Thousands Flee Ahead of Flood Of Arkansas

The water here rose rapidly, but an earlier forecast of a 17-foot crest was revised downward to between 13 and 14 feet. Authorities expressed cautious optimism that the city would escape extensive flooding.

River spotters also reported the flow had diminished to about one mile an hour, indicating a lessening of pressure as the flood spread over the broad plains in the Great Bend area.

As a precaution, about 2,500 persons were asked to leave their homes in lowlands west and south of Great Bend.

Back of the flood in Kansas there have been three deaths, according to the Red Cross, and an estimated $22,000,000 damage, an estimate made by Governor William H. Avery.

Civic Holiday Will Fall On Aug. 2nd

It's still more than two months away, but Monday, August 2nd, will be a public holiday in Belleville as in most other urban centres around the country.

This week, prior to adjournment for the summer season, city council approved a recommendation calling for the first Monday in August to be observed as Civic Holiday.

Communist Resurgence In Philippines Is Causing Concern in United States

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Sign of a Communist resurgence in the Philippines, coupled with shrill, anti-American nationalist sentiment, is a peripheral United States concern in Southeast Asia.

The Philippines, made up of 7,100 islands and with 30,000,000 people of Malay and Chinese stock, is a prime illustration of President Johnson's meaning when he says the U.S. determination to stand fast in South Viet Nam is tied to reassuring Asian allies.

There is evidence that all he elements exist in the Philippines to duplicate in time what has happened in Viet Nam. This includes hard - core Communists, nationalists, glaring poverty, feudal land distribution and uncertain government.

It almost happened 15 years ago.

HUKS BUSY AGAIN

The Huks — the guerrilla forces of the so-called People's Liberation Front — are again using murder and terrorism. They are strongest in the fertile central plains of Luzon, the main island.

The Huks were beaten back from their high point in 1950-1952 by a program combining military effort and land reform.

There is evidence of corruption in government and elsewhere in the Philippines, although President Diosdado Macapagal denies the existence of any large-scale graft.

Land - reform programs are stalled for lack of funds. This feeds the Communist appeal of agrarian reform which has been used so effectively in South Viet Nam by the Viet Cong insurgents.

Various factors are said to fan the rising nationalism at the expense of the U.S., which ended nearly 400 years of Spanish rule in 1898 and gave the Philippines independence 39 years ago.

One major irritant is described as the equal opportunity given to Americans in business.

The U.S. also retains jurisdiction over Americans who commit offences against Filipinos. American military bases retained on the islands include Clark Air Field which is vital to the American defence system.

REDS ALL AROUND

Finally, there are signs that the rising strength of China's 700,000,000 people off one shore and the muscle-flexing of Communist-leaning Indonesia's 100,000,000, population off another have stimulated greater consciousness of Asia and Asians despite an overgloss of American-style civilization in the cities.

President Macapagal, who visited President Johnson last October and faces elections his November, blames Communists for many anti-American demonstrations. He says their major objective now is political and concessions on infiltration of newspapers and the more than 150 radio stations.

The defeat of the Communist Huks a decade ago and the launching if the only effective land reform program the Philippines has known were achieved by dynamic Ramon Magsaysay. His efforts to achieve a grass-roots reform of basic ills barely survived his death by air crash in 1957.

Bank Notes Discussed In House

OTTAWA (CP)—A Liberal member of Parliament suggested Tuesday night that Sir Wilfrid Laurier replace the Queen on Canada's $2 bank notes.

Vincent Dreush (L—Argenteuil-Deux-Montagnes) said he isn't anti-royalist but he believes more advantage of the publicity value of the bills should be taken. This bad been done with postage stamps, he told the Commons.

His salty came as Liberal MPs talked out without a vote a private bill introduced by Maurice Cote (SC — Chicoutimi) that matches amendments to the Bank of Canada Act already introduced by Finance Minister Gordon.

David Hahn (L — Toronto Broadview) said if any changes were to be made, a thorough job should be done.

Color schemes could be changed, with luminous bank notes ending groping in the dark. Canadian bills could be more arty, like an "infinitely superior" 10-franc note he exhibited.

Bills should have little blank spaces on the back as a place for telephone callers to jot notes.

And what about more realistic denominations, like $1.98, $3.98 or $9.99? Nothing costs $1, $2, $5 or $10 any more.

"Let's hold up this bill until we can do a complete and thorough job."

The amendment called for scrapping of the government bill and replacement by one with greater protection for treaty rights.

Citizenship Minister Nicholson said the 10-year life of the proposed commission should be adequate to hear all claims.

Gerald W. Baldwin (PC—River) said there should be a longer limit than three years for bands to file claims.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) said there should be no set lifetime for the commission.

The Commons voted 102 to 38 to give second reading to the government's tax measures to protect Canadian newspapers and magazines.

The budget resolution also included the proposal for a 1% per-cent cut in personal income taxes.

PLANS WAGE LIMIT

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister MacEachen said in the Commons Tuesday night he will introduce legislation at this session requiring companies holding federal contracts to pay their employees a minimum wage of $1.25 an hour.

China Will Face Problems If Vietnamese War Stepped Up

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Johnson administration officials consider it important that China realize it is faced with some serious questions in the months ahead if Peking should step up the pressure in the Vietnamese war.

Authorities speaking against the backdrop of the latest U.S. bombing raids within 80 miles of the Chinese frontier said it already has been made clear that North Viet Nam cannot expect to have a sanctuary in its territory while Hanoi is feeding the war in South Viet Nam.

This note of warning also is being applied to Peking by U.S. officials who fear that U.S. restraint may have been misinterpreted by China's rulers.

A feeling of strong resentment has run through administrative circles as the result of the harsh tone of Peking's rejection of the British Commonwealth effort to seek a peaceful settlement of the Viet Nam struggle.

Prime Minister Wilson of Britain was called a "nitwit" in the UN official Chinese rejection of a Commonwealth peace mission's call.

In Washington this was looked upon as extremely harsh language that demonstrated clearly there is no interest in any peaceful settlement of the Viet Nam war except on Communist terms.

In this connection, official sources said they anticipate a rough summer in which the U.S. will neither pull out nor be driven out of South Viet Nam.

This is much the same estimate that President Johnson, State Secretary Rusk, U.S. Ambassador Maxwell Taylor and Defence Secretary McNamara have been emphasizing.

Authorities said it will be up to the Communist side to decide what happens next. President Johnson was represented as ready and willing to do whatever is necessary to support the South Vietnamese government.

U.S. actions will be measured by the actions of the other side, authorities said.

CHESS MASTER PLANS TRIP — Frank Anderson, 37, of Montreal, international chess expert and hobbyist par excellence, plans a three-year round-the-world honeymoon with wife Sylvia. Despite a crippling childhood ailment which left him physically handicapped, Anderson's motto is "keep moving so no rust will accumulate." He has become an expert in computers, chess, gliding, professional magic and handwriting analysis. (CP Photo)

No Rust Accumulates On Moving Adventurer Who Overcame Handicap

By TIM PETERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Somerset Maugham once wrote: "Every human being is an adventure to me."

"The same goes for me," says Frank Anderson.

Anderson overcame a crippling childhood ailment which left him with a severe physical handicap to immerse himself in a variety of fascinating hobbies including the sport of gliding.

Despite his small stature and the fact that he used crutches until two years ago, when he underwent a series of operations, he has led an intensely active life, following the principle, "Keep moving so no rust will accumulate."

This philosophy has enabled Anderson, a specialist in all types of electronic computers, to become a self-taught expert in chess, gliding, professional magic and handwriting analysis.

Is he wearying of adventure after years of intense intellectual and physical activity? No.

"I've just discovered a new career," he says. "Marriage."

BECAME CHESS EXPERT

A native of Edmonton, Frank Anderson moved to Toronto where he spent almost 11 of his first 21 years in bed battling acute rheumatoid arthritis.

During these years he learned to play chess, long his first love, and progressed from regional and provincial championships to share in 1953 of the Canadian closed title which he won outright two years later.

He has competed for Canada in two chess Olympics, the most recent at Tel Aviv, Israel, last October when Canada placed 12th among 50 countries, its highest standing ever.

Anderson, who now lives in Montreal, is rated among the world's better players and holds the coveted title of international master.

"Chess has affected my whole life and taught me the virtues of patience, perseverance, logical reasoning and modesty in victory."

Always seeking a new challenge, Anderson has moved on from the championship matches and exhibitions in which he plays up to 40 games simultaneously against 40 opponents, to adapting chess to computers.

With a Toronto partner, one of four such teams in the world, he is trying to discover how a computer may be programmed to play chess.

COMPUTER CAN'T COPE

The formula, which could revolutionize the chess world and perhaps divide the world championships into classes—man and machine—has eluded man as yet.

"The fastest computer envisaged—and some are capable of billions of operations a second—could not begin to compile all the possible moves in chess if it worked for 24 hours each day for billion of years," he says.

"But in the future almost anything is possible."

Anderson took up gliding a year ago when a friend described it to him as "a three-dimensional game of chess."

He won his glider pilot's licence in one summer, an exploit at least among gliding devotees.

The glider, a light, motorless plane of exceptionally long wingspan, usually is launched by catapult or tow plane.

A pilot towed to 2,000 feet may remain aloft for a considerable length of time by making use of the lift provided by columns of rising air. In favorable weather conditions, flights of 200 miles are possible.

Anderson says gliding—known to enthusiasts as soaring—is 95 per cent brain work and five per cent physical activity.

"A glider pilot must be able to think fast and accurately, possess a knowledge of meteorology and the air and combine a sense of daring and caution."

RELATED TO CHESS

His other hobbies revolve around chess.

Magic and chess are related in that the psychology a magician applies to his audience must also be applied between expert chess players, he says.

"I learned that magic to be entertaining and mystifying at its best is not sleight of hand but the art of diverting people through motions and entertainment."

"I've always dreamed of combining chess and magic to make my opponent's chess pieces disappear from the board."

The handwriting hobby, which he described as a popular party pastime, also was self-taught.

He believes most personality traits may be revealed more accurately through handwriting than through any test yet devised.

"Of course, at a party you have to be discreet and tactful."

He claims a 85-per-cent reliability averages in determining such traits as intelligence, powers of concentration, reasoning ability, honesty, generosity and emotional characteristics.

Guides for the study include writing size and slope, curls, mannerisms and other writing characteristics.

Add to this impressive list such comparatively humdrum hobbies as bridge—"I like its social aspect."

Driving—"I'd rather hold the wheel than do the navigating"—and you have Frank Anderson, longtime adventurer but above all thinker and human being.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

There'll be fumes, fun, fury and not a few of the old die-hard fanatics at Memorial Arena Friday evening, July 2nd.

The colorful Camel Herders of the Belleville Shrine Club are forsaking, temporarily, their mystical fez-capped steeds, and taking under their sponsorship what a ton or so of wrestling best.

Heading a formidable array of top men in the sport, is Lord Athol Layton who will be going for a lot bigger stake than the winning of the wrestling match.

An expatriate Australian, Lord Layton was an innkeeper in a down-under city before he discovered that guineas grew on the apron of a wrestling ring.

Tall (six-foot-six) with a stretch of 52 inches, the handsome youngster had a polished Australian accent that aided him no end in his role of a titled British peer.

He acquired a valet with a slightly lower social standing and coming to America, surged rapidly to the top of the wrestling ranks. Today he is one of the best known television and radio commentators in the sport.

Lord Layton is "tall in the saddle" hereabs and beyond the colorful fez of the Shrine. For he is a Shriner—and one who devotes a lot of his time to the Shrine's crippled children project.

A brilliant after-dinner speaker Lord Layton was named "ambassador-at-large" of the Shrine's Rameses Temple of Toronto, the "great" of the Belleville club. He travels extensively through Ontario when he has time off from his commentating duties.

He is coupling activities here on July 2nd. He agreed to meet a former United States champion and ranghtnut to the world title, Duke Valentino, in a "grudge" feature bout, besides arranging a star-studded program that should bring nostalgia to wrestling fans of the city and district. Also he hopes his efforts and those of his mat confreres will bring a substantial sum to the coffers of the Shrine Club's crippled children fund.

The Layton-Valentino match should be one of the features of a card that scintillates with mat ability. It is the third and "rubber" meeting of the "giants" series, two former bouts ending in unsatisfactory decisions.

Adding spice to the mat cake is a pair of familiar faces to the wrestling faithful, one Professor Hiro, the huge, squat Japanese champion who is a karate expert, the other his crafty, wily and cunning manager, Fred Atkins, the hard-rock from down under.

Atkins is well known here and is still rated as one of the strongest men in the sport. He is rough, tough and stops at nothing to ensure victory for himself and his Nipponese protege.

In fact Atkins was the curtain on the card when he takes on Victor Rivera, the Porto Rican giant, in a 30-minute fall—if there is anything left of the Caribbean heavy by that time.

He will aid and abet from his corner the activities of Professor Hiro who tangles with the Scottish champion, Andy Robin, a versatile chappie who is also a Scottish Games champion and has performed professionally. This is carded as the main event.

Last but by no means least will be the fabulous midgets, who will do a 30-minute show midway through the card. It is hoped that the famous "Little Beaver" or "Tiny Cupid" will head the quartet—but this is not definite. However, fandom is assured that four of the world's topflight "half-pints" will be here with their agile versatility.

Chief Camel Herder, Noble Ralph Plumpton, is general chairman in charge of various committees headed by Nobles Tom Lewis, Jim MacDonald, Ken Virtue, Alex Pierson, Bill Stewart, Bud Gill and Harry Birkenshaw.

Since wrestling has been discontinued for the first time in 36 years, the Shriners feel their attraction will be welcomed by those who have patronized the sport for nearly four decades—and in the interim.

No changes have been made in the regular wrestling admission fees, reserved seat tickets being on sale at Carl Thompson's Variety Store, Front Street (formerly the Tom Lewis Tobacco Shop). General admission is $1.00 and ladies 75 cents.

It is pointed out that all the net proceeds will be devoted exclusively to the Shrine's Crippled Children Fund.

Tribe Tastes Twins' Blood; Win 10th

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When a ball club is hot, the manager can't help looking like a genius.

Take Birdie Tebbetts. He pulled one of his starting pitchers out of the ballpen Tuesday night and stopped a rally. Then he sent up a rookie pinch-hitter who tied the game with his first major-league homer. And a .237 hatter won the game with another homer in the 10th inning.

That's the way things are going these days with Cleveland Indians, 7-4 victors over Minnesota Twins Tuesday and currently tied with Chicago White Sox for second place in the American League, just half a game behind Minnesota and co-owners of a 10-game winning streak.

The Sox had the night off when their home game with Washington Senators was rained out. The fourth-place Baltimore Orioles moved within two games of the top by splitting with Boston, downing the Red Sox 4-1 and losing 4-2.

Detroit Tigers stayed three games back, victimized by George Brunet's first big-league shutout in five years, a 3-0 win for Los Angeles Angels and New York Yankees gained a split with Kansas City Athletics in a 4-2 victory after losing to the Athletics 6-2.

Chuck Hinton was the .237 hitter who settled matters at Cleveland when he tagged Twins' reliever Al Worthington for a homer leading off the 10th inning. Rookie Duke Sims had tied it with his homer in the eighth as a pinch-hitter for Sam McDowell, the starter Tebbetts used in relief.

McDowell replaced Don McMahon with none out in the eighth inning of a see-saw battle with Minnesota ahead 4-3 and Twins on first and third. Jimmie Hall scored by forcing in score on Jerry Zimmerman's grounder, then McDowell struck out Bernie Allen and Worthington.

The Orioles won their 10th in 11 games in the opener, beating the Red Sox with three runs in the sixth on four singles and a sacrifice. They Boston dealt Robin Roberts his seventh straight loss, with Earl Wilson holding Baltimore to four hits.

Brunet held the Tigers hitless for six innings, then yielded a leadoff single to Jerry Lumpe in the seventh, a single to Don Demeter in the eighth and another to Al Kaline in the ninth. Vic Power knocked in two Athletics' runs, with a homer and a single.

Kansas City scored four runs in the first on Dave Wickersham's opener at New York, chasing Jim Bouton, and John O'Donoghue blanked the Yankees until Ray Barker and Mickey Mantle homered in the eighth. The Yankees scored their second run with two runs in the seventh, scoring on Horace Clarke's sacrifice fly and Bobby Richardson's single.

Juniors Defeat Madoc

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Madoc blew a 1-0 first inning lead and wasted three home runs while absorbing a 9-4 defeat at the hands of Ellis Juniors in a B. and D. Softball League tilt at the Fairgrounds last night.

Ellis' erased the early Madoc lead with four runs in their half of the inning and never looked back. The win kept Harold Reid's lads in the loop's top spot, or at least a half share of it, depending on the Bloomfield-Stirling game last night.

Tonight, Trudeau Motors go to Trenton while Tweed visits Bloomfield.

Bob Boyle gave up the three circuit blasts and eight hits in all but stayed the route. He struck out nine and had perfect control, with nary a walk.

Darrel Kramp lost it before giving way to Larry Griffin in the sixth. Kramp gave up seven hits, fanning nine and passing none. Griffin struck out five and walked one. Each hit a man and the club committed five errors.

Gray's single and Griffin's double got Madoc in front while all their other tallies were on solo homers. Griffin hit a towering blast that McKibbon made a fine play on but was unable to get in the sixth. Reid led off with a homer in the seventh and Gray added another after two were out.

Singles by Moon and Chatland set up the first two Ellis runs and Muirhead drove both in with a double. Rutherford made it 4-1 with the Juniors' lone homer.

An error and passed balls made it 5-1 in the second while Moon dropped a perfect bunt single and scored on Chatland's double in the fifth. Rutherford had the only hit in the sixth when twin errors, wild pitches and a hit batter added two more Belleville runs. Another hit batter, Gardiner's single and a throwing error made it 9-4 in the eighth.

Jim Rutherford's homer and single paced the winners at the plate. Mike Chatland doubled and singled, Bob Moon singled twice, Stu Muirhead doubled and Don Gardiner added a base hit.

Three players split the Madoc hits. Brian Gray and Albert Reid had a homer and two singles apiece while Larry Griffin hit a homer and double.

Crackers Lose 10-1, Leafs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bill Adair, manager of Atlanta Crackers, couldn't have picked a better night to get thumbed out of a baseball game.

The pilot of the International League leaders was banished by the umpires in the first inning at Syracuse for questioning a decision at second base. In his absence, the Crackers absorbed a 10-1 trouncing from the Chiefs—the short of treatment they are accustomed to handing out to their opponents.

It was a break for the Crackers' closest pursuers. Toronto Maple Leafs outslugged Toledo Mud Hens 9-6 to move within five games of the leaders while Columbus Jets remained another half-game back with a 7-3 decision over Buffalo Bisons. Rochester Red Wings clobbered Jacksonville Suns 10-0 in the other game played.

Ontario Open Golf

Paul Martin's 69 Leads Field

By STERLING TAYLOR

MILTON, Ont. (CP)—Paul Martin hadn't begun the season as a professional at a co-operative club, he might never have established himself as a favorite to take the Ontario Open golf championship.

Martin, a rangy six-foot, two-inch power hitter from Oakville's incomplete Upper Canada Country Club, shot a two-under-par 69 Tuesday to lead the 190 golfers competing for 102 spots in the 54-hole championship which opens here Thursday.

These 102 will join the 28 professionals and 30 amateurs who were exempt from the 18-hole qualifying round.

Three other golfers managed to break par over the 6,595-yard Trafalgar Golf and Country Club layout.

They were veteran amateur Bruce Castator of Toronto, amateur Bill Doohan of Sarnia and professional George Illingbreth of Peterbgh, who all tied for second place in the day's play with 70s.

Castator, 36, who won the Canadian amateur championship in 1958, is making a comeback an absence of seven years from competitive golf.

"The greens were very true and the course was very fast," Castator said.

He utilized those Greens to cover the course with 30 putts, carding birdies on the first, 11th, 12th, 13th and 14th holes. He only three-putted one—the 15th—and wound up two other par. He also went two over par on the 18th.

Doohan might have broken the course record of 68 if so were a bit much paine hadn't caused him to cover the back nine in 36 after going out in 32.

He was stricken with the pains on the ninth hole, but continued to play until the 15th when a doctor arrived to examine him. There, stretched full length on the green, Doohan was told the pains weren't serious and he finished the round.

Amateurs Brock Beatty of Daytona Beach, Fla., Dick Knipe and Alby Garbe, both of Toronto, and professional Jack Hind of Toronto all tied for fifth place with 71s.

Beatty, 17, is spending the summer in Trenton, Ont. He was one over par on the front nine and carded a two-under-par coming back.

Amateurs Ray Mowling of Toronto, Tom McAllister of Woodbridge, Ont., and Brian Bond of Horsby, Ont., and professional Bill McWilliams Jr. of Richmond Hill, Ron Capra of Hamilton and Bill Mawhinney of Toronto all tied with 72s.

In all, 49 amateurs and 33 professionals made the cutoff point of 72.

The field of 150 tees off in the three-day medal-play championship Thursday morning.

There is $5,000 prize money up for grabs, with the professional shooting the lowest aggregate score picking up $1,200 and a spot in the $200,000 world championship at Dalton, Mass., Aug. 19-22.

Three 18-hole rounds of the championship along with the qualifying round of the Ontario amateur championship make up the trials—for—the Ontario Willingdon Cup team.

City Hotel Unbeaten In Ten

The rich got richer and the poor got poorer in Commercial Softball League play last night.

First place City Hotel dumped the tail-end Tre-Haar Daubers 8-1 to run their undefeated streak to ten games, in a fast, errorless contest at Prince Charles School.

The winners potted two in the first, singletons in the second and fourth and sixth and three in the seventh. Daubers' lone tally came in the fourth.

Gerry Genereaux stopped Tre-Haar on three hits, all for extra bases, while pitching the victory. He struck out six and walked three.

Fringed was touched for eight hits over the distance in defeat. He fanned none and walked four. Shaw fielding on well-tagged balls highlighted play by both teams.

Doug Hull, Doug Moreau and Smith collected a double and single apiece to account for most of the City Hotel hits. Doug Murray contributed a double and Moe Hawkins a single.

Moore clouted a four-bagger in defeat with Bob Duggan and Pringle adding doubles. A lead-off double and two walks loaded the bases with nouo out for them in the first but two men were cut down at the plate and Genereaux whiffed another to poll out unharmed.

City Hotel	210	101	3—8-0

Batteries: G. Genereaux and Smith; Pringle and J. Donaldson.

In another game, Point Anne Cementmen edged Black Diamond Cheese 3-2 in their battle for fourth place. No score sheet was turned in for the game.

Dangerous Beliefs About Tires!

"If you're driving fast, pressure builds up anyhow, so don't add air now." is that good summer-driving advice? Is a "super deluxe" a better tire? Bucs' Law Man Spikes Giants' Guns

Hits 3-Run Homer

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Vern Law of Pittsburgh Pirates, an elder in the Mormon church who lives by a rigid, self-imposed code of ethics, hits among his Cardinal rules:

"I will always have a happy smile for everyone, especially those who like me least."

That's beginning to take in most of the National League.

Law's happy smile was turned home on San Francisco Giants Tuesday night as he checked them on four hits and slammed a three-run homer in a 6-0 victory. That stretched his winning streak to seven and lowered his earned-run average to 1.59—best among all starting pitchers in the majors.

Meanwhile, Cincinnati Reds moved into second place, three games back of the National League - leading Los Angeles Dodgers, by sweeping a doubleheader from St. Louis Cardinals 5-4 and 4-2 while the Dodgers were taking a single game from New York Mets 4-2. Chicago Cubs whipped Milwaukee Braves 6-1 and Philadelphia Phillies belted Houston Astros 7-2.

HOMERS HELPED

The Giants were unable to put more than one base runner on at any time against Law and could not get a runner past second base. Law got support from Willie Stargell, who hit his 16th and 17th homers while Law was collecting his first of the season.

The Reds won the opener in the ninth when Deron Johnson's triple, two walks and a pinch-hit single by Charley James produced the winning run.

Tommy Harper took over hitting honors for the Reds in the nightcap, slamming a homer in the third inning and then doubling home the tie-breaking run in a three-run fifth inning that put it out of the Cardinals' reach. Ron Fairly hit a homer, triple and single for the Dodgers but it took three singles plus a sacrifice fly by pinch hitter Lou Johnson to get the tie-breaking run across in the seventh.

The Cubs scored three runs in the third inning on Doug Clemens' homer and three more in the eighth, two on a double by Ernie Banks, while Cal Koonce and Lindy McDaniel checked Milwaukee on six hits.

Richie Allen punched out two - run single and Tony Gonzalez legged out an inside-the-park homer in a five-run seventh inning uprising that got the job done for the Phillies.

Golf's Loot List

Nicklaus Retains Lead

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus won only $550 in the United States Open, a tournament he was expected to win, but he holds on to his lead among golf's money winners.

Through the Open, Nicklaus had won $33,450 officially and $10,788 in tournaments not directly sanctioned by the PGA for a grand total of $64,238, the PGA said Tuesday.

Tony Lema, winner of $2,500 in the Open, narrows his second - place position. His overall total is $59,314.

In winning the Open, Gary Player didn't profit personally. He gave his $26,000 to the U.S. Golf Association, but the figure added to his winnings propelled him into the top 10.

The leaders, with official money listed first and over-all winnings bracketed:

Nicklaus, $33,450 ($62,238); Lema, $32,864 ($59,314); Dan Sikes, $48,524 ($51,411); Bruce Devlin, $48,225 ($51,347); Bruce Crampton, $44,986 ($57,128).

Player, $42,963 ($43,784); Doug Sanders, $42,816 ($53,000); Julius Boros, $31,219 ($34,910); Johnny Pott, $30,324 ($35,960); Bert Weaver, $30,045 ($33,319).

SEEK ASSURANCE

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The American Football League said Tuesday it will award a franchise to Philadelphia if assured the team can play in the proposed $25,000,000 stadium. A spokesman said the AFL is willing to share the stadium with Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League.

Queen's Plate

Western Horse Big Surprise In Trials

TORONTO (CP) — Avelino Gomez doesn't want to wish rain on Saturday's 106th running of the Queen's Plate, but the Cuban jockey wouldn't mind just enough wet weather to make the track at Woodbine muddy.

Gomez will be aboard Good Old Mort, one of the favorites in Saturday's 1¼-mile classic for Canadian-bred three-year-olds who likes to run in the mud.

Good Old Mort didn't need mud in winning his section of the plate trial Monday at Woodbine, but the results there only added to the uncertainty surrounding the plate.

This is because Whistling Sea, the only candidate from Western Canada among the dozen or so horses expected to go to the post Saturday, surprised everyone by winning the other section.

OWNER SURPRISED

Nobody was more surprised than Whistling Sea's owner, Calgary oil - drilling supplier Paul Olivier. He regarded his horse as a sprinter because the horse had run a mile only once and finished fifth. Whistling Sea's successes had all been over seven furlongs or less.

No western horse has won the plate and Whistling Sea's win will have solid sentimental support from the West. Trainer Roy Johnson is from Calgary and jockey Tak Inoye is from Vernon, B.C.

Good Old Mort, owned by Ed Seedhouse of Toronto, and Whistling Sea will have plenty of competition.

DES ERABLES SECOND

Des Erables finished second to Good Old Mort in the plate trials and Turcotte didn't have a change to size him up. He had to hold Des Erables in check in the backstretch and when the time finally came to move, the horse was just too tired.

Lucky Marine, owned by Larkin Maloney of Toronto, was among the favorites until the trials, but a disappointing fourth-place finish, 10 lengths behind Whistling Sea, has altered the picture here.

Native Victor, who didn't run in the trials, still rates as a top favorite because of his impressive victory over several other Queen's Plate candidates last week.

Other horses likely to parade to the post Saturday include Blue Mel, a $32,000 purchase by Phil Boylen of Toronto this spring, Grand Galop, owned by J. Louis Levesque of Montreal, Inc., Chop-em-Please, owned by Mrs. Paul Desmarais of Montreal, and Champlain, owned by Taylor.

MARITIME STAR — Marjorie Turner of Lockeport, N.S., is considered one of the brightest stars to come along in Nova Scotia track and field competition in recent years. The 17-year-old grade 10 student, who is at home on the track, a soccer field or basketball court, learned to run on the Atlantic's beaches. (CP Photo)

Moe Hunter's Merchants rapped out 18 hits with nearly every player in the lineup contributing to the total.

Glen Carleton led the field by striking a home run and three singles. Ricky Meagher also hit a homer while Paul Hall and Terry Meagher each got a pair of base hits.

Moe Thompson pitched fourhit ball while going the route for Belleville. He caught ten Frankford batters on third strikes and walked only one. Paul Hall did the catching.

B. Hoyle stayed the distance for Frankford despite the 18-hit attack. He struck out 11 and issued two free passes. T. Armstrong and S. Bedard caught.

Frankford hits were singles with two going to R. Rodgers and one each to Bedard and B. Lockwood.

Bloomfield Sets Back Stirling

STIRLING (Special)—Bloomfield clung to a share of first place in the Belleville and District Softball League last night by whipping Stirling 8-3 here.

Ken DeMille's pitching and batting highlighted the error-riddled contest.

The young Bloomfield veteran stopped Stirling on three singles while blasting third strikes past 14 batters. He did not walk a man.

Bob Hunter was the victim of the winner's ten-hit attack, plus costly errors. He struck out six and passed a pair.

Stirling got two of their hits plus a three-base error while scoring both their runs in the first frame. DeMille let them down over the last eight innings on only a fifth-frame single.

Lone markers in the first ood second fled the game 2-2 and Bloomfield won it with a pair in the third. Two miscues set up the runs. Weese drove in one with a fly ball and Yorke singled home the other.

The winners added a pair in the sixth and a final pair in the ninth, on DeMille's home-run.

Ken DeMille had his home run and a double with Gene Yorke slamming a triple and single for the boys from Prince Edward. Dave Lockwood chipped in with two singles while one each went to Keith Stacey, Ron Weese, Jim Guernsey and Frank Forester.

Bob Donohoe had two of the Stirling safeties and Doug Potts bagged the other.

Tonight, Bloomfield hosts Tweed, in Picton, and Trudeau Motors travel to Trenton.

TIP FOR LONGER SHOTS

Look carefully at illustrations No. 1 and No. 2. Note that my head and shoulders remain behind the ball throughout the swing, just as they were at address. Note also that this occurs even though much of my weight has moved off my right foot on the downswing.

The ability to "stay behind the ball" in this manner, while still moving weight from right to left on the downswing, can help ensure any golfer of increased distance. This action builds up clubhead speed and unleashes it into the ball with maximum force.

The golfer who lunges or slides his upper body to the left (No. 3) sacrifices distance. He weakens his left side and relieves his wrists before the clubhead reaches the ball. Such lateral movement of the head and shoulders also may cause the clubhead to move outside its proper path. This will result in sliced shots to the right or pulled shots to the left, depending on the direction the clubhead faces during impact.

Three Enter Hall of Fame

'Northern Dancer' Honored

TORONTO (CP)—A thoroughbred race horse, a driver-trainer of harness horses and a lacrosse great have been voted to Canada's Sports Hall of Fame.

The horse is Northern Dancer, Canadian-bred winner of the 1964 Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Queen's Plate.

The lacrosse representative is the late Patrick Joseph Lally of Cornwall, known to many as the father of the game.

The three were chosen from a field of 23 which was named earlier this year by selectors in each of the 10 provinces.

They will join 1964 Olympic rowing gold medallists George Hungerford and Roger Jackson, both of Vancouver; 1965 world figure skating champion Petra Burka of Toronto and the 1963 world champion Canadian fourman bobsled team of Terry Pressley of Arnprior, Ont., Mike Young of Port Credit, Ont., Peter Kirby of St. Jovite, Que., and Vic Emery of Montreal. All qualified automatically.

Membership in the Hall of Fame, founded in 1955 and located on the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds here, now totals 113.

Northern Dancer, owned by Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor and trained by Horatio Luro, became the first Canadian - bred to win the Derby and Preakness and missed capturing racing's triple crown by losing in the Belmont Stakes. He scored 14 victories in 18 starts before a bowed tendon forced him to retire to stud last autumn. In less than two seasons, Northern Dancer won $380,647.

TO BE RUN AGAIN

LONDON (AP)—Officials of the Aintree Race Track said Tuesday the famous Grand National Steeplechase will be run there again in 1966. Three Appeal Court judges ruled last month that the present owners of the Liverpool course can not sell it as planned for a housing development. The decision is being appealed to the House of Lords, Britain's highest law tribunal, but management decided to carry on for one more year, no matter what the decision.

Jim Brown Faces Charge Of Assault

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jim Brown of Cleveland Browns pleaded not guilty Tuesday to an assault and battery charge brought by an 18-year-old girl.

Brown asked for a jury trial, and Municipal Court Judge Hugh Brennan scheduled the case for Monday, Sept. 20, the day after the Browns open their National Football League season in Washington.

The 29-year-old fullback was in the crowded courtroom less than a minute. Neither he nor his lawyer, Jerry Milano, had any comment on the charges brought by Brenda Ayres that Brown slapped her in a motel room early Sunday.

After the charge was filed Monday, Brown made his only comment:

"I am not that small that I have to beat a girl."

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Stevie B. Good is a mean horse, but he worked some of meanness off Tuesday when he won the fifth race at Woodbine and posted the fastest time of the season for five furlongs.

"In all my years on the race track I've never seen a meaner hoss," said Stan Ross, son and assistant to trainer B. Good's trainer Sam Ross.

"This horse would kick and buck and try to charge at you for five minutes when you tried to put a saddle on his back," Ross said. "But we were patient and it finally paid off."

With Nick Shuk in the saddle, the hay gelding won the fifth race in 58 4-5 seconds. Fabulad was second and Fleet Romance third.

Stevie B. Good wasn't good prior to the race. He kicked and bucked and refused to be leaded into the starting gate. It took five men finally to get him into the barrier.

After a slow break, he moved up on the pace-setting Fabulad and passed him at the head of the stretch. Fabulad made a tremendous stretch drive, but lost by a nose.

Stevie B. Good, owned by Edward Pasquale of Toronto, returned $3.10, $2.30 and $2.10. The quinella of Stevie B. Good and Fabulad paid $7.30.

The daily - double of Play the Game and Petene paid $38.10.

Gloria Grahame Won Oscar, Then Took Acting Lessons

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gloria Grahame is the kind of a girl who would take acting lessons after winning an Academy Award.

The blonde actress has long declined to adhere to what was considered the norm in Hollywood.

For example, most actors would consider winning an Oscar to be the pinnacle of their careers. Gloria achieved the big prize in 1952 for her supporting performance as Dick Powell's southern wife in The Bad and the Beautiful. Yet she went on to study dramatics with Stella Adler of the Method School of Acting, and other teachers.

Ask Gloria why and she replies: "Well, I had to see what the 'method' was all about, and I did. I found it very useful in many films I've done."

MARRIED STEPSON

Other evidence of her unpredictability is she is married to her former stepson.

The actress is working in her first movie since Odds Against Tomorrow, which she made five years ago. She plays a rich rancher wife who is victimized by a con artist, Bill Bixby (My Favorite Martian), in a new western called The Night of the Tiger.

Childless in her first marriage to actor Stanley Clements, she had a son, Tim, by her marriage to director Nick Ray.

"Tim is in Spain this summer with his father, working as third assistant director on a picture," said Gloria.

EXPECTING IN FALL

Next came Marianna Paulette, now 8, daughter of Gloria's marriage to comedy writer Cy Howard. Then came the union with Tony Ray, son of Nick Ray by a previous marriage. She now has a son, 4, by her present marriage and is expecting another child in the fall.

All this seemed perplexing. For instance, Tony is stepfather of Tim, but also half brother.

"Doesn't the relationship get a bit confusing?" I asked.

"Oh, please don't get into that," Gloria said. "After all, it's old stuff; we've been married five years."

Linkletter Injects New Life In an Old Network Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — There is nothing novel about Talent Scouts and its format — established stars introducing young professionals. But in the adroit hands of Art Linkletter, a native of Moose Jaw, and dressed up with celebrities and a half dozen interesting newcomers, there is noting wrong with it.

Holding forth on Talent Scouts this summer-blooming CBS perennial is called, turned out to be an easy going, entertaining variety hour in its premiere Tuesday night.

Debbie Reynolds did talk a bit self - consciously but Linkletter's short talk with Eartha Kitt led her to reveal some of her childhood hardships. Liberace told of being encouraged in his career by the great Paderewski.

But the bright young performers were the most exciting. Particularly impressive were a 14 - year - old, Yolanda White, with a great big voice; a tenor with a Metropolitan Opera contract, Bert Lindsey; and a flashy pianist, Ronny David.

Linkletter seems to have injected some new life in an old network show. It promises to be a happy addition to a dull summer schedule.

Walter Cronkite's CBS news show Tuesday night started a two-part report on a CBS staff investigation into the accuracy of some mail order laboratories findings. Without naming names, the network's Jay McMullen said that all of the mail order laboratories had failed to identify a dangerous bacteria in specimens sent to them, while the control group of non-mail order laboratories spotted it. The mail order labs in other instances made incorrect findings which, the program asserted, could lead to incorrect, even deadly errors in diagnosis and prescriptions by doctors.

BEST PURSES SOUTH

LONDON (CP) — Britain's best pubs are in the south of England and there is a dearth of good ones in industrial areas, says Egon Ronay, author of an annual guide to taverns in England and Wales. In the 1965 edition, he recommends only 1,000 pubs and lans out of the 60,000 he visited. He says the art of cellar-keeping is dying.

Double Bill Offers Adventure and Fantasy

A blood-tingling American International double bill highlighting the heroic exploits of Toshiro Mifune in "The Lost World of Sinbad" and the chilling hypnotic powers of John Barrymore, Jr., in "The War of the Zombies" opens Monday at the Park Theatre.

Mifune's role as a swashbuckling adventurer who defies the rulers of an empire to win the woman he loves is another award-winning performance by the star of "Rashomon" and "Seven Samurai." The AIP film has recently been awarded the Italian "trophy of five continents" as the Best Specialized Film of the year.

Barrymore's histrionics as high priest of an army reincarnated from the dead which engages Roman warriors in a deathless battle is reminiscent of his famous father, while the fantasy of the actor's hypnotic powers will tingle the imagination.

Both features are first Belleville showings and are in Color and Scope, and have strong supporting casts.

Starting for the last times tonight, the big horror bill, in Color, "Blood and Black Lace" and "Black Torment." Complete shows are at 7.00 and 8.45 p.m.

'Venturers' New Group for Older Scouts

DAY LEAD Scouts
OTTAWA (CP)—The Ventures —a new branch of the Boy Scout movement aimed at helping older youths find new adventurous activities—is moving into full swing across the country.

Main purpose of the new division, tried on an experimental basis in several provinces for a year or so, is to provide programs suitable for boys in the 14-17 age groups who often are restricted because 11- and 12-year-old scouts are less mature.

Robert Milks, assistant director of services and services at the Boy Scout national headquarters here, said in an interview recently the principle of activities planned for Venturers was an eight-day canoe trip in Algonquin Park last week by a group from Ottawa.

"Older scouts are more experienced and their interests are more specialized. They already talk a different language from the younger boys."

He said 130 boys from across Canada have been invited to a conference at Banff, Alta., this October to suggest activities to attract local units both inside and outside scouting.

Mr. Milks said he anticipates that as many as 25,000 of Canada's present 100,000 scouts will join the Venturers by the start of 1966.

Bemersyde Chapter Holds Dinner Meet

CAMPBELLFORD — Bemersyde Chapter I.O.D.E., held their last regular meeting until the fall at a dinner meeting on Thursday evening, at Mrs. D. M. Mayhee's cottage, on Trent River.

About 42 members were in attendance with the Regent, Mrs. W. A. Kingston, presiding.

Some discussion took place regarding the student loan. Due to changes in student financial assistance from some other sources this Chapter loan is not as applicable now as in previous years. It will be discussed at the fall.

An appeal was received for warm clothing for northern Indians.

An invitation was received from St. John's Chapter, Belleville, to attend a district dinner in Belleville on September 15.

The House of Windsor Chapter in Whitby also extended an invitation to attend their annual fall and antique sale in September.

An appeal was made for assistance to be left at the Canadian Indian Centre, 603 Church Street, Toronto.

The treasurer's report showed a bank balance of $371.

In the absence of Mrs. D. Grant a paper on world affairs in relation to Cuba was given by Mrs. D. Carswell. Cuban imports and exports were reported, foreign policy, education, finance and the unsuccessful Bay of Pigs invasion by the U.S.

Two graduating public and Separate school awards for scholastic standing will be awarded before the end of the schools.

These are given to boy and girl with highest standing in Grade 8.

Mrs. J. Trimble, Services at Home and Abroad convener, has a shipment of clothing ready for shipment to headquarters.

The September meeting will be a dinner meeting at the summer home of Mrs. J. O. Bonar.

K's War Against Hammarskjold Dramatic Point in UN History

There have been many crises in the 20-year life of the United Nations, but few as dramatic as Nikita Khrushchev's unsuccessful battle to oust tele Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold. The following third of five articles by Max Harrelson, AP chief UN correspondent, tells of the crisis and of others that have beset the world organization during its existence.

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev's 1960 visit to the United Nations is generally remembered for his table-thumping and shoe-pounding, but much more significant was his personal war with Dag Hammarskjold.

The Soviet Premier had turned against the late secretary-general because of what he called the Western policies in handling The Congo problem, meaning Hammarskjold's refusal to help retard leftist - leaning Patrice Lumumba to power.

The crisis situation came Khrushchev's famous troika plan to replace the secretary-general with a three-man committee, representing Communist, Western and non-aligned blocks. The Soviet premier, to his surprise, found no support for his plan, but he intensified his fight to get rid of Hammarskjold.

The campaign reached its dramatic climax when Khrushchev stood before the assembly and demanded the immediate resignation of the blonde, slender Swede who sat on the rostrum, grim and tense, a few feet away.

"I want to reaffirm that we do not trust Mr. Hammarskjold and cannot trust him," said Khrushchev. "If he does not muster enough courage to resign, so to say, in a chivalrous manner, then we shall draw the necessary conclusions."

These words sent a murmur through the blue-and-gold assembly chamber, packed with diplomats and many heads of government. And when he took the floor to reply, Hammarskjold found the audience was almost 100 per cent with him. His emotion-packed statement was punctuated with bursts of applause.

"I shall remain in my post during the term of my office as a servant of the United Nations, in the interest of all those other nations, as long as they (he stressed the word they) wish me to do so.

"The representative of the Soviet Union spoke of courage. It is very easy to resign. It is not easy to stay on. It is very easy to bow to the wish of a big power. It is another matter to resist."

He said he had resisted before and "I shall do so again."

Hammarskjold told the assembly the troika plan would make it impossible for the United Nations to operate.

"By resigning, I would, therefore, at this present difficult and dangerous juncture, throw the whole organization to the winds."

A year later he died in an African plane crash while on a Congo mission.

LIE RESIGNED

Hammarskjold's speech recalled another eight years earlier in which his predecessor, Trygve Lie, announced his resignation. He said he was quitting because he felt his usefulness had been impaired by his break with the Soviet Bloc. For two years the Communist governments had refused to communicate with him or recognize his authority.

Lie, under attack by the Soviet Bloc for his pro-Western stand on Korea, told the assembly:

"The policy of the Soviet government and its allies has been, and continues to be, a policy of the crudest form of pressure. not only against me but against any future secretary - general who may incur the displeasure of the Soviet Union for doing his duty as he sees it under the Charter."

The present secretary - general, U Thant of Burma, has maintained an independent attitude. He rejected Soviet efforts to make his decisions subject to an advisory committee, including a Soviet undersecretary.

SPEAKS OUT

He has never hesitated to speak out even if it meant stepping on a few toes. On a trip to the Soviet Union he told the Russian people in a broadcast statement that they were fighting a civilized battle of The Congo situation. Two years later he told a press conference at UN headquarters the American people were not getting all the truth about the Viet Nam conflict.

Despite some brief periods of friction, Thant still has the support of all major groups after almost four years in the office which Lie had called impossible. He continued to expand the role of secretary-general, a role his predecessors, until it now is far beyond the original concept of the UN founders.

His term has another year to go. Barring unforseen developments, the former Burmese teacher-journalist will win another five - year term — if he wants it. So far, he hasn't said. He is 56 and says he has fully recovered from a peptic ulcer attack which put him on the sidelines for a short time last year.

Tomorrow: Cuban missile crisis.

Minor Baseball Results

In the B.M.B.A. Tyke division, Boiler's Little Giants fought to a 9-9 deadlock with the Jaycees at Park Dale.

The Jaycees used two hurlers, Greg Duffy starting and Wayne Andrews relieving him in the fourth. Together they gave up six hits, struck out 15 and allowed four free passes. Murray Dales was behind the plate.

For the Boilers, Robin Guest and Allan Wood shared the mound chore with Mike Burley as their catcher. They gave up seven hits, walked 12 and fanned 18.

Mike Burley and Billy Coughlin each hit a pair of singles for the Boilers, with singletons going to Allan Wood and Terry Guest.

Wayne Andrews supplied most of the Jaycee power at the plate, hitting a homer, double and single. Brian Dales singled twice while David Sullivan and Robert Woodbeck had lone safeties.

Senior Baseball

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A fight, a rabbit, a 25-minute wait for an umpire, 32 hits and 11 errors were served up by Intermediate baseball fans in Ontario Tuesday night in a senior inter-County baseball game in London.

The Pontiacs outlasted the Terriers 13-12, but took 10 innings to do it. The winning run scored on a wild pitch.

In other action, Listowel Mustangs made five errors in one inning as they dropped a 9-2 decision to Stratford Chiefs and Guelph CJOYs choked off a Kitchener - Waterloo Panther rally in the ninth for a 4-3 victory.

The London game, held up because umpire John Smith was late, was interrupted by disputes and a fight between Pontiacs' Dave Pook and Terriers' Ron Boomer.

The rabbit got into the act, holding up the game further by making a run for home across the infield.

Six pitchers gave up a combined total of 32 hits, including two home runs, a triple and three doubles, issued 14 walks and struck out 10. London made seven of the 11 errors.

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Madam Victor, overlooked in the betting at 11-to-1 at Garden City Raceway Tuesday night, came up with a winning trot in the eighth race.

The five - year - old mare, owned by J. E. and A. M. Arthur of Otterville, Ont., completed the circuit in 2:02 4-5.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Echoridge Jack earns in first at $5.80 and Superior Lee second at $4.20 to set up a tenth-race quinela of $63.40 at the Western Fair Raceway Tuesday night.

Adios, who recently completed his 18th year in stud, led the sire list in earnings by his trotting and pacing daughters for 10 consecutive years.

A total of 308 Adios' yearlings have won $5,102,800 at auctions. In all, his offspring won a total of $14,065,429 through 1964. Among the champions he sired were Henry T. Adios, winner of a record $706,698 for pacers; Adios Butler, holder of the mile record of 1:54 3-5; and Bret Hanover, winner of all 29 starts in less than two years.

39th Battalion Left City For Service Overseas 50 Years Ago Today

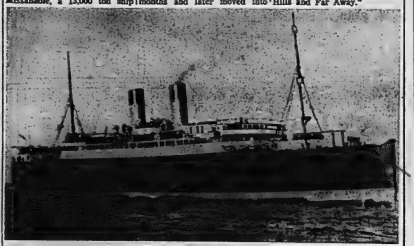
The 39th Battalion under the command of Lt. Col. J. A. V. Preston of Orangeville, left Belleville fifty years ago today. The battalion with 48 officers and 1,001 other ranks proceeded from the Bridge St. Armouries to the Grand Trunk station to entrain for Montreal. This took place in the early evening of June 23rd, 1915. One of the largest crowds ever to assemble at the station was on hand to say their farewell to the boys who had trained in the city for the past five months.

The 39th Battalion was recruited from the surrounding counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, Northumberland, Durham, Peterborough, Frontenac, Victoria and Haliburton and Ontario, and trained in Belleville. The battalion went into barracks at the old Canning Factory on South Pinnacle Street below the C.P.R. tracks and, at the early spring, half of the battalion went under canvas on Zwicky's Island.

The battalion was made up of four companies, signal section, Bombers' and Scouts' section, Machine Gun and Medical Section. The unit had a very fine brass band and was enjoyed by the citizens of Belleville at that time.

COLORS PRESENTED



The colors of the battalion were presented to the unit by the Canadian Club of Belleville on June 12th, 1915, and were officially presented to the unit by the Minister of Militia, Major General the Hon. Sam Hughes; the ceremonies taking place on the lawn of the Bridge St. Armouries and when the preliminaries were completed, the colors were carried by Mrs. J. F. Wills and Mrs. J. Downey and delivered to Lt. Col. Robert Smart, second in command and Major A. E. Bywater, both of whom were kneeling to receive them.

Mrs. J. W. Johnson, president of the Canadian Club, then made an address following which the colors were dedicated by the Battalion Chaplain, Captain C. R. Spencer. The colors were on display in the window of the Ritchie Co. store (now Eaton's) previous to the official presentation. The colors were taken to England with the battalion and later taken to the Anglican church at Lydd, where they remained until after the war. The battalion marched from Caesars Camp to Lydd, a distance of 25 miles for the ceremony. The colors were returned to Canada and Belleville after the end of the war and deposited in the chancel of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, where they remain to this day.

GOOD OCEAN TRIP

The troop train arrived at Montreal during the night of the 23-24 June and later the troops detrained and embarked on the C.P.R. Liner R.M.S. Missanabie, a 13,000 ton ship and sailed at 10 a.m. Thursday, June 24th and was bidden adieu by ex-Mayor H. F. Ketcheson, and Mr. John Elliott, manager of the old Standard Bank of Belleville. The battalion had a very nice crossing of the Atlantic and arrived at Plymouth Sound on the evening of July 3rd and disembarked in the morning of July 4th and entrained and left for Shorncliffe in Kent. After detraining, the battalion then marched to Caesar's Camp near Folkestone, Kent, and remained at this camp under canvas for a few months and later moved into huts at West Sandling Camp. The battalion was broken up (much to the disappointment of the officers and other ranks) and were used for reinforcements for the 1st and 2nd divisions.

Many of the rank and file served with distinction and many were the recipients of special decorations for bravery on the field. There are not too many of the battalion left at this time, probably ten or twelve in this area. The writer can still hear the old Battalion Bugle Call, "Over the Hills and Far Away."

Queen Mother Awakens To Skirl Of Pipes

By ROSEMARY SPEIRS

TORONTO (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth awakens to the skirl of Scottish bagpipes outside her window this morning and ends a full day with a formal dinner given by the Empire Club of Canada in honor of the Toronto Scottish Regiment.

She arrived for her five-day visit here Wednesday afternoon at Toronto International Airport and was welcomed by Governor - General Georges Vanier and Mme. Vanier, 100 members of the Toronto Scottish and several hundred cheering onlookers.

This morning she departs by motorcade from Windfields Farm, the home of her host for the visit, Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor, for Red Cross Lodge at Sunnybrook Hospital. Here she views displays by the Junior Red Cross and women's work committee and has tea with officials of the Canadian Red Cross, of which she is patron. She also inspects handicrafts made by veterans of the two world wars who are under treatment in the hospital.

As she leaves Red Cross Lodge, Queen Mother Elizabeth passes among veterans gathered along the drive to greet them — a scene which, as a brave queen during the Second World War.

She drives to the Queen's Park residence of Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe in the Ontario legislature buildings for a private lunch.

There the Queen Mother receives about 150 people, many of them the officers and wives of the Toronto Scottish, whose 30th anniversary celebrations brought her to Canada. As honorary colonel-in-chief of the regiment, lunch is the 64-year-old Queen Mother makes the journey to Windfields, driving slowly in an open car. This is one of at least four ceremonial drives made during the visit in accordance with her request to wish to be seen by as many public viewers as possible.

Today's round takes her on to Royal Drive — named for her and King George in 1939 when they were the first to travel on their way to what was then the King's Plate at old Woodbine Racetrack.

The sound of pipes waking her every morning of her visit here will be a homey touch for the Scottish-born Queen Mother. She is accompanied by her personal piper, Major Delaspet of the London Scottish - Regiment, also outside her Clarence House home.

During her Canadian visit,

GNP Rise Greater Than '64

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's gross national product rose in the first three months of 1965 to an annual rate of $49,700,000,000, 3½ per cent above the rate in the last three months of 1964, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The GNP, a convenient measure of the country's total production of goods and services, was $47,003,000,000 for the year 1964, up 8.9 per cent from 1963, and Finance Minister Gordon based this year's budget on expectation that it would rise more than seven per cent during 1965.

DBS said the increase in the first quarter of this year was attributable mainly to increased real production. Prices rose in the three months only enough to account for a GNP increase of seven-tenths of one per cent.

The bureau noted that the current expansion in the economy has been in progress for four years.

DBS put the actual dollar value of all goods and services produced in Canada in the first three months of 1965 at $11,325,000,000. But since some sectors of the economy are customarily hurt by winter conditions while others do not feel seasonal factors so strongly, the statisticians adjust the figure to an annual rate.

The 3½-per-cent increase during the first quarter of 1965 was stronger than the first-quarter performance of the United States. The U.S. announced earlier that its first quarter GNP for 1965 rose 2.2? per cent from the fourth quarter of 1964.

Afro-Asian Preliminary Talks Postponed After Further Riots

ALGIERS (Reuters) — Troops patrolled strategic districts in Algeria's capital today as the city was reported calm, following more noisy student demonstrations Wednesday night in support of ousted president Ahmed Ben Bella.

The demonstrations in central Algiers caused troops to fire into the air in disperse the thousands of students.

Earlier Wednesday night, Ben Bella, ousted by an army coup last Saturday, was arrested by the new revolutionary council of having prepared "a dangerous plot against the unity of Algeria."

Meanwhile, the Afro - Asian foreign ministers conference to prepare next week's summit parley has been postponed for a second time and now will open in Algiers Saturday, it was announced today.

The preparatory conference, to pave the way for the meeting of 56 heads of state scheduled to open Tuesday, was originally supposed to take place today.

But an announcement here Wednesday night said it would be postponed until Friday.

The second postponement came as doubts mounted as to whether the summit conference will be held at all.

Cabinet ministers and officials of more than 30 countries already here had to decide by the weekend whether it would be safe for their leaders to come here next week, in view of the unsettled situation following the ousting of Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella last Saturday.

An announcement by the Algerian foreign ministry Wednesday night said the postponement was to give some delegations time to arrive.

But the announcement came shortly after the fresh airel demonstrations in the capital and amid uncertainty over the new regime's ability to ensure security for the kings, presidents and prime ministers due to gather here.

At one point, pro-Ben Bella students selected chairs from sidewalk cafes and attacked police trying to arrest one of their leaders.

Fire trucks, patrolled the streets of central Algiers, hosing sidewalks clear of demonstrators who booed and jeered the police.

The Afro-Asian foreign ministers were to have met at the national assembly buildings overlooking the waterfront.

Now the venue has been switched to the seaside Club des

Moscow Bars Peace Mission But Avoids Being Too Blunt

LONDON (CP) — Commonwealth leaders resumed talks today under the shadow of apparent failure in their first concerted effort to get their Viet Nam peace mission moving.

A British spokesman tried to put a good face on the Soviet Union's rejection of a request for the Commonwealth peace mission to visit Moscow. China and North Viet Nam have already turned cold shoulders on the mission.

The British government, which initiated the mission at the opening session of the Commonwealth meeting last Thursday, took some comfort from a Soviet suggestion that the mission should first have approached North Viet Nam and the Communist Viet Cong in South Viet Nam. The Moscow reply does not amount to blunt non-recognition of the Commonwealth effort, the British spokesman said.

"It is like closing a door, but not quite shutting it," the spokesman said of the Russian rebuff. "It is the intention of the mission to go on."

Members of the mission — Britain's Harold Wilson, Nigeria's Sir Abubakar Balewa, Trinidad's Eric Williams and Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana — met Wednesday night to make further plans. They had announced earlier the mission also would start traveling even if the Communist capitals refused to let them in. South Viet Nam and the United States have said they would welcome the team.

Although some Commonwealth leaders, notably President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, have criticized the attempt at arranging cease-fire talks in Viet Nam, other leaders take the line this first such effort by the Commonwealth will be worthwhile even if it achieves little.

Prime Minister Pearson, reflecting the Ottawa view, told reporters Wednesday that initial setbacks don't necessarily mean total failure.

He told a Commonwealth correspondents' luncheon that the Chinese had balked at peace talks in the Korean War, only to change their minds later.

The conference, nearing the end of the nine-day sessions, had on its agenda today ways of expanding trade and approval of terms of reference for the new Commonwealth secretariat.

The leaders, Britain's Wilson in particular, are worried about a decline in Commonwealth trade. African leaders stressed in a discussion on Commonwealth aid Wednesday that stable trade is more important to them than money grants and interest-free loans.

The gain from a substantial development grant could be eliminated by a drop in the price of cocoa, copper or some other prime African commodity, they pointed out.

Discussion of the secretariat is, in effect, completion of a proposal that was accepted in draft form last Friday. It got its first chief in Canada's Arnold Smith Wednesday.

Smith, assistant deputy secretary for external affairs, received unanimous approval of the conference on the recommendation of a 21-member committee. Eight others had been in the running.

The $25,000-a-year job, based in London but involving travel throughout the Commonwealth, will begin essentially as a task of liaison and co-ordination. The possibility exists of giving the office more executive punch later in Smith's five-year term.

Red Troops Dig Foxholes, Deploy Along Berlin Road

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet and East German troops have deployed on both sides of the Elbe River bridge on the Berlin-Helmstedt autobahn since there has been no interference with traffic, Allied military sources said today.

The troops were reported deployed in foxholes, dug along the road on both bridge approaches.

The Allied sources said they could not recall Soviet troops conducting similar operations at the bridge, which is about 2,500 feet long, although the Russians used repairs to the bridge as an excuse to close the 110-mile super - highway linking West Berlin with West Germany in the 1948 Berlin blockade.

Travellers reaching Berlin Wednesday night reported unusual troop movements began along the highway in mid-afternoon. Columns of infantry, heavy weapons and tanks were spotted along the road.

Allied sources said no troop movements were observed along the autobahn this morning. However, travellers reported columns of camouflaged

South Viet Nam Accuses France Of Helping Foes

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam's military government announced today it has broken diplomatic relations with France and accused the French government of helping its enemies.

"France pretends to be a friend but isn't," Foreign Minister Tran Van Do told a press conference.

"The de Gaulle government has always directly or indirectly helped our enemies, so the (south) Vietnamese government thus severs relations with France and future matters will be handled by their consulates."

The South Vietnamese foreign minister said the break in diplomatic relations was intended only as a political protest against France's policy toward South Viet Nam, and would not affect some 17,000 French citizens living in South Viet Nam or South Vietnamese citizens living in France.

He said there will be no seizure of French property or other reprisals.

French interests control large rubber plantations in South Viet Nam and have other interests.

A few minutes earlier, the government announced that it has declared an official state of war in South Viet Nam.

RELATIONS STRAINED

Relations between France and its former colony have grown increasingly strained since President de Gaulle began outspoken opposition to American participation in the war against the Viet Cong and advocacy of a negotiated settlement neutralizing South and North Viet Nam.

Viet Nam, now split in two, was once one of the three French Indo - Chinese states, along with Laos and Cambodia. After the Second World War, a long war against French rule began. It ended with the cease-fire accord signed in Geneva in 1954 after French forces had been defeated at Dien Bien Phu. The agreement split the country in two and the republics of North and South Viet Nam were established.

In the fighting today, 600 U.S. soldiers invaded a Viet Cong zone 25 miles north of Saigon, where large guerrilla concentrations were believed massing.

A company of Australians and other American paratroop battalions were ready to fly them in if a major Viet Cong force was found, U.S. sources said.

Earlier reports that the Viet Cong were massing in this zone for an offensive prompted last Friday's massive raid by a fleet of U.S. B-52 bombers.

A South Vietnamese government operation ended Wednesday night after heavy contact with the enemy 330 miles northeast of Saigon.

Government spokesmen claimed 56 Viet Cong were killed in the week's operation. They said government forces had one man killed and two wounded.

Forty - six American planes again today bombed an ammunition depot in North Viet Nam, U.S. military spokesmen announced.

House Debates Drought

By GERRY McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — An emergency debate on drought Wednesday drew a flood of suggestions from members of Parliament on how to keep hard-hit eastern farmers from going under.

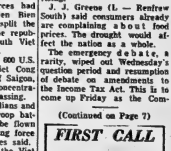
Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve promised to put them before Agriculture Minister Hays, who returned from Europe late Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Sauve, acting agriculture minister, also said he would propose a meeting with Ontario and Quebec representatives to discuss emergency federal-provincial aid.

MPs, mostly from the Ottawa Valley, described the drought as the worst in 75 years in central Canada. Only .42 inches of rain had fallen in the last month, and the first hay crop and other crops were practically wiped out.

There were 250,000 cattle in the Ottawa Valley, and farmers were forced to sell livestock for lack of feed. Some were getting the "ridiculously low price" of 13 or 14 cents a pound, said George H. Doucett (PC—Lanark), who moved the motion to set aside other business.

FARM INCOME DROPS



He said farm incomes are dropping and food prices are rising.

J. J. Greene (L — Renfrew South) said consumers already are complaining about food prices. The drought would affect the nation as a whole.

The emergency debate, a rarity, wiped out Wednesday's question period and resumption of debate on amendments to the Income Tax Act. This is to come up Friday as the Com-

"I just knew there'd be a catch!"

External Affairs Minister Busy Man On Celebration of 62nd Birthday

"After all," he added with a grin, "I'm only 42."

When he made this remark at 3:45 p.m., he had already been at work for five hours Wednesday and was just getting into his day.

For him, it was a fairly routine day. Work on foreign affairs, a fast trip to hometown Windsor, Ont., for some politicking and a visit with his family, a session in the Commons, a cabinet meeting where he was acting prime minister and two receptions.

Mr. Martin, a 30-year Commons veteran, was up at 6 a.m. to begin work on another long statement he will give before the Commons external affairs committee next week.

At 7 a.m. he went for his daily swim in the pool at the Champlain Towers apartment house where he lives. He was struck by polio as a child.

At 7:45 a.m. he reads his mail, telegrams and the morning papers, signed documents to embassies and consulted with Mrs. Martin, his personal secretary Cadieux, and other officials.

With two briefcases of work, he was at Uplands Airport by 8:30 a.m. with Citizenship Minister Nicholson for a trip to Windsor to open a new citizenship court building. Naturally, he made a speech.

He landed aboard the plane on the way back to Ottawa and prepared a short Commons statement on St. Jean Baptiste Day.

Before he entered the Commons at 2:30 he talked with Prime Minister Pearson in London.

He left the Commons at 3:45 for a 15-minute meeting with senior staffer Tom Kent of the Privy Council office. At 4 p.m. he went to a cabinet meeting.

At 6 p.m. he attended a reception in the Parliamentary Press Gallery and at 8 p.m. was at the home of Transport Minister Pickersgill, 60 on Wednesday, for a buffet supper attended by a small group of personal friends. He planned a return to his apartment about 11 p.m. for another session with speeches from abroad before turning in.

Ameliasburg School Area Change Brings Bus Problem

Bus transportation for public school children attending the Mildred Corke School in the Albury district of Ameliasburg township will be the topic of discussion at a special meeting to be held Monday evening.

Parents of children attending the Albury school are alarmed over the announcement that their present school bus will be discontinued at the end of the current school term and they would like it continued.

But members of the Ameliasburg township school board feel it would be unfair to ask ratepayers in other parts of the township to help pay to transport Albury students to school when the same accomodation is not provided for other schools.

Transportation for Albury public school children in the past has been a local responsibility with the cost being born by ratepayers in the immediate area.

CONTRACT EXPIRES

Then with the new township school area set-up instituted at the first of January this year the Albury school bus commitment was honored until the end of the year when the contract expires.

The only other transportation provided for township area school children are buses hired to take children from one school to another in the school area. Children, however, are required to first walk to their own school.

One township school board member said today that the erection of a proposed new central school the matter of bus transportation for all—pupils will undoubtedly have to be considered.

Until that time comes, however, the board feels it would be unfair to provide transportation for Albury pupils and not for others.

Parents of school children in the Albury area could continue to arrange for bus transportation for their children, providing they bear the cost themselves, it was stated.

Strawberries Selling at 50 cts. Quart

The price of strawberries dropped 15 cents per box on the city farmers' market this morning.

And although there was a fair quantity of berries offered they were quickly snapped up at 50 cents per box.

The price for berries on Saturday was 65 cents per box.

$40,000 Stolen In Robbery at Chesterville

CHESTERVILLE, Ont. (CP) Police in Ontario and Quebec are searching today for four or possibly five armed bank robbers who grabbed an estimated $40,000 from the Bank of Nova Scotia branch Wednesday afternoon.

The search centred on Cornwall, 20 miles southeast of here, Wednesday night after a car used in the robbery was found abandoned seven miles south of here. The car was believed stolen in Montreal.

Roadblocks were set up throughout eastern Ontario and in nearby Quebec points and police were reported looking for a blue and white 1965 Pontiac with Quebec licence plates, possibly driven by a fifth man who did not take part in the actual robbery.

FOLLOW PATROLL

Four bandits, armed with revolvers and a sub-machine-gun, entered the bank about 2 p.m. Wednesday just after an armored car had delivered a payroll for the Nestle's Canada Ltd. factory.

They forced the seven bank employees and one customer to kneel in the rear of the building as they scooped bills from three tellers' drawers of paper money. A second customer, Douglas Hall of Long Sault, Manchester, entered the bank while the robbers were at work and was grabbed from behind by a man watching the door.

"I shoved him against the wall and knocked him off balance," he said in an interview. "He shoved me back and told me to lie down. Then he saw the gun."

Armed Forces 'Integration' Not Completed

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department order "integrate" hasn't filtered all the way down through the armed forces yet.

"All army aircraft in Canada and Europe are kept on the flight line by army technicians," proudly declares The Beaver, a weekly paper published by the Canadian infantry brigade in West Germany.

Officials here said Wednesday that with the advent of Defence Minister Hellyer most mechanical trades in the three services will be consolidated so that there will no longer be separate organizations for such functions as aircraft maintenance.

The army has been flying light planes for nearly 25 years. But when it began obtaining helicopters several years ago it started training its own mechanics—at RCAF, navy and RCAF army schools—to take over the RCAF maintenance crews.

RECALL INCIDENT

There was an incident of a few years ago when the army's anti - aircraft unit was disbanded. The RCAF refused to accept the surplus army radar technicians, who were discharged from the service, and went to the trouble and expense of training its own.

The army once had an internal fight between the artillery and the electrical and mechanical engineers — about which corps would control missiles. This was concurrent with an argument between the army and RCAF over which branch of the service would control the Bomarc anti - aircraft missile. The RCAF won.

Ottawa Gives $350,000 On Second Bridge for Town

TRENTON — Trenton has moved one step closer to a second bridge across the Trent River by the announcement from Ottawa yesterday that $350,000 had been included in supplementary estimates for the year.

The money is being given to the town specifically for the upkeep and operation and eventual replacement of the swing portion of the present bridge. However, it will be used by the town to help finance the new million dollar bridge and the upkeep of the swing portion of the old bridge will be dealt with by the town on a year to year basis.

It has been estimated that the swing portion of the present bridge will cost the town around $8,000 annually. Provincial government grants will be available on this yearly outlay.

Land for the approaches to the new bridge has been acquired by the town for the most parts, (or options to buy have been signed by the town), but one "hold-out" on four east Trenton lots, R. J. (Dick) Whitley, has not yet accepted the town's offer. Council has made a move towards expropriation of the Whitley property, but has left the door open for negotiations.

Air Marshal Cross will be accompanied by five senior members of his staff.

Two Children Riding on Bike Escape Injury

TRENTON — Two children, riding "two on a bike" escaped with a shaking up yesterday afternoon when the vehicle went out of control on West Street and "wobbled" in front of a car. The boys, David Troy, 7, and Ricky Gunter, 6, were thrown to the pavement. David suffered a minor cut to his hand.

Sgt. Gordon Steenburg, Trenton Safety Officer warns parents to tell their children about the dangers of riding bicycles with passenger either on the handle bars or on the back of the vehicle.

Town May Extend Sewer Past School

TRENTON — Bent with fears that sanitation at the new V. P. Carswell Elementary School on Reid Street (due to open next September), might have to be handled by a septic tank, Trenton town council is trying to work out a deal with government agencies whereby part of the $13,000 cost of running a sewer from Sidney Street to the school would be borne by the Sidney Street sewer.

The question of whether or not the town can afford to proceed with the construction of Dundas Street East, between Bay Street and the town bridge, (a thorny one, in view of the $25,000 cost and "cutting off" of business establishments on the street during the week of work in process), almost settled itself in the view of some members of council last week when water from an overflow of inadequate storm sewers forced its way up through the pavement.

Pictures were taken of the resulting little confusion and will be presented to some of the members of council who have been little chesitant for the undertaking of the project this summer.

All Locks On System Now Open

TRENTON — A spokesman for the district Trent Canal System office said today the 44 locks between the mouth of the Trent River and Port Severn are all open for use and boats men will find no delay on a trip up the canal.

Repair work on the lift lock at Peterborough was delayed for several days at the beginning of the month, but lockmen made arrangements for boats to pass through.

At Swift Rapids, near the Port Severn outlet, replacing of a marine railway with a lock was two weeks behind schedule, but the lock was opened June 21.

The spokesman commented favorably on the co-operation shown by all canal personnel to the travelling public and said dozens of letters from boat owners were received each year, complimenting the lock masters and their assistants. These letters may be seen by interested persons at the Peterborough office.

Tweed and Picton Girls Crowned Dairy Princesses By Mayor Ellis of City

Linda Gunning, 18, of R.R. 1, Tweed, and Mary Whiteford, 18, of R.R. 3, Picton, were declared winners in the Dairy Princess competition last night at the Belleville arena.

Miss Gunning, who also won the competition last year, will now represent Hastings County in the Ontario finals at the Canadian National Exhibition, and Miss Whiteford will represent Prince Edward county.

The event, held in conjunction with Dairy Month celebrations, was held for the first time ever in Belleville. It had been scheduled for the Pinnacle Street parking lot, but rain forced it into the arena.

A crowd of about 1,000 saw the girls go through their paces in the race for top honors. While the competition was on, and outside the arena as well, ice cream, milk and cheese were distributed free to the people.

The contest itself consisted of three areas: an interview, a public address and the milking competition.

In the interview and public address, contestants were judged for posture and appearance, personality and deportment, knowledge and material, enunciation, grammar, extra-curricular activities, character and presentation. They had a possible score of 50 for the interview and address.

The milking competition, also marked out of a possible 50, consisted of 19 marks each for assembling and sanitizing the machine, milking and completeness of milking, cleaning and storing utensils, efficiency and time—each contestant is allowed 16 minutes to milk the cow.

JOINTLY SPONSORED

There were two competitors in the Prince Edward County event and four in the Hastings County event. Besides Miss Whiteford in Prince Edward, Barbara Dorsee, 17, of R.R. 8, Picton, competed. In the Hastings County event, runner-up to Miss Gunning, was Mrs. Isabella Shaw, 23, Eldorado, and the other two competitors, making a fine showing in their first attempts in the competition, were Patricia Shorey, R.R. 2, Frankford and Carol Sharpe, 19, R.R. 3, Stirling.

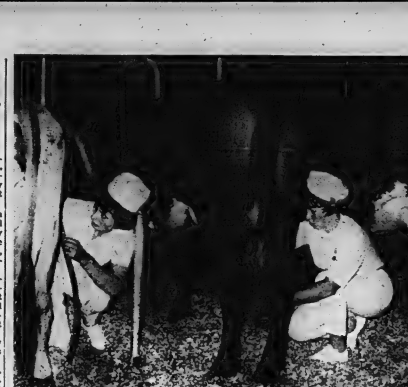
The competition was jointly sponsored by CJBQ, the Department of Agriculture, Picton Branch and the Department of Agriculture, Stirling Branch.

Mrs. Bernice Dickout, 1964 Oxford County Dairy Princess and runner-up in the Ontario competition at the CNE, narrated the milking competitions.

Mayor Jack Ellis of Belleville crowned the two dairy princesses and presented gifts to them. A. D. Cameron, manager, Bank of Montreal, presented watches to the winners on behalf of the Bank and Gordon Fox, chairman of the Dairy Princess Committee for Prince Edward County, and Doug Harry, chairman of the committee for Hastings County, also made presentations to the contestants.

JUDGES NAMED

Judges for the Hastings County competition were Ralph C. Banbury, retired agriculture representative, Northumberland, Jack Bain, Department of Agriculture, Toronto and G. E. Clarke, area field manager, Lennox-Addington and Prince Edward Counties.



Judges for the Prince Edward County competition were Frank Robinson and Keith Reynolds of the Dairy Branch, Department of Agriculture, Toronto and Garnet Mills, agriculture representative, Department of Agriculture, Napanee.

Also attending the Dairy Princess competition was Robert Temple, M.P., South Hastings and Edward Alkenbrack, M.P., Prince-Edward-Lennox.

After the competitions were finished, Bill Long and the Rythmaires, stars of CHUM TV in Hamilton, provided music and singing for entertainment and dancing.

THREE RESIGN

OTTAWA (CP) — Three officials earning upwards of $12,000 a year have resigned from the federal centennial commission in recent months, State Secretary Lamontagne reported Wednesday. They were Robert H. Hume, visual arts officer at $12,300; William McDonald, chief of ceremonials at $14,650, and Sam Cormier, chief of the cultural division at $15,300.

Carole Sharpe, left, and Patricia Shorey prepare their cows for milking at the Dairy Princess competitions last night at the arena. The girls were competing for the honor of representing Hastings County in the CNE Dairy Princess competitions. Two other contestants at the event competed for the crown in Prince Edward County.

Mayor Jack Ellis congratulates the Dairy Princesses after the competition at the arena. Linda Gunning, centre, was declared winner for Hastings and Mary Whiteford won the award for Prince Edward County.

Robert Temple, M.P. for South Hastings and Edward Alkenbrack, M.P. for Prince Edward-Lennox, watch Carol Sharpe of R. R. 3 Stirling assemble the milking machine at the Dairy Princess competition last night.

Authority Tries to Save Shade Tree

A "save the tree" program it being carried out by the Belleville Parking Authority for a large soft maple tree in its parking lot at the corner of Pinnacle and Campbell Sts.

When the Authority graded the lot the level of the ground was lowered and sections of the tree root system were uncovered. But there were fears the shock might kill the big shade tree.

So a corrugated metal retainer was placed about the tree trunk and the area filled with earth to provide protection for the roots.

Now the parking lot attendant has put his horticultural bent to use and has planted the ornamental planterbox with petunias.

"We hope the maple will live as it is a good shade tree," stated Parking Authority chairman Glencoe Thompson.

Belleville Will Play Host To 24 Saskatchewan Pupils

Following a very successful experimental Youth Travel project in 1964, the Departments of Education and Travel and Publicity of the Ontario Government are co-operating again with the Federal Government in a program for the summer of 1965.

Belleville has been selected as one of the rallying and reception points for the 1965 program. On July 5 a group of 24 students from Eastern Ontario will leave Belleville on a trip to British Columbia. And on Wednesday, July 21, a group of 12 boys' and 12 girls from Saskatchewan will arrive in Belleville, remaining until Wednesday, July 28.

Students visiting Belleville will be from the following municipalities in Saskatchewan: girls from Meadow Lake, Meskanow, Bjorkdale, Prince Albert, Weyburn, Birch Hills, Maidstone, Watson, Hudson Bay, Kelvington, Saskatoon, Regina, Rocanville, Griffin, Lipton, Shell Lake; boys from Broadhead, Moosbank, Herschel, Prince Albert, Yorkton, Richmond, Regina, Kamsack.

Belleville has been asked to provide billets for these 24 students who will be 15, 16 or 17 years of age in homes of students of the same age.

During the week a program, including bus trips, will be arranged and it is hoped that the host students will accompany their guests on these trips. There will be no costs involved for either hosts or guests on these tours.

In order to give each host (or hostess) an opportunity to become acquainted with his or her guest it has been suggested that no formal program be arranged for the visiting students on the Friday, Saturday or Sunday.

Residents who would be willing to provide accommodation for one of these students for the week of July 24 - 28 can obtain application forms from Mr. E. A. Orr, Bay of Quinte District High School Board Office, 23 College Street West, phone 962-4597.

Over Half Inch Of Rain Falls Wednesday Eve

The sponsors of yesterday's annual Hastings county dairy princess competition and dairy days dance hit it right on the nose yesterday when at noon they made the decision to move the entire proceedings indoors, because of the threat of rain.

And rain it did for about an hour and twenty minutes, commencing shortly after the dairy princess competition got underway at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

Then at 8:05 the skies suddenly opened and in the hour and twenty minutes which the storm lasted .23 inch of rain fell over the city.

Charges Laid By Inspector Humane Society

A Belleville-district man has been charged with gunshot wounding and causing unnecessary injury to cattle after they allegedly wandered onto his property.

Albert Fair, resident on Highway 2 just east of the city, today appeared briefly before Magistrate T. Y. Wills who set July 5 for hearing the two charges.

In all, five cattle were involved in the alleged incident, which occurred June 4.

Ontario Humane Society inspector Henry Brown was in court this morning to press the charges.

Mr. Fair requested the remand and said he was retaining a lawyer in his defence.

Summer Doldrums

The unofficial plan to have the Belleville downtown business area cleaned up along the same lines as the Norwich plan in England has apparently made little or no headway since it was broached some months ago.

Under the Norwich plan, the merchants of the English city in East Anglia got together and with a minimum of expenditure painted and redecorated the downtown area.

The Belleville architect who first broached the idea admitted no progress had been made toward getting such a plan under way here.

"We would like to see the thing going," he said. "I guess it takes a lot of prodding . . . perhaps we are in the summer doldrums."

Well maybe we are; a local contractor used almost the same terminology to describe activity on the local building scene. Yet it would be a good thing if such a plan could be adopted here.

Just as a lot of things would be good for Belleville. Reconstruction of Pinnacle Street, for example. The work is that the contract for the underground work is to be awarded in about two weeks' time and that tenders will then be called for the reconstruction work. This will not be a moment too soon for the remedying of a situation that reflects no credit on this community.

Tourism is another initiative that Belleville might do more to foster. This weekend a folk festival is being held in Madoc while Brockville opens its summer festival with a big downtown parade.

What is Belleville doing to attract the tourist? Some months ago Rotary and the schools sponsored a highly successful science fair and hobby show. Surely the same kind of initiative can be applied to summer projects.

Unnecessary Rudeness

"Manners Maketh Man" is a timeworn saying, but it is as true today as ever. In our workaday world good manners are often conspicuous by their absence, as rare perhaps as the English language used without recourse to slang, cliches and off-color phraseology.

Manners are as important in the business world as in home and family life. A recent expropriation case in the Toronto area, however, was indicative of the brusqueness that often characterizes the official mind.

According to The Ottawa Citizen, householders south of Streetsville near Toronto, received a letter from the University of Toronto informing them that their properties had been expropriated almost a month previously and explaining that the lands "are required to permit the future expansion of Erindale College and the various related developments which are not provided for in the original program."

"The shock to homeowners who have worked hard to develop their properties may well be imagined," the Citizen commented editorially. "Surely they are entitled to something better . . . an explanation disclosing why they received no advance notice." If it were a question of avoiding land speculation, then the homeowners should have been told, along with an expression of regret that expropriation was necessary, the newspaper went on.

All this is typical example of rudeness in official circles how much more apparent are similar instances in the everyday course of things.

Is it still true for example to say that the customer "is always right?" Are the people who supply the public with the services it requires, in stores and businesses, as solicitous of the public good and sensitive as they might be?

Are schoolchildren taught the consideration for others that makes life so much more agreeable for everyone, in youth and later on in life? Some youngsters were on their way to school the other day and two groups of boys strode along purposefully. Two small girls skipped along in the opposite direction. The boys, occupying the entire spread of the sidewalk, bore down on the girls who were forced to detour along front lawns as the lads swept by.

You can hold a door for a girl and she may thank you; but then again she may not and the whole spirit of the gesture is lost.

And what about those sombre occasions at the supermarket where it is every man for himself and people will stand and talk and block your way and it comes as a surprise when someone smiles and says "Excuse Me."

There is room in our society for a great deal more of the practice that makes sense of the saying "Manners Maketh Man."

Stopping Smoking Need Not Mean Gaining Weight

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please comment on the problem of gaining weight when one stops smoking. Is it true or not? Enclosed are 10 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your booklet, "Tips on How to Stop Smoking". —Mrs. G. A.

There's a real, down-to-earth question, because I have no doubt that a lot of people who otherwise would make the effort to stop smoking don't do so for fear of gaining weight. Or maybe a few just use that as an excuse.

So what are the facts? Smoking and gaining weight have no direct relationship. I know people who are as thin as rails and who never smoked. I know fat ones who smoke like chimneys.

Here's the real answer. It'll change that: Here are the two real answers.

First: A good many of us resort to some means of releasing tension when we get nervous. Some of us, in such cases, blow up and act like kids having a tantrum. We know we shouldn't but we do. It sort of clears the air. Or so we think.

Others of us get tense and we "relax with a cigarette."

Still others of us, when we feel the same way, eat. Or chew gum or go for a walk. Or do about a thousand things — anything to focus our attention on something else, so we can push aside whatever problem, large or small, is bugging us.

Smoking is very common habit — so is a lot of people smoke as a means of "doing something to take their minds off their worries."

Eating also is a very common habit. So a lot of people eat, not because they are hungry, but just to have something to do.

Well, that's the story. It's quite possible for the tension smoker to switch to some other simple little habit if he decides to quit tobacco. That's why some people add weight when they stop smoking. They start reaching for candy mints, or peanuts, or anything else with calories, instead of reaching for a cigarette. So if you stop smoking, but reach for 20 calories 20 times a day instead of reaching for a cigarette 20 times a day, you put on weight. That's the first reason.

Second: There are more people who quit smoking in their 30's or 40's or 50's or 60's, than quit when they are very young. We start the habit when we are young; we exercise our will power to quit when we are older.

When we are old enough to have to struggle to quit smoking, we're also approaching the age when we are starting to put on weight anyway! Less exercise, more eating.

Combine these two factors, and you can see why quitting smoking sometimes coincides with putting on weight. Once you know this, you can be on your guard.

If you trade one habit for another, you might stop smoking but start overeating. But if you know this can happen, you can avoid such a psychological swap.

Dear Dr. Molner; I am going with a 30-year-old man who was ruptured when he was 13. Would this keep us from having children? — In Doubt

In all probability, no. However he could get both your minds at rest by consulting his doctor about it.

Note to M.V.D.: Cushing's disease is overactivity of the adrenal glands, usually caused by a tumor. Once the adrenals are removed, cortisone must be given thereafter, to make up for what the adrenals no longer provide. This can — and must — continue permanently.

Excesses Destroy Privileged

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: The trouble with self-interest (even "intelligent" self-interest) as a guiding rule of conduct is that it is nearly always short-sighted, and rarely sees what is good for itself in the long run; thus, every privileged group in history has been destroyed not so much by its enemies as by its own excesses and blindness.

Can there be any relation between our Puritanical and hypocritical laws and the fact that the U.S. has the highest rate of rape and sex crimes in the world; while Japan, with 100 million people, has only three or four rape cases a year, and other sex crimes are practically unheard of?

Words are weapons, and it is as dangerous to misuse them as to polish a loaded gun at one's own head; for example, by stigmatizing as "socialized medicine" every government aid to medicine" every government aid to medicine" the phrase "socialized medicine" more palatable to the people, should it really come.

More than 2,000 years ago, Seneca the Younger anticipated the Freudian insight, when he wrote tersely, "All cruelty springs from weakness."

Knowledge of what is hidden in others gives us power over them; knowledge of what is hidden in ourselves makes us unwilling to use this power; for Socratic, "Know thyself" is not a means of attaining wisdom, but a prescription for acting justly toward others.

One of the pathetic differences between the sexes is that there are thousands of single women over 40 who would make excellent wives, but very few single men over 40 who would make good husbands; as time goes on, a woman learns to tolerate her spinsterhood, but a man begins to wallow in his bachelorhood.

What makes parenthood so difficult is that a child requires a subtle blend of love and discipline together — and what he usually gets is too much love without discipline, which makes him wild, and then too much discipline to correct the wildness, which only makes him confused and rebellious.

One of the finest religious observations was expressed by Martin Buber, in his "Tales of the Hasidim," when he quoted an old Rabbinical scholar as saying: "It is not the saints that are in Paradise, but Paradise that is in the saints."

Psychological quizzes designed to show just "what kind of person you are" only indicate what kind of person made up the quiz.

That old saw needs to be revised in modern times — nowadays, inventions are the mother of necessity, for as soon as something new is invented people find that we simply can't do without it.

Does anyone know where hotel and night club doormen in congested areas actually park all those cars?

Napoleon's fate was sealed 153 years ago today—in 1812 —when his army of 360,000 men began to cross the River Niemen, in East Prussia, for the epic advance on Moscow. The French population was already restive under conscription, and Napoleon's plan for a bold early success was spoiled by mass desertion and bad fodder for the cavalry horses. Though the battle of Borodino was militarily indecisive, the French troops were seriously penalized. After the winter retreat from Moscow, fewer than one-third of Napoleon's forces survived.

Ottawa Offbeat

Let Bygones Be Bygones Not Motto of the Old Chief

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — In politics it may safely be suggested, old hostilities never die . . . and seldom even fade away.

That "reconciliation" Conservative Leader Diefenbaker was supposed to have had the other day with Davie Fulton, his former Justice and Public Works Minister, must have been a dandy.

When asked directly about it initially, he brushed off all questions with a gruff reminder that such a conference was "private" and really "nobody's business but mine and Davie's."

And that took care of that — except that from the way the conversation drifted and a few hints the Diefenbaker staff dropped, it seemed that while there had been no wild embrace in emotional scene of forgiveness, at least there could have been a new and perhaps sympathetic understanding.

Too, the impression was left that while John Diefenbaker was still no swinging Fulton fan, and likely would do little, if anything to give him a handup into the leadership, he would not deliberately or knowingly put anything in his way.

And this Davie Fulton could regard as positively helpful, for John Diefenbaker would be taking no such neutrality-friendly action in the case of some other leadership aspirants — for he would, in hard fact, be out to clobber them.

SOME RECONCILIATION

Such was the clear impression left with this reporter in a short solo interview with the Conservative Leader on his 30-minute supposed "reconciliation" conference with Davie Fulton.

But somewhere, somehow, the signals must have been crossed.

Certainly there was no reconciliation.

For as things are turning out now, that wasn't quite the way it finally seems to have shaped up.

Five days after that first interview, this reporter, upon returning to John Diefenbaker's office for another fencing match of question and answer —

Or did he?

This is how it went, after discussion of several other topics:

Q. You saw Davie the other day?

A. I did.

Q. What do you think of his leadership aspirations?

A. I think the same as the people of British Columbia thought of Bennett.

Q. But in the provincial election he didn't elect a single member to the Legislature, not even himself.

A. Correct.

Q. Oh, then that's the way it is, and that's different.

A. Well, you see, he did get 10 percent of the vote in that election, didn't he?

Q. 10% Social Credit?

Q. But 10 percent of a vote isn't much.

A. No, it isn't, is it?

Q. In fact, it's pretty, awful. A. You think so?

Q. Then you don't think much of him or his chances?

A. I didn't say that. I said I think the same as the people of British Columbia thought of him.

Now, John Diefenbaker is a mercurial man, almost unpredictable, highly emotional, often deeply sentimental.

But as a trained lawyer and a professional politician of his life, he has an instinct for carefully choosing his words and phrasing with care.

And he is a very hard case.

Tough. ~

And he doesn't easily forgive or soon forget.

Was he misunderstood, this second time with the reporters along, as he was the first time when only the one talked to him?

The two correspondents, just a little shaken by the implacability of the man, checked their notes, and their impressions.

Their note-talled.

Poor Davie.

When he told an Ottawa press conference yesterday that he knows now he should never have left the Capital and his place in Federal politics and the National Conservative Party, he was not fooling.

The Old Chief isn't letting bygones be bygones all that easily.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Early history of the United Church in Belleville and also of the Tabernacle Church is contained in a concise historical sketch made up into book form which has been published by Rev. A. J. William Myers, pastor at Tabernacle Church.

Authentic early history of the church apparently is not obtainable other than that the Methodist Episcopal Church first began its work in the "Bay of Quinte" area in 1790 with a circuit rider preacher being commissioned to "range at large" in the Quinte area. In 1817, Belleville became a separate circuit and embraced the township of Murray, Sidney, Thurlow, Percy and Rawdon. First Methodist Episcopal church was built in Belleville in 1818 although no deed could be found until 1831.

The present Tabernacle Church property was purchased in 1873 and the building erected in 1877, according to the date on the west facade.

Reference is also made in the historical sketch of the Belleville Seminary, now Albert College.

Members of the Masonic Order from this city and district to the number of 250 observed the anniversary of St. John the Baptist by attending John Street United Church Sunday morning. Welcome was extended to the members of the Order by the pastor and the sermon was delivered by the District Chaplain of the Order, Bishop Marshall of Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church.

From the long copy at this time in 1893: "The Corawall Canal was opened to traffic today."

From our file copy at this time in 1883: "Ties and rails for the Belleville West railway branch are being distributed along Front Street and the work of construction is to be pushed along rapidly. The men employed on the job, who are being paid $1 per day, went to work this morning for $1.25 per day and their demand was granted."

Chou Gets Brush-off

Montreal Gazette

Chinese diplomacy has just suffered a remarkable setback in Africa. China's Premier, Chou En-lai, recently paid a four-day visit to Tanzania, which was to be the beginning of an extensive African tour, ending in Chou's triumphant arrival at the Afro-Asian conference in Algiers.

But, after his visit to Tanzania Chou found he no where else to go. No other African country wanted him. He has therefore flown back to China.

Surprising as it may seem, the Chinese have been strangely naive about their prospects in Africa. China's diplomats and other officials have gone into East Africa as the spokesmen for revolution, under instructions to do what they can to make East Africa a Chinese base for the subversion of the entire continent.

What is naive is that the Chinese government seems to have thought that East African governments would welcome his activity, even though this would have meant welcoming their own overthrow.

Yet apparently the Chinese are not only expected this to happen they even expected Chou To-lai, Chinese Premier and one of those responsible for the Chinese campaign in Africa, to be enthusiastically welcomed by his future victims.

That Chinese motives are well understood was shown recently in Kenya, where Premier Kenyatta and other high politicians rejected Communism in unequivocal terms. As Tom Mboya put it: "We have made it clear we reject the ideology of Communism . . . We would be a repudiation of our independence if we were to give the impression that Kenya was available to any of the Communist countries for experimentation with their ideology and doctrines."

Co-operation In Maritimes

Saint John Telegraph-Journal

A spontaneous surge of resolutions seeking closer active cooperation among the four Atlantic Provinces was a highlight of the 1963 Maritime Board of Trade meeting in Saint John.

They urged greater uniformity of time, school curricula, motor laws and highways to help avoid difficulty and inconvenience.

This is a significant trend.

It shows that even though political union of two or all of the Atlantic Provinces may still be far off, people today are seriously thinking of what can be gained from working together.

The four resolutions provide excellent practical examples.

Another illustration of the trend of the times was Premier Louis J. Robichaud's statement that the services of the New Brunswick Research and Productivity Council are available to other provinces of the Atlantic region. This may be especially helpful to Prince Edward Island, which does not have extensive research facilities.

New Brunswick recently adopted Daylight Saving as its official time "getting ahead" all. Elsewhere in the Atlantic area you may find different dates for the change-over. Regional or mixed situations such as formerly prevailed here. The numerous differences are awkward for business.

This is a mobile age, when families often change residence from province to province. Because of differing school courses and standards, this frequently penalizes the children. Obviously, needless variations should be weeded out.

Liquor laws take all sorts of twists and turns as a tourist travels around the Atlantic area. He can be arrested in one province for what is legal in entirely legal in another. Surely, even without political amalgamation, the provincial and liquor authorities could bring their regulations closer together.

Where Money Went

Port Arthur News-Chronicle

During 1964, $20 billion passed across the counters of retail business in Canada, equal to about $1,000 of every man, woman and child. Supermarkets and smaller food and beverage sellers got $5.9 billion. Car dealers, garage and service stations got $4.2. So it seems that more than half of what we spend is on stuff to eat and drink and a car to bring it home in.

Hog Prices Fall Sharply At Stockyards

TORONTO (CP)—Hog prices fell $1.05 for 100 pounds at the Ontario public stockyards Wednesday.

The drop came after almost two months of rising hog prices that reached an eight - year high last week.

Grade A hogs closed at $26.65 for 100 pounds Tuesday on public stockyards. Wednesday, the price asked for the last load was $25.75. The load did not sell at that price, but finally went for $25.60.

J. R. Kohler, general manager of the sales division of Ontario Hog Producers Marketing Board, said the lower price could be the start of a downward trend.

Firearm Instruction For Teen-agers in Schools Recommended by Jury

Firearm instruction for teen-agers should be added to standard high school safety courses, a coroner's jury recommended in Belleville last night.

The jury also "strongly recommended" such lessons as it found six-year-old David Murray Wright, Auburn Street, fatally shot himself with a .22-calibre rifle while hunting May 15.

Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott said the recommendation would be forwarded to the Minister of Education.

"If lessons along with other recommendations it will probably be carried out," he added.

Earlier, Dr. Scott had suggested the jurors consider such a move as one way of reducing hunting nature. Any one that does occur is unnecessary," he said.

The hearing was told the Wright youth shot himself through the heart while hunting with Quinte Secondary School chum, David George Huffman, 15, on the Huffman family farm along Thurlow township's seventh concession.

David Huffman said he was using his brother's .22-calibre semi-automatic rifle, while he had borrowed a friend's bolt-action rifle for young Wright.

SAID EXPERIENCED

He had been hunting for several years while the Wright youth earlier had told him he too, was experienced.

He said they both loaded cartridges in the breeches of the rifles outside the farmhouse and set off across a pasture toward a fence.

"David was behind me", he recalled, "I got over the fence — I forgot what we were talking about".

"... I heard a shot and I turned around to see him falling off the fence".

"Did he say anything at that time?" assistant Crown Attorney John Lennox asked.

"I think he said 'Oh Dave, I'm shot' — or something", the youth replied.

"What happened then?"

"I climbed back over the fence and tried to help him".

Here, recollection of the fatal incident visibly upset the young witness. He visibly paled and a provincial police officer hastily placed a chair in the box and opened the youth's collar.

"It's just as good to get it off your chest, and get it all over", Dr. Scott soothed. "That's quite a normal reaction".

Huffman continuing his account, said he took his friend's arm and they both started running back to the farmhouse. On the way the Wright youth complained of being weak and collapsed to the ground.

TAUGHT SON

Huffman's father who had spotted them from his tractor, then came on the scene.

The youth recalled the elder Huffman warning them moments before to "watch out for farmers — there'll be a lot of them in the fields."

Charles Huffman said he had taught his sons to handle a rifle.

"Ever since they've been big enough to hold one I've showed them how to use it, and use it safely — to the best of my ability."

He recalled warning both youths to exercise care as they passed his tractor in the field. He did not hear any shot above the noise of the machine but heard his son yelling.

He saw both boys running away from the fence and Wright subsequently collapsing struggling to come upright then, slumping to the ground again.

He dashed over and "asked David What Did he could ride me piggy back to the house and he didn't answer. So I just picked him on and started out," said Mr. Huffman.

"He was breathing was he at this stage?" queried Mr. Lennox.

"Yes," said the elder Huffman, adding he was about 200 yards with Wright when he noticed the gun wound. He figured "there was no hope" and laid him on the ground and ran on to the house for a blanket.

PHONED FOR DOCTOR

"My wife had phoned a doctor and couldn't get the doctor — and the doctor's secretary had advised her to phone an ambulance and get the boy to hospital," testified Mr. Huffman.

He did not think the boy was breathing when he returned with the blanket. He heard the ambulance driver on arrival about 15 minutes later refused to move the body and instead phoned for a coroner and police.

Dr. Scott pointed out that the youth's heart probably had ceased beating long before his breathing — as a reflex action — had stopped.

Belleville General Hospital pathologist Dr. Alex Rota said the bullet apparently travelled into the youth's hand, passed out his forearm and into his heart.

Police Constable F. C. Uren, said he discovered a small branch snapped off a young tree at the shooting scene, but stating it might have marked the rifle trigger. However, he warned such an explanation was only mere supposition.

The jury — which included one woman — spent nearly an hour to bring in its verdict.

Jurors were William M. Forestell, Allen W. Gray, Shirley Batchelor, Garnet Peacock and Frank McKay.

Belleville Livestock

Trade was steady and price fairly good on most classes of livestock on offer Tuesday. Fat steers and heifers were steady. Good cows, common and medium cows were easier. Choice veal calves were steady, common and medium calves were lower. Weaned pigs were steady and shoats were active. There was a fair demand for good springers with the medium sellling under pressure.

Following are quotations:

Good heifers 19 to 21; medium 17 to 18; common 15 to 16.

Good cows 15 to 16; heifers cows as high as 17; medioms 13 to 14; common and cutters 11 to 13.

Good heavy bologna bulls 17 to 18; medioms 15 to 17; common 13 to 14.

Good stocker calves 21 to 23.

Choice veal 27 to 31; good 24 to 26; medium 21 to 23; common 18 to 21; boners 14 to 18.

Grade A hogs 27 to 28¼ on live weight basis.

Shoats 28 to 30; weaned pigs $12 to $16 each.

Good springers $225 to $260 each.

Small type heifers $140 to $200 each.

Cheese Exchange

A total of 12,325 square cheese and 3700 large regular cheese were offered on the Belleville Cheese Exchange this week. Also offered were 5,994 first grade and 1,352 undergrade specials.

The average price for large regular white cheese was 41.5 cents per lb., and for colored 41.8 cents. Square cheese sold at 41.5 cents for both white and colored with first grade squares subject to a premium.

PRODUCE MARKET

Butter prices: Agricultural Stabilization Board tenderable cartons: Grade A 40 score 53; buying 30 score 54; selling 55.

Belleville Council appointed committee charged with planning for a centennial project for Zwick's Island, but so far there has been no action toward planning for any program to help the city celebrate Canada's 100th birthday in 1967.

And according to officials of the Ontario Centennial Planning Branch heading up yesterday's centennial planning conference in Belleville, the time is getting short.

Yesterday only four city residents — two of them members of city council — attended the planning conference. The purpose of the Conference was to give local committees ideas for staging centennial celebrations.

Municipal officials, businessmen, representatives of women's and other organizations were invited, but attendance from the city was disappointing.

The meeting covered the area from Colborne to Odessa, all of Prince Edward and north to Madoc and Tweed.

One of the Belleville representatives at yesterday's planning conference was Alderman Tom Lally, chairman of the city council centennial project committee.

A firm of planning engineers has been retained to plan a project for Zwick's Island and this will be presented to city council for approval at a special meeting on July.

Others from Belleville attending yesterday's conference were Alderman Enos David, Mrs. Ed Logan and Mrs. Ralph Graham.

6TH BELLEVILLE PACK

The 6th Belleville Cub Packs "A" and "B" along with their leaders had a very pleasant two day camp at Sagamaha last weekend.

They were encamped on the Oneida and Cayuga campsites.

A few leaders and service Grant went out on Friday to pitch the tents and prepare the area.

At 8 a.m. the Cubs gathered at the church to become part of a motorcade for the trip out.

On arrival at camp there was a Grand Howl, flag break and the official camp opening.

Seven boys and one leader were assigned to each tent.

A scramble to change to camp gear followed. Names were chosen for each group, pennants made, craft work started and some groups went rambling and swimming.

After a delicious turkey supper prepared and served by the Mothers' Auxiliary, the boys had a quick cleanup and prepared for the camp fire.

The parents began to arrive and the camp fire was lit by a former Scout and camp leader, Don Douglas, who used one match and one can of lighter fluid.

Bedtime was followed by a quick dawn and Sunday morning.

The mothers had breakfast ready at seven and everyone was furnished.

The boys then prepared for chapel service and a Cub's Own. Mr. John Babiak was in charge of the service. The Cubs and leaders from 15th Belleville were invited to join in the march to the Chapel which is in a wooded ravine.

A Cub from "A" Pack Steven Douglas sang a beautiful solo.

After the march back the swim group went swimming. Lunch of hot dogs and drinks followed by a general clean up of the area and break up of a very successful Cub Camp when parents arrived to collect their boys.

Thanks are extended to all the mothers who fed the group, to the service scouts, to "Mac" McCleland, John Babiak, Don Douglas, David Abey, the leaders from both Packs and to Bill Adams for the use of his truck. The weather was most co-operative too and everyone looks forward to another camp next year.

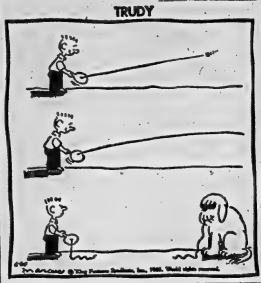
Road Work Proceeding as Scheduled



MADOC — Construction work in the village is proceeding to schedule. One lane traffic is causing slight delays through the main highway. However, storm sewers have been installed on No. 62 Highway and on No. 7 Highway, east of Russell Street. Curbs and sidewalks have been laid on the north side of St. Lawrence St. from the creek to the old post office. On the south side of St. Lawrence Street the curb is in from the bridge to the four corners and the sidewalks in this area will be completed this week. The curb is in as far as the Legion Hall, east of Durham St.

The hill at the Co-op on Russell St. has been cut down, also the one on No. 7 Highway in front of the Free Methodist church and in front of Kel Kincaid's residence. East St. Lawrence St., is being widened, which necessitated the removal of several large trees. This construction in the business area of the village will be completed by the end of the month and all but the finished coat of paving completed in this area by that date.

Some people buy a '65 Studebaker for love. Some for the money.

There are 28 other reasons!

The 1965 Studebaker is an attractively-styled car. And an attractively-priced car. But if you'd like more persuasive reasons for buying one, read on.

Without even asking, you get a heavy-gauge steel body, sturdy Arrow-Guard frame construction for added safety and longer life, padded dashboard, full instrumentation, luxury interiors with door-to-door rugs (on many models), Dual-System safety brakes, big 15" wheels for less tire wear, aluminized rustproofing, windshield washers — all standard equipment. And lots more besides.

In the Daytona Sports Sedan you even get a transistorized ignition system too, at no extra cost. That means instant ignition with sure-fire starts, far longer life for plugs and points, less frequent tune-ups. Available in all other Studebaker models for very little more.

All this, plus a choice of two great new engines — a super thrifty six and a fleet-footed V-8. Both are misers on gas — regular gas!

So, if looks alone won't sell you, and money is no object, there are many more reasons for buying Studebaker.

Come in — take a look, take a ride, make a deal.

Mayor McFarland Praises Work of Salvation Army

House

mons observed today's St. Jean Baptiste Day holiday.

Mr. Sauve regretted that all provinces hadn't taken advantages of federal legislation to set up crop insurance programs. Only Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island had done so.

Aid to farmers hit by crop failures was largely a provincial matter. But he felt Ottawa would be prepared to provide financial support in this case.

RINTS AT MORATORIUM

He indicated the Farm Credit Corp. will implement a moratorium, something suggested by several speakers, on loan repayments.

He hoped federal legislation might eventually authorize aid to farmers hit by crop disasters.

Jack Horner (PC — Acadia) attacked the absent agriculture minister by saying he had a knack for being away when most needed.

Mr. Sauve protested that the drought was a serious matter and shouldn't be used to make political points.

Several members suggested freight assistance for moving fodder. Andrew Brewin (NDP—Timiskaming) said Ottawa might help move cattle to his area, where a community pastures might help handle 10,000 to 12,000 head.

Reaction to the Ontario government's announcement that a $200,000 rain - making program will be started was dubious.

Mr. Horner noted that it wouldn't show results for 20 days. If only 25 per cent of the hay crop remained now, what would be left then?

HE'S DOUBTFUL

He was doubtful about rainmaking after watching such efforts for several years in his riding.

Mr. Greene said that even if it was a 100-to-1 shot, it should be tried and he urged federal aid to Ontario's program.

Gerard Laprise (Creditiste—Chapleau) recalled that Quebec's Abitibi region had lots of rain last year and farmers suffered enormous losses as a result of such programs.

"It seems that when this sort of thing starts, it is very difficult to stop."

He suggested rainmaking be left to providence.

Both Mr. Peters and Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste — Lapointe) wondered why rainmaking machinery from Lake St. John region in Quebec wasn't moved to the Ottawa Valley. A Texas firm has been hired to do the job here.

The Lake St. John area had suffered from too much rain and recent political pressure ended the rainmaking program there.

The holiday for St. Jean Baptiste is the first time under new Commons rules that the House will not sit June 24. However, it is only a Commons holiday. Most civil servants will be at their desks and only the staff directly concerned with the Commons will get the day off.

PRIEST SHOT

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — A Canadian Roman Catholic priest was shot and killed Wednesday in the Dominican Republic. The family of Rev. Arthur H. MacKinnon, 32, of nearby Victoria Mines, was notified of the shooting in Santo Domingo, but no details were known here.

PICTON (Staff) — The Divisional Salvation Army Camp at Roblin Lake was officially opened Tuesday night by His Worship Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton.

The camp, situated in the village of Ameliasburg, has been in operation for over 35 years and over this time many improvements have been made. The camp now boasts a large dining room, several new cabins and a camp hospital.

Mayor McFarland in his opening address had only high praise for the work of the "Army" and particularly the Roblin Lake Camp. "When you have a wonderful summer and may God guard over every child," he said.

Mayor McFarland was introduced by Captain H. Bourc of Peterborough who said that Mayor McFarland was one of the founders of the camp along with the late Senator Bresse of Trenton. Since that time he has been one of the leading supporters of the camp and has done much to aid in its improvement.

The special guest for the evening was Warden Bernard Hepburn who brought greetings from the County of Prince Edward. He said that it was the first time that he had visited the camp but he knew of the Salvation Army's good work. "As it says in the Salvation Army's standard Hepburn, 'you have always placed the needs of others above your own.' May God bless you and keep up the good work."

Mrs. Ethel Hepburn of the Red Shield Campaign committee were present with their wives. Jesse Hawley, Wellington and Jack Lelleup, all members of a Picton Kiwanis Club, gave their support to the evening campaign and were thanked by the Salvation Army for their contributions.

The first group to use the camp this year is the Women's Home League who will be spending four or five days there conducting meetings. Thanks were expressed to the Home League for the donations they have made to the camp in the way of equipment and furnishings.

This is the Salvation Army's Centenary year. The organization was formed in the east end of London, (Eng.) in 1865.

Bus Contracts To Be Subject Of Discussion

PICTON (Staff) — A special meeting has been called for tonight, Thursday, at the Prince Edward Collegiate and Vocational School at 8 p.m. The high school board, in view of the discussion which has been raised over the issue of school bus contracts, have decided to hold an open meeting at which the school bus contracts will be the topic.

The board vice-chairman Mr. J. Collyer has authorized to secure a neutral chairman for the meeting and Mr. Donald Barter of Bloomfield has agreed to act in this capacity.

SEMINAR SET

KINGSTON (CP) — Eight high school students representing schools from eastern Ontario will attend the annual United Nations seminar here this week.

Queen

Pipe Major Delarpee has been joined by Pipe Major John Wakefield of the Toronto Scottish. Together they will play the morning pipes on the lawn outside her window.

IS WELCOMED

Tonight's banquet with the regiment and the Empire Club will be traditional men's dinner—the most formal affair of the visit and for "gentlemen only." The Scottish Mother is expected to speak briefly.

Passengers who had travelled with the Queen Mother Wednesday, in the economy section of her Air Canada plane from London, strained to watch her from a special roped-off area as the royal passenger walked over the important visitors bridge at the airport.

They said later the Queen Mother had come through the portal dividing economy and first-class passengers about an hour before her plane touched down in Toronto.

She smiled, waved, and then walked part way down the aisle talking to people who had shared her eight-hour journey. Queen Mother Elizabeth was a diminutive figure in her vivid green silk dress and matching coat with green flowered hat and as she walked among the tall pipers and drummers of the Toronto Scottish.

She smiled and chatted informally as she inspected the guard of honor in their bodden grey kilts, their cross-belts and medals glittering.

After inspecting the guard and pausing to wave to the applauding spectators, she walked back over the cream - colored plaza amid fluttering flags—Union Jacks, the new Canadian flag and modified Ontario red ensign — to meet other dignitaries.

They included Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp and Mrs. Sharp, representing Prime Minister Pearson who is at the Commonwealth prime ministers conference in London; Canadian born publisher Lord Thomson of Fleet, honorary colonel of the Toronto Scottish; Ontario Premier John Robarts, and Toronto Mayor Philip Givens and Mrs. Givens.

Frances Learmont, 12, presented the Queen Mother with a bouquet of pink carnations and white orchids. Frances is the daughter of Lt.-Col. John D. Learment, a native of Truro, N.S., and commanding officer of the Toronto Scottish.

The Queen Mother, then departed for Windfields, where two Union Jacks greeted her arrival, to rest for the evening.

Saturday's schedule includes visit to the Royal Ontario Museum, Women's College Hospital and Woodbine Racetrack, where she will present the 30 "Queen's Guineas" to the winners of the plate.

Sunday, she will attend a private morning service at St. James Cathedral, lunch in the officer's mess of Fort York Armory, attend divine service of "the laying up of the old colors" at Bloor Presbyterian Church and take the regiment's salute on the front campus of the University of Toronto.

She will depart from Toronto International Airport aboard the Canadian government's RCAF Yukon for England.

vehicles were deployed at various spots along the highway.

Reports persisted that civil airline pilots flying through the corridors to Berlin reserved for Western planes have spotted increasing Soviet jet activity near their planes.

U.S. officials said they had no reports of the jet activity.

WANT A CAPTURE

Allied authorities were reported studying ways to force down East German helicopters without endangering any lives, if the craft continue to fly over West Berlin.

"The first consideration in any counter-measures we may want to take is that we do not want to kill or hurt anybody—either on the ground, or our own people or the crew of the Communist chopper," a knowledgeable source said today.

Throughout last week, an armed helicopter with East German markings flew along the Berlin Wall and West Berlin's borders. On Friday, it flew over two U.S. Army installations in West Berlin. On Monday, East German helicopters flew for a brief period along the border.

The allies said they are "seriously concerned" because the flights violated a four - power rule that only U.S., British, French and Russian planes have a right to fly over Berlin.

Capture of an East German crew would give the allies a chance to force the Russians into negotiating for its release. This would constitute an admission of responsibility for the Communist actions in the divided city. The Russians contend that the East German government is a sovereign regime, but the allies refuse to negotiate with it.

WITHDRAW PICKETS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Typographical Union (CLC) Wednesday withdrew pickets from companies and stores that advertise in The Telegram, one of Toronto's three daily newspapers struck by the union 11 months ago. The action followed a court order restraining picketing of Bad Boy's Appliances, an advertiser in The Telegram. Three other firms — Lyons Furniture, Ontario Automobile and City of Cars Ltd. — had applied for injunctions.

Special Cells In Prisons May Be Abandoned

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says Justice Minister Favreau may redesign or even abandon four special detention units for Canada's most troublesome convicts.

The paper describes the proposed units as one-storey outer walls enclosing windowless cells with overhead bars and catwalks for guards.

Information over the units, the paper says, prompted the justice minister to write W. T. McGrath, executive secretary of the Canadian Corrections Association, that he was considering "halting the construction" of one unit "or postponing the construction" of units in other regions of Canada.

A $2,200,000 unit is being built at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary near Montreal and smaller models of the design are being built at Millhaven, near Kingston penitentiary, Dorchester, N.B., and Prince Albert, Sask., the paper reports.

LIKE ALCATRAZ

The paper says Mr. McGrath compared the special units to Alcatraz in the United States, which was closed several years ago.

The U.S. has moved away from this . . . so we are only building them," the paper quotes him.

Prisoners in these special detention units would go insane in a few months, Mr. McGrath said.

The Globe and Mail also quotes Dr. Bruno Cormier, professor of psychiatry at McGill University and chief of psychiatric services at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, who, the paper says, protested personally to Mr. Favreau after he saw the plans last month.

The special cells "create a shame in the 20th century. I don't know of any other place in the world that builds cells like that," Dr. Cormier said.

Fred Wilson of Hamilton, newly - elected president of the association, told delegates at the annual convention that substitution had been recommended by the Hall royal commission on health services as a way to reduce drug prices.

But delegates felt that even a study of the idea might convey the impression that the association was in favor of the idea.

Some research projects of drug manufacturers and their multiple price policy were blamed for the high prices.

Under the multiple pricing policy, hospitals and government institutions are allowed to purchase large amounts of drugs at vastly reduced prices. The drugs are sold to pharmacists at higher prices.

SEES SUBSIDY

Mr. Wilson claimed that if hospitals buy below cost and the public must buy from drug stores, this is subsidizing the price paid by the hospital.

Delegates approved another resolution offering to supply drugs to welfare and indigent patients on a cost plus nominal fee, which would be paid by the Ontario government.

Pharmacists are already supplying all hypodermic agents—insulin—to indigent patients in co-operation with the Ontario health department.

The resolution asked that in any expansion of medical insurance benefits, the government use the services of existing pharmacies.

A resolution calling for poison labels on all poisonous drugs was also passed.

SOLD WITHOUT LABELS

The convention was told there is evidence that some poisonous and toxic substances are still being sold without such labels.

Earlier, O. J. Phillips, vice-president of the Soapbox and Sons Ltd. said the pharmacist is fast replacing the physician as the patient's confidant.

He said: "I know that many pharmacists feel they should not be giving specific medical advice to the public. But by the same token, perhaps too many doctors do their own dispensing of drugs without the expert counselling of a pharmacist."

Mr. Phillips said the pharmacist is the only one the patient can turn to as increased government - subsidizing of health services makes hospitals overcrowded, doctors too busy and treatment impersonal.

In Toronto, Dr. Arthur E. Kelly, general secretary of the Canadian Medical Association said he was confident that there is only true in a few minor businesses.

The Experts Say

Feet Should Receive More Medical Checkups

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — "In most cases children are born with their foot problems," says a Toronto podiatrist. "But people blame them on shoes all their lives."

Dr. W. A. Laine, a member of the board of the Ontario Podiatry Association, says that often the feet are overlooked entirely in a medical checkup.

"You should have a child's feet checked once or twice a year, especially if you notice one of several things.

"If his shoes are wearing unevenly or a child is walking awkwardly; if he is nervous or irritable; if he complains of fatigue and wants to take his shoes off all the time; if his feet perspire excessively—any of these might be a sign of foot trouble."

Untended foot troubles can affect the whole body, Dr. Laine says. A foot out of balance can affect your muscles, your posture, your knees and even give you headaches. For these reasons, early treatment is important.

Leg cramps may be another warning sign.

"There is no such thing as growing pains. The cramps are the result of lack of oxygen in the muscles due to foot strain or muscle imbalance."

There are a number of dos and don'ts which will help keep healthy feet healthy, whether young or old.

"You should wear dress shoes for dress, play shoes for play and work shoes for work. There are people who wear dress shoes all the time, children who are allowed to wear sneakers constantly, women who always wear broken-down shoes at home. These are bad habits."

AVOID TIGHT SOCKS

Dr. Laine recommends round toe orlords for general wear for children, and cotton or fine wool socks that are not too tight.

"Shoes should be kept in good repair and checked frequently for size. Children grow sporadically, not on a predictable pattern. You can check shoe size yourself by putting talcum in the shoe or you can see where the child's toes are reaching. Or most shoe stores will check for you.

"You should not allow x-ray shoe fitting. It is cumulative and potentially damaging. A good shoe-fitter shouldn't need it."

Dr. Laine says you should not believe in so-called corrective shoes. "No one shoe is corrective for all feet. That is a misnomer."

He says children should be allowed to run barefoot only on yielding surfaces such as sand or grass because hard surfaces can injure heels or cause foot strain.

He stresses the importance of washing feet every day and of getting professional care for foot problems.

"People should not treat their feet with harsh medications," or try to treat corns or callouses themselves.

"Most corns and callouses are an indication of foot problems, rather than the actual problem. They are nature's way of trying to protect an area that is getting too much pressure."

Dr. Laine says a good set of general exercises, done regularly, will also help keep feet healthy by helping to keep circulation, leg muscles and posture good.

Mother's Helper

A GOOD stiff nail brush kept on the bathroom bowl may be an incentive for your child to keep his hands clean. Teach him to soap it first and scrub in warm water. Demonstrate what a help the brush is. Children are born mimics!

World's Needs Should Be Part of Woman

TORONTO (CP) — Today's professional woman should combine traditional mothering skills with work-a-day competence and turn her attention to the world's needs, Mrs. L. E. Lynch of Toronto said Wednesday.

She was addressing a meeting at the annual Canadian Dietetic Association convention.

Mrs. Lynch, chairman of the board of the Queen Victoria School of Nursing, said no matter what their professional training, women have personal training men do not have. Their traditional training for homemaking and motherhood, she said, encourages women to achieve understanding of other people, to be aware of suffering, of social injustice, to be interested in the community.

"This is the traditional pattern and it is slow to change. Perhaps we will not want the woman now like a man' when we have her. For the moment, this is our inheritance, and skills we work to establish our new role, we had best perform the old one well. Our domestic responsibilities aside, we must use every bit of our feminine heritage in our professional work.

"This, it seems to me is what professional women can best contribute to today's world."

It was announced that Margaret Clarke of Toronto has been appointed the first executive director of the 42-year-old association. Miss Clarke, formerly with Toronto Western Hospital, will make her headquarters in Toronto.

Ann Landers

Expectant Mother Should Select Obstretician Herself

DEAR ANN LANDERS: — I was married last December and have just learned that we will be having a child in several months.

This evening my husband said in a matter-of-fact tone, "Of course we will save money on doctor bills because my father will see you through the pregnancy and deliver the baby." I became thoroughly unhinged by this suggestion. I told my husband I am very fond of his father and that I respect his competence as a physician but because of the intimacy of this type of relationship I could not bring myself to go to him as a patient.

ANN LANDERS

My husband says I am immature and that his father will be hurt if we engage another physician. Who is right and who is wrong? You are going to decide for us. — WISCONSIN READER.

DEAR READER — The relationship between a woman and her obstetrician is a very special one. The choice should be yours, and yours alone.

If your husband is a "leaner" (and I suspect he is) it would be unwise to get his father into the act for still another reason. A young man should not be haunted by the fear that he couldn't even bring a child into the world without his father's help.

* *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My oldest daughter who is 12 has developed a terrible habit of lying. She makes up tall stories about herself, her friends and her family. As a rule they are not stories that would hurt anyone, but they are lies nonetheless.

I've tried reasoning with her, taking away privileges and spanking her. It's like talking to a rock. I'm afraid my three younger daughters will pick up her habit of lying if something isn't done soon.

Why must a 12-year-old be the centre of attraction wherever she goes? This girl believes she must be first in all things. Please don't tell me she has had too much attention and is spoiled. My children came very close together and no child received more attention or love than another. I treat them all the same.

I am at my wits ends trying to deal with this lying girl. Can you help me? — PUZZLED MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER — Chronic lying is a symptom of insecurity. Your daughter lies because she feels unloved and unimportant. She is trying to build herself by telling startling stories.

Your hostility toward the girl and your defensiveness about your feelings is apparent in your letter.

I suggest that you get professional help. Perhaps when you learn why you feel as you do, your attitude towards her will improve and she will stop lying.

* *

Awkward and self-conscious? Unsure of yourself? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "They Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

KINETTE CLUB

TWEED — Tweed Kinette Club held their first meeting of the year in the form of a pot-luck supper at the cottage of Mrs. Myrtle Quinn on Stoco Lake. After supper there was a short business meeting with the president, Mrs. Marlene Spencer presiding. During the meeting a donation of $100. was made to the Tweed Recreational Committee to help with the expenses of the Jiffy guard. Mrs. Shirley Smith gave a report on the convention.

Several guests, Mrs. Yvonne Whalen, Mrs. Beryl Vance, Mrs. Vi Smith, Mrs. E. Ignat, Mrs. J. Kirk, Mrs. Margaret Monds and Mrs. Gale Brown and Mrs. Tomer were welcomed by the president. Mrs. Shirley Smith presented a gift to Mrs. Myrtle Quinn in appreciation of the invitation to hold the supper at the cottage. The draw prizes were won by Mrs. Jean Taylor and Mrs. Janet Whitfield. After the meeting a social evening was held.

Mother's Helper

ANOTHER small surprise to help make her birthday a special day: have some hot biscuits, if Canadian-style! Plan. On a muffin tray round, fasten a tiny candle with a drop of its own wax. Light the candle and set it afloat just as you serve the soup. She can make a special wish.

PRINCESS DIES

Princess Margrethe, the heir to the Danish throne, is a keen archaeologist and worked in the Dadan with an expedition.

W. I. Will Support World Food Plan

"Feeding the world in the future" was the subject of an address given by Mr. J. H. Hulse at the Women's Institute officers' conference at Guelph University in May. He announced that a training course for Asian food technologists, financed by the Canada-Mysore Project, was opened in April in Mysore, India. Students from Burma, Ceylon, India, Japan, Korea, Laos, Malaysia, Nepal, Pakistan, Philippines, Thailand and Vietnam were present at the opening. All 12 countries urgently need this course to train men and women in practical methods of food preservation and distribution.

More than 20 percent of all food grown in Asia is lost through spoilage because of ignorance of proper preservation methods. Millions of children suffer from malnutrition and may die, while thousands of tons of food go to waste.

Women's Institutes in Canada are asked to share in the November 1965 World Food Month and to ask other families of non-members to assist.

Each Canadian family is asked to donate 25 cents, the price of one loaf of bread, each week in November. The campaign will be known as "Share-a-loaf-month."

Officers of the project include Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, the leaders of all opposition parties and pastor clergymen from all the major Canadian churches.

Any Institutes group, or other interested groups, are asked to write to Mr. J. H. Hulse, c/o Hunger, P.O. Box 161, Station "D," Toronto 9, Ontario, for full particulars of this project to write off hunger.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD ARTHUR PORDHAM
Pordham – Lidster

White chrysanthemums, colorful snapdragons and potted ferns formed the background setting in Bridge Street United Church on Saturday, June 19, at 2 p.m. when Marsha Joanne Lidster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lidster, Belleville was united in marriage to Donald Arthur Pordham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pordham, Belleville R.R. 4.

Mr. S. Alec Gordon presided at the organ and played traditional wedding music and supplied accompaniment for the soloist Miss Lynn Brown.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore an original floor-length bridal gown of white peau de soie. The fitted bodice featured a Sabrina neckline and elbow-length sleeves, and the bell-shape skirt flowed into a chapel train at back with a lace cummerbund accenting the waistline. A shoulder-length illusion veil fell from a matching pillbox of peau de soie. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of pink carnations, white stephanotis mingled with fern.

Miss Linda Kells of Peterborough as maid of honor wore a street-length gown of blush French peau de soie featuring Sabrina neckline and three-quarter sleeves styled similar to the bride's with matching cummerbund. She wore a matching pillbox headdress and carried a semi-cascade of regular and feathered carnations. Miss Sandra Crawford of St. Catharines and Miss Joy Kennedy of Peterborough as bridesmaids were identically attired. Little Miss Maurene Pye, niece of the bridegroom was flower girl dressed in a short white organza dress, trimmed with lace enhanced with a wide blush satin sash. She carried a nosegay consisting of a solitaire pink rose encircled with white pom 'mums. She wore a tiny circlet headdress of white feathered carnations.

Mr. Kenneth MacLaren of Toronto attended the bridegroom while Mr. Edward Pordham, brother of the bridegroom, Belleville and Mr. Paul Henry of Kingston were ushers.

A reception was held in the parlors of Bridge Street United Church where the bride's table was the focal point of interest centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with pink Sweetheart roses and encircled about the base with tulle and roses. Pink candles in silver candelabra and the colorful bridal bouquets completed the attractive nuptial setting. The bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a powder blue pure silk two-piece ensemble with matching shoes and bag, white organza hat and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother who wore a sheer nylon over printed beige dress with matching duster, white accessories and a corsage of white feathered carnations.

For the wedding trip the bride donned a pale pink silk shantung two-piece ensemble with flowered hat, black and white accessories and a white gardenia corsage.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at several social events including a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Linda Kells and Mrs. L. A. Kells. A dinner party was held at the home of Mrs. Verne Eagle in honor of the couple as well as a linen shower for the bride. Presentations were held by the staff of Harry J. Clarke School and the staff of Stephens-Adamson.

ANAF Ladies' Aux. Meets

The ladies of the Army, Navy and Air Force Auxiliary, No. 49, held their regular meeting on Wednesday, June 9th, in the auditorium of Unit 201. President E. Buckley presided.

Three applications for membership were read and accepted.

Sports chairman A. Storms Jr. reported that Auxiliary, No. 49 won both cribbage and darts, at the meeting held on June 12th, when Unit 201 entertained the 48th Highlanders from Lindsay. This is an annual event, and, since the cribbage trophy had been presented previously by Comrade Charlotte Clark (the Belleville unit visits in Toronto), Comrade president E. Buckley read her report on the last Provincial Command meeting held in Lakeview, the last weekend in May.

The regular monthly draws were won by Comrade R. Sweet and Comrade R. Pilgabeau. They were donated by Comrades E. Bobisah and D. Coldrick.

Since Unit 201 has gone to a lot of expense decorating the auditorium, it was decided that the Ladies' Auxiliary would take care of the cost of the flower arrangements adorning the walls.

Comrade G. Fitzgerald, entertainment chairman, reported that arrangements have been made for the ladies' party. It will be held the night of July 9th in conjunction with the regular Friday night dance.

Before adjourning the ladies enjoyed a singsong. Comrade President Buckley had received some verses written by Comrade E. Marshall, Auxiliary 26, Vancouver. It expressed the pride and aims of all auxiliaries.

Auxiliary No. 49 will recess for July and August. The next meeting will be on the third Monday in September.

Lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

Prime Ministers' Wives Have Heavy Program at Commonwealth Conference

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—While Commonwealth leaders hammer out problems at the huge oval conference table in Marlborough House, the spotlight rarely falls upon their wives or how they spend their time until the hectic evening round of formal functions.

Most of the seven visiting Commonwealth wives—five are attending their first Commonwealth conference — say they find this year's program so heavy, coinciding as it does with anniversary celebrations for Magna Carta and 700 years of Parliament, that there is little time for personal pursuits.

Mrs. Lester Pearson, a seasoned traveller on diplomatic and political journeys, has perhaps succeeded best of all. She has settled for a relaxed pattern that includes a lot of reading, a little television-watching, lunching with friends and going to the theatre whenever possible.

She considered a visit to the "pop art" exhibition at the Tate Gallery but discarded that in favor of the National Gallery and a look at Goya's famous portrait of the Duke of Wellington, recently mysteriously returned by a thief who had held it for nearly four years.

The Pearsons also plan a visit to the All-England Lawn Tennis Championships at Wimbledon Saturday—"if it doesn't pour with rain." So do the Australian Premier Sir Robert Menzies and his wife Dame Pattie.

The Pearsons already have seen two plays, a family saga called A Heritage and Its History from the mural by Ivy Compton - Burnett, which they found rather slow-moving, and a very satisfying courtroom drama, Hostile Witness.

Today Mrs. Pearson and Mme. Lionel Chevrier, wife of Canada's high commissioner, were to attend a matinee of the musical A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum.

SUITE OVER PARK

Over coffee in the Pearsons' seventh-floor, chintz - curtained Dorchester Hotel suite overlooking Hyde Park, Mrs. Pearson said she also would have liked to have seen Edward Albee's Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? which recently ended its London run.

"I couldn't get my husband to go to it in New York," she smiled.

Like all the visiting wives, Mrs. Pearson headed on arrival for the tempting London department stores, but with a strictly practical object—two new shirts for the prime minister, who found he hadn't brought enough.

Mrs. Pearson said the prime minister discussed conference politics with her—"if I ask questions." When asked if he took her advice on political matters she answered with a smile:

"I give my advice unasked. It isn't always followed."

Mrs. Pearson said the prime minister is "very good at relaxing" after a hard day's grind at the conference—in contrast to New Zealand Premier Keith Holyoake, whose wife Norma says he finds it hard to unwind.

For the varied social round Mrs. Pearson planned her clothes carefully, packing three long evening dresses, including a gown of black lace over pink chiffon she wore to the Buckingham Palace dinner, a short dinner dress, a cocktail dress and a few suits.

Women's Institutes

CANNIFTON - CORBYVILLE INSTITUTE

The monthly meeting of Canniffon-Corbyville Institute was held on June 7, with 15 members present. Mrs. Reid gave a report on the district annual at Moira. A bus trip was discussed for a date.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. Wilson, convener for agriculture and Canadian industry. Mrs. Wilson gave a reading on the importance of farming and Mrs. L. Wannamaker discussed industries in Canada.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Clayton Sullivan, who topic was "Bees and Honey." A queen bee lays 2,000 eggs a day. It takes approximately 16 days for a queen bee to hatch, while the worker bee hatches in 21 days. The drone is killed off after each season. It takes 20,000 bees to bring a pint of honey in, and 150,000 bees to prepare one pound of honey. The workers never turn their backs on the queen.

Mrs. Sullivan served the members bars made with honey substituted for sugar in the recipe. The members presented Mrs. Sullivan with a gift for her interesting presentation.

Miss Beth Boyd, who will be married in July, was presented with a gift.

Crowd Enjoys I.O.O.F. Picnic At Cove Beach

Ideal weather greeted Oddfellows, Rebekahs, their families and friends at Cove Beach, June 20th for their third annual I.O.O.F. picnic. Host lodges, Belleville I.O.O.F. No. 81 and Quinte's Rebekah Lodge No. 133 welcomed those who came from all around district 47. Their was never a dull moment from the time the first arrived in the morning, making it a full family day until the final departure around 7.30 p.m.

Many enjoyed the beach, swimming, playing horse shoes and a ball game. Races and contests of all kinds were held with everyone given an opportunity to participate. Barrel, dash, egg throwing, shoe kicking, ball throwing, marbie and spoon and three-legged races brought prizes to the winners. The Oddfellow attending the picnic from the farthest distance, Carlton Carmichael of Estevan, Saskatchewan, received a gift. The Rebekah with the longest membership was Mrs. Lena MacMillan.

Winners of the 75 and 7 draw were Mr. A. S. Peoples, Belleville, who received cookware, Mr. J. Livesey, Stirling, who won a barbecue and Mr. C. Coon, R.R. 7, Belleville, who received a transistor radio.

After these events, all sat down to a picnic supper after which a time of fellowship was spent. A hearty vote of thanks was given to the committee in charge and all those who assisted in any way.

NEW AND ORIGINAL CASSEROLE

My cousin Muriel confesses to being casserole crazy. Her family consented, before I spent a weekend with them, to be a guinea pigs, so for a late supper after a late afternoon reception at a neighbor's we had Eggs Veriton. This casserole was served at Brantford's Glenhyrst Arts Council Antique Show and Sale, early in May. I made it in advance and chilled it and transported it to Muriel's, uncooked.

It calls for spinach, Parmesan cheese, ham and hard-cooked eggs and is not cheap. But it does call for all the things desired for a main course one-dish meal. Muriel and her daughter Linda each had second servings and Muriel is adding the recipe to her favorite casserole file.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Broiled Lamb Patties; Crisp Potato Pancakes; Creamed Zucchini; Sliced Tomatoes on Lettuce; Rhubarb Tapioca with Brown Sugar Hard Sauce; Coffee.

SUNDAY

Veal Paprika; Buttered Noodles; Fresh Green Peas; Marinated Fresh Button Mushrooms and Green Pepper Ring; Strawberry Shortcake; Tea.

EGGS VERITON (serves 6 to 8 — courtesy Mrs. Verity and Mrs. Prentice)

6 hard-cooked eggs, quartered lengthwise, 3 bags spinach (10-oz. each), 3 tablespoons butter, 6 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 3½ cups hot milk, juice 1 lemon (almost ¼ cup), 2 tablespoons green onion flakes or 1 small onion, minced, 6 to 12 oz. (1 or 2 cups) ground or chopped cooked or uncooked ham, one 4-oz. can grated Parmesan cheese, ½ to 1 cup breadcrumbs, paprika.

Cover eggs in saucepan with cold water, cover, bring to boil and simmer 5 minutes longer. Drain and chill in cold water. Cut into quarters lengthwise.

Clean spinach under running water, being sure all sand is washed out. Drain. (Do not hfinf or reduce quantity of spinach. You need every bit of it.) Cook, covered, in very large saucepan or kettle until barely limp but still bright green. Drain through colander thoroughly and chop coarsely. Turn into buttered casserole 13 x 8 x 2" (approx.).

Make Sauce by melting butter, stirring in flour, mustard, sugar and salt until blended, then hot milk until thick. Stir in lemon juice (it will not curdle) and onion flakes and ham and half of the Parmesan cheese. Bring just to boil, stirring. Pour half of the sauce over the spinach, persuading it to flow between crevices. Line up the hard-cooked egg quarters in 3 even lengthwise rows. Pour remaining sauce over, and arrange each egg quarter is covered. Mix remaining Parmesan cheese with breadcrumbs, sprinkle evenly over top and sprinkle delicately with paprika. Bake at 350 deg. F. for 30 to 35 minutes. Serve hot with generous tossed salad and fresh French or rye bread.

Successful Living

Girl Gossips to Enhance Her Position With Boys

DEAR DORIS—There is a girl in our crowd who constantly shows off. She makes a fool of herself in front of the boys we like. This often causes them to shun us as they think we are going to act like fools ourselves. When we do have dates she tags along and tells our dates "our slip is showing" or some foolish thing like that.

She often uses gossip as means to color our reputations and we are confronted with such phrases as — "Did you really do this?"

Our girl friends say such mean tactics deserve the same in return but we don't want to be as she is. What can we do, for we won't shun her because it may hurt her feelings? — GROUP WITH THE "BUGGED BOYLESS BLUES."

DORIS CLARK

DEAR GROUP — Why does she do it? I'd guess her fabrications were meant to put you in a bad light — and her in a good one! And that's because she already feels left out.

Take her to task for the stories; and since you are concerned for her feelings, soften the blow by saying you'd like to feel she was a friend, rather than a gossip.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — We have a house right across the street from my mother-in-law. She'll stand and stare at me and the kids outside, then comes over. She's over at least once a day.

I dread this so much that when I see her coming from inside I keep the kids quiet and don't answer the door. She thinks we are sleeping and goes home.

She spies on us. When she gets here she tells the children everything to do. If I say anything to my husband about his mother he's mad. He says if he doesn't get his inheritance it will be because I can't get along with his mother. — UNHAPPY.

* * *

DEA RUNHAPPY. — Your future hope for an inheritance should take second place to your present hope for a happy home in which to raise your children.

People don't always click with in-laws, and your too-interested ma-in-law would be a far more welcome visitor if you lived miles away and she could call less often. She had the privilege of raising her children and now you have a right to the same privilege.

First of all you and your husband are a unit with your children. It is up to him to stick up for you. And to help you find a solution to this real difficulty.

What Women Are Doing

Belleville Y's Menette Club

Mrs. John Hayman, President

The Belleville Y's Menette Club was created for the purpose of serving in an auxiliary capacity in the promotion, furtherance and attainment of all of the stated aims of the Y's Men's Club of Belleville, a club duly chartered under the constitution and by-laws of the International Association of Y's Men's Clubs Inc.

The Y's Menettes are the wives of Y's Men.

There are 750 Y's Men's Club throughout the world and there are 395 Y's Menette Clubs.

The Y's Men's Club was formed in Toledo, Ohio in 1922 by Judge Paul Alexander. The Vancouver Club in March, 1924, formed the first Y's Menette Club and in 1931 at the Cleveland convention Y's Menettes were made a formal part of Y'sdom. We are a service club to our Y's Men and the Y.

There are 29,000 Y's Men on the rosters of International Clubs and each member is urged to "Acknowledge the duty that accompanies every right."

The 40th annual convention, International Association of Y's Men was held last June at Estes Park, Colorado. The theme "Inspire Peace by Inspired Understanding" was enthusiastically received by all delegates.

The Belleville Y's Menette Club gives annual assistance to World Service. A majority of clubs participate in some effort in World Service. These include; Y's Men's subscription to World Communique; Adopt a child overseas; Boxes sent overseas to missions; Donations to United Nations; World Affairs speakers; Entertaining of overseas visitors; Adopt a Sister club; Participate in World Service Programs.

World Service is a joint program of the YMCA's in the United States and Canada to cooperate with Y movements in other countries. It helps launch new YMCA's and it co-operates with established ones. It shares North American resources with Y movements abroad. It has done refugee work in many countries. It assists following earthquakes and other disasters.

The club helps unite the women's efforts, with the men's efforts for the sake of Y'sdom.

This is the 24th in a series about women's organizations in Belleville and their activities.

Safety Devise Rigged on Baby Carriage

GLASGOW (AP) — Alistair Keddie, 11 weeks old, is believed to be Scotland's only bled-proof baby.

Alistair's dad, Alan Keddie, 25, a Glasgow policeman, has fitted his baby buggy with a safety device which rings an alarm if the child is lifted or the buggy is moved. Said policeman Keddie:

"Alistair was born on the day a baby was snatched from a shop near our home. The thought of such a thing ever happening to our baby plagued me. So I rigged up the safety device. The idea is so simple I'm surprised it hasn't already been put on the market."

If the brake on the baby carriage is released the alarm goes off. . . .

"And if the netting which is always over Alistair's pram is moved, the alarm is again set in action," Keddie said. "The bell can be heard 40 yards away."

Said wife Betty: "The alarm is a wonderful idea. When I go shopping I can can safely leave the baby outside a store while shopping. There was a terrible commotion. One of the clerks moved the pram out of a draft—and the alarm went off."

Keddie and his wife both have keys to turn off the alarm when the baby carriage is being moved.

GETS SEVEN YEARS

TORONTO (CP) — Pharmacist Sydney Charendoff, 32, was sentenced to seven years in penitentiary Wednesday after he pleaded guilty to trafficking in narcotics. His wife Janet, 27, received two years' suspended sentence. They both pleaded guilty after a county court jury heard tape recordings made as the two sold morphine to an RCMP officer who had posed as a criminal.

Susanna's Family Fare

EVEN YOU CAN DO IT'

Dear Susanna: Arty types haven't really lived 'til they have participated in egg art. To indulge this fancy you will need plenty of clean, dried-out egg shells — just save them from breakfast. These should be colored in different shades. You can do this by using oil or water paints, or by soaking them in various bits of diluted food coloring.

The next step is to crumble the shells into small pieces. Now, using homemade paste or glue, "paint" your desired outline on a piece of paper or stiff cardboard. Sprinkle the eggshell pieces liberally over the paste drawing and allow it to dry.

I have graduated to wall plaques. My most effective one is a large paper plate which I first painted black. I then etched onto it with the paste the outline of a flamingo, and I used eggshells in shades from pale pink right down to a deep ruddy pink to shake on.

It turned out to be a truly magnificent bird, and hangs with its companion piece (a white swan on a deep blue plate) on a sunroom wall of our cottage. — Mary Baker.

You don't even have to be a great artist with the painting bit, any little, old, inscrutable design turns out fine. —SUSANNA

TRIMMING TRICK

Dear Sue: Is there any special trick to trimming a hedge? — Vaghan Jensen

Mostly, to me, it is just plain hard work, but I do have it on good authority that hedges should be trimmed so that they are slightly narrower at the top than at the base.

This will ensure a much more even light reaching the lower portion and will help prevent the bushes from becoming bare and unsightly. —SUSANNA

Lamps for Every Lady

There's new excitement in lamps this year with a range of styles, designes and price tags to meet every homemaker's need.

Traditional styling in home decor is increasing in demand and the newest lamp shade designs for 1965 are right in step with the trend. In addition to the ever-popular modern stylings, there are more highly-styled lamps with a definite period flavor - Traditional, Provincial, Colonial, Spanish and even Victorian.

Women's Institutes

CHATTERTON W.I.

CHATTERTON — The June meeting of Chatterton W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Don Smith, with a good number of members in attendance.

Mrs. DeMille, the president, opened the meeting. The business part of the meeting included discussion on a centennial project and it was decided to make quilts during the winter months and sell them for money to improve the school flower gardens. A quilting bee will be held on June 15 at the church hall. A donation was made to Stirling Fair and arrangements were made for a party of school children on the last day of school.

Mrs. Dixon gave a report from the district annual, and also read the history of Mrs. E. B. Finkle in W.I. work.

Mrs. Lorne Reid gave the nomination report from the district annual.

Mrs. A. Carson gave a paper on Canadian industries. Canada ranks seventh among the manufacturing countries of the world.

Mrs. Gulliver read "Our Lives of the Past," and Mrs. Lorne Reid read "W. I. Answers."

Mrs. Irvin gave the history of a former school teacher, Miss Eva Bird.

Mrs. A. Carson closed with a reading on the British Institute's Jubilee.

A rummage auction was held at the close of the meeting. Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

Helen Keller Enjoying Quiet and Gentle Life Nearing 85th Birthday

By ANGELO NATALE

EASTON, Conn. (AP) — As Helen Keller approaches her 85th birthday, she's enjoying a quiet and gentle life.

She has her flowers, her garden, her dog Tinker, and the birds.

"All of the birds are her friends," says a close companion of the blind and deaf author.

"Miss Helen is living in retirement," a friend says. "That covers it."

The world still beats a path to her country home at Arcan Ridge, only to find the doors politely, but firmly, shut.

But close friends and neighbors stop in occasionally for tea, and there will be cake and champagne when she observes her birthday Sunday at home.

Miss Keller's travelling days are just about over. She still receives awards, but doesn't make the trips to pick them up.

RECEIVES REQUESTS

Requests come from, throughout the world to the "American Foundation for the Blind for visits with Miss Keller, who has devoted most of her life to helping the handicapped. The requests are turned down.

A friend says Miss Keller is in the best of health for a woman of 85, although her vitality is waning. In the last two or three years she has given up most of her writing and all public speaking. She takes frequent rests and devotes much of her time to reading and re-reading books she enjoyed in her youth.

A nurse occasionally joins the regular household staff, all of whom can communicate with Miss Keller through the manual alphabet, spelled in the hand, or through the vibration method, a system which Miss Keller helped develop.

Sunday's celebration will be more or less a family affair. Miss Keller's brother, Phillips Brooks Keller of Dallas, will be on hand. Her sister, Mrs. L. Warran Tyson of Montgomery, Ala., plans a visit later in the summer.

An illness 19 months after Miss Keller's birth in Tuscumbia, Ala., left her blind and deaf. Through the efforts of her teacher, Anne Sullivan, Miss Keller was transported from a world of silence and dark rage to one of communication and faith.

She became a symbol of courage to millions. She once expressed her philosophy this way:

"The more we try to help each other and make life brighter, the happier we shall be."

SEEK MOTHERS' BANE

SOUTHALL, England (CP)—Police are searching for a confidence trickster who has been calling on unsuspecting housewives, claiming to be a television engineer. After examining the set, he says he will have to take it back to the shop —and that's the last the housewife sees of either.

Political Cartoons Offer Proof Canadian History Repeats Itself

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP)—After studying thousands of political cartoons dating back to Confederation, William C. Wertham has come to the conclusion that Canadian history tends to repeat itself.

Issues that occupy the drawing-board editorialists of today, such as the English-French relationship and federal - provincial problems are found to have had the same attraction for the cartoonists of around a century ago. Skeletons in the government closet are a recurring theme, from the CPR scandal down to the Hal Banks and Rivard cases.

Mr. Wertheman, a German-born illustrator who has done political cartooning and now is design director of the University Press of New Brunswick at Fredericton, has been digging into the subject on a $5,000 grant from the Canada Council. The firm is bringing out a book, "Canada in Cartoon," based on his research and timed for the 1967 Confederation centenary.

On a visit here to hunt through archives for little-known material, Mr. Wertheman said that, while the themes of the cartoonists of present and past eras often resemble one another, the execution was considerably different then than now.

OLDSTERS 'AMATEURISH'

Technically, the early post-Confederation school was "rather amateurish in many ways," he finds. The cartoonists of that time also expressed their viewpoints more forcibly, in general, than those of today.

"A significant aspect of political cartoonists in Canada today is that only a few have that sharp needle that Europeans have throughout. I think it's a matter of the public taste showing a preference for seeing the funny side of politics and politicians. It doesn't seem to go too much for satire.

"Whether or not that's good, I don't know. Personally, I believe in satire, because in it you can express more with a few strokes of the pen than in lengthy editorials. But it carries the danger of straying into personalities rather than issues."

Mr. Werthman, who did some political cartooning for the St. John's, Nfld., Telegram before moving to Fredericton in 1963, is planning a book of about 250 pages divided into 1867-1914 and 1914-1967 periods. There also will be a section dealing with the French-Canadian point of view.

WANTS VANISHED ART

So far, he has winnowed his English material down to about 400 items but will be adding to that before he gets down to the final selections. Among other things, he's looking for good stuff that may have appeared in obscure publications and been lost to general circulation. But so far he hasn't struck any hidden nuggets.

Mr. Werthman expects the publication of the book will be undertaken as a Centennial project and that it will be featured at Expo 67 as a souvenir item, and he says he has hopes it will be the Canadian best seller of 1967.

It is planned to issue it in hard covers at around $7.50-$8 for libraries and the like and in a soft - covered edition at around $2 for general sale. Dr. W. S. MacNutt, dean of arts at the University of New Brunswick, is writing a foreword and the continuity script.

'Mr. Commonwealth' Likes To Spin Out Line for Trout But Will Have Little Time

LONDON (CP)—When he has a moment to spare, Arnold Smith likes to spin out his line for bass or trout in some quiet stream or lake.

But soon leisure may be a forgotten word for the new "Mr. Commonwealth."

He'll be travelling fast and casting for bigger fish in terms of Commonwealth unity, strength and cohesiveness.

Known to some international leaders as "The Great Persuader," the 180-pound, six-foot diplomat—who looks more like a quarter-back than a diplomat —has taken on the formidable pioneering role of the Commonwealth's first secretary - general; the counsellor and servant of 21 countries circling the globe.

"After I get my staff together, I intend to do a lot of travelling to visit all the member countries," says the brown - haired, Toronto - born assistant deputy external affairs minister with blue eyes that have measured the stance of such men as Nikita Khrushchev and Gamal Abdel Nasser.

In his 50 years, Smith has done more travelling than most men would want to do. He's been Canadian ambassador to Moscow and Cairo; a Canadian representative on innumerable missions from New York to Phnom Penh in Cambodia, and even an editor of an obscure little newspaper in Estonia.

PRESSURED NASSER

He helped persuade Nasser to restore good relations with the West after Britain ruptured relations with a short-lived Egyptian invasion during the 1956, Suez crisis. He held long, intimate conversations with Khrushchev at the time of the 1962 Cuban crisis.

"He's a friendly cuss and people talk to him," a colleague said of Smith. "He's made friends for Canada all over the world."

In many ways Smith has traits similar to his boss— Prime Minister Pearson. During some of the years that Pearson served as external affairs minister, Smith was his special assistant. They both display the same facile way of handling the press; of getting their points across without heat or rancor.

Moving around the world is hard on the family," says Smith, who at one time thought he would settle permanently in Ottawa. "But the family is growing up. They'll be all right."

Smith married the former Evelyn Hardwick of Lacombe, Alta., and Montreal, Que., in 1938, three years after Smith graduated from the University of Toronto and won a Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford. They have three children: Alexandra, Stewart and Matthew.

HIT STRANGE SPOTS

For a Rhodes Scholar, Smith found himself in some strange places. In 1939-40, he edited The Baltic Times, a small-circulation newspaper in Estonia. He also was an assistant professor in an Estonian university. In 1940-41, he was an attache at the British embassy in Cairo, a lecturer at the Egyptian State University and later an editor of a number of Arabic publications. He transferred to the Canadian diplomatic corps in 1943.

"I speak French and Russian fluently and a bit of 'pidgin' German and Arabic," says Smith.

He will be earning about $25,000 a year on his new post, along with about $6,000 in expense money.

If the Commonwealth had not chosen the Canadian from among a selection of about nine monineers, Smith would be able to look for a promotion in the Canadian diplomatic corps.

Pearson would not say what the new job would have been but he notes: "We made available to them what we had."

Smith will make his headquarters in the historic, luxurious quarters of London's Marlborough House. He'll have a Commonwealth staff of about 20 to 30 willing brakes between them. If the world is to move forward, he believes it must change. Countries, he says, must help one another. In this, the Commonwealth can provide an example.

Parliament At a Glance

WEDNESDAY, June 23, 1965

The Commons staged an emergency debate on drought conditions in parts of Ontario and Quebec.

Forestry Minister Sauve said he would arrange a meeting with provincial officials to work out some form of assistance.

George H. Dessureault (PC—Lanark) moved adjournment of the House so the emergency debate could take place.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said the drought is raising beef prices across Ontario.

Jack Horner (PC — Acadia) said Agriculture Minister Hays, absent on a European promotion trip, should have been present.

FRIDAY, June 25

The Commons, after a break Thursday for the St. Jean Baptiste day holiday, meets at 11 a.m. Friday to continue study of Income Tax Act revisions. The Senate stands adjourned until June 28.

Rattler Found On Outskirts Of Roseneath

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A snake identified as a massasauga rattler has been found on the outskirts of Roseneath, 35 miles southeast of here.

The discovery comes as a surprise to local biologists because it had been thought the snake's range was limited to the extreme western and southern areas of Ontario.

The Roseneath discovery was made by an employee of the federal government who asked that his name not be used.

Decision to Use Rain-making Firm Said to Be Too Late

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ottawa Valley agricultural representative said Wednesday the decision to hire in a rain-making firm to relieve this drought-stricken area has come too late.

Feliz Millette, representative for Russell County, one of several area officials interviewed, said: "We want rain now. We've already lost the first crop of hay. If we don't get rain within a week, there'll be no second crop."

Ontario Agriculture Minister William Stewart said Tuesday at Arnprior, Ont., the Water Resources Development Corp. of Denver, Colo., has been given a three-month, $200,000 contract.

The firm is expected to set up equipment within 10 days and begin operating within 20.

Mr. Millette agreed the rain-making efforts are a case of better late than never. "We're desperate, and when people are desperate they'll try anything," he said.

Don Black, agricultural representative for Carleton County said even if it rained within three weeks it would be too late to save most fruit and vegetables. Strawberries and cucumbers were already a loss.

George Robertson, a meteorologist with the federal agriculture department, said salvaging what is left of the crops required one inch of rain now and one inch every following week.

Area farmers have already given up on most hay crops and many are turning their cattle out to pasture in hay fields.

Ellard Powers of Beachburg, Ont., vice - president of the Ontario Farmers' Union, said Tuesday "if there is no rain in Renfrew County within the next two or three weeks there will be no forage at all for our cattle."

He and other representatives of the farmers' union have appealed to the federal government to institute a farm debt moratorium until drought conditions are relieved.

J. R. Noble, chief of the transport department's meteorological service in Toronto, said cloud seeding can reduce as well as increase rainfall.

Meteorological studies indicated rainfall could be increased by as much as 15 per cent. But when clouds contained too little water, seeding could reduce rainfall, he said.

Millions of Australian Sheep and Cattle Are Thin, Hungry Due to Drought

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Millions of Australian sheep and cattle are thin, hungry, and some are thirsty. Farmers are delaying planting crops, and some planted crops are dying. Four million trees seeded last year for forests for the future are dead.

Skinny lambs have been sold for as little as six cents a head. Cattle and sheep in small numbers have died of starvation. Others have been moved long distances to new pastures. Dairy farmers have gone to work for wages to make money to buy food for their cows.

Much of eastern Australia, perhaps 300,000 square miles, is in the grip of drought. In some areas farmers say it is the worst for 100 years, in others the worst since 1902, or the worst this century.

In any case, it is bad. The dry area covers the rich dairying and farming strip along the New South Wales coast, extends west into the wheat, sheep and cattle land, and north to the great cattle and sheep stations (ranches) of southwest Queensland. It embraces all of New South Wales except the southwest.

The drought is not an unidiosuly, with few people in the cities aware of it. Now the city people are beginning to take notice, and, fearful for Australia's continued prosperity, are not as jovial about the hot, bright winter sun shining all day long.

Sydney is as much in the drought area as anywhere else but, with huge reservoirs in the Blue Mountains in the west, there are no water restrictions. You notice the drought only in the browned grass of the city's parks and gardens. Statistics show that so far, it has been Sydney's driest year since 1888, with 7.63 inches of rain in the first five months, one-third the 106-year average for the period.

"It is bad, really bad," says John L. Green, chairman of the New South Wales government's special drought sub-committee. "We need rain right now, today, for drinking water for the sheep and cattle. And we need rain by August for the spring growth for feed. If there is no rain by August, the situation will become much worse.

In the central west of New South Wales, farmers await rain to plant their wheat. They already are a month late. Wheat has been planted to the south after a two-inch fall of rain, and to the north planting can wait for August rain.

Many sheep and dairy cattle now are being hand-fed hay, which, in places, sells for up to £50 Australian ($120) a ton. In normal times, this costs £10 to £15 a ton.

A Sydney Morning Herald reporter, Ian Castellair, in a tour ed the Walgett area in northwestern New South Wales and reported some ranchers are moving their sheep along stock routes to keep them alive. Others have sold hundreds of thousands of head for meat or for transport to pastures in Victoria, which has not been affected by the drought.

A government ranger in the Walgett area, A. D. Coleman, said: "If there is no rain in three months, I don't think any one will be worrying very much. There will be nothing left to worry about."

Judge Commends Agent For Action With Indians Although Fine Registered

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—William E. Grant, former Yukon Indian agency commissioner, was convicted Wednesday in Territorial Court on six charges of making false returns to the federal Indian affairs branch.

Mr. Justice John Parker fined him $10 on each count or one day in jail in default of payment.

The judge who described the retired commissioner as an exceptional man, said in handing down sentence, "it would be quite inappropriate to send Mr. Grant to jail.

"I feel the reason these charges were laid was to make sure that the public might know what was done . . . there was not the slightest trace of dishonesty in business."

During the trial, Grant testified he used money allocated for relief to provide other services for natives in his charge. He said in his 14 years with the department many times he found it necessary to get important things done for Indian people through normal channels.

He also said his superiors were aware of what he was doing and had approved what he did in his judgment:

"Mr. Grant could have sat and watched the people in his agency die, could have said I have only so much money to spend. This has to be, I've done what I can. He did not do this.

"He risked his career to do what he, as a conscientious person on the spot, thought he would do without running the government down on him.

"It's largely a matter of luck whether in any one case[illegible] official can achieve these things. My final comment on the merits of this case (is) . . . I would like to think that had I been in Grant's position I would have had the courage to do as he did."

Mr. Justice Parker, in a review of the case, said:

"I doubt whether Indian affairs ever got better value or expenditure than in those Grant made.

"Mr. Grant is not charged with putting a penny of government funds into his own pocket. There was nothing of that kind involving any personal advantage.

Mr. Justice Parker explained Grant's actions: "The number of needs here was higher than anywhere else elsewhere. So what he did was to write relief cheques payable to someone in the agency, have them endorsed and use the funds for housing and certain other purposes.

"The pressures of conscience must have been very great to anyone in the Yukon.

"He risked his career as a result of what he did. His conscience told him should be done."

Communists Not Interested In Peace Feelers at Moment

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Russia's "ayet" to the idea of a Commonwealth mission on Viet Nam apparently closes off yet another possible road to settlement.

Taken along with the unofficial rejection by China and North Viet Nam, it amounts to a Communist statement that they're not interested in peace feelers at this stage.

So, the four Commonwealth leaders who were ready to visit capitals on both sides of the firing line can forget their place in the growing group of statesmen who have tried without success to find a way out of the Indochina shambles.

China has brushed the newest proposal aside on the grounds that the mission would be a messenger for the United States, out looking for a way to get the Communists off the hook."

While this is probably true for the western Commonwealth members, the mission idea still remains the most broadly-based approach yet made for a start toward peace.

Peking will have a hard time convincing the non - aligned world that the leaders of Pakistan, India and Ghana, for example, backed the mission only in Washington's interests.

The picture more likely to be left in the minds of the non-aligned countries is that Peking is refusing talks because it believes its own side is ahead and doesn't want to stop while it's winning.

The curious thing about the Russian rejection is that, until now at least, the Russians seemed to be seriously interested in finding a way out for the United States. They appeared to realize that there was no realistic hope for a quick settlement that would mean a humiliation for the Americans.

Soviet diplomats at the United Nations could apparently read several world capitals—had made a point of letting the world know they were favorably impressed by the Commonwealth plan.

But the Russians also have made it clear out to isolate themselves on the issue from communism's militant Asian wing.

Peking already has charged the Russians with co-operating with the U.S. and betraying the Viet Cong rebels in South Viet Nam. The Kremlin leaders naturally are reluctant to add weight to that charge by receiving the Commonwealth mission while in Peking and Hanoi turned it away.

Reports of the Russian rejection also indicated that Moscow has not ruled out the possibility of a Commonwealth mission at some future time.

It may be that the Russians, as well as their Peking rivals, want to see the outcome of the Viet Cong's current monsoon offensive before showing their cards.

Rain Comes Too Late to Repair Drought Damage to Grain, Hay

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nature beat the rainmaker to Ontario's parched farmlands Wednesday.

But the rainfall only managed to keep the dust down. It is not expected to be enough to regenerate hay and grain crops stunted by weeks of searing drought.

A flash storm gusted across southwestern Ontario early Wednesday night in the direction of the Ottawa Valley and weather officials at Toronto International Airport estimated that dry regions in that area would get about .02 inches of rain.

Ottawa reported a very light rain from mid-day Wednesday to 3 p.m. and a thundershower between nine and 10 p.m. The weather office at Ottawa's Uplands airport said the official fall was .21 inches.

The course of the disturbance was from Australia, 55 miles east of Sarnia, to London where a total of .6 of an inch fell. This included sporadic falls earlier in the day.

In Windsor, a little rain fell during a half-hour period, but officials said the amount was too small to be measured. Another ½ to ¾ inches is predicted for the area before Monday.

The respite from the drought, during which only .42 inches of rain had fallen since May 17, came on the footsteps of an announcement that professional rainmakers were to be brought into eastern Ontario.

A U.S. firm, which has been studying the Ottawa Valley situation since Friday, will attempt to produce rain by seeding cloud formations.

In the London area, Agricultural Representative Sandy Forsyth stressed the "very serious" nature of the dry spell in his area.

David Ridgway, a fruit and vegetable extension specialist, said dry weather is not expected to have an adverse effect on fruit crops but yields will be down this year, he said.

Showers in most areas have alleviated the dryness, but most officials feel more is needed for the benefit to be felt.

The weather forecast called for a continuation of showery weather prior to the arrival of cooler, drier air from the west.

Pearson Argues Wheat Sale Involves Recognizing China

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson says the fact that Canada sells wheat to China is "a form of recognition" of that country.

Pearson made that point Wednesday when asked whether a country that does not recognize China should ever become a member of the Commonwealth peace mission seeking to consult with China and other countries to end the war in South Viet Nam.

If China takes that position, Pearson said, then it will become an important considerations that will have to be taken into account.

While he, as prime minister, does not expect to be asked to become a member of the mission, he maintained that "in a sense" Canada does recognize China in a fashion, even though it has not granted China diplomatic recognition.

"We sell them a great deal of wheat," he said at a Commonwealth correspondents luncheon. "That is a form of recognition. I'm not always sure they recognize us."

Pearson found himself besieged by questions on what he would be willing to replace Prime Minister Wilson as head of the four-power mission.

That is a very hypothetical question," he replied. "I think it is a great mistake to talk about a change in the membership of the mission at this stage. I don't think it is a very helpful to talk about changes of the mission membership."

He had not been asked and did not expect to be asked to join the mission. All questions on whether he had been asked to lead the mission were "hypothetical."

"I've got lots to do in Canada these days."

As for Communist objections that Wilson is too much a supporter of the U.S. in Viet Nam to be mission chairman, Pearson said he doesn't think this is a valid objection.

The mission had to have representations of all shades of opinion. As long as there was a balance he could see no reason for argument.

And as for the doors the Communists have slammed against the mission, well, they had done so in the past—at the time of the Korean War — only to change their minds.

The Chinese at that time had publicly proved very difficult. They would talk of a ceasefire. But two or three months later they had changed their minds.

There is no current evidence that the Chinese want to negotiate on Viet Nam, but he will not base his long-range position on that current attitude, Pearson added.

It would be worthwhile for the mission to persist. No one could tell whether it would be successful but even the attempt was a worthy undertaking.

Pearson said that Canada generally agrees with Britain in support of American policy in South Viet Nam. Canada has supported the purpose of the American intervention, though that doesn't mean that "we automatically support all the things that are being done there."

"And we have on one or two occasions offered advice in public that we thought would be helpful. Where we have views in Canada about American policy, we talk quite frankly."

"SATISFACTION OR MONEY REFUNDED"

Stevenson Versus Zorin Duel One of UN's Most Theatrical

On Oct. 25, 1962, Adlai Stevenson rose in the United Nations Security Council to accuse the Soviets of placing missiles in Cuba—probably the most dramatic confrontation to occur in the 20 years of the UN's existence. Max Harrelson, AP Chief correspondent, recalls this event and other dramatic instances in the following fourth of five articles on UN crisis.

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS (AP)— What many believe to be the most dramatic session ever witnessed at the United Nations took place in the Security Council during the Cuban missile crisis.

There have been many head-on collisions in its 20 years of life, many eloquent and fiery speeches, many critical sessions lasting through long nights, but this one on Oct. 25, 1962, had a unique theatrical quality which completely fascinated its viewers.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson was at his best as he lit into Soviet Delegate Valerian Zorin.

In a direct approach, rarely used in the council, Stevenson asked:

"Do you, Ambassador Zorin, deny that the U.S.S.R. has placed and is placing medium and intermediate-range missiles and sites in Cuba? Yes or no!"

FACE TURNED RED

Zorin's face turned a deep red, but he managed a smile. "I am not in an American courtroom, and therefore I do not wish to answer a question put to me in the fashion in which a prosecutor puts questions," he replied.

Stevenson persisted.

"You are in the courtroom of world opinion right now and you can answer yes or no. You have denied that they exist—and I want to know whether I have understood you correctly."

Zorin: "You will have your answer in due course."

Stevenson: "I am prepared to wait for my answer until hell freezes over, if that is your decision. I am also prepared to present evidence in this room."

SHOWED PHOTOS

He proceeded to do just this. He directed an aide to set up an easel. Then he displayed a series of enlarged aerial photos showing missiles and missile installations in Cuba.

Zorin refused to look, but branded the pictures forgeries. He denied once more there were any Soviet missiles in Cuba. Many in the room were convinced the Kremlin had not told the Soviet delegate what was going on in Cuba.

The presence of the missiles eventually was confirmed by Nikita Khrushchev himself and they were withdrawn under U.S. pressure. Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov was sent to New York to handle the negotiations, and Zorin soon was transferred to another assignment.

Perhaps the thing that made the Stevenson-Zorin confrontation stand out above other clashes was the threat of imminent war which existed at the time.

There was another such night in 1956 when the world seemed to be on the brink. This was the night of Nov. 3-4 when the United Nations found itself struggling with two great crises simultaneously.

An emergency session of the General Assembly was trying desperately to get a cease-fire in the Suez fighting, but the news was bad. British, French and Israeli attacks against Egypt were increasing in intensity. And while the assembly was debating the Suez problem, word was received the Soviet Army had launched a full-scale attack in an attempt to crush a revolt in Hungary. Briefly, here is the sequence of events between 10:30 p.m. and 5:23 a.m.:

At 10:37 p.m. Lester B. Pearson, then Canada's external affairs minister laid before the assembly his historic proposal asking Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold to draw plans within 48 hours for a UN force to police the Suez area.

At 1:42 a.m. the assembly approved the Canadian proposal by a vote of 57-to-0 with 19 countries, including the Soviet Bloc, abstaining. It was this proposal which later won for Pearson the Nobel Peace Prize.

—and started the United Nations toward its present crisis over peacekeeping operations.

At 3:27 a.m., while the assembly was still debating the Suez problem, U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge asked for an immediate meeting of the Security Council to deal with the developing Soviet action in Hungary. The council met at the unprecedented hour of 5:12 a.m.

BLASTS SOVIETS

Lodge plunged into a graphic account of the fighting in Budapest, reading from news bulletins and reports from the U.S. legation. He blasted the Soviet Union in one of the strongest attacks ever made in the United Nations and said:

"If there ever was a time when action in the United Nations could literally be the life or death of a whole nation, this is the time."

Cuban delegate Emilio Nunez-Portuondo cried:

"This is a shame for the Soviet Union."

Lodge introduced a resolution calling on the Soviet Union to halt its military operations immediately and to withdraw its troops from Hungarian territory.

At 5:19 a.m. Soviet Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev cast his country's 79th veto to kill the resolution. Within minutes, the council voted 10 to 1 (Soviet Union) to take the Hungarian problem to the General Assembly. Before the council adjourned at 5:23 a.m., Hammarskjold called an emergency meeting of the assembly for 8 p.m. that same day to take up the Hungarian crisis. The assembly eventually condemned the Soviet intervention and demanded withdrawal of its troops but the resolution was ignored and Soviet troops are still in Hungary nine years later.

Tomorrow: Demonstrations at the UN.

Motor Tunnel Opening Soon At Mount Blanc

CLURMAYEUR, Italy (AP)— Six years of backbreaking toil by French and Italians deep under Europe's loftiest peak will be crowned in July with the opening of the Mont Blanc motor tunnel.

The swift passageway linking Italy and France will be in full operation in time for much of the peak summer tourist traffic, speeding vacationers along its smooth 7.2-mile surface in just over 10 minutes. It will cut more than 60 miles off trips between some Italian and French cities—and simultaneously provide a new all-weather Alpine route.

The jagged spine of the Alps has already been pierced by modern highway engineering. The great St. Bernard Tunnel, 3.7 miles long, was opened a year ago on the Italian-Swiss border.

The first pneumatic hammers bit into Mont Blanc in January, 1959. The hole was completed by 1,000 workmen in the summer of 1962. Since then workers have been busy with the cement and steel construction work itself.

TEN LITTLE VICTORIES

Nine hungry Indians sitting in the sun
Tomahawked the Yankees for who Number One,
Turned right around with nothing else to do
Down came the hatchet for win Number Two.
Clashed with the Chisox, drooling for their gore
Put the whammy on them for wins Three and Four,
Unclawed the Tigers; undispersed the Twins,
Record books showed them with seven straight wins.
The pitching was brilliant; the hitting at time,
Sank were the Bosox for wins eight and nine,
Loud shrilled the war cries—"Let's do it again."
And at this corny writing the record said "ten."

We have in the news room bullpen sports aficionados an odd assortment of members of the athletic faithful.

For instance, we have a young city chess champion (17) who passed up the chance of reaching a higher income tax bracket when he defeated the "boss" for the think-now-save-later title.

Since this agent's deplorable "prediction" record was marred by the stench-drenched fiasco at Lewiston a short time ago, I have discovered a still tongue loosens the number of good-natured verbal arrows fired my way.

In fact I suspect that one of my confreres who is so soaked in New York Yankee virus he would run for congressman for Cow Island if the United States ever took over this fair land, is the donor of a strange gift I received a horrity after the descontaminators had cleansed the Maine air.

It was a hat, a strangely shaped contraption made of black fur that crushed a woodsy aroma. It had a pebbled crown and was accompanied by a note which read:

"It should fit you up to a certain point. The rim is yours. Hope you get the idea. We're seen the point this long time."

Lately this Yankee suspect was joined by a comperdre who also worships at the shrine of the fallen-from-grace gods of the Bronx Olympus.

They are, so to speak, figurelous scoreboards. If their morning entry is accompanied by a waissi, frog, monkey or other hip-wiggling callisthenics, back-slapping and shrill guffawing, chalk up a win for the Yankees.

If they enter as silently as the Arabs of poetry departed, with the slow march of a guards regiment trooping the color, bet the coffee dime the Bombers were blasted.

Meanwhile that muffled war-whoop comes from the city desk. There, doodling war-bonnets on copy paper between teletype stints sits a blood-brother, Jawwise, of the Cleveland Indians since Bill Veeck circumed the Tribe to the pennant in 1948.

"Too bad," he chortles, manslcuring a pencil with a large Apache hunting knife, "the Yankees and Indians meet in a world series. That Sitting Bull-Custer caper at Little Big Horn would look like a first rehearsal."

"Yeah?" comes back the key-punching office Mantle and Maris, "y'know what happened to Sitting Bull later?"

"Yup," chuckled the Indian lover, "but it didn't happen until four years later. That figures."

Anybody know where we can hire a red-hot Minnesota Twins fan; a loyal Chisox, Bosox, Orioles, Angels or what-have-you fan for a week or so just to change the early early news room script?

Or perhaps I had better get the great O'Feaver up here. I haven't heard a first-hand report on what's happening to the L.A. "Bums" since venerable Ebbet's Field gave way to high towers and the fragrant Gowanus was scenting the Brooklyn breezes with its Channel (cat) Number 5.

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Juan Pizarro and Gary Peters were the toast of Chicago last year as Peters won 20 games and Pizarro 19.

Both were in action Wednesday, night, Peters making a rare appearance as a reliever and Pizarro making one of his infrequent starts, as the White Sox split of a doubleheader with Washington, Senators, losing the opener 5-1 before taking the nightcap 5-3.

Pizarro, who posted a 10-9 record with a 2.56 earned-run average last season, made only his seventh start of the season in the opener and made his seventh quick exit, leaving in the second inning after surrounding three hits and two runs.

The 28-year-old left hander reported late to spring training and has done little since, complaining a pitiful 3-2 record and a horrendous 7.20 e.r.a.

Peters, who compiled a 20-8 record with a 2.50 e.r.a. in 1964, came out of the bullpen for the first time this season in the eighth inning of the nightcap, retired one batter, and then sat down while Eddie Fisher pitched the ninth.

Peters has a 5-5 record but has been able to complete only one of 14 starts and has a hefty 4.00 e.r.a.

"If Pizarro and Peters had pitched as far as they did last year," manager Al Lopez said "we'd be five or six games up from where we are now."

SKEIN BROKEN

As it is, the White Sox are just one game in back of the leading Minnesota Twins, who rode three homers to a 6-3 victory over Cleveland that ended the Indians' winning streak of 10.

Elsewhere, Detroit Tigers blanked Los Angeles Angels behind Hank Aguirre's four - hit pitching, Baltimore Orioles downed Kansas City Athletics 6-4 and New York Yankees walloped Kansas City Athletics 8-3.

Jimmie Hall connected for a homer in the second inning for the Twins' first run, Bob Allison hit a pinch-hit homer with two on in the fourth to put Minnesota ahead to stay and Sandy Valdespino wrapped it up with a two-run shot in the fifth.

Aguirre, who has lost only two games, became the League's first nine-game winner as he posted his fifth straight victory and also drove in the only run he needed against the Angels with a second - inning single.

The Orioles scored three unearned runs in the fourth inning, then held on against a late Red Sox homer barrage by Carl Yastrzemski, Tony and Bob Tillman.

Conigliaro Ray Barker hit his third homer in four games as the Yankees cut loose for eight runs in the first two innings against Kansas City.

Whitey Ford won his fifth in a row, bringing his record to 8-4.

Sets New World Record

Jazy Defeats Clarke

MELUN, France (AP) — Michel Jazy, French Olympian angered by hints that he was a coward when it came to mano-man racing, clipped almost four full seconds off the world record for the two-mile run Wednesday while defeating Australia's Ron Clarke by 14 yards.

Jazy, who lowered the time for the mile run to 3:53.6 June 9, was caught in eight minutes, 22.6 seconds on a track in this suburb, 26 miles from the heart of Paris.

The race was arranged only Tuesday when Clarke arrived here from the United States.

The listed record for the two-mile event is 8:26.4 and is held by Dyrol Burleson of West Milton, Ohio, the United States' winner of 5,000 metres at the Tokyo Olympics. In that race Jazy was the heavy favorite but finished fourth while Clarke, who is better at longer distances, was ninth.

En route to the finish line Wednesday, Jazy also wiped out his own record for the 3,000-metre distance, with a 7:49 clocking. His old mark was 7:49.2.

Clarke was timed in 8:26.8, which also bettered Schul's listed world record. The Australian previously never had bettered 8:32 for the distance.

Jazy now holds the world record for the one mile, 2,000 metres, 3,000 metres and two miles. Clarke is the world record holder for three miles, 5,000 metres, six miles, 10,000 metres and 10 miles.

Lightfoots Rally Pots 7-3 Win

A five-run rally in the sixth inning erased a 3-2 deficit and gave Lightfoot Construction a 7-3 victory over Ter-Haar Dusters in Commercial Softball League play last night.

Lightfoots potted single runs in the first and second frames and Daubers scored two in the second. It stayed tied until Ter-Haar scored one in the top of the sixth - then came the Lightfoot explosion.

George Young pitched five-hit ball over the route for the winners. He struck out five, walked four and received scrorless support.

Ray Ryan went the first five and a third frame for Ter-Haar, replaced by Pringle. Ryan gave up six of the seven hits, fanned three and walked four while charged with all the runs. Pringle another fanner and walked a batter. The team committed five errors.

Joe Capp socked a brace of singles and Don Smith hit a double to spark the Lightfoot club at the plate. Other base hits were split among Rusty Garvin, Don Dolan, Don Wood and George Young.

Ron Pointer paced the losers. He hit a solo homer, in the sixth, and also had a single. Ray Ryan singled twice, Hamlin once.

The victory tightened Lightfoots' grip on second place in the league standings.

Trenton Golfer 'Could be "Open" Upset!

There could be a big upset in the Canadian Open Golf Tournament which got under way at Milton today.

And the upset could be a 17-year-old youngster, playing under the colors of the Trenton Golf Club.

He is Brock Beatty of Daytona Beach, Florida, who is summering at Trenton.

Beatty was one of five amateurs among the top eight qualifiers.

The six-foot-one youngster was born in Latrobe, Penn., Arnold Palmer's home town, but has little more than met Palmer.

However, he has had a couple of lessons from Palmer's father. In his qualifying round par scores of 71, Beatty clipped two from par on a back nine 34, after a 37 out.

Beatty teed off today in top company. He is trio'd with Gary Cowan and Bob Panszuk.

The youngster teamed with Carl Charlton of Trenton in the Best-Ball Tournament here last Friday and came up with a two-over par 73.

Wayne Oates, also of Trenton qualified with a 73. Gary Bowerman of Toronto, formerly of the Bay of Quinte, entered the charmed circle with a 37-40—77.

May's Hot Bludgeon Sparks Giants

Homer, Single

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Mays insists he doesn't know when one of his patented hitting streaks is on the way but a quick look at the figures shows he's on one now.

Mays sparked San Francisco Giants to a 6-1 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates Wednesday with a home run—the 475th of his career, tying Stan Musial in second place on the all-time National League list.

Mel Ott's all tops that list and there's little doubt that he eventually will be supplanted by Mays, now 34 and a Giant since 1951.

Willie added a single to his homer against the Pirates, making him 10-for-15 in his last four games and zooming his average 22 points to .346, first in the league. His season homer total of 22 leads the majors.

Also in the National League, Cincinnati Reds whipped St. Louis Cardinals 6-2 behind Jim Maloney's pitching and some hefty hitting, and Milwaukee Braves beat Chicago Cubs 6-2 as Wade Blasingame pitched a four-hitter and Cub right-hander Larry Jackson suffered another setback. The other clubs were idle.

Mays tagged Bob Veal for his fourth and finally chased the grim Pirate left - hander in the four - run seventh, helped by Donn Clendenon's two costly errors.

Maloney, who pitched 10 no-hit innings in losing to New York Mets last week, set down the first 14 Cardinals in order and finished with a six-hitter. Frank Robinson tripled and doubled and scored three Cincinnati runs.

The Reds now have won 15 of 22 games this month and four in a row, while the defending champion Cards have dropped 21 of their last 28.

Blasingame, the Braves's young slowballing southpaw, gave up a run in the first inning on a walk, Glenn Beckert's single and Billy Williams' sacrifice fly. He then held the Cubs hitless until Williams homered in the seventh.

Joe Torre supported his pitcher with a three-run homer in the first inning.

No-Hitter, Triple-Play Feature Game

Darkness halted a South Hastings baseball game in the top of the eighth inning and preserved a no-hitter for Stan "Lefty" Reid last night.

Reid hurled the no-hitter for Latta in a 3-0 win over Plane's Concrete of Canniffon. The game was played at Latta.

Reid struck out 14 batters and walked only one while tossing his no-hitter over seven frames.

Plate umpire Al Kelleher started the eighth inning as darkness threatened. Canniffon sent "Butch" Clapp to the plate as a pinchhitter and he blooped a single to left off Reid. The next man was retired and Kelleher stopped the game at this point because of darkness, erasing the inning and the hit.

Latta scored their runs one at a time in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings. They collected four hits off Tom Bradshaw who pitched the route in defeat. He fanned three and walked one.

After one Latta run in the sixth, Canniffon came up with a rare triple play. Bob Smith lined a shot to first with men on second and first. Ross Dingey speared the ball, stepped on first to double the man off there and threw to second to complete the triple play.

Latta got runs with Geen's single, a stolen base and an error in the fifth; an error, walk and Rollins' hit in the sixth; a hit batter, single and ground out in the seventh.

Doug Rollins had two of the winner's hits with Doug Geen and Fred Armstrong notching the others.

Rain Washed Out Softball

Rain washed out two Belleville and District Softball League games last night, one of them almost before it got started.

The Trudeau Motors-Trenton Printers game, in Trenton, was halted half way through the first inning. It was postponed.

In Picton, Tyrwell Chisholm and Bloomfield were tied 3-3 in the top of the fifth inning when the rains arrived to end that one.

The teams must play at least seven innings in this league before it is considered a legal game.

Tonight, the two Belleville clubs, Ellis Juniors and Trudeau Motors, tangle at the Fairgrounds here at eight o'clock. Elsewhere, Trenton travels to Madoc for an 8:15 affair.

Following is the current league standing:

	W.	L.	PTS.
Ellis Juniors	7	3	14
Bloomfield	7	3	14
Tyrwell	6	3	12
Trudeaus	5	3	10
Trenton	4	5	8
Stirling	3	6	6
Madoc	1	7	2

Teed Off At Noon

Weslock Upped Curtain On Open

By STERLING TAYLOR

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — Defending champion Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., gets a chance to size up what could be his chief rival in the opening round of the Ontario Open golf championship here today.

The amateur ace was scheduled to tee off before noon in a threesome with amateur Bruce Castator and veteran professional Joe Noble, both of Toronto.

Castator, who won the Canadian amateur title in 1958, shot a one-under-par 70 in the qualifying round Tuesday over the 6,505-yard Trafalgar Golf and Country Club course.

And Castator, 32, who was forced to the sidelines during the last seven years because of pressure from his sales job, plans on going after sub-par scores over the same layout today.

"I figure an average of three 68s will win it," Castator said.

"My game has been improving steadily all season and this course is terrific—great greens for stroking."

The opening day's draw also has Brock Beatty, 17, a high school student from Daytona Beach, Fla., playing in a threesome with amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener and professional Bob Panasiuk of Windsor.

Cowan and Panasiuk are fast company for Beatty, who is spending his summer vacation at Trenton, Ont.

Paul Martin of Oakville, who led the qualifiers with a two-under-par 69 Tuesday, is scheduled to tee off shortly after noon against Bob Young of Nashville, Ont., and amateur Norman Mogil of Toronto.

The 54-hole tournament is scheduled to run through Friday and Saturday. There is a total of $5,000 prize money at stake with the top professional picking up $1,200 and a place in the world championship at Sutton, Mass., Aug. 19-22.

The 72 amateurs in the starting field of 150 will be shooting for a berth on the Ontario Willingdon Cup team. The medal-play championship along with the qualifying round of the Ontario amateur championship make up the trials for the Willingdon team.

The second Canadian to qualify for the event is expected to see action.

Vicki Berner, 20 - year - old Vancouver brunette, was scheduled to meet Mary O'Donnell of Britain in a match twice postponed by bad weather which has plagued the tournament since Monday.

DENVER SIGNS GILCHRIST

DENVER (AP) — Fullback Cookie Gilchrist ended his holdout Wednesday and signed a contract with Denver Broncos of the American Football League. Gilchrist had been balking at joining the Broncos since Buffalo traded him to Denver in the off-season for fullback Billy Joe. Terms of his contract were not disclosed.

A CURE FOR PUSHED PUTTS

One of the prime requirements for consistently successful putting is that the golfer's body remain still during the stroke. Once his body moves, he loses control of the clubface position.

A common body movement in putting is the sliding of the hips toward the hole as the putter moves into the ball (No. 1). Such movement usually opens the clubface so that the putt is pushed out to the right of the intended line. (2)

To eliminate any such movement during any putting stroke, I stand over the ball with my knees firmly locked together (No. 2). By pre-locking myself in this position before I putt, I find it easier to stroke the ball calmly through head and arm movement.

Again, the fewer moving parts you must control, the better your chances for consistent accuracy — and on no shot is accuracy more important than on the putt.

Wants Marriage Annulled

Cupid Knocks Out Clay

MIAMI (AP) — Cassius Clay asked a court Wednesday to annul his 10-month marriage to a one-time model, complaining she broke a promise to convert to his Moslem faith.

The 23-year-old heavyweight champion, who has been a Moslem since he won the Olympic title in 1960, filed the suit as "Muhammad Ali, also known as Cassius Clay."

He said 26-year-old Sonji Clay had promised to adhere to Moslem prohibitions against tobacco, whisky and facial makeup and Moslem requirements that "all female adherents cover their bodies with floor-length dresses of plain and simple design."

Clay said in his suit he and Sonji were married by common law July 34 in Miami. They were married in a civil ceremony in Gary, Ind., Aug. 14.

In Chicago, Mrs. Clay said she was not aware of the suit and did not know that Clay had planned to file suit.

She said she had not seen her husband for two weeks and did not know where he was.

She said she had done her best to respect the Moslem faith. She said she did not smoke or drink and ate only foods prescribed for Moslems. The sole point of contention, she said, was the dictim that wives of Moslems wear floor-length dresses.

South Hastings Little League

Camrilton Jets blanked Carmel 2-0 in a tight South Hastings Little League battle played at Carmel.

Billie Parks was the winning moundsman while Trevor Bort took the loss.

D. Richardson hit a triple and Bob Way a double for Carmel.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

FULL SHOULDER TURN INCREASES DISTANCE

Modern golf teaching stresses a full coiling of the shoulder and upper body muscles. There must be something to this, for it means that long-hitters, regardless of their over-all size, make very full shoulder turns. (See illustrations of Sam Snead, Ben Hogan and myself).

I find that many amateur golfers could be hitting the ball farther if they would work to develop a fuller coiling of their shoulders. And I think almost every golfer can increase his or her turn. I suggest that every morning, upon arising, you merely simulate your normal backswing (you don't need a club in your hands) then increase your shoulder turn until you feel a definite tightening across your upper back and down your left side. Hold this position for about 10 seconds.

Also stress this fuller shoulder turn when you hit practice shots. In play, longer shots will soon result.

Cocktails For Breakfast

CLEVELAND (AP) — Vic Davalillo, the American League's leading hitter, drawn extra punch at the plate for Cleveland Indians by cutting down non - alcoholic cocktails made by his own special recipe.

The 130-pound slugging centre fielder says he doesn't eat breakfast. But he drinks several tall glasses of a concoction he makes from orange juice, eggs, sugar and milk.

"I don't feel full all day," explains the Venezuelan with the .361 batting average. "This gives me energy. Then in the late afternoon I eat a steak and a big salad."

"I invented the cocktail myself about eight years ago," says Vic.

He's had trouble convincing his teammates that the milky-yellow notion is good for them. They say they don't like the taste, but quickly add that they don't care what Davalillo drinks as long as he keeps hitting.

In 60 Cleveland games this season, the five - foot - seven former pitcher has 82 hits, including four home runs and 36 runs batted in. His mighty bat and speed have helped keep Cleveland high up in the pennant race.

He credits the cocktail for his performance so far this season.

The Fishing Report

TORONTO (CP) — Anglers will have an added incentive to move into their favorite fishing spots this weekend — the bass season opens Saturday and runs to Nov. 30.

Junior Lacrosse

TORONTO (CP) — Mimico Mounties climbed into a first-place tie with Oshawa Green Gaels of the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A series by defeating Etobicoke Terriers 12-3 Wednesday night.

NEED EUROPEAN TIES

LONDON (CP)—Latin American colleges want to renew their ties with European centres of learning, Dr. Maurilio de San Martin, rector of San Marco University in Peru, said here. "We get financial help from the United States," he said, "but we are also obliged to adjust our system of education to North American standards."

Crothers Will Run In 880

MONTREAL (CP)—Officials of the Canadian senior track and field championships have allowed Bill Crothers to enter the 880-yard event at his request.

Entries chairman Crawford Reoch said Wednesday Crothers' coach, Fred Foot, told him the decision to enter the event came after a few good workouts this week. Crothers had omitted the 880-yard entry last week.

He is still entered in the 440 and the 440 hurdles but Reoch said he expects Crothers will drop out of the hurdles event.

The championships take place in suburban St. Lambert Saturday.

Yesterday's Stars

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting—Willie Mays, Giants, hit his 22nd homer of the season and No. 475 of his career, tying Stan Musial for the runner-up spot in the all-time National League home run derby, while helping San Francisco whip Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1.

Pitching—Hank Aguirre, Tigers, shut out Los Angeles on four hits, becoming the winningest pitcher in the American League with nine victories, as Detroit defeated the Angels 2-0.

DONORS HONORED

LONDON (CP)—Persons who donate more than $25 to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will have their names inscribed on a dog kennel at the society's dog pound.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Paul Newman and Elke Sommer rescue Edward G. Robinson from a gang of kidnappers in one of the tense moments from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's exciting drama, "The Prize". Filmed in Panavision and Metrocolor, the story revolves about a young American novelist who comes to Stockholm to accept a Nobel Prize and walks into both murderous danger and an uninhibited love affair. "The Prize" is showing tonight and Friday at the Belleville Drive-In theatre. 2nd feature attraction presents Bob Hope, Michele Mercier and Yvonne DeCarlo in the comedy hit "A Global Affair".

Howard Hawks Will Direct John Wayne's Next Western

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene—

No rest for John Wayne. He was at Paramount this week to record part of an album and confer with Howard Hawks, who is directing Wayne's next western. Long a successful combination (Red River, Rio Bravo, Hatari), the pair plan to start the film in September, possibly near Dallas.

Wayne will be flying to Rome this summer to play a brief role in Cast A Giant Shadow. The film stars Kirk Douglas, with Yul Brynner and Frank Sinatra. The Sons of Katie Elder, which was previewed this week, demonstrated that Wayne suffered no loss of vitality from his lung operation last year. . . .

Screen writer Bill Bowers has an idea for a Record Album that he thinks would be a sure seller: "Audrey Hepburn sings the songs Jo Stafford made famous by Judie Andrews". . . .

DEAL FALLS THROUGH

Short story: Carroll Baker wanted to make a movie with Bob Hope to improve her image with family audiences. Hope had a script and thought co-starring with Carroll would be a good idea. Carroll's agent presented her money demands. End of deal. . .

All that canonoading you hear is the opening salvo of the 1963 Oscar race. Yes, in June yet; Lee Marvin's handlers are already buying trade paper ads to salute their hero's performance in Cat Ballou. . . .

Walls Talk Newsmen: "Why don't writers write stories about the vital issues in today's world?" The serious - minded actor has been looking for strong, contemporary vehicles but can't find them. He recently finished a costume comedy, The Lady L, and is now performing in a modern mystery, The Moving Target.

Newsman and partners bought film rights to Fletcher Knebel's new novel, Night of Camp David, about a mealy incapacitated U.S. president.

TIGERS CLAIM PENA

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Kansas City Athletics announced Wednesday veteran right - handed pitcher Orlando Pena has been claimed on waivers by Detroit Tigers for $20,000. The 29-year-old hurler, with the Athletics since August of 1962, appeared in 12 games this season with an 0-6 record and an earned run average of 6.52.

Pussy Galore Tired of Judo Tossing

In Goldfinger she threw James Bond nearly across the room with a judo throw. Now coming to the U.S., every photographer wants to shoot her in judo poses.

"I did a television show in England where I wore black leather coats and tossed everybody about. But it's over. I want to be known now as an actress, not a judo expert."

Closest Race in American League

Crackers Slip By Chiefs 5-4

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Atlanta Crackers aren't very convincing as leaders of the International League.

The Crackers absorbed a 9-1 shellacking at the hands of the fifth - place Syracuse Chiefs Wednesday night, then had to scramble in the late innings for a 5-4 victory in the second game of their doubleheader.

The night-before, Atlanta was drubbed 10-3 by the Chiefs.

Despite their mediocre showing, the Crackers stayed five games ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs and Columbus Jets. The Jets moved into a tie with the Leafs by downing Buffalo Bisons 6-4 and Jacksonville Suns ended a three - game losing streak with an 11-8 win over Rochester Red Wings. Leafs were rained out of their game in Toledo against the Mud Hens.

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The 'dairy' doubles paid $455.30 at Garden City Raceway Wednesday night when two longshots won the first and second races.

Denny Barnes, owned by Brian Lawson of Midland, Ont., returned $55.70 the first race while Another Look, owned by Lisha Sarick of Toronto, won the second and paid $26.60.

Eagle Armbro, owned by the Eagle Stable of Kitchener and named Canada's two-year-old Pacer of the Year in 1963, won the featured race by 6½ lengths on a sloppy track. Eagle Armbro was timed in 2:08 3-5 and paid $8.60.

NEW YORK (AP) — There isn't a happier man in Boston, or anywhere else, for that matter, than Cronin, the president of the American League. His baseball circuit is having a pennant race the kind league presidents dream of.

The teams never have been as closely bunched at the top after 10 weeks of the campaign in any of Cronin's six previous years at the helm. That's why he's proud.

"The closest we had to this one was during my first year as league president," recalled Cronin. "That was in 1959, the year Chicago won the pennant. That was the last time a team won other than New York Yankees."

New York won a squeaker last year, defeating Chicago by one game and Baltimore by two. But never, once the race got well under way, were there more than three teams in contention.

YANKS ARE BACK

Now there are five—with the Yankees far behind.

Did Cronin think the Yankees' collapse, at least up to the present time, was good or bad for the league?

"Well," he said cautiously, "I don't feel it's good for one club to keep on winning year after year.

"But I am not yet ready to count the Yankees out. I feel confident they will make a move soon. They've been hit by crippling injuries. If it weren't for that, I'm sure they'd be up among the contenders."

Cronin voiced confidence that the close race would reflect at the turnstiles before long.

RELEASED OF PROBATION

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida state pardon board Wednesday released Bob Hayes, Olympic gold medal winner, from a 10-year probation sentence imposed for a 1960 robbery. Hayes and a fellow student at Florida A and M, James Vickers, were convicted of robbing another student of two billfolds and two pieces of chewing gum. Vickers was sentenced to six months in jail.

New Team Will Try to Get 'Nightlife' Off the Hook

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's Nightlife program, which in 10 months has gone through many upheavals, will try something else starting Monday night.

It was launched as The Les Crane Show and shifted emphasis and behind-the-scenes personnel constantly.

Finally, as the show's ratings failed to improve, Crane was pushed out of the late evening show's host chair. A new name, Nightlife, was tied on the answer and a policy of "guest hosts" was instituted.

Still nothing much happened to make ABC happy. But now one of ABC's varsity teams has been brought in to produce the show. That is Nick Vanoff and William Harbach, who have done well with Hollywood Palace. And Crane, presented in different context and background, gets a second chance—for four weeks anyway and maybe longer.

"I don't know what's going to happen with the show," said ABC Program Director Edgar Sherlick. "But I do know that we are in this thing for keeps —we are intent on establishing a late evening program and we know that the perfect format is not established overnight. Even the Tonight Show went through about seven changes of format before they found the right one."

CBS' National Drivers' Test, a news department special that had viewers testing their own skills, and a beauty contest toppled NBC's Bonanza from the top of the Nielsen ratings.

Bonanza slid down to fifth place in the Nielsen ratings for the two - week period ending June 6.

The rating service put the CBS special on top, followed by the Miss U.S.A. pageant, also on CBS, then came Gomer Pyle, Bewitched, and Bonanza.

CBS came out well on top in the ratings with a 16.8, followed by NBC with 14.7 and ABC, 14.4.

The Nielsen ratings showed that NBC's coverage of the Gemini launching was preferred by viewers. The ratings for the 9½ hours of coverage were NBC, 9.9; CBS, 9.0, and ABC, 3.1.

2 NEW COLOR HITS.

Motion pictures' unique special effects techniques provide a magical touch for added thrills and excitement in two new adventure films opening tonight at the Park Theatre for their first showings.

The fantasy thrillers, both from American International Pictures and filmed in exciting Colorscope, are "War of the Zombies" and "The Lost World of Sinbad."

"War of the Zombies," starring John Drew Barrymore and Susi Anderson, tells how a bloodthirsty goddess tries to conquer the world with the aid of an army of zombies and fearful black magic. It's realistically chilling excitement — thanks to motion pictures' own magic.

More fantasy thrills provide similar excitement and action in "The Lost World of Sinbad" as the famed fictional sailor battles injustice and evil magic in a series of breath-taking adventures. Portraying Sinbad is the same actor who created the leader of the "Seven Samurai," which inspired the award-winning picture "The Magnificent Seven — Toshiro Mifune.

Together the color and scope thrillers make for a rare double feature combination of chills, thrills, action and unusual excitement — adventure motion picture making at its best.

The complete shows are at 7.00 and 8.45 p.m.

Astrological

By SYDNEY OMARR

For June 25

Aries (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You are on solid ground where resources enter picture. But now is not so good for gaming games or speculation. Relax tonight but avoid extravagance. Be with congenial people.

Taurus (Apr. 20 — May 20): Cycle high but entanglements are likely. Stress independence, freedom of action. One could make offer but may not be qualified. Analyze hidden motives . . . then follow through on project.

Gemini (May 21 — June 20): Don't be last one to leave social affair. Key is moderation. Rest, certain amount of privacy necessary today. Be philosophical about restrictions, limitations.

Cancer (June 21 — July 22): Favorable lunar position highlights fulfillment of basic desires. Trust hunch . . . heed inner voice. Your intuitive intellect is honed to razor sharpness. Listen and observe.

Leo (July 23 — Aug. 22): Not good to feel committed to only one course now. Stress flexibility. Important communication from family member indicated. Wise to be skeptical, thorough in approach. Then you avoid deception.

Virgo (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Remain close to home base if practical. Day features social activity, some confusing statements. Means take what you hear with proverbial grain of salt. Key is humor, understanding.

Libra (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Obtain valuable hint from today's Aries message. Be wary where money is concerned. Best to check investment prospects with expert. Evening could feature romantic interlude.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Examine various angles. Go slow where definite action is concerned. Be receptive. But don't permit emotions to rule logic. Realize feeling of frustration is only temporary.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22—Dec. 21): Obtain meaningful clue from today's Scorpio message. Fine for visiting one who is confined to home or hospital. Adhere to fine principles of Golden Rule. Special group activity indicated tonight.

Capricorn (Dec. 22—Jan. 19): Friend who is enthusiastic may only be testing your reaction. Remain calm . . . deliberate. Best course not to mix business with pleasure. Important not to press issues just now.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Complete what you start. Your efforts have great appeal today. You can attract favorable attention of higher-ups, resolve domestic situation with little or no difficulty. Relax tonight.

Pisces (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): New contacts made now will prove fruitful. First reports apt to be deceptive. Study situation as a whole. Avoid jumping to conclusions. Best to entertain at home, if possible.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you tend to be introspective, but will battle for ideals. Your critics feel you could be more practical.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Taurus, Gemini, Cancer. Special mood to Sagittarius: Avoid extremes — applies to dining and entertainment.

Manassa Mauler 70 Today

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Dempsey still is a magic name. When the boys gather today to help the Manassa Mauler celebrate his 70th birthday, there will be old tales told, old memories rekindled and old names remembered.

But, most of all, Gene Tunney will be getting the long count and Jack Dempsey once again will be losing his chance to win back the world heavyweight boxing title.

It has been 38 years since that September evening in Chicago when Tunney reeled while the referee tried to get Dempsey into a neutral corner. And when Tunney did get up he was on a bicycle.

Dempsey and Tunney are old friends now. In fact, Gene probably will be present at the party Tunney is ill and the father of a United States congressman from California, who is pushing for federal control of boxing.

Jack still looks enough like the rowling young slugger from Manassa, Colo., to command respect. He stands up tall and straight and moves easily with the balance of a trained, professional athlete.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Pre-race excitement for the My Dear Stakes at Woodbine Wednesday was centred on Arctic Dancer the $100,000 baby sister of Northern Dancer, voted Thursday into Canada's sports Hall of Fame.

But on the track it was a speedy filly named Prix Jive who provided the excitement, coming from behind to win the five - furlong dash by three lengths over the filing Arctic Dancer and Northern Dancer owned by Sonny Smythe.

The win was the fourth straight for Prize Jive, owned by Garnet Garrett of Hornby, Ont., and the $7,650 prize money brought her earnings to $12,460.

Arctic Dancer, owned by J. Louis Levesque of Montreal was purchased at millionaire E. P. Taylor's annual yearling sales at Windfields farm here last year.

the toll is the highest in a road crash in Canada since the Second World War.

Andrew Konkin, 48, of Verigin, his wife, Helen, 38, and their son Andrew Konkin, Jr., nine, were killed in the crash and their five-year-old daughter Darlene Konkin died in hospital later.

In the other car, Donald Gabriel Queweszne, 24, Paul David Queweszne, 27, both of the Keeseekoose reserve, and Ann Cote, 22, and Mrs. Percy Whitehawk, 78, of the Cote reserve were killed in the collision.

Thelma Rose Cote, 18, of the Cote Indian reserve, died in hospital. An attempt to save her unborn child failed.

Queen's Plate A Cup

TORONTO (CP) — The Queen's Plate isn't a plate at all and the Queen's guineas aren't guineas.

But it will be the 106th running of the Queen's Plate race when the field of Canadian-bred three-year-old horses goes to the post at Woodbine Race Track here late Saturday afternoon.

And the Queen Mother will be on hand to present the spoils to the owner of the winning horse in a race that was first run here June 27, 1860.

She won't be handing out any plates, though. Instead, the winner will receive a gold cup, about a foot high, valued at $3,000.

And in place of 50 guineas, supposedly the traditional gift from the Queen, the winning owner will be handed a small purple sack of 50 gold sovereigns—worth about $150.

Plates were first awarded to winning race horses by Charles II of England in the 17th century. Charles gave silver plates to race winners at Newmarket, the size of the plate indicating the value of the race.

WINDSOR IS TI

PARIS (Reuters)—The Duke of Windsor celebrated his 71st birthday Wednesday with a luncheon with the duchess at their Paris home. He later had dinner at the British Embassy.

SANDSTONE ART — These carvings are the work of Sam Burich, captor of killer whale Moby Doll. They were done on the rocky coast of Saturna Island in the Gulf of Georgia during eight weeks of idle moments while waiting for a whale to swim into range of his harpoon gun. The carvings join those of other west coast residents made on the sandstone rocks centuries ago. (CP Photo)

Rock Carvings of Moby Doll Relate History of Capture

By TOM CARNEY

SATURNA ISLAND, B.C. (CP)—Sculptor Sam Burich has added an odd chapter to the mystical history left here by those who recorded their deeds in the eternal rock of the Pacific shore.

Burich, captor of killer whale Moby Doll, adorned the rocks near his temporary whaling station here during an eight-week vigil before harpooning the 17-foot, 2½-ton whale last July 16.

The etchings, on the rocks below the East Point lighthouse on this small Gulf of Georgia island 40 miles southwest of Vancouver, may give archeologists 20 centuries from now the same puzzles posed by the rock carvings cut by the Indian people who inhabited the area 2,000 years ago.

The whale, second such mammal ever captured, was towed alive 40 miles across the gulf to a man-made pen in Vancouver where scientists studied for almost three months before it died.

In a large city shed sculptor Burich, employed by the Vancouver Public Aquarium, is still working on a model of his pet.

But the story of Moby Doll's capture remains engraved for the ages on the sandstone rocks around the harpooning site here, joining a long list of rock carvings celebrating the lives of west coast dwellers.

There are many rock-carvings, technically known as petroglyphs, in British Columbia. While they are found as far north as Alaska and throughout North America, they are more numerous on the west coast.

Wilson Duff, resigning as curator of the provincial museum at Victoria to become associate professor of anthropology at the University of B.C., says archeologists are unable to determine the age of most of them.

Some date back, he suspects "several thousand years."

Whoever created the early petroglyphs were ancestors of the present Indian people here, he says.

Most were carved with pebbles in sandstone, which, if protected from the harshness of weather and wave erosion, lasts indefinitely.

There are many unanswerables posed by the variety and meaning of west coast petroglyphs.

Some, like Burich's, were the products of mere doodling, done for fun in an idle moment. They depict both real and fanciful creatures.

"But most of them had more meaning than that," says Mr. Duff.

An Indian petroglyph found at Fort Rupert commemorated the ritual killing of a slave. The central figure in this petroglyph represented the spirit of the winter ceremonial.

SHOW ASIAN INFLUENCE

Several more petroglyphs found at Hartley Bay appear to have been made by initiates spending a period in isolation as part of the ceremony of being introduced into the winter ceremonial, says Mr. Duff.

In subject and style, some petroglyphs show themes and figures common to recent west coast native art. Other petroglyphs are too simple for such judgment to be made. But some petroglyphs, in complicated style, apparently are not related to recent west coast art.

Some of the B.C. petroglyphs bear "ancient basic similarities" to Asiatic art, says Mr. Duff.

"I'm sure ancient Asiatic and early Chinese influences may be detected on the west coast.

"But the idea of coast Indians singing Buddhist chants—that's pretty far-fetched."

Such influences would go back thousands of years.

Perhaps 2,000 years in the future, archeologists will be pondering Burich's Moby Doll stage.

By then, man may have discovered what makes some men carve on rocks and other men wonder why they do.

Columnist Jack Hutton describes a mythical telephone call . . . from Ringo Starr, MBE.

Teen-age Canada

Would Have Said This If Ringo Had Phoned Him

By JACK HUTTON

"Hello," said the familiar voice on the telephone. "Did I wake you up. I'm in a bit of a spot. It's Ringo."

Ringo? Ringo Starr? I knew I must be dreaming but I masked my surprise. "Whatever's the matter? You've never called at this time of night, before," I said.

"Well, it's about a little medal the Queen just gave us. John, George, Paul and me. They left out Brian Epstein, but the rest of us just got an award."

I knew I was dreaming at this point but I kept my voice level. "Oh, the Queen gave you a medal. Well, I guess it was long overdue. What was it?"

"They call it the 'MBE' — we're members of the Order of the British Empire. Maybe you don't know about it over there in Canada. Hallow, have I still got you on this crazy overseas connection? The line's getting faint. I think Scotland Yard's listening in."

"Yes, yes I hear you," I said. "Tell me, Ringo, what do you think they gave you the medal for? I mean I know you're worth any kind of medal but they usually give those medals to soldiers and jockeys."

MBE FOR MAKING MONEY?

For the first time I can recall, Ringo's voice, was tinged with just a trace of bitterness. "People are saying we got the honor for bringing a lot of money to our country. Isn't that grotto?"

"No, that's strictly Fred," I said still wondering whether I slept or was awake. News like this was hard to take. Ringo, John, George and Paul being criticized for an honor given them by the Queen!

"Tell me," I added, "how is Maureen taking it?"

"Just fine, considering that we've been married such a short time and people are criticizing her husband for being recognized by the Royal circle," said Ringo.

"What are people doing?" I asked.

"They're sending their medals back, that's what they're doing," said Ringo. "John says he wishes we'd never been mentioned for the MBE. The medals are coming back from all over — Canada, Scotland, England. I can't help agreeing with John."

There was a pause. "You don't always like our music, but what do you think about all this?" Ringo asked. "I mean do you think we should feel badly? Why are people reacting this way? I haven't heard such a storm since the last time we were on American TV and all those girls screamed till the balcony."

"It's that bad?" I said.

REALLY DESPERATE

"I'll tell you how bad it is," Ringo said uneasily. "George is talking about getting a haircut. And Paul is talking about going out with one girl at a time from now on."

"I'll tell you what I think," I said. "If all this is true, Ringo my opinion of the Royal Family has just gone up 100 percent and it was high to start with."

"You really think that?"

"Of course I do," I said. "It took some of us a long while to realize it, but you symbolize something for this generation. You're not the greatest musicians or singers in the world, and you don't claim to be, but you enjoy what you're doing."

"And, even more than that, you say to the world: Here we are, take us for what we are, like it or not.' You symbolize a generation that refuses to be panicked by the mess an older generation is passing on to you.

"You're finding your own humor, your own music, your own philosophy, your own likes, dislikes and perhaps you're rediscovering the same values that your parents had and their parents before them.

"Tell me," I said, asking a question for the first time, "did you know that Prince Charles likes your music? And did you know that the Queen and Prince Philip listened to your records at a recent party they had?"

"Yeah," said Ringo, "I'd heard that. That was just after I had my tonsils out."

"I don't know about the tonsils." I said, "But it's the truth. And a great many serious musicians say they like the rhythm behind your music. And some compare your motifs with the early Charlie Chaplin flickers. You've got talent."

ROYALTY TIP TO DATE . . .

"As far as I'm concerned, the Royal Family has just proved that it's more up-to-date with the modern world than all the old fogeys who are complaining about the award. You tell people I said so."

"Gosh, thanks," said Ringo. And he hung up.

Did Ringo Starr telephone me in my sleep? Who knows — but that's exactly what I would have told him.

North Kamloops Secondary Going Modern Next Term, Using Closed-circuit TV

By DENNIS ORCHARD

NORTH KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — With the flick of a switch, a teacher watching television at home will turn on equipment 2½ miles away at school to record the program for next-day viewing by his students.

A basketball coach will televise a player jumping for the basket, then run the tape through a monitor to show the boy his mistakes.

These are two of the refinements planned for the next school year in the closed-circuit television at North Kamloops Secondary School. The program was launched last fall.

It will cost an extra $13,000 to add this videotape equipment to NORKAM — 's studios, bringing the bill for lease of two cameras, controls and 11 monitors to around $18,000.

The expanded facilities will also give the project a sense of permanency and perhaps make the results easier to measure. As of now, originator Larry Shorter and other members of the staff can only offer their opinion, and their opinion is that TV has broadened the learning experience and probably improved it.

In the last school year 10 courses of English, social studies, mathematics, science and French were delivered by 17 teachers to students in Grades 8 and 10.

WILL SHOOT FILMS

The system, in use five hours a day five days a week, met a difficult situation caused by defeat of a plebiscite for expansion of the crowded 1,000-student school.

Next fall the system will have a chance to boom. Video-tape will allow teachers and their camera crews—all students—to store and repeat programs. They will be able to go into the community 19 film work at the refinery and the fire hall, the city library and the mayor's office.

Mr. Shorter can preserve the best of Canadian television with the switching he is installing in his home. All forms of sports activity can be taped for replay, with stop - motion and slow-motion tricks in the package.

The existing studio of NORKAM-TV is a made-over, 12-foot-square stores room. Students operate controls and cameras while a teacher gives his lesson from a desk or blackboard.

The telecast is usually fed into five monitors in an adjoining study room containing 130 students. Teachers have found it best to cut their lessons to 25 minutes or less.

Instructional TV has meant a form of team teaching, allowing such natural pairs as John Hunter and Gordon Lloyd to exploit the former's flare for cartoons and visual dramatization and the latter's knack for specialization and organization. Both teach social studies.

HELPS SLOW LEARNERS

Mr. Shorter, 34-year-old English and mathematics teacher, is a former radio, television and advertising man. He began in September, 1962, to prepare an elaborate report on U.S. experience with educational TV, and it writing now about the results here.

He has discovered that television attracts one big block to learning by below-average pupils: Their difficulty in visualizing what they are being taught.

By putting good pictures on camera, some subjects come alive for these students and their recall in later discussion is exceptional, he says.

After the killer whale Moby Doll died in captivity at Vancouver last year, Dr. Pat McGeer of the University of B.C. brought the mammal's brain here for minute examination before the camera.

A total of 200 students in locations through the school watched. In a normal laboratory class, only a fraction of that number could have crowded close enough for a meaningful demonstration.

NORKAM-TV has helped discipline, too. The programs seem to command attention, and any disturbance can be corrected by zooming in on the keen face of the instructor.

"It's like having five teachers in the room," says Mr. Shorter.

PUSH BUTTON EDUCATION — Larry Shorter, 34-year-old former radio, television and advertising man who now is an English and mathematics teacher, gives a lesson before a television camera installed at North Kamloops Secondary School in British Columbia. The closed-circuit television, originated last fall by Mr. Shorter as a visual educational aid, has been refined and expanded with the addition of videotape equipment, allowing a teacher to record television programs and re-run them during school hours. Videotape equipment will be used at the start of the next school year. Athletes will also be able to see run-throughs of their action to locate mistakes. (CP Photo)

Audacious Premier Closes Saigon's Newspapers For Month To Reform Them

SAIGON (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky threw a brick into a political hornet's nest when he ordered all 30 of Saigon's Vietnamese-language newspapers to close July 1.

For sheer political audacity, the new military premier's action Thursday was unequalled, even under President Ngo Dinh Diem's dictatorship.

Each newspaper is essentially the organ of a political faction or pressure group. Most publishers are also leading political figures.

The Roman Catholics, the Buddhists, the Cao Daists and the Hoa Haos also have their own newspapers.

Since Diem's overthrow in 1963, the Saigon government has changed five times. Each time, the press has played a big role. The bulk of the newspapers opposed each government.

This was probably the major factor in Ky's decision to play rough. By closing all papers for one month, until they can be reorganized along lines satisfactory to the government, he avoids the risk of showing partiality to any faction.

While the government has licensed 30 Vietnamese-language newspapers, nearly double that number have sought licences. None has a circulation of more than about 4,000 daily. Under law, they can have only four pages, to conserve expensive newsprint.

Each edition of each newspaper is closely censored by the psychological warfare ministry. Offensive stories, headlines and photographs are cut.

No effort is made to conceal censorship. Even front pages appear with columns or spots of white space. The government has censored mainly items it regarded as distortions or inaccuracies.

The government tried to stop publication of serialized ghost stories and romantic fiction, but the attempt was largely unsuccessful.

Some newspapers became little more than scandal sheets and means of extortion. Others seemed to be making a conscientious effort to cover the political and military news of the country.

Ky was nearly mobbed by an angry group of reporters when he announced his action. Reporters and publishers were holding protest meetings today, but military police were stationed throughout the city, and it was apparent Ky would not be swayed.

Ky decreed that during July there will be two official newspapers — one for the "rear" (meaning Saigon) and one for the "front" (presumably meaning the rest of the country).

Meanwhile, many reporters are out of work. Many face being drafted into the army or the civil service.

Queen Mother Will Take Look At Taylor Farm

By JOHN LEBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth, a royal fancier of horseflesh, looked over some of Canada's fanciest today as she began the second full day of her Toronto - area visit.

From millionaire industrialist - horseman E. P. Taylor's well - stocked Windfields Farm where she is staying, she headed for Mr. Taylor's National Stud Farm at Oshawa for a look at the $2,000,000 setup that produces some of the cream of the Canadian thoroughbred crop.

She was speeding an hour at the stud operation before going along to Port Hope, 60 miles east of here, to knit up an old friendship with Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, former governor-general, at his Batterwood House home. Her Majesty was lunching with Mr. Massey, Canada's high commissioner in London during the Second World War years.

She will return to Toronto late in the day and during the evening take part in an outdoors ceremony at Varsity Stadium preventing new colors to the Toronto Scottish Regiment, of which she has been colonel-in-chief since 1937. Queen Mother is here primarily to join her regiment in observing its 50th anniversary.

DINNER GLITTERS

She was the central figure Thursday night at the Empire Club threw a brassbound dinner, glittering with braid and regimental regalia, in honor of the unit and its petite colonel-in-chief after she had spent the day in a whirl of visits around town.

In the midst of a formal set speech, the Queen Mother spontaneously broke away from the written text to tell how her husband King love affair with Canada began. She was reading some words about "this most enjoyable dinner" when she suddenly broke off to say:

"I think I have fallen in love with Canada when the King (George VI) and I came here in 1939, and each time I come back, my feeling of affection seems to grow."

The assembly of 920 persons plunged into applause, and later spokesmen put into words the reciprocal affection of Canadians.

Premier Robarts of Ontario said she is received "with full hearts and deep emotions' by Canadians and that in coming to Canada she just moves from one home to another.

Algiers Tension Mounts

ALGIERS (AP) — Tension mounted in Algiers today as a planned mass demonstration against Col. Houari Boumedienne's new military regime drew near.

By handbill and word of mouth, university students and labor groups called on the general public to gather in front of the central post office tonight to demonstrate support for deposed president Ahmed Ben Bella.

The organizers apparently were relying on the presence in Algiers of foreign ministers from some 30 African and Asian countries to restrain counteraction by Boumédienne's troops.

The foreign ministers are scheduled to meet Saturday to decide whether to postpone the African-Asian summit conference, scheduled to open here June 29.

With Algiers and other cities rocked by rioting, a majority of the ministers are reported to think a summit meeting is impossible now.

Some foreign ministers believe that no date for a new summit should be fixed. Diplomatic sources said these ministers think that before a date could be set, calm and stability must return to Algeria, the participation of an overwhelming majority of the countries of Asia and Africa must be assured, and there must be guarantees that the gathering will be held amid some semblance of organization.

"Let's form a peace team and tour the British Commonwealth."

Queen Mother Gives Ceremonies Informal Touch

TORONTO (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth brings a friendly and informal touch to the elaborate ceremonies that greet her wherever she goes.

Dignified, but always smiling and shaking easily to those around her, she has moved casually through a busy schedule on the second day of her five-day visit here.

In the midst of crowds of pushing photographers, anxious dignitaries and uniformed policemen, she retained a natural poise and warmth Thursday as she stopped for many quiet little talks with patients and Sunnybrook Hospital.

Noticing a fine white wool shawl made by Eleanor Wilson, 90, of Leeds, England, that was part of a handicraft display, she bent to question the pleased, snowy-haired veteran in her chair.

"She was very nice to me," Miss Wilson said later. "She was natural and casual — just the same as everybody else."

A baby kicking at her did not surprise the gracious 64-year-old Queen Mother, who has six grandchildren.

Six - month - old Allison Reid first refused to go into a basinette made by the women's work committee, and when the Queen Mother walked up to her she kicked out a foot as she lay in her mother's arms.

"But the Queen just took hold of her foot and tickled her," said her mother, Mrs. J. E. Reid, a former Toronto Red Cross worker.

While the Queen Mother drank tea with officials of the Red Cross—she takes her tea clear with two lumps of sugar —small children romped on the green lawns outside and photographers peered in the window hoping to catch a glimpse of her.

Returning to her car, she realized that some of the veterans who had come out to see the woman they had known as Queen during the Second World War could not see because of the crowd of reporters.

She walked determinedly through the crush to speak to each man individually before departure.

The Queen Mother was coolly dressed for the unusually brisk summer weather in a light blue and white print dress of chiffon.

She wore a white petal hat, white shoes, bag and gloves, three strands of pearls and a pearl-and-diamond brooch on her left shoulder.

Yet despite the breeze the top of her pale blue convertible was left down as she drove to the Queen's Park residence of Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe of Ontario for a buffet luncheon.

But an attendant was allowed to tuck a coat around her knees out of sight.

Blast Kills 40 In Saigon

SAIGON (AP)—A mighty explosion, possibly caused by three separate bombs, ripped through a crowded floating restaurant on the Saigon River tonight. Witnesses said they believed up to 40 persons, including many Americans, were killed.

Officials said their first count showed 17 persons dead and 34 wounded. They expected this tally to go higher.

U.S. police officials at the scene said that a charge that exploded in a pre-determined position was probably the main explosive.

Authorities believe there were two other explosions, both of them in bicycles carrying bombs. One of these loaded bicycles probably was parked beside a riverside stall in front of the floating restaurant, the "My Canh," and the other on

Move Seen Bid To Win Russian Mission Support

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — The Commonwealth prime ministers, preparing to wind up their nine-day deliberations today, have virtually acknowledged that the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam is a distinct and separate political entity, capable of undertaking diplomatic discussions.

This elevation of the guerrillas is seen by some officials as an effort to entice the Communists to open their doors to visits by a Commonwealth peace mission.

However, China made its rejection of the mission official today in a note to the British charge d'affaires in Peking, and London observers said this finally dashes any hopes of it visiting Peking or Hanoi in the near future.

It was felt here that the tough Chinese reply will remove much of the impact of the final communique from the Commonwealth conference, due to be issued today.

U.S. WILLING

The United States has said it would be willing to negotiate with the Viet Cong as part of a North Viet Nam delegation.

But the Commonwealth leaders, after a sharp outburst by President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, issued a statement Thursday night saying the mission "must make direct contact with all the Vietnamese parties."

The statement, sent to the various capitals concerned in the Vietnamese war, said also that while Commonwealth leaders have a diversity of views on the war, the Commonwealth as a whole is not taking sides — and neither will the mission.

The statement was widely interpreted in the British press as a new peace offer that might win the support at least of the Soviet Union, which so far has rejected the peace mission, saying the mission first must confer with the parties directly involved in the fight.

MAY REVIEW STAND

British sources said the Russians have indicated they may review their rejection if North Viet Nam agrees to receive the peace pilgrims.

While the Commonwealth leaders appear to have moved ahead slightly in their peace

PEKING (Reuters) — China today flatly rejected the British Commonwealth peace mission's bid for talks in Peking on Viet Nam.

A strongly-worded note to the office of the British charge d'affaires here accused Britain of using the Commonwealth's name for a new "peace talks plot."

"The sole correct way of settling the Viet Nam question is that the United States must immediately stop its aggression, withdraw all its armed forces from South Viet Nam, and leave the Vietnamese people to settle the Viet Nam problem by themselves," China said.

Today's note was in reply to one from Britain proposing that the four - man Commonwealth mission, headed by British Prime Minister Wilson, visit Peking in a tour of capitals for peace talks on Viet Nam.

It concentrated its fire on the British government.

Britain, by using the name of the Commonwealth, it said, is "trying to set another service to the United States aggressors" and has totally violated the Geneva Agreements on Indochina, of which Britain is co-chairman with the Soviet Union.

Observers said the note did not slam the door completely on an alternative mission.

This was probably to avoid embarrassing Afro-Asian members of the Commonwealth, some of whom are reported to be considering alternative methods of discussing Viet Nam with China, they said.

Diplomatic sources in London today said North Viet Nam is also likely to reject a visit by the mission—as the Soviet Union has already done.

But, despite the rebuff from the Communist states, the mission still plans to go to Washington and Saigon and meet United Nations Secretary-General U Thant in Geneva, London sources said.

THE WEATHER

2 Killer Whales, Now in Captivity Being Held by Fishermen for Ransom

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — Three salmon fishermen are holding two killer whales—the only ones in captivity—for ransom here by marine scientists.

The fishermen, whose catch has caught the interest of aquarium curators in Vancouver, Victoria, Seattle, Los Angeles and New York, say they want an offer in five figures.

If they don't get such a "suitable" price, they say they will cut the $3,000 nets holding the animals and let them go back out to sea.

The fishermen, William Lochkobil, 28, of Vancouver, Walter Platock, 30, of Steveston, B.C., near Vancouver, and Robert McGarvey, 32, of upcoast Bella Bella, trapped the whales accidently, and are holding them in nets near this fish cannery community 290 miles northwest of Vancouver.

Dr. Murray Newman, director of the Vancouver Aquarium, who flew to see the whales, said he thinks they are a bull and a calf. But he recalled that about a year ago a killer whale Moby Doll, which died in captivity after being harpooned in the Gulf of Georgia by an aquarium expedition, was thought for weeks to be a female but turned out to be a male.

Dr. Newman said the aquarium is interested in acquiring the whales but they may be too expensive for the city of Vancouver.

He said he believes a price has been quoted to a representative of Marineland of the Pacific, which sent a man to Namu and expressed interest in buying the whales.

Lochkobil said the whale was caught in a pet he abandoned Tuesday night in a gillnet. The three men in two boats set out Wednesday to look for the whales in no matter how the tides shifted.

Telephone calls by the fishermen got an immediate response and charter planes began shuttling in and out of Namu. The fishermen say they have turned down flatly an offer of $5,000 from an unnamed West Coast aquarium.

Board to Sell Greenhouse At Fairgrounds

The Belleville Parks Board is getting out of the greenhouse plant and flower growing business.

For many years the local parks board grew all its own plants for transplanting each summer in city parks but these have changed and it has now been found that these can be purchased cheaper than they can be grown.

Consequently the parks board greenhouse at the corner of Yeomans and Catherine Streets is to be sold. Tenders for its sale are now being called.

It is just possible that the old parks board residence at the same location may also be sold as it is now being used only for parks equipment repairs.

A few months ago parks board members were considering construction of a new parks board building in which to do repairs of parks' benches, tables and other equipment.

Now use of a fair board building for this purpose is being considered.

L. Rivard Number 1 Criminal

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP's list of most-wanted criminals currently comprises the notorious Lucien Rivard and two obscure figures who have been out of circulation since 1949 and 1957 respectively.

Rivard, 36 - year - old former owner of a Montreal summer resort, has been the object of publication and the growing scarcity of world resources," Johnson said. world notoriety since his arrest in the U.S. and abroad.

He is wanted for extradition to the United States, where he has been charged with conspiracy to masterming a big narcotics smuggling ring with tentacles in France, Canada, Mexico and the U.S.

Rivard is expected to be a central character in the Dorion report to be submitted to the government early next week. The report will receive testimony at the seasational judicial inquiry by Chief Justice Frederick Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court into allegations of attempted bribery and political interference intended to help Rivard go free on bail last summer.

The other two most-wanted criminals are holdovers from the original Most Wanted list in 1857. They are William Adams, 37, formerly of St. Catharines, Ont., and Fred Patrick Meagher, 32, formerly of Toronto.

WANTED FOR MURDER

Adams, alias Wasily Samborski, alias Joe Lachean, is wanted for the murder of Joseph Lamoureux, 19, in St. Catharines. The father's body was found buried in the basement of his home repair shop.

Meagher is wanted by Toronto police for armed robbery with violence and escaping custody in April, 1957, while being escorted to Don Jail.

In addition to those three, the RCMP has issued descriptions of two of the most-wanted fugitives in the U.S., who could be in Canada.

Alton Thomas Walrhich, 29, is wanted for the abduction, beating and sexual attack of a six-year-old girl in Wesson, Ariz.

John William Clouser, 33, was arrested for bank-robbing, robbery and assault and escaped from a Florida mental hospital in April, 1964.

Johnson Statement Sets Rising Tide of Debate

By ARCH McKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

One sentence in President Johnson's annual message to Congress last January has set loose a rising tide of debate about birth control, long taboo for United States and other governments as too controversial to handle.

"I will seek new ways to use our knowledge to help deal with the explosion in world population and the growing scarcity of

The effect was widespread, in

Many now regard the population increase—perhaps reaching 4,300,000,000 human beings by 1980 compared with the present total of 3,300,000,000—as mankind's greatest threat.

Director-General B. R. Sen of the Food and Agriculture Organization, a United Nations affiliate, saw the issue in these terms last March 24 in a New York speech—the strongest reference he has made about birth control:

"The next 35 years will be the most crucial period in man's history. Either we take the fullest measures both to raise (agricultural) productivity and to stabilize population growth or we will face disaster of an unprecedented magnitude."

CATHOLICS OPPOSED

The Roman Catholic Church opposes artificial birth control, but birth control is being discussed at its highest levels and a debate has begun among members of the Catholic Church.

But the official concern of the U.S. and others is evidence that the billions of dollars of aid given to the developing countries since the Second World War—about $28,000,000,000 in current dollars—would have been absorbed by millions more of hungry mouths without any better per capita increase in the true productivity of hungry nations.

Domestically, President Johnson and others are concerned about the high unemployment program could founder on the heavy birth rate among the minority poorest citizens, Negro and white.

Everywhere, births tend upward and deaths decrease.

The increase has been most rapid—and will continue to be most rapid, experts foresee—in poor nations. Thus India and the United Arab Republic for example have seen their rising populations engulf economic advances painfully fashioned from foreign and domestic funds.

The late president Kennedy, a Catholic, took a preliminary step in U.S. policy by authorizing the supply of birth control information to nations requesting it.

REVERSES VIEWS

Johnson went a step farther and former President Eisenhower, reversing his former views, has supported him.

Eisenhower last Tuesday told Senate subcommittee, studying a bill to provide birth control information, that 10 years ago he would have said it wasn't proper use for governments to touch.

Now it seemed that the population increase was outstripping resources, or would in time.

Studies by the UN and private groups have pointed to a world population by 2000 of $6,000,000,000.

Birth control is no magic wand, it is agreed. Programs have had indifferent success so far whether by pills or other means.

Studies by the UN and others getting poor and often-illiterate people to use them effectively

The 24-nation economic study committee was told this week that some 20, the chronically poor in the capital cities even know about the birds and bees.

The other line of attack is more food, while it is admitted that the land and sea can yield much more than they have to date, a discouraging factor is the inability to produce much more in the areas where the need is greatest.

The great agricultural revolution in Canada and the U.S. in the last 40 years is not easily duplicated. Yet time is growing short.

Just who will be the new reeve of the North Hastings county village apparently has yet to be decided. The village deputy reeve is Mrs. Audrey Sexsmith, but there are reports that councillor Gordon Graves, Bancroft merchant, may step up to the reeveship.

New Law Effective in July Hits U.S. Job Discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sweeping new federal law designed to eliminate racial discrimination on the job begins going into effect in the United States July 2, and eventually will affect most American employers, labor unions and employment agencies.

It is the equal employment opportunity section of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. It forbids employment discrimination based on "race, color, religion, sex, or national origin."

Who is subject to the law?

In the first year, employers with 100 or more workers are covered. The figure drops to 75 in the second year, 50 in the third and finally to 25 in 1968.

The same formula applies to labor organizations with more than 100; then 75, then 50 and finally 25 members.

Employment agencies are covered regardless of size.

The law applies to any employer, regardless of employment agency "engaged in an industry affecting commerce." Under Supreme Court decisions this means very broad coverage.

GOVERNMENT EXEMPT

State governments are exempt under the law is the U.S. government, but the law says "it shall be the duty of the United States" to insure equal employment opportunities for federal employment "without discrimination."

State governments and their political subdivisions also are exempt.

So are Indian tribes and "bona fide" private membership clubs.

What constitutes discrimination under the law?

Generally, any action based on five points—race, color, religion, sex or national origin—that harms an individual in his job, his attempt to get a job, his working conditions or privileges of employment.

An employer would violate the law if he fired one person but refused to hire; discriminated in pay, working conditions or job privileges between white persons or classified employees, on the basis of any of the five points. Or if labor unions would break the law if it barred membership, expelled a member, segregated its members, refused to refer an individual for a job, or induced an employer to discriminate, on the basis of any of the five points.

COVERS AGENCIES

An employment agency would violate the law if it failed or refused to refer an individual for a job, or discriminated in any other way, on the basis of any of the five points.

It also will be illegal for any employer, labor organization or employment agency to publish any job advertisement that indicates preference based on race, color, religion, sex or national origin, unless based on "bona fide" qualification for the job.

Some lawyers think it would be all right for a French restaurant to advertise for a French cook. Others are not sure. They believe it would be safer to advertise for "a cook skilled in French cuisine."

A woman's clothing store obviously could hire a woman to help fit customers without running into trouble on the "sex" provision.

Educational institutions are exempt in employment connected with their educational activities. Religious groups can hire members of their particular faith without violating the law.

50,000 Trout Said Killed By Water Slick

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP)—An estimated 50,000 trout were killed at Trout Haven Park Thursday night after an unidentified substance appeared on the surface of the water.

Cecil Abra of Strathroy, president of the commercial fish farm, said a thin "slick" was noticed on the surface of several breeding ponds about 9 p.m. Some fish began floating to the surface dead while others were jumping out of the water and falling back dead.

Floodgates were closed to protect 300,000 to 400,000 trout in other ponds connected by Oxbow Creek which flows through the privately-owned farm in this town 15 miles west of London.

Most of the trout killed were two-year-olds 10 to 14 inches long, Mr. Abra said. The rest were fingerlings.

Mr. Abra said he could not estimate the loss, but said the fingerlings would be worth about 50 cents in a year's time.

Samples of water were taken from the pond for analysis Mr. Abra said the fish appeared to have suffered from lack of oxygen.

He said the slick could be insecticide or other sprays from tobacco farms in the area.

About 500 fish were killed at the pond last August. Trout Haven has a civil suit pending against Union Gas Co. of Canada Ltd. in connection with the fees.

RALPH HANCOX

Peterborough Editor Named Nieman Fellow

MONTREAL (CP) — Ralph Hancox, 33-year-old editor of the Peterborough Examiner, has been named Canada's Nieman Fellow for 1965-66.

Mr. Hancox, as former RAF fighter pilot who took up journalism 12 years ago in his native London, was selected by a five - man committee from eligible eight candidates for the fellowship, sponsored by the Reader's Digest Association (Canada) Ltd.

The fellowship, for which candidates must apply, entitles a Canadian newspaper man or woman to go to Harvard University for a year of informal background and study.

Mr. Hancox will go to Harvard in September and will join other fellows from various countries in working to broaden their abilities and background for newspaper work.

He is Canada's 10th Nieman Fellow and the fifth sponsored by Reader's Digest in a five-year project. Last year's Canadian winner was Peter Geary of Southam News Services.

ARE IMPRESSED

Members of the selection committees said they were especially impressed by the insight and clarity of editorials and articles Mr. Hancox wrote in The Examiner, as well as by his reports on Canadian affairs in such overseas publications as The Scotsman, Edinburgh, and The London Observer's Foreign News Service.

At Harvard, Mr. Hancox will concentrate on the fine arts, political science and economics "to further my proper understanding of the broad and exciting movements in human development in Canada."

Mr. Hancox, married and the father of four children, started his newspaper career in 1952 when he became news editor of a group of weekly papers in Surrey, a suburb of London. He came to Canada and for two years was a reporter with The Whig-Standard at Kingston. He subsequently moved to Peterborough as assistant editor of The Examiner. He was also pointed editor two years ago.

He has travelled widely in Canada, the United States and Europe. He is particularly interested in the fields of education—he is a school trustee in Peterborough — and psychiatry.

Mr. Hancox says The Examiner "has made a point of publishing, both editorially and in its news columns, matter which is not normally considered by daily newspapers. We have followed the development of religious and philosophical thought, implications for society of psychiatry, sociology and anthropology, and we have given emphasis to the arts and sciences."

800 Cattle Practically Given Away

COBDEN, Ont. (CP) — Drought-stricken farmers from the Ottawa Valley sent them more than 800 head of cattle at an auction Thursday, but it was hardly a buyer's market.

"I've never seen so many for sale in June," said Frank McGhee, 45, a sales barn herdsman here for 11 years.

Many of the cattle were thin and prices were far-below normal as farmers faced serious feed shortages for their livestock.

"It's a terrific volume for this time of year," said Max Clutton, a Toronto buyer for Canada Packers Ltd.

"A lot of poor cattle are coming in because the farmers can't afford to fatten them up for the fall or keep them over the winter."

More than 50 trucks were parked on the lot when the sale began, and auctioneer Bruce Snider was recording sales at almost two a minute. The cattle, from Pembroke, Renfrew, Eganville, Shawville, Tweed and other Ottawa Valley areas, brought prices that were often barely enough to cover the cost of feed for the last year.

PRICE IS LOW

Gilmour McGregor, 35, of Glasgow Station, Ont., sold a 960-pound Hereford steer at 19 cents a pound, about 30 per cent below normal market rates for this time of year.

One of the busiest men at the sale was Frank Dench, Renfrew County agricultural representative. He was surrounded by farmers asking what the government intended to do to relieve the feed shortage caused by the drought.

"We'll need three sales a week to get rid of the cattle if we don't get rain pretty soon," said farmer Max Coughlin, of Cobden. "Prices are down 40 per cent, and I'd guess there'll be at least four times as many for sale this June as in other years."

Some farmers came just to assess the market, hoping there will be able to keep their stock.

"I think I'll wait to sell mine because it can't get much worse," said Jack Gibson of Cobden.

But others who did sell were far from happy with the results. Delbert Kohlsmith of Cobden got only 10 cents a pound for a cow and said that "won't even pay for the feed she ate."

"I didn't get anything for the cow and I've no grass to feed the others."

Mr. Snider predicted the heavy volume of sales would continue unless the drought conditions are relieved.

"It's a bad year everywhere," he said. "They're producing herds all over the place. It's going to be a tough winter."

Lions Officers Are Installed

TRENTON — Trenton Lions held their 1965 officers' installation night last night in the Red Lion dining room. District governor Terry Evans of Havelock attended the ceremony and the installation was carried out by a team of Lions, comprised of past president Stanley Linton, secretary Nostrand Sprague, past president Walter Wright man and past president Donald McPherson.

The Lions' executive for the year is: Sproule Currie, president; Gerald H. Ross, first vice president; Ken Thompson, second vice; "Spike" Brough, third vice; Hugh Gordon, treasurer; Nostrand Sprague, secretary; Lion Tamer, Walter Wrightman; Tail Twister, "Sonny" Mellow; Glenn Poole, Val Carswell, Tom Bedford and Ray Wilkins, directors.

Don McPherson presented the club with a cheque for almost $1,300 from the newspaper bingo; Tom Bedford reported a surplus of more than $600 on midget hockey operations and invited the club members and their families to a Lions' Club family day at his cottage on Oak Lake sometime this summer.

In making his out-going report, immediate past president Earl Cruickshank noted that the Lions had taken over the transportation of blind people from Trenton to their meetings in Belleville, exclusively this year. Another local service club helped provide transportation in other years. Mr. Cruickshank was presented with a gift from the club.

Rescue Kittens

TRENTON — A Trenton couple, returning early one morning this week from Toronto, along Highway 401, came upon a mother cat trying to prevent a half dozen half grown offspring from crossing the highway.

Concerned, the couple stopped their car, gathered up several of kittens and took them, with Mama, mewing and spitting in the rear, to a place of safety under an apple tree in a nearby orchard.

GARAGE GUTTED

TRENTON — Quick action on the part of Trenton firemen saved the outside frame of a garage on Richard Street last night. The fire, which was reported around 8.30 p.m., burned the inside of the frame structure. Damage was estimated at between $300 and $500. The garage is owned by Mrs. Jesse Baker Sr.

Humane Society Official Urges Feline Birth Control

TRENTON — Tom Hughes, general manager of the Ontario Humane Society, in an interview yesterday suggested that a birth control program for cats might be the answer to the overpopulation of felines in the country and do away with the needless destruction of perfectly healthy cats.

Mr. Hughes admitted however he was being facetious.

Mr. Hughes said he expected most municipalities would adopt a cat control by-law and require owners to buy licences and keep their pets from running at large.

Cats and dogs should be given adequate exercise, even if they were kept confined.

Persons who inadvertently run over animals on the highway are not obligated to stop, Mr. Hughes said, but a sense of decency should dictate that they either take the injured animal to a veterinarian or notify the nearest police station.

Mr. Hughes said there was a sort of underhand traffic in cats and dogs. Unscrupulous pet dealers in connection with a laboratory need for experimental animals. He said the side streets and the windows overhead of the province of Federal governments by his side, stood on the reviewing stand at the Montreal Public Library.

Accustomed to War

One aspect of the war in Vietnam that has escaped notice is the mixture of cynicism and resignation it has bred in the people of that warborn land. Accustomed to bloodshed, they have long since become hardened to sights and occurrences that would make anyone not conditioned in this way to recoil in horror.

Another way in which the Vietnamese—the South Vietnamese that is—have suffered is in their dependence upon the United States, a factor that has robbed them of initiative on a personal and national scale.

That is the view of one observer at least. South Lor is a Chinese-Canadian writer who has spent some years travelling in the Orient. Miss Lor, whose family lives in Brockville, writes on Vietnam in the current issue of Weekend Magazine. Only three blocks away from the explosion that shattered the American Embassy in Saigon some weeks ago, Miss Lor described the scene thus:

"Thousands of Vietnamese were crowding around to watch but few were helping. Their faces showed no horror, no sympathy, no emotion, but just blank stares. They were standing like uninvolved spectators.

"I walked through the crowds and through the nearby market place. I passed a restaurant that opened on to the sidewalk. A Vietnamese soldier was sitting inside with some civilians. He was laughing; the others were smiling.

"I don't know why he was laughing. Probably it didn't have anything to do with the bombing. But I could not help thinking how years of bloodshed had hardened these people. It was part of the adjustment. Perhaps, if they had been allowed to work out their own problems in their own way, they would have now taken more responsibility and initiative in what is essentially their own war.

"I think this loss of integrity rather than the bombs and the suffering is the real danger of Vietnam."

Linguistic Twist

A new twist to the bilingualism issue in Canada has been unearthed by the Quebec Association of Protestant School Administrators.

Because the educational system in Quebec is established on religious lines, as between Catholic (mostly French) and Protestant (mostly English) neither group can have recourse to the other in seeking teachers of French and English.

Why? Because it is illegal in normal circumstances to employ a Catholic teacher in a Protestant school—and vice versa. This means in effect that each group must either hire teachers of the opposite language from within its own ranks, or import them from overseas.

The French Catholics are barred from teaching French in English schools, and English Protestants from teaching English in French schools.

The only way out of this linguistic dilemma apparently is that a member of the opposite faith may be hired if the local school board can show it has seriously tried and failed to engage a suitable teacher of its own faith.

The upshot is that many of the teachers of French in English schools in Quebec are from Algeria, Belgium, Switzerland and France.

Meanwhile the French in Quebec go on their merry way—and for the most part billingually. In this respect they are more adroit than the Anglo-Saxons.

A Torontonian turned Quebecois, Stephen Monahan, in a private brief to the Royal Commission on Billingualism and Biculturalism, put it this way: "I'm sorry to say this to England Canadians, but if they are hoping that French Canada is going to become English then they are living in a dream world. The people of Quebec are rapidly advancing scientifically and technologically—and they are doing it in French. Which means of course that they can also do it in English, when the occasion demands.

The need for Canadians to enjoy themselves, and not feel guilty about it, is a profound problem among many of the people I see in my practice, and indeed in all of us. Must our puritan ancestors go on making life grey for us all? Perhaps we may be able to free our children of some of the weight of our guilt—or perhaps even ourselves. Teen-ager Gets Hives Week Before Menstruation

By JOSEPH G. WOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: About a week before each menstrual period, bumps break out on my face, arms, chest and back. They itch terribly. I've tried different skin medications but they don't seem to help.

Can you suggest a cause and what can be done. I am not a teen-ager. —Mrs. J. W.

This has the sign of being a form of urticaria or hives.

Hives is usually a result of an excessive release of histamine from the cells of the body or the basis of allergic reactions of many kinds.

While the precise chemistry of histamine behavior is extremely complicated, we can very often combat hives with judicious use of the antihistamine preparations. Counteract the excess of histamine, and you limit or prevent the bumps, rashes, itches and other manifestations.

The cause of this release of histamine ?it can be a consequence of the change in body chemistry which takes place in the course of your menstrual cycle.

Let me not be too positive about your case. After all, I am guessing right unsure, but I do think you would do well to see your own physician. If his observation agrees with mine, and work, the use of an antihistamine preparation starting 10 days or so before the period might afford substantial relief.

Dear Dr. Molner: I wish to thank you one thousand times for the booklet on hemorrhoids. It has saved me from a painful operation. I am very grateful to you. — Mrs. P. G.

I'm glad to hear it. I still want to emphasize, for others, that in advanced cases surgery is the only thing that makes sense and will give permanent relief.

The pyramids of hemorrhoids (piles) must learn that pills and salves aren't going to afford them lasting relief, but that an understanding of what hemorrhoids really are, and how they become irritated, and how to avoid letting constipation intensify the problem, will pay dividends in comfort and knowing what to do after an operation is extremely important in avoiding further trouble. (To receive a copy of the booklet, send 20 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., and ask for "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids.")

Dear Dr. Molner: There is so much talk about lung cancer. I wonder if you would give the symptoms? Some friends were discussing this and none of us really seems to know. — A. C.

For practical purposes there are only two signs which will give clues to early cases One is a peculiar chest X-ray, once or twice a year for people past 40 (especially for smokers). The other is chronic cough.

Naturally there are plenty of other causes of a cough, some dangerous, some trivial. But any cough deserves investigation and correction, even if the cause isn't as deadly as lung cancer.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the chances of cancer appearing elsewhere in the body after the removal of a breast. I am 60 years old and have been in reasonably good health. —Mrs. J. W.

As specific an answer as you would like can't be given. If the lesion (the cancer) was detected early, before there was any spread to the lymph glands, complete and permanent cure is possible. There are thousands of such successful cases.

However, it is important to have follow-up examinations for at least five years, with an annual chest X-ray and other studies to make sure that the cancer is not getting a hold elsewhere.

If the disease was detected early, your prospects are excellent, but it pays never to take a chance. Continue regular examinations.

The Augsburg Confession, the classic statement of Lutheran faith, was presented to Emperor Charles V 433 years ago today — in 1530. The first part lists the Lutheran doctrines held in common with the Roman Catholic church, but affirms the exclusive mediatorship of Christ, rather than the church. The second part criticizes Roman practices such as withholding the cup, compulsory confession, celibacy of the clergy and the secular authority of bishops.

1483 — Earl Rivers and Lord Grey were executed by Richard III.

Fifty years ago today—in 1915—artillery action continued on the Western Front, and 50 German soldiers were killed in a British air raid on Routers; the Italian army's advance extended to 22 miles northeast of Trent.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940 — Marshal Petain placed all French military forces under German and Italian control; Japan sent a warship to French Indochina; Lt.-Col. Georges P. Divorce Reform

For most Canadians the recent decision of the Manitoba Legislature to urge Ottawa to consider the liberalizing of Canada's archaic divorce laws will be welcomed as an unexpected drought of fresh air in a fetid room. That the legislature's request follows a month-long debate — thereby revealing judgment was not the result of haste — and was carried 43 to nine following a "free" vote can only make it more so.

What Makes Some Men Cheat?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A few months ago, I read John Welcome's fascinating new book, "Great Scandals of Cheating at Cards," recounting three famous trials in which leaders of society were accused of cheating at whist, baccarat and poker. All took place in the British Isles in the 19th century.

The furor these cases aroused seemed so quaint and old fashioned — until, a few weeks later the world of contract bridge was rocked by the allegations in Boston vires that the greatest bridge pair in the world had been cheating in an international tournament.

The evidence seemed inconvertible—but the conclusion seemed unbelievable. Why should these men cheat? They are among the finest players of our day; one of them is the best theorist and writer on the subject. Both have long been considered honorable gentlemen, with distinguished records, whether they have won or lost.

Moreover, how could they expect to get away with it, under constant scrutiny of master players? If they got away with it, they would have nothing but a cup — no cash, of course. are involved in tourna ment bridge— and if detected, they faced certain ostracism from the game that has been their whole life.

On these grounds, it seemed inconceivable that the charges could be true. Yet the opposite seemed just as inconceivable — that the officials of the tournament would have brought such grave charges unless they were absolutely sure. If wrong, they face the possibility of the most punishing damage suits.

In all three of the cases Welcome explores, the men likewise had little to gain and much to lose. One of them, Sir William Gordon Cummings, was accused of adding a few pounds to his stake at baccarat while playing with the Prince of Wales. He didn't need the money, and the folly of such action was so great that even after he was convicted, many persons refused to believe in his guilt. But the testimony was overwhelming.

Yet, as Welcome says, "That there are motives which make men cheat, and not for gain, and that they are bound up with quirks of human character, is unviewable. An intense dislike of being beaten is one of them, and this is often coupled with a streak of arrogance which makes defeat even more unacceptable, especially by a despised opponent."

Megalomania, too, he points out, has a part in it: "The feeling that one is set apart from, and above, one's fellows and must never be touched by failure, however small." Lawyers and judges can never get to the bottom of such matters; they reside in the murky realm of the psychologists, where tangled motives confound all our proud common sense.

Spectre of a Depression

Peterborough Examiner

Sometimes it appears questionable which is the greatest bogey of modern times, another world war or another depression. At least it is now understood, since the advent of atomic weapons, that both would be bad for business. Whatever the answer to this question, the recent speech by William McChesney Martin Jr., chairman of the U.S. Federal Reserve System, demonstrated clearly that a whisper about the recurrence of a depression can still strike fear into the hearts of financiers and rock the stock exchanges. After Mr. Martin's speech, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 19 points in three days, congressional leaders called an investigation of the state of western economies and President Johnson was forced to remark, somewhat petulantly that he wished people like Martin would stop worrying and get the kids jobs.

Mr. Martin did, in fact, agree that there was no immedi at e danger of a recession. But he found "disquieting similarities" between the prosperity of the 1960's and that of the 20's. He noted a large increase in the public debt, a continuous growth in the money supply, ease in bank credit, and a similarity in the belief of businessmen and bankers that a new economic era had opened in which business slumps were considered to be a thing of the past.

Economists have rushed to counter Mr. Martin's warnings, noting that governments have a firmer control over, and understanding of, fiscal and monetary policies, have subjected stock markets to closer regulation and have instituted unemployment insurance. Paul Samuelson, the noted professor of economics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has suggested that in this case there may not be fire where there is smoke, but just smoke. In an excellent article in the Financial Times of London, he suggested that the economic developments of 1965 had closely followed the predictions of the U.S. government. There had been a extraordinary nine percent growth of gross national product in the first quarter, resulting partly from a sluggish, strike - ridden previous quarter, while the growth rate for the rest of the year is expected to be only about half this amount. Could the drop from a high but transient growth rate to a moderate but still positive one be considered as the beginnings of a recession? Professor Samuelson thought not.

Though Mr. Martin's warning was, perhaps, an unnecessarily powerful one, it may not be entirely unwarranted. There is an air of euphoria about as a result of the unprecedented expansion of the last three or four years; there is a problem in international liquidity; and there is a prospect of a drop in the rate of American economic growth as the effects of the tax cut wear off. But the financial world is peculiar in that it is capable of frightening itself into the very disaster which it seeks to avoid. Confidence is all and it is ironic that Mr. Martin's warning should shake the stock exchanges and so perhaps encourage the crisis which it foresees. Clearly what is needed in the world of finance is a guarded optimism. For one can only learn the ship others will quickly follow. Mr. Martin has not quite started the exodus but he has made more than a few uneasy. On the other hand, if he has served to put the world on its guard, perhaps he has achieved his purpose.

Canada's Tourist Program

Stratford Beacon-Herald

Tourism is one of Canada's fastest growing industries and its potential is outstanding, according to an analysis in the Commercial Intelligence Letter of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Travellers and tourists — domestic and foreign — are estimated to be spending at a current rate of $5.5 to $6 billion annually in this country and the Bank's Letter judges this figure to be conservative.

Canadians are the preponderant contributors to this total but receipts from abroad account for a substantial part. In 1964, visitors from the United States spent $1,201,000,000 in Canada. Those from other countries raised the total by a further $72,000,000. Meat is potato and newsprint, travel is our largest earner of foreign exchange.

Emphasis in travel promotion is still being placed on Canada's natural resources and the opportunities they provide for such recreation as hunting, fishing, power-boating, sailing and skiing. Although this country has had success in building up its outdoor image, it has not yet been able to project itself as a sophisticated country with interesting cities offering first-class entertainment.

The emphasis has been on the Canadian landscape, rather than on the Canadians themselves and their way of life. Yet Canada has much to offer those who instead of outdoor activities, are more interested in staying in large cities, visiting museums, libraries, theatres and other places of entertainment, or are attracted by the interesting and colorful events which now take place each year in several parts of the country.

In 1964 the average spending by Canadians in the U.S. of the United States was $25, whereas the average by Americans in Canada was only $1. Even assuming the number of business trips by Canadians is large, the closing of this gap presents a real challenge to the tourist industry.

The growth of overseas travel has been remarkable, but its pattern has not been one from which Canada can take great satisfaction. Last year Canadians spent $220,000,000 in countries other than the United States, but the reverse flow totalled only $72,000,000.

Expansion of the travel industry — for example, the building of highways, motels, campgrounds, facilities and attractages — can be of great benefit to Canada's depressed areas, particularly in the matter of employment. Food and lodging account for about half of total tourist spending. Lodging involves staff salaries, furniture, electricity, fuel, insurance, laundries, local taxes and construction. Food means income for waiters, cooks, retailers, wholesalers, packers, farmers, ranchers and truck drivers. Tourism has a high labor content and can be a stimulant factor in a local economy.

The Centennial of Confederation will be an opportunity for Canada to make an impact on our record number of tourists from many countries, by showing its more sophisticated side.

Montreal's Expo '67, the first exhibition of the first category under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of International Exhibitions ever to be held in North America, will be the biggest single attraction.

There are many other projects, now under way, which will have considerable magnetism. Among these are the big Centennial Centre of Science and Technology in Toronto, which is to be Canada's first science museum; the National Centre for the Performing Arts in Ottawa; and the restoration of historic Fort Louisbourg in Cape Breton.

Duty of young people to take an interest in the government of their country and to elect responsible men of high morals to the government was stressed to members of the West Huntingdon, Fuller, Moira and Eggleston Young People's Unions at a combined meeting held in West Huntingdon Church Tuesday evening.

On an official visit to the West Huntingdon Y.P.U., the president of the South Hastings Y.P.U. spoke to the members on "Politics and the science of Government," and at the same time expressed appreciation for the splendid work which the four Y.P. Unions were doing in their respective communities.

Executive members of the South Hastings Y.P.U. were also introduced at the meeting. Young people were urged to study the platforms of the different political parties, to study their record in parliament, and to use a vote with knowledge instead of indifference for the party or candidate of their choice.

Fighter Pilots Plan Reunion

TORONTO — In commemoration of the 25th anniversary of the Battle of Britain this year Canadian ex-fighter pilots will stage a reunion ball in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, on September 18.

Canadian survivors of that epic battle will be honored guests at the reunion. Among those expected to attend will be such aces as Ernie McNabb, Eric Beardmore, Paul Pitcher, Gordon McGregor, Dean Nesbitt, Senator Hartland deM. Molson and Dal Russel.

The top scoring allied ace of the Second World War, Johnny Johnson, who commanded a Canadian wing and is now serving as an air commodore in the Royal Air Force, has also been invited.

The reunion will be a weekend affair, to which all former Canadian fighter pilots of both World Wars, those who have served since the war with the RCAF and those at present serving, are invited. A rough estimate indicates some 1,200 people qualify.

One of the greatest problems facing the committee in charge of arrangements, is trying to locate them. Charles Magwood, chairman of the committee of the Fighter Pilots' Association, states that at present the association has the names of some 600 members who can be contacted directly.

"We hope," he adds, "that the others will hear about the reunion through publicity and word of mouth." Anyone qualifying should contact the association (27 Aylesbury Road, Toronto) or any of the members of the committee for details. Committee members are Magwood, Paul Durouel, association president, R. K. Hayward, Don Morrison, Wally Floody and W. A. Bishop.

Parks Board Chairman Alderman Don Williams, Recreation Director Lloyd "Red" Doran, and Board member J. D. Tempieman examine the Fair Grounds fountain. On tour yesterday, members of the Board offered several suggestions for the old monument's renovation.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Good and choice slaughter steers and heifers brought unevenly to barely steady prices in fairly active trading at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Badly conditioned cattle, poor quality and narrow demand kept prices on top grades of slaughter steers and heifers barely steady despite lower receipts. Large receipts of grassfed cows were difficult to sell as heavy dry-fed Holstein cows continued to take top prices.

Bull and replacement cattle prices were steady, while veal calf, cow sheep and lamb prices fell. Hogs were higher.

Cattle receipts, at 9,900, were off 1,400 head from last week. Western cattle receipts were off 249 from last week at 236 head, and western stock calf receipts off 32 head at 75. Shipments off the market included 26 head to eastern Canada and 102 cattle and 66 calves to the United States.

Ivanhoe Man, Streetsville Youth Killed

A 57-year-old Ivanhoe man and a 16-year-old Streetsville youth were killed Thursday evening when their car went out of control on 401 highway about three miles east of Port Hope.

Killed were Mr. James A. Sararas, resident of the Ivanhoe area for the past 17 years, and Carl Tremblay, son of a Streetsville friend of Mr. Sararas.

The Trembley youth had been visiting at the Sararas home for the past week and the two were on their way back to Streetsville when the accident occurred.

Provincial police quoted an eye witness as saying there appeared to have been no cause for the accident. The car was rounding a wide curve, when the driver may have been blinded by the sun. The car went out of control and rolled over.

Originally from Alberta, the Sararas family came to Ivanhoe from the Bancroft district. Mr. Sararas had operated a farm and worked in construction until ill health forced his retirement last year.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ellen Everett, three sons, Randy Jame, Carman of Kingston, and Robert of West Huntingdon, and a daughter Mrs. Karen (Jack) Hobbs of Streetsville.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday from Grace Chapel with interment in West Huntingdon Cemetery.

Parks Board Members Tour Areas Under Their Keeping

Everything from teeter-totters to the new Intelligencer building came under the inquiring gaze of the city Parks Board yesterday, as the members made the first of what Alderman Don Williams, chairman of the board, hopes will be an annual tour of Belleville's parks and playgrounds. Lloyd (Red) Doran, Recreation Director, conducted the trip to show the board what had been accomplished so far this year and so that the members could make suggestions for future improvements.

The teeter-totters received attention as the presence of such equipment in any city park requires a supervisor. Suggestions for more tennis courts and some shuffleboard courts were put forward while it was felt that, although the city's ball diamonds were in nightly use, no more were necessary this year.

The Parks Board has its problems, among which are Churchill Heights Playground and Park Dale park. The former is an enclave where city property has been known to disappear. The Park Dale area has been earmarked for a $4,000 improvement program, including a wading pool, the problem lies in the fact that no water is available. Efforts are being made to set up a temporary supply from the nearest city hydrant. Zwicky Island, the city's busiest park, has not undergone any major changes this year and nothing will be done there until the Centennial Committee's report on the area is available August 1. Alderman Williams said that over $100,000 would be allotted for the park's improvement as a Centennial project.

The new Intelligencer building met with the whole-hearted approval of board member J. D. Tempieman who pointed out to his colleagues just what a little grass and several trees could do to beautify the city.

GM Shuffles Its Top Brass

DETROIT (AP) — The most extensive reshuffling of top management jobs in General Motors history announced Thursday, less than a month after James M. Roche took over as GM president June 1.

Buick, Chevrolet and Pontiac divisions all got new general managers in the reassignments. In addition, an AC electronics division was established at Milwaukee.

In one of the significant moves, Roche separated two of the jobs he had held in the previous position as executive vice-president. They were those of director of GM's overseas and Canadian group and director of the Allison division.

The key job of directing GM's vast operations in Canada and 22 overseas countries went to Semon Knudsen, 52, who was named as a group vice-president. He had been vice-president and general manager of Chevrolet.

The Long and Short of It

Here it is summer time again, time to enjoy all the things that this wonderful season brings with it.

Time for picnics, for beach outings, for golf and baseball. Time for swimming, yachting and fishing. Time for sun tans and loafing in the sun.

Time for colorful clothing, white sneakers and shorts.

Wait a minute!!

Shorts! !Oh, oh. Step lightly or the anti-short committee will be up in arms.

There is, and there probably always will be, a controversy concerning shorts. "Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" — and pass a by-law opposing shorts in the downtown area — "or to take up arms against a sea of troubles and by opposing —" wear your shorts no matter what you look like in them.

There seems to be a sizeable number of persons who feel that the wearing of shorts in the downtown area — that sanctimonious section of every city where everything is on the up and up and righteousness prevails — not only looks ridiculous, in some cases, but should be banned.

On the other hand, there is a group, with whom your humble correspondent wishes to side, who realize that the downtown area, upstanding though it may be, is not necessarily a fashion showplace and if someone wants to be comfortable then they should be allowed to be comfortable.

Many people suggest that if a person looks good in shorts (just exactly what that is remains a mystery) they should be allowed to wear them, but if they look terrible in them, then heaven forbid they should venture forth in such attire.

One solution to the problem would be to hire a man — it would have to be a man, a woman would let jealousy enter in — to stand on every street corner and watch the women walk by. These professional legwatchers would be equipped with tickets which they would issue if, in their judgment, the women were the shorts should, for the sake of everyone who may happen to see her legs, not be wearing shorts.

Then there's the added problems caused by those who think some shorts are fine, but short shorts are disgraceful. This would necessitate our professional leg-watcher to be equipped with a ruler so that he could measure the shorts to make sure they were not shorter than that required by law.

Such problems. But I suppose in the name of a better, brighter, more beautiful Belleville, it would be worth it.

Oh yes, and while we're at it we may as well pass a law about wild hats and baggy dresses. Some people don't look too good in those either.

Weakness in His Armor

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

If dandelions were as hard to grow as orchids, men would appreciate their beauty, and try to grow them. Instead, they are so prolific, they fill the yard with their offspring, and make themselves a nuisance. If Solomon had asked for restraint as well as wisdom, he might have gone down in history as one of the truly great monarchs of all time. As it was, he was defeated, not by an outside enemy, but by himself. In spite of repeated warnings, he indulged his fondness for wives (I Kings 11:2), and opened the gate for outside influences and for a weakened spiritual leadership that promised trouble for his kingdom in days ahead.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for June 27: "Seeds of Disunity (Temperance". I Kings 9:15 through 11:13.

Solomon had enjoyed a scintillating reign. At the height of his power and influence, it could be said of him that "King Solomon excelled all the kinds of the earth in riches and wisdom." (I Kings 10:23 RSV) He had accumulated an army of 1400 chariots with 12,000 horsemen: so many, in fact, he built special suburbs near Jerusalem to house them. (I Kings 10:26) In a burst of exaggerated praise, the sacred writer says that during Solomon's reign, silver was as common as stone in Jerusalem, and cedar as plentiful as sycamore wood. (I Kings 10:27)

A JARRING NOTE

Then comes the note of discord. "Now King Solomon loved many foreign women." (I Kings 11:1 RSV) Differences of faith were no barrier to marriage for him. So the inevitable happened. "When Solomon was old," the record says, "his wives turned away his heart after other gods; and his heart was not wholly true to the Lord his God." (I Kings 11:14 RSV) The writer who had covered him with such extravagant praise, was forced to write of Solomon, "So Solomon did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, and did not wholly follow the Lord, as David his father had done." (I Kings 11:6 RSV)

The result for the kingdom was tragic. Solomon did not live to see the dissolution of his kingdom, but he had sowed the seeds of weakness and disunity, and his son, continuing these qualities, reaped the tragic harvest. (I Kings 11:13) Proud Solomon was hardly in his grave before the nation was split in two. It never was never again to know the glory it had known in his day.

Solomon had prayed for wisdom. He needed the injunction Peter was later to write, "Add . . . to your knowledge temperance." (II Peter 1:6 KJV) Temperance! That was the word over which Solomon tripped. He had the knowledge of how to build a palace, a temple, an army, a navy, but he let his fondness for foreign wives get out of hand. He overestimated his own ability to resist their foreign ways, and even their foreign gods.

TURNING GOOD INTO EVIL

Too much indulgence in any good thing is bad. Too much eating becomes a glutton. Too much drinking makes one a drunkard. Even too much religion can turn a person into a fanatic. The problem today is not too many wives, but too much selfishness, too much smoking, too much drinking, too much preoccupation with sex, too much grabbing after money and position. Page 1 of the March 25, 1963 issue of the Wall Street Journal's chart of management development course that frankly states in its advertisement it is for the man "who doesn't mind shoving other men aside to get what he wants." Too much seeking of self ish ends can injure men today as it did in Solomon's day.

When General Dean was a prisoner of war in Korea, he was told by his captors he could write a farewell note to his family. Thinking it would be the last letter he would ever live to write, he wrote concerning his son, "Tell Bill the word is integrity." Someone had better write today to say, "The word is temperance." "The word is self-control." "The word is consideration for others." Otherwise our country, like Solomon, may end up finding itself on the de g rade leaving to future generations a heritage of weakness and indulgence.

Most of all, men need to come back to the Biblical faith in God. A temperate response to God of the Bible the gods of success, or indulgence, or lack of concern for others, such and wisdom will not save them. Only self-discipline that grows out of faith in a righteous God and in His divine purpose for all mankind can give men the moral strength and purpose required to insure a better way of life for the sons and daughters who will inherit the world men are building today.

Blast

the other side of the boulevard. The area in front normally is thronged with strollers seeking a cool breeze in the early part of the evening.

Witnesses at the explosion scene said 10 bodies were stacked up on the approach to the My Canh restaurant. An estimated 20 more were inside the restaurant itself.

The superstructure of the ship that serves as the restaurant was shattered by the blast.

Witnesses said many of the dead appeared to be Americans, and that it probably was the bloodiest and costliest terrorist blast against Americans in South Viet Nam.

U.S. police said a Claymore-type mine may have been used. The Claymore mine explodes in the direction in which it is pointed.

The blast was the first major terrorist act in the capital since a bomb damaged the civilian terminal at Saigon airport June 16.

BUILDINGS DAMAGED

Glass was blown out of buildings two blocks away. Many of the injured were hit while strolling down the main waterfront boulevard.

A woman with blood on her face and dress squatted on the pavement, cradling the bloody bodies of what appeared to be her two children. A man held up the body of a young child, showing it around to photographers.

The explosion occurred on a waterfront street within 300 yards of the U.S. Embassy which was blown up by a terrorist bomb March 30.

United Nations Was Bombed By Man Who Supported It

Despite the passions the United Nations has aroused in its 20 years of life, there have been few physical "attacks" on it. Max Harrelson, AP chief UN correspondent, describes those that have occurred in the following last of five articles on the crises which have beset the United Nations during its existence.

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—No one has heard of Stephen J. Sepena around the United Nations recently, but he happens to be the only man who ever tried to bomb the world organization from the air.

The attack was not inspired by anti-UN feeling, but was intended to dramatize a cause. During the last 20 years, the organization has been the scene of many such demonstrations.

The almost forgotten bombing incident took place on a sultry July afternoon in 1948 when the United Nations was located at its temporary headquarters at Lake Success, Long Island.

The pilot plane, rented and piloted by the 36-year-old Supena, flew over trailing a cloth sign bearing the word "Peace." No one paid much attention until the quiet was suddenly shattered by a loud explosion.

The pilot had dropped a home-made bomb, which detonated in the air about 100 yards over the administration offices occupied by Secretary-General Trygve Lie and his top aides. Windows were rattled, but no one was hurt.

INTENT PEACEFUL

Supena was picked up several hours later. He said he was a supporter of the United Nations, but wanted to do something to focus attention on the need for world peace.

This was the only physical attack on the United Nations until the hazmat incident last year, which took place while Fidel Castro's minister of industry, Ernesto (Che) Guevara, was addressing the General Assembly.

A bazooka was fired from the Long Island side of the East River. The shell fell harmlessly into the water 200 yards short of UN headquarters. If the weapon had been elevated more, the missile might have hit the glass and marble conference building.

Three Cuban refugees arrested later were quoted by police as saying the bazooka was purposely aimed to miss the UN headquarters.

The only serious outburst of violence against the United Nations occurred Feb. 15, 1961, in the public gallery of the Security Council.

INJURY TO 21

Adlai Stevenson, who had just taken over as chief U.S. delegate, was speaking in The Congo debate when a group of demonstrators, armed with clubs, lead and chains, began shouting slogans in sympathy with the slain Congolese leader, Patrice Lumumba.

Eighteen UN guards, two photographers and one rioter were injured in the 20-minute struggle before the demonstrators were ousted.

Incidents outside UN headquarters in New York have become commonplace. One incident still talked about involved two Hungarian refugees who turned up, wearing prison stripes, and chained themselves to an iron gate.

One of the big headaches of UN officials is to provide security for the scores of dignitaries who visit headquarters. No visitor has yet been attacked at UN headquarters, but there have been some narrow misses.

INTENT PEACEFUL

In 1960, during the visits of Nikita Khrushchev and some 20 other heads of governments, a UN auxiliary guard spotted a pipe bomb under the UN fence and grabbed him. The intruder carried a fire bomb, police said and ready to throw.

"It appeared that he wanted to blow up a few people and Khrushchev was his favorite," said a security officer.

During Guevara's 1964 visit, a woman was caught by guards as she tried to climb the fence, armed with a long-bladed knife she said she intended to use on the Cuban official.

BEATLES BRANCH OUT

LONDON (AP)—Two of the four Beatles are going into the nightclub business as a sideline to their singing act. Drummer Ringo Starr is putting money into a late night spot that's going to be called the Dolly Club. George Harrison, who plays the electric guitar, is helping to finance a club to be known as Sybilla's.

"Let's get out of here, Ted—I keep wanting to rearrange things!"

Says Canadian Auto Prices Should Decline

HALIFAX (CP)—Karl Scott, president of the Ford Motor Co. of Canada, said Thursday the prices of Canadian automobiles should decrease gradually as result of the auto trade agreement signed last year by President Johnson and Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Scott told a press conference here the agreement, if passed by the United States Congress, will enlarge the market for Canadian-built vehicles and this would let them be produced more cheaply.

He said a labor contract negotiated this year with the United Auto Workers (CLC) was the most expensive in the industry and there has been no increase in price of cars.

Prices should eventually reach parity with U.S. car prices. "It's not going to happen suddenly; it will be a gradual reduction."

Mr. Scott said the main factors keeping car prices in Canada higher than those in the U.S. are that car production costs more in Canada and Canada doesn't have the sales to support volume production. The trade agreement is aimed at eliminating this.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate

"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

It's an almost certain indication that you are facing trouble in a real estate transaction when the parties with whom you are negotiating object to including all promises in a written agreement. An excuse often used is that the matter is unimportant. Our correspondent is faced with such a problem.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have found the house I want. The price is $12,000. I have $2,500 in savings and was told that I could get a $9,500 mortgage. The real estate broker, however, is asking me to sign an agreement that says nothing about a mortgage. He claims that is unimportant, he will have no trouble getting me such a mortgage, and besides the owner insists on signing a "clean" agreement.

As a faithful reader of your column, I want to know: Should I sign? — Mr. J. T. K.

ANSWER: The owner may want a "clean" agreement without any mortgage clause but you must have a $9,500 mortgage. This is an unreasonable risk. The agreement should be conditioned upon your obtaining such a mortgage. Otherwise you could well find yourself in a position of losing your deposit — all promises of the broker notwithstanding.

It has been my experience that one can usually avoid such trouble when he is dealing with persons who object to including all promises in a written agreement. My instinct tells me that in this situation you should sign nothing without the advice of an attorney well versed in real estate law and practice.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I think you will agree that honest people don't carry around suitcases full of $1, $5 and $10 bills. This is exactly what happened to me when I made settlement for my house last month.

The price was $16,00. The buyer deposited an old packing case on the table full of old and tattered bills. Just by looking at the buyer I could tell he was a dishonest person. How do I go about reporting him without getting myself involved? —An Honest Citizen.

ANSWER: A person who pays for a house with old bills just out of a packing case may be peculiar but you have no justification for classifying him as dishonest. Persons with w ast experience in criminology will tell you that the appearance of an individual is no indicator of their honesty.

Unless you have more substantial evidence than is indicated in your letter, I recommend that you allow the buyer of your home to live in it unmolested. Otherwise you may find the situation reversed and you will be in trouble.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: At what temperature should an air conditioned house be maintained? I have been told on rather good authority that such a system should reduce the temperature indoors by 10 to 15 degrees. Since 100 degree days are coming(summer temperatures in our area) a house temperature of 90 or 85 degrees does not appear too inviting.

Because of our confusion, my husband and I have agreed to do nothing without your advice.

— Mrs. K. G.

ANSWER: I too have seen literature which states that an air conditioning system should drop the indoor temperature by 10 or 15 degrees. This is nonsense, although believed by many.

The cooling system should be guaranteed to maintain a house temperature of about 75 degrees F. which most families set their thermostat. If you like a cool house, 70 degrees is the preferred temperature.

Letting of Bus Contracts Brings Heated Discussion

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County ratepayers, high school bus drivers, members of the high school board and interested Picton citizens turned out en masse to attend a three-hour open meeting last night and Vocational School. The meeting was called by the High School Board to put the facts of the letting of school bus contracts before the public.

An independent chairman, Mr. J. Donald Baxter, chaired the meeting and in his opening remarks he said that although he felt he was in a questionable position he accepted the invitation because he felt that there was a need for the meeting. He said, "We have never had any civil wars in the county, we have always been able to settle our differences and I see no reason that this meeting cannot be conducted in an orderly fashion, and under control." He also asked that personalities be kept out of the discussion. He opened the meeting saying that he hoped that a solution for the problems would be found in a situation that has reached a critical stage.

High school administrator C. Platt explained in great detail to those present the reasons for the board's decision and read minutes of all previous meetings pertaining to the bus route question. Everything that has been done by the board has been included in the minutes of these meetings. Mr. Platt told the gathering. This was done to show that everything was above board. "It is with great regret, said Mr. Platt, "that I had to come 4,000 miles and with 30 years experience in this business to receive this sort of treatment. I did not come here to hurt anyone or to please anyone, I came to do a job to the best of my ability. I do not believe that hiding behind anonymous letters will approve of the back stabbing or innendos. These do not reflect a credit on this operation."

Mr. Platt said that the example of someone living four miles out of town and riding 25 miles or more was not unusual. It would be wonderful he said if everyone could get on a bus last. "The routes were laid out to best serve the community and save the taxpayer dollar," he said.

QUESTIONS FROM FLOOR

In concluding his explanations Mr. Platt said, "I do not have any relatives in business and certainly nothing personal to gain. I do not want to stay if I have to be a party to patronage. There has been no patronage shown here." Walter Bond speaking on behalf of the bus drivers said they were pressured into signing sway a valid contract. Mr. Platt denied this saying that the terms on the new (second) contract were the same as the first.

Questions from the floor came in volume, one of the first came from Jack Lathrop of Picton. Mr. Platt is well versed in his remarks and I'm sure he has done a capable job but I would like to ask how were the people picked to retain these routes. Dr. L. Dockrill also of Picton said that he was there purely as an interested citizen and ratepayer. He said he was willing to admit that in the cold light of logic and of economics and dollars and cents all this may be true but in your presentation you quoted an average community. "This is not an average community", said Dr. Dockrill. There are also emotional factors that are important. The bus drivers have given this county 16 years of faithful service. Isn't there somewhere that we have to recognize the human element and the human beings, who have given such good service in the past? Robert Cockburn of Picton was of the opinion that "it was time the board got elected representatives." "We taxpayers are spending a lot of money."

The chairman stated at this point that although he was chairing the meeting he felt that the parents in the various townships get together with their school representatives and tell them what they want. Mr. Bernard, a Picton citizen said this situation creates a social problem. The situation, he said, "presents a sharp contrast to what people have been used to. I think Mr. Platt has done his duty for what he is paid for. I commend him for his earnestness and good faith. But what happens when one operator who is holding down most of the routes proves unsatisfactory? How can the board go back and call on the driver that has been let go."

CONFIDENT OF DRIVERS

Dan Kotchajaw, reeve of Sophiasburgh said that I express every confidence in the drivers. They are community men and have long lived in their communities. They know the children and have seen them grow up. They know the children and their personalities and know how to control them. I go along with Mr. Baxter," he continued, "I don't think we have accomplished much tonight. I've always felt that a straight line is the answer to every problem. I feel the bus drivers have literally been shot down in flames."

Many of the ratepayers in the audience were of the opinion that the new school routes would mean long walks for their children in bad weather and waits for buses which would mean adding to school in wet clothings. Many of the ratepayers were desirous of "pick-up" at their door rather than "point stops," even though this might cost more. There were many arguments from the standpoint of the children's safety.

Mr. Baxter said in his closing remarks, "we have been through three hours and I compliment you on the fact that you did not play on personalities."

Reeve of Colliver, vice-chairman of the High School Board, concluded the meeting with a summary and stated, "when I came here tonight I frankly didn't know how this meeting would go. I don't think any group of serious-minded men are so completely impassionate that they do no think of their fellow man. I personally think that there is much more coming from this. I think the board should be big enough to take the comments heard tonight and discuss them and come to some conclusion. My personal feeling is that our school administrator has done a good job and has been very conscientious in his role. It is unfortunate that tonight he has taken the brunt of the whole of the school board. The situations not as black as some, who are a little over critical, profess. I agree with Mr. Cockburn. I think any high school board should be elected. The bulk of the members on the board did not seek membership, but were appointed. "I would like to have left last year," continued Mr. Colliver. "I have no quarrel with Mr. Cockburn about having the board elected, but I've seen many elected that haven't done such a hot job either."

mission tactics, an explosive battle over Rhodesia may fray tempers as they debate the wording of the final communique summing up conference achievements.

The nine African prime ministers demand that Britain set a deadline for calling a constitutional conference that would give Rhodesian Negroes the vote, thereby leading to the destruction of Ian Smith's minority white rule. Britain fears bloodshed would result if attempts were made to oust the white regime.

Informants said Britain is ready to agree to a constitutional conference but does not want its negotiations with Prime Minister Smith restricted by a public deadline. The Africans maintain Britain is merely pursuing delaying tactics.

The best prepared for the conference over Rhodesia indicates the Africans want more than just an expression of Britain's hopes. Canada's Prime Minister Pearson is seeking some form of compromise to prevent the conference from ending on a note of bitterness and disappointment.

PEARSON LUKEWARM.

The conference moved into its final days with reports that Pearson is rather lukewarm about a number of British proposals. Wilson confirmed Thursday that a Commonwealth trade ministers' conference be held, possibly in Jamaica, next fall to build up Commonwealth trade. This won general support, but Pearson is reported to think too much concentration on Commonwealth trade would hurt the prospects of the Kennedy round of world tariff negotiations now under way at Geneva.

The prime ministers formally approved establishment of a Commonwealth foundation to finance an interchange of professional and scientific visits among the 21 countries, but there were reservations about such ideas as establishing a Commonwealth parliamentary assembly. Commonwealth citizenship and a Commonwealth court.

The new secretariat, headed by Canada's Arnold Smith, will study the idea of a parliamentary assembly, which Britain would like to see developed along the lines of the parliamentary assembly of Western Europe's 17 - country union. It also will study the idea of Commonwealth citizenship, though the white countries are unlikely to accept this, since it would torpedo immigration restrictions against the non-whites.

As for the Commonwealth court, Canada is reported strongly opposed on the grounds that the Canadian Supreme Court should be the last court of appeal for Canadian citizens.

Queen

later relaxed with newspaper men in an aisle room as she met past and present members of the executive of the Toronto Men's Press Club. She chatted about everything from football teams to the Beatles.

LAUGHS ABOUT BEATLES

"They're in quite a bit of trouble, aren't they?" she remarked with a laugh when someone mentioned Britain's musical group, now involved in some controversy over their admission to the Order of the British Empire.

Earlier Thursday, she drove through smilit streets to and from a series of engagements. Though it was a working day and the visit is informal, thousands lined sidewalks and gathered at stopping places for a look at the royal visitor.

In the morning, she had tea with Red Cross workers and talked with war veterans at Sunnybrook Veterans Hospital. She was given two fluffy toy animals for her youngest grandchildren—the Queen's son Prince Edward and Princess Margaret's daughter Lady Sarah. She said they would be "ever so thrilled."

She lunched at the legislature building with Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe and 150 guests. Office workers cheered her as she passed.

In the evening, several hundred spectators were scattered around in and out of the Royal York as she attended the dinner there. Some 300 waited until she left about 11 p.m for Windfields in suburban Toronto.

Piano Pupils Present Recital At Albert College Chapel

The 14th annual music recital of the piano pupils of the Joyce Studio was presented in Memorial Chapel at Albert College on Wednesday evening, for the second year the pupils of Esther Scott joined those of Doreen Boyce, A.T.C.M.

The large audience of proud parents and friends was welcomed by Mr. J. H. MacKay, vice principal of Albert College, who expressed his gratification of the evident interest of Belleville parents in the cultural education of their children. Readers' Saturday Column

QUESTION:

We are planning a holiday camping trip on the Trans Canada highway. My husband and I did this before we had children but I have had my nerves. Would you mind giving me some hints to refresh my memory about pitfalls and things we may forget? . . . Wendy R.

ANSWER:

I have camped, but I am not an authority on camping. A few of the pieces of equipment and supplies you might forget and that are ever so useful are: An emergency supply of fresh water; long-handled frying pan and long-handled turner; a chore girl firmly attached to a stick for cleaning greasy pans at lake or river side with sand; a large plastic wash basin or dishpan is a must; Coleman stove; fireproof mitts to wear if and when you are cooking over an open fire; cooler in which you will replenish ice daily; ground sheet, (almost essential in wet or damp weather); inflatable mattresses; unbreakable dishes; detergent that will float.

Instant Foods: Chocolate; coffee; biscuit and pancake mixes; potato (one like mashed potatoes and a chicken-ing agent instead of flour); dried milk powder; dehydrated soups.

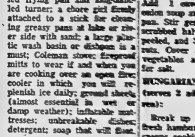
Durable and canned foods that are great when camping: small canned hams, canned meat balls; canned spaghetti with tomato sauce; canned pork and beans; canned salmon or tuna; quick-cooking oatmeal; canned butter; canned or bottled cooking oil; smoked back bacon in piece; Cheddar cheese; new potatoes, carrots and onions. Fresh oranges and grapefruits carry well, but you might prefer to have canned oranges and grapefruit juices too, for they are great thirst quenchers.

On the Trans Canada Highway you will be passing through provinces where you can buy foods that are indigenous to the area: wonderful fresh water fish at Port Williams and Lake Arthur in Ontario and in the Prairie provinces; fresh salt water fish in the Maritimes, Quebec and Northern Quebec and Ontario; abundant various fruits at roadside stands in British Columbia. So be sure to buy and serve the bounty of the country through which you are passing.

If you buy steaks or chops keep them in the cooler and use them on the day you buy them. Smoked back bacon, if wrapped well, will be kept in cooler.

If you buy hamburg meat or any ground meat keep it in the cooler and use it on the day you buy it for making Campers' Stew (see below) or Hungarian Goulash (see below).

CAMPERS' HOT POT (serves 2 adults and 2 children):



Make 1 lb. fresh hamburg up into meat balls by adding 1 egg, ¼ cup water, 1 teaspoon salt. Brown in a little hot oil. Add 2 cups water, 1 envelope onion soup and 3 cups water to pan. Stir gently. Add 5 or 6 potatoes, cut in halves, 2 onions, peeled, and 3 or 4 cut-up carrots. Cover and simmer until vegetables are tender. Taste for salt.

HUNGARIAN GOULASH (serves 2 adults and 2 children):

Break up and brown 1 lb. fresh hamburg in 2 or 3 tablespoons cooking oil with 1 cup chopped onion, until golden. Add 1 cup water or canned tomato juice, salt and pepper to taste, and simmer, covered, for 10 minutes. If desired thicken with a little instant potato flakes or some mashed potatoes (instant) or toast.

NOTE:

A can of cut green beans or peas or red kidney beans may be drained a little and added to goulash.

Susanna's Family Fare

MAKE MINE MARBLE

Dear Susanna: We have just acquired our first real antique. It is a small French cane table for the front hall with a lovely marble top. Now I'm worrying about it already, and am wondering how immune the marble is to having wet glasses set down on its surface. Will it mark readily Susanna, and if so, what should I do? Please answer immediately as I never know when my husband is going to land in with a group of young salesmen (and some not so young) for one of their vital "conferences." Mrs. S.

Like a lot of wives Sally, I can see you wonder about this type of sales meeting, however, it's these "conferences" apparently that make our very business world go round (usually a few heads are spinning the next morning too).

Getting back to our problem, as good French marble is fine and hard, I'm sure you will find the water rings from wet glasses will wipe right off. There is something you can do though, to give it extra protection. Keep the marble highly polished with several coats of your best hardwood floor paste wax. This will build up a protective layer against a more lethal type of stain.

If at any time it does become marked, I don't think there is anything that can be done except to have the stain removed by a professional marble polisher. — SUSANNA

STICKY SITUATION

Dear Susanna: Some of us never grow up, I guess, but like my teenage children, I still love to melt on a flavored ice stick on a hot day. In this connection I'm enchanted by the trick the young ones use to remove the paper bag when it is stuck fast to the water ice inside.

They place their lips completely around the open end of the bag and blow. This releases the suction immediately and the stick isn't long enough to bother the insides of their mouths. — "One of the Gang"

A little hot air comes in handy now and then — SUSANNA

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.)

Fatless Meat Could Save Lives With Dangerously High Cholesterol Levels

TORONTO (CP) — Delegates to the Canadian Dietetic Association convention Thursday got a taste of fatless meat that could save the lives of persons with dangerously high cholesterol levels.

On display and open for sampling was a range of foods including hamburgers, meat loaf, stuffed green peppers, shepherd's pie, Italian meat sauce and chili con carne.

In all, the animal fat had been successfully removed and replaced with corn oil.

The process for removing the fat has been developed by two researchers at the faculty of food sciences of the University of Toronto.

Doris Riva and her assistant Isabel Ilic worked on the idea in conjunction with efforts to reduce the cholesterol level in persons suffering from a metabolic problem.

HAVE BONE SUCCESS

Sister Mary Frederick, new president of the association, said there has been some success in lowering cholesterol levels in patients.

"But it has been impossible to keep them on the formula diet for longer than six weeks."

The fatless meat will be tested under home conditions to see how acceptable it will be to the patients. It is also necessary to find out how it can be prepared under kitchen conditions.

The samples had the same texture and taste as the unaltered meat, and Sister Mary pointed out the adaptability of the product.

Doris Riva said there was a wide range of recipes that could include oil, including cabbage rolls and meatballs.

NEED RESEARCH

Sister Mary said: "We can measure the cholesterol in the blood, and we can see that the corn oil can reduce it. But we need more research and we cannot say definitely that it has a bearing on heart attacks."

Dr. Barbara MacLaren, head of the food faculty, said the process is Mrs. Riva's thesis for her master's degree in the fall and will not be published.

"We can say that a dry-freezing method is involved," she said. "But we hope that a Canadian packer will be interested in producing the product in quantity for the market. To give him this opportunity to patent the product, the thesis will not be published for five years."

Friends Hold Baby Shower

Recently friends and relatives held a surprise baby shower for Mrs. Bruce Poste.

The guest of honor was presented with a carnation corsage of pink and blue, by her sister, Mrs. Don Janes.

During the evening several games were played, including dispersing a doll blindfolded, won by Mrs. Ron Poste. Other prize winners for the evening were Mrs. G. Stordy, Mrs. K. Bertrim ad Mrs. R. May.

The games were followed by the opening of gifts. At this time a bonnet gayly decorated with bows, was made by Mrs. R. Garvin for the mother-to-be.

The buffet table was decorated in blue, with silver and cut glass tableware, centred with a "Welcome Baby" cake, flanked by two pale candles. Everyone enjoyed a tasty lunch. Tea and coffee were served by Mrs. Reg Bird and Mrs. Don Janes.

Ann Landers
Reader Is Appalled By Events at Drive-in

DEAR ANN LANDERS — As the father of three children I thought I knew a lot about life, but I still learn something every day. Last night I took the family to a drive-in movie and I learned plenty.

The feature hadn't been on five minutes when a young girl in the next car squealed "Stop that." About 10 seconds later she yelled, "If you don't leave me alone I'm going to sock you." Then a boy's voice said, "Oh, c'mon, don't be so touchy." I looked in their direction and saw an attractive young girl who couldn't have been more than 15 years old. Her boy friend appeared to be about 17.

ANN LANDERS

At that moment another female voice in another car warned, "If you don't cut that out I'm going to get out and walk home." The boy seated next to her answered angrily, "You don't think I brought you here to look at this crummy movie, do you?"

At that point my wife whispered, "Let's go home. There's no telling what will be said next, and I don't want to have to explain to the children."

Please, Ann Landers, come right out and tell teen-age girls the facts of life so they will know how to deal with boys who are out to get all they can. — A FATHER.

* * *

DEAR DAD — You must be a new reader. I've been telling them for ten years. And my recent book, "Teen-Agers and Sex," has offered another round of ammunition. A girl in Little Rock wrote, "Your book came in very handy. I took it along on a date last Friday. When my boy friend got fresh, I hit him with it."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — In view of the recent letter concerning a daughter who refused to finance her younger sister's college education, I'd like to recite my experience.

I put two relatives through college. They both promised to pay me back out of their first earnings. But when it came time for me to borrow money to buy a car, I went to one relative only to be turned down flat. Then I went to the other relative personally to be interested in producing the product in quantity for the market. To give him this opportunity to patent the product, the thesis will not be published for five years."

The other relative has a fine position in the electronics field. I have not heard from him since his promotion last year. When I saw him at a family affair recently he gave me a nervous hello and avoided me for the balance of the evening.

Can self-respecting people put obligations out of their minds and pretend they don't exist? Are all people who borrow money like this or did I draw a couple of lemons? — TAKEN.

* * *

DEAR TAKEN — All people are not like that. Some people mean it when they say they will repay a loan.

Rather than just hand over money to a friend or relative I recommend this: Offer to be a co-signer at the bank. The borrower will then owe the bank, not you. If he fails to meet the payments he will receive crisp and impersonal reminders.

Of course if he goes sour at the bank, the co-signer must pay the loan. However, your chances for getting stuck are slight since most people will stick a friend or relative before they will go sour at the bank.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Randy Scott and Mrs. Percy MacMillen gave recitations. Assembly contributed two accordion selections.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharp took seats of honor and Mrs. Clarence Scott read an appreciative address to Mr. Sharpe and welcomed Mrs. Sharp.

Mr. Kenneth McConnell made the presentation on behalf of Mount Pleasant community of a brocaded sofa and lounge chair.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Sharp thanked their friends for the gifts and invited everyone to visit them in their new home. They also opened a variety of gifts, including a church plate from the local United Church Women.

The ladies in charge and their assistants served refreshments and all enjoyed a social half hour.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The first regular meeting of the Women of the Moose for the month was held in the Moose hall with Senior Regent Nell Shandraw presiding. Minutes were read and approved. Cards from the sick were also read.

The chairman, escorts and guides for the coming year were appointed.

It was announced that the installation supper will be held at the Dutch Mill Inn in Trenton.

June 27 was the date chosen to have the family picnic for members and their families at Cove Beach.

During lunch at the close of the meeting a penny sale was held.

Beautiful Setting Highlights St. Michael's C. W. L. Tea

"What is so rare as a day in June," and Wednesday after noon was no exception, when the Catholic Women's League of St. Michael's parish held their annual Garden Tea in a setting of natural beauty, overlooking the Bay of Quinte, at the home of Mrs. L. F. Radonocich, Trent Road.

The tea tables, on the patio, were a picture of loveliness in their white lace cloths, with centrepieces of pink and red roses, artistically arranged by Mrs. F. Domenico. Guests were served at small tables, set about the spacious lawn, a garden of flowers with beauty on every hand.

Highlight of the tea was an exhibition of outstanding paintings by Allan and Donnah Cameron, placed at strategic points around the garden. Such paintings as "Beech Woods," Redmerville Road, Maxinaw Lake and many others were quickly recognized and admired by all.

Receiving the many guests at the door were: the president, Mrs. G. F. O'Brien, and the hostess, Mrs. L. F. Radonocich.

Welcoming guests to the tea were Mrs. F. R. Ross and Mrs. B. E. Burley. Miss G. Donoghue escorted the guests to their tables.

Pouring tea were: Mrs. E. Logan, Mrs. R. Rashotte, Mrs. J. Gallagher and Mrs. H. Brown. A large group of ladies from the organization assisted with the serving and replenishing while another group assisted with kitchen duties.

In charge of the home-baking table were: Mrs. J. Morey, Mrs. J. Boyle, Mrs. S. Garvin Sr. and Mrs. W. Lynch. Hostesses for the art exhibition were Mrs. F. Rawson and Mrs. J. Sheridan. The admissions were in charge of Mrs. D. Moran and Mrs. A. Wilkinson.

The members of St. Michael's C.W.L. are most grateful to the hostess, Mrs. L. F. Radonocich who kindly opened her beautiful home; to Mrs. R. E. Barrett who convened this highly successful event, and to Mrs. D. Black, Mrs. D. Tiemperman and Mrs. R. Collins who provided transportation to and from the tea; also to the boys for an excellent job in parking the cars and to everyone who assisted in any way.

Dietitians Must Acquire More Training

TORONTO (CP) — The management of a budget of $80,000 to $1,000,000 will not be entrusted to a dietitian with no administrative training, Dorothy Shantz of Toronto told 300 fellow dietitians Thursday.

Miss Shantz was one of 4 panel discussing the future of dietitians on the final day of the three-day 30th annual convention of the Canadian Dietetic Association. She is executive dietitian with a food service firm.

She said that if dietitians want jobs as part of the administrative staffs of hospitals, industries, food service businesses, they must have more management training and more competitive ambition.

Dr. Margaret McCready, dean of Macdonald Institute, Guelph said there are 1,332 students, including eight men, in Canada's 16 home economics college courses.

She said despite the increasing use of computers and new processing methods there will always be a need for a group of people that knows and cares about food.

URGES PRESSURE

Dr. McCready urged delegates to pressure Ottadian colleges to offer more post - graduate opportunities in the food and nutrition fields.

Sister Mary Frederick, director of dietitics at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, new president of the CDA, said dietitians must recognize the necessary changes facing them and begin to alter their training to meet them.

She said there should be closer co-operation between universities training dietitians and institutions offering them their internship.

Emelia Sworak, director of consumer services for Nestles Canada, in Toronto described an experiment designed to show whether psychological tests could predict whether an overweight person could be successful at losing weight.

Information was fed into a computer and Miss Sworak said she believes the predictions can be valid enough to be worth using on large groups of dieters.

She said in any group of people trying to lose weight, there will be some who will discontinue the whole group because of their own bad attitudes or inability to lose. If they could be spotted in advance, they could be put in a separate group.

Marion Visey of Macdonald Institute, described an experiment which showed that salt in cooking water made broccoli a brighter green and allowed heat to penetrate it more rapidly.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

PINE GROVE W.I.

MARSH HILL — The June meeting of Pine Grove W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Coulter with 14 members and one guest present.

The president, Mrs. Farley Lindenfield, opened the meeting in the usual manner and welcomed Mrs. Fred Campbell of Belleville, a former member.

Several members displayed fashions of grandmother's day.

The members signed to receive the booklet, "Frozen Food" from the Department of Agriculture.

The conveners of the standing committees reported.

The Institute is planning a Tweedsmuir Tea, July 21 in the Marsh Hall Church Sunday School Hall with Mrs. Harold Detlor, Mrs. Charles Ross and Mrs. Leslie Fiskle forming the committee to plan for the refreshments.

Miss Jane Gay reported on the conference for Institute members which was held at the Guelph University, with 700 in attendance. The Honorable William Stewart, Minister of Agriculture, addressed the ladies on opening day.

Mrs. Lymburner conducted a workshop panel at the conference. Curators were asked to use their imaginations in making Tweedsmuir Histories for their branches.

Miss Gay thanked the members for giving her the opportunity to attend the conference.

Mrs. Charles Ross reported on the district annual held at Wellbridge.

Mrs. Ivan Clare and Mrs. Charles Ross gave readings appropriate for grandmother's day.

Mrs. Leslie Fiskle, convener of historical research and current events, gave a paper, "Now and Then."

She said no matter what decade we live in we are always affected by change and the rate of change gathers momentum every year. Perhaps this change affects women's work more than men's and this pressure of change shapes us all whether we are 16 or 75 and we have to decide what to discard and what to keep of the old, and what to adopt of the new.

A contest was enjoyed by the members.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Grace Bartindale, served baked beans, brown bread and tea biscuits with jam.

Once-powerful Madame Nhu Now Living Quietly in Italy

By PIERO DE CARAZARROLLI

ROME (AP) — The Italian country residence is small nestling behind a protective, stucco-covered, stone wall. The black iron gate rarely opens. Visitors to the quiet neighborhood are cautioned to watch out for the snakes, and they are seldom disturbed.

Next to the house, inside the wall, is a well tended vegetable garden. So someone does live there. But who?

"Madame Nhu?" said a farmer who lives nearby. "I've never heard the name before, but I've been told there is somebody from Viet Nam around here."

Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu, the once powerful, dominant woman of South Viet Nam, lives in seclusion in the unpretentious villa. Two years ago, she toured the United States talking to as many audiences as she could gather for as long as they could listen. Now she sees no one. The few Italians who have met her say she believes she will return to Saigon one day, the policies of her husband and brother-in-law vindicated.

Mme. Nhu was in the United States during the coup that brought violent death to her husband, Ngo Dinh Nhu, the head of South Viet Nam's secret police, and to her brother-in - law, president Ngo Dinh Diem.

LEAVES U.S.

She left the United States and moved to Paris. Her self-imposed exile there was not so strict, and occasionally she visited Rome. Later, she moved to the relatively modest villa where she now lives, and rarely goes out. Many of her neighbors have only a vague idea who she is.

The community is a pastoral area of green farms 15 miles southwest of Rome, not far from the seaside resort of Ostia. At one time it was a malarial marsh, but Benito Mussolini had it reclaimed. Today, vipers still abound in the fields off the main roads.

Apparently Mme. Nhu does not lack money. A villager who occasionally has worked inside her villa says she has a household staff of two maids, a cook, a part-time gardener, a secretary and a French nurse-tutor for her two younger children.

These two—Quynh, a 13-year-old boy, and Le Quyen, a six-year-old girl—live in the villa and seldom leave it. Mme. Nhu's older children—Le Thuy, a 20 - year - old daughter, and Trac, a 17-year-old son—are staying in Paris, according to the Italian national police.

Mme. Nhu herself is reported to spend almost all her time in her study in the villa, working at a typewriter on her memoirs and occasional statements that she mails to newspapers.

Successful Living

Must Believe in Oneself To Have Faith in Others

DEAR DORIS — Why is it when I pray I feel my prayers go unanswered? Why do I worry over every little thing, like what people will say about me and my family?

Why do I always doubt my children, especially the teen-agers, when they tell me where they've been? Why do children never want to confide in their parents? I try to be a good parent. How can I get closer to them?

WORRIED AND DOUBTFUL.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR WORRIED — Evangelist Al Cliffe says: "Pray believing you are receiving."

You seem to be doubting everything and everybody right now. Is it because you don't believe in yourself?

Teen-agers, yours and everybody else's, yearn for the right to independent action. If you can cultivate more confidence in them, and more poise for yourself, it will help.

How about a good heart-to-heart talk with your minister or priest, to get back on the right track?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My pal Dottie has started associating with Sally, a girl I don't like at all. We are all 13.

Today after school Dottie told me in front of Sally that she was being nominated for president of the class. I didn't act very happy, and Sally said "Well, don't look pleased or anything!" I retorted, "Why should I? I don't care!"

Dottie was very hurt and I felt terrible. I really want to be Dottie's friend, but I despise Sally. — SLEEPLESS NIGHTS.

* * *

DEAR SLEEPLESS — You were rude because it annoyed you that Sally was even present. Would you grant that Sally has a right to be alive?

None of us can keep our friends in our pocket, and Dottie has a right to other girl friends — even Sons you don't click with. Jealousy is a poor, underprivileged emotion — and should be denied house room. Apologize.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I was wondering if you knew of any kind of medicine you could get to stop a man from drinking so much. As soon as he gets to town that's all he thinks about and when I mention anything to buy for the house he always says "When I get the money."

But he can always get money for beer. We live in an old-fashioned house with rundown furniture, and it makes me feel bad to go in other people's nice homes and come home to this dive. — LOST.

* * *

DEAR LOST — It takes strong medicine indeed to combat alcoholism. It's not just something you can feed him. Sometimes it calls for a revolution in a man's life; a jolt which will make him realize what he is doing to his life and to those he cares about.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My fiance and I are planning to be married in August, and we are quarreling about one thing — my child, Tony. You see, when I was 15 (I'm 18 now) I couldn't bear to give Tony up so I have kept him.

My fiance says he loves me and wants to marry me but he won't have an already built family. I love them both. Which do I choose? — UNDECIDED.

* * *

DEAR UNDECIDED — Giving up your Tony would be a good deal more difficult now — as well as being harder on him — than it would have been three years ago. No one can make this decision for you.

Get your child care worker to help you consider the pros and cons and reach the answer which you will be able to live with.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am a 13-year-old girl. I have a weak arch which makes my foot look terrible. For school I have started to wear these ugly brown shoes, which are designed to help my foot, but I doubt if they'll work.

Next year I'll have to wear sneakers in high school so I'll probably have my feet worse than they are. I've read somewhere that there are special supporters to fit in any shoes. Can you please recommend where I can get these? I would like to also put them in my Sunday shoes. — TERRIBLE FEET.

* * *

DEAR FEET — Those who know say metal foot plates and supports merely prevent development of healthy foot muscles by holding the foot rigid. I'd guess you need the opposite of arch suports: shoes which permit free movements, and a routine of foot exercises which can make healthy, strong feet.

Get the dandy little booklet called "Care of the Feet" by asking for it at your local or provincial health department, or by writing to the Information Services Division, Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa.

* * *

To MRS. R.E.C. and MRS. J.A.C., Nova Scotia; MRS. E.E., Vancouver and MRS. T.S., Winnipeg — So the plant is a calla lily begonia. It has white leaves shaped like tiny calla lilies as well as green leaves, and bears pink or red begonia-type blossoms. It is called Youth and Old Age, Snow on the Mountain or June in January. It likes a warm room but no hot sun. I'd say we have it taped, wouldn't you, Plant Lover? My thanks to all writing in.

Write to the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation, 24 Harbord Street, Toronto 5, Ontario, and ask for counselling.

Exodus of British Youth Almost Forgotten Today

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—A killed Scottish youngster from the Orkneys was scrabbling frantically under his berth as the liner docked at Montreal.

"I canna get off without my sporran," he explained to a social worker. "They'll think I'm a lassie."

Canada was just that strange to almost 6,000 guests who started arriving 25 years ago. It was the exodus, now almost forgotten, of British children in search of safety from the perils of war.

Bombing and fear of invasion spurred the flight from Britain. At one point, it was believed 120,000 children would leave the islands. The actual number was far less, and eventually 5,854 came to this country.

Canada opened its borders and its heart to the refugees. Immigration barriers were brushed aside. Social workers rolled up their sleeves. The federal and provincial governments co-operated closely.

PROVINCES RESPONSIBLE

The provinces had direct responsibility for the youngsters, but the Canada Overseas Reception Board was set up in the federal immigration branch. The Canadian Welfare Council, arranging the machinery, had word from the provinces 72 hours later that homes could be found for 10,000 children.

A network of children's aid societies went to work screening the homes, getting the visitors settled down and smoothing out problems.

The children who came were in three categories:

1. Mothers or relatives accompanied, 2,586. The adults arrived with little cash and found themselves unable to get any more sterling into the dollar zone. They generally took jobs, helped by immigration and welfare bodies.

2. Private guests, paid for by parents, of 1,926 children joining relatives or friends. These included 400 from eight public schools in England. They were moved en bloc to Canadian private schools like Edgehill in Nova Scotia and Ashbury College in Ottawa.

3. The 1,532 CORB children, whose ocean passage was paid by British and rail passage by Canada. They went into free foster homes.

PASSAGE PERILOUS

In July, 1940, liners began docking at Eastern ports with hundreds of children aboard. Some found the Atlantic's dangers worse than those they left behind.

The Volendam was torpedoed off Ireland Aug. 28 but the 320 children were all rescued. Those on the City of Benares were not so lucky. It was sunk farther out in early September and 70 children, among them five members of one family, were lost. That just about ended the movement.

"A good many people take the view the children are safer on the other side than taking the hazardous Atlantic trip," wrote F. C. Blair, then director of the immigration branch.

The CORB was described as "one of the most successful and satisfying social experiments in Canada's long experience of migration problems."

Immigration officials constantly went beyond the limits of duty. Red tape was cut. Unexpected costs were paid with formalities waived. When some children under private auspices ran into trouble, CORB took over and ignored the tortuous transfer process Britain required.

ACTS AS GUARDIAN

British High Commissioner Malcolm MacDonald, to his shielded but evident dismay, found himself guardian for the whole 1,532 CORB group. He had to stand in for the parents in authorizing such things as surgical operations for the youngsters.

Some children were transferred among three and four homes before settling down. Financial trouble, death, illness and incompatibility took their toll. But serious trouble was surprisingly rare.

Older boys were encouraged to join the British or Canadian armed services after two 15-year-olds ran away to enter the merchant marine. Nearly 200 took this course.

Life was diverted in many ways for the arrivals. Regina Sleigh, 19, became a nun, entering the Order of St. Martha at Antigonish, N.S., James Cuthill, 11, after he arrived in Niagara Falls, Ont., from Glasgow, saved to study medicine at the University of Toronto.

Simon Dew, son of a British father and Canadian mother, was five when he arrived. Now, he's a TV free-lancer in Vancouver. Adrian Grant Duff was less than a year old when the exodus started. Years later he studied forestry at the University of New Brunswick and now he is with a lumber firm in Vancouver, where he was married last year.

BRINGS BRIDE

Donald Moffatt, still a boy when he left Springhill, N.S., to return to Northern England in 1946, brought a bride back but settled in Massachusetts. He visits his wartime foster-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. MacLeod of Port Caledonia, N.S., regularly. His sister Sheila returned to marry in Nova Scotia and now lives in California.

One who went back home and made good was Eric Lubbock. Now 37, he is whip of the 10-man Liberal party in the British Commons and one of the party's most prominent parliamentary spokesmen. He and a sister stayed with an uncle, J. D. Woods, in Toronto, where he says they were "very happy."

After the return movement ended in 1946, British Education Minister Ellen Wilkinson said the migration had given the children "a far livelier understanding of the Commonwealth and the world than those who remained at home."

More simply, a British mother wrote:

"There is nothing England or the English people can ever do to repay the generosity of Canada."

REFUGEE BOY GROWS UP — Simon Dew is typical of 5,954 United Kingdom children who came to Canada in 1940 to escape wartime bombings. The late Nels Quarrington of the Toronto Telegram photographed five-year-old Simon beside a Toronto policeman on the day of his arrival. The scene was rephotographed each year while Simon was growing up. Picture in centre was taken when Simon was 15. Picture at right shows his wedding in 1963. Simon now is a TV free-lancer in Vancouver. The policeman, Harry C. Warton, retired in 1956 and lives in Toronto. (CP Photo)

Immediate Effect Will Be Negligible

OTTAWA (CP)—The new federal labor code, setting a $1.25 hourly minimum wage and 40-hour work week, will become law July 1 but its immediate effect is expected to be negligible.

Practically every industry covered by the labor code has made application to Labor Minister MacEachen for the temporary deferments provided.

The flood of such applications has been so heavy that it probably will be impossible to make decisions on them before the code's July 1 starting date. Industries are automatically exempted until a ruling is handed down accepting or rejecting their contention that immediate application of the code would be harmful to them.

A labor department official said Wednesday that more than 40 applications are already in, some from individual companies and others covering entire industries.

Rights-of-way To Be Opened To Farmers

TORONTO (CP)—The rights-of-way along 13,000 miles of main highways in Ontario will be opened to farmers seeking fodder supplies for their cattle, Highways Minister Charles MacNaughton said Thursday.

Mr. MacNaughton also said he will write all county and township councils in the province asking them to make the rights - of - way alongside the thousands of miles of county and concession roads available to farmers.

"The measures are being taken principally to aid need-short farmers in drought-stricken eastern Ontario. Mr. MacNaughton said this has never been done before.

The rights-of-way for king's highways measure from 100 feet to 120 feet in width, about one-half of which is taken up by the road surface itself.

Farmers will be asked not to venture on controlled - access highways or other roads where they may hamper the movement of traffic.

Many Members Would Like General Election This Fall Under the Old Boundaries

OTTAWA (CP) — Because of the redistribution of electoral boundaries, Prime Minister Pearson can be expected to face increased pressure from individual MPs to call a general election for this fall.

As individuals, it appears most members of Parliament would prefer an election under existing boundaries rather than wait for the redistribution process to be completed.

These feelings are not confined only to Liberal members. Many Conservatives, too, would prefer an election fought in their familiar territories. Redistribution in Saskatchewan, for instance, will result in the loss of four of that province's present 17 seats — all held by Conservatives.

However, opposition members as individuals can do little in the way of encouraging the prime minister to call an election, unless they can rally all opposition MPs to the cause of defeating the minority Liberal government.

Chances of this happening in time for a fall election seem dimmer each day. The Commons is expected to recess in a week or two, and it probably won't meet again until late September.

Some members say pressures are being applied from constituency organizations for another election before the boundaries officially change. These organizations would go through the same upheavals as the sitting members when the redistribution process is completed.

But many members privately itching for a fall election foresee a great many difficulties. If a vote is to be held before late November, the announcement would probably have to come during the parliamentary recess.

Unless there are good grounds for an election, some feel the public would resent it. Members also tend to feel the government will reach a point late this year where it cannot ethically, call an election on existing boundaries, based on the 1961 census.

By next spring, a general election could be held using the new boundaries, which eliminate entirely many existing seats and put others in new constituencies.

In one case in Ontario, three Conservatives — Eric Winkler (Grey - Bruce), Percy Noble (Grey North) and John Looney (Simcoe — all live within the boundaries of a proposed new riding.

Prime Minister Pearson, who will make the decision on an election — barring a defeat in the Commons — has given no clue as to how he feels about it.

Ontario, Quebec Farmers May Get Drought Aid Says Agriculture Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Farmers in Ontario and Quebec drought areas may get federal aid.

Agriculture Minister Hays told a press conference Thursday he will discuss drought conditions with the agriculture ministers of the two central provinces.

He said he hopes the meetings with William Stewart of Ontario and Alcide Courcy of Quebec will be held next week.

Mr. Hays said "we want to help the farmers" but gave no clear indication of what he has in mind. Any decision on aid would await the meeting with the provincial agriculture ministers.

The federal minister returned from a European trip Wednesday, conferred on the drought situation with Forestry Minister Sauve, and was at his desk at 8 a.m. Thursday.

Mr. Sauve spoke for the government in an emergency Commons debate Wednesday on the drought which has hit eastern Ontario and sections of western Quebec. The Ottawa Valley has been hit particularly hard.

PROMISES TALKS

In the Commons Mr. Sauve promised the federal government would consult with Ontario and Quebec to see what could be done.

Mr. Hays said that on his return to the capital he flew over some of the drought areas and a 150-mile strip east of Montreal was affected. He noted the Ottawa district was hard hit and "even in western Ontario it is pretty dry."

Farmers with loans from the Farm Credit Corp. would be allowed to defer payments if they wished.

He noted the federal government has helped provinces financially in the past when they could not shoulder the burden. And in recent years Ottawa had shared the cost of transporting hay to feed-short areas.

Mr. Hays expressed doubt about the value of rain-making through cloud - seeding. The Ontario government has embarked on a $200,000 program of this type in an attempt to alleviate drought conditions.

Just about everybody has tried rainmaking, he said, but the system has not been perfected to the point where it is useful.

Asked whether the federal government would share the cost of the rain - making program, Mr. Hays said only that he would talk to the provincial ministers about the project.

He said he is initiating these talks. He had not been approached for aid by either of the provincial ministers.

Many farmers in drought areas have put their cattle in hay fields, he said. This would make a problem in the fall when the cattle have used up the hay, leaving none for storage.

Although the drought situation was serious, farmers still stood the chance of getting a good second hay crop if rain came. They would have to cut whatever crop they have now.

Some government, he said, eventually would have to make provision to move hay to feed-short areas.

Douglas Holland, a federal meteorologist, said cloud seeding is not the solution to Ontario's drought problems.

MADE FLIGHTS

The Royal Canadian Air Force made 45 flights in the Rouyn - Noranda area for departmental technicians. They released silver iodide smoke in weather disturbances. The results indicate that seeding did not produce greater rainfall, said Mr. Holland.

Mr. Holland's report came after an announcement by Mr. Stewart that he had hired the Water Resources Development Corp. of Denver, Colo., to try to bring rain to Renfrew County in the Ottawa area.

The firm has been offered a $200,000 three-year contract for its work in Canada.

A little rain that fell late Wednesday brought mixed reactions from agricultural representatives.

Frank Dench of Renfrew County called it a "fine rain but we need much more than that."

At least an inch more was needed right away and another inch every week for a month or so, he said.

High Current Account Deficit In First Quarter

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada had a current account deficit of $408,000,000 in the first quarter of 1965 in its balance of payments with foreign countries, the bureau of statistics reported Thursday.

This compared with a deficit of $343,000,000 in the first quarter of 1964 and a deficit of $453,000,000 for the whole of 1964.

The bureau said the growth of the quarterly deficit over year-earlier figures was the result of a worsening in the trade balance. The $408,000,000 deficit was the largest in the 1960s for the January - March period.

There were record levels of international trade for the winter period as a result of rising economic activity both in Canada and in the United States. But U.S. moves to reduce the American imbalance of payments affected capital flows into Canada.

Whereas Canada had a $376,000,000 deficit on non - merchandise transactions in the first quarter of 1964, it had a $32,000,000 merchandise trade surplus and this cut the deficit on current account to $343,000,000.

BALANCE UP

This year, Canada had a deficit of non - merchandising transactions of $351,000,000 and a trade deficit of $57,000,000, bringing the deficit in the current account balance to $408,000,000.

The first - quarter 1965 performance compared with a trade surplus of $162,000,000 and a non-merchandise deficit of $331,000,000 in the last three months of 1964, which resulted in a fourth - quarter current account deficit of $169,000,000.

In last year's first quarter, Canada had an inflow of capital amounting to $201,900,000. There was actually an inflow of $237,000,000 in short - term investments and a paying - off of long-term forms amounting to $36,000,000.

But in the first quarter of this year, short - term capital inflow amounted to $188,000,000 and long-term forms to $148,000,000.

During 1964, there was a total capital inflow of $616,000,000, of which $63,000,000 was in short-term forms—for two years or less.

Parliamentary Notebook

OTTAWA (CP) — Just when MP head out for their first summer recess in three years appears to rest on just when Prime Minister Pearson lets them have a look at the Dorion report.

The report by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion on charges of attempted bribery and coercion by federal ministerial aides looms as the one big issue left be decided before the Commons closes its doors until mid-September.

If the report is tabled by Monday, some MPs believe they can wrap things up by Dominion Day. If it's delayed, however, the pressure to finish up by the national holiday will disappear and the House could keep going into the following week.

That, at least, is how most veteran MPs see it. But as one was quick to caution, "predicting anything about this House is a very dangerous business."

Among the unknown factors listed by some members is the possible effect of the return to the Commons of its two star performers, Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

With the pair away — Mr. Pearson in London, Mr. Diefenbaker on a western tour—business has proceeded at a steady pace in the House and MPs have cleared away a number of noncontentious measures.

The pre-recess slate has been reduced in recent days to two pieces of veterans legislation, amendments to the Judges Act, creation of a committee to study consumer credit, income tax amendments and interim supply.

As far as possible trouble goes, the spotlight is confined to the latter two items.

The income tax changes arising out of Finance Minister Gordon's budget include the magazine-newspaper measure which has drawn heavy Opposition fire. The legislation already is past the general debating stage, however, and most observers wonder whether the Opposition can prolong the discussion too long during detailed examination.

Interim supply, by which the government will acquire preliminary approval for expenses during the recess, is another question. It involves apportioning a certain part to each government department and thus opens the door for debate on almost any conceivable question.

The Dorion report undoubtedly will be discussed under this heading. Any pre - recess fireworks on Quebec's proposed address to the Queen also will be heard when interim supply is before the House.

Whenever it comes, the recess is certain to be welcomed by MPs who have been at the job almost steadily since the Liberal government took office in April, 1963.

Sea Anemone Kills Shark At Aquarium

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—A sea anemone, a plant-like animal, devoured a young leopard shark Thursday in the aquarium built for it.

The strange encounter was witnessed by photographers and staff members of the Aquarium of Niagara Falls.

The staff said it was a sea rarity.

The sea anemone has flowing tentacles with poison tips it uses to sting its victims, normally small sea animals, before eating them.

The young shark and the sea anemone, from north Pacific Ocean waters, had been in the same tank about three weeks. Officials said the shark may have antagonized the anemone and brought on the attack.

The holding company has controlling interest in B.C. Almost Billion Lopped Off Toronto Share Value in Day

TORONTO (CP)—The sharp slump in prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange lopped an estimated $925,000,000 off the value of listed shares Thursday.

The decline, the fifth-biggest of the year, sent many key stocks to their lowest levels of 1965 and was the latest setback in more than a month of falling prices.

A similar decline occurred in New York, where individual high-priced stocks lost as much as $6. The Montreal markets were closed to mark St. Jean Baptiste day.

The loss on the New York market was estimated at more than $8,000,000,000. During the last two weeks the total loss has been $7,374,000,000, based on indexes used to measure the rise or fall of key stocks. Some gains made during the period helped reduce the effect of other sharp declines the market has experienced.

Market analysts say it is difficult to point to one or two factors as the chief reasons for the decline. Many blame it on a general feeling that stock prices simply were too high.

"There are enough uncertainties around to make it reasonable for stock prices to take a breather," Paul Henry, analyst with R. A. Daly and Co. Ltd., said.

"The British payments problem, the U.S. gold losses, labor settlements, Viet Nam 'and a general international political turmoil are sufficient reasons to precipitate the correction we are witnessing."

He predicted a continuation of the uncertain market through the summer and added: "A healthy dose of pragmatism is the best prescription for a sagging market."

Another analyst said many investors are disturbed by the falling prices, but not to the degree where they are unloading their holdings. Generally light trading volume on the markets proves this, he said.

He noted the decline during the last month has not been nearly so sharp as the market break that occurred in 1962.

At that time prices declined an average of 12 per cent during a seven-week period. So far, losses this month current slide average about 7½ per cent.

PASSES SILVER BILL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Thursday passed President Johnson's bill to eliminate silver from dimes and quarters and cut the silver content in half dollars to 40 from 90 per cent. The bill was sent to the House of Representatives.

Industry Needs Prodding To Clean Air, Parley Told

TORONTO (CP)—The air we breathe nowadays not only isn't pure, it isn't free any more, people who should know agreed Thursday. And the man in the street, most directly concerned, doesn't care.

One main theme came out at this week's discussions on air pollution by experts from around the world: A long programme of education of the public, governments and industry is needed and industry lies ahead before air is looked upon as a natural source.

Pollution - minded industrialists said privately during sessions of the Air Pollution Control Association that industry generally, won't move to clean up the air until it is prodded by name. "It's a simple matter of economics. I run a clean plant. I could go broke if I think it will add to the cost of my product. The man across the road isn't doing that and he'll undersell me."

They thought if clean - air legislation is passed, and enforced, by - municipal governments, it would help to level all around. Industry will be glad to co-operate but must pass on the cost to the customer.

Nearly 2,000 air - pollution experts in the field of industry, education and government met here for four days at what was described as the largest meeting in the association's 58-year history. It is closed Thursday.

Co-operation by the public was uppermost in the mind of retiring president Dr. E. R. Hendrickson of the University of Florida, Gainsville. He said in an interview:

The public couldn't care less unless there is a local problem. A man has to see black smoke pouring from a factory chimney before he thinks of air pollution. He should be after his local government continually to keep pollutants of all kind's out of the air."

"Any way you look at it," he added, "the public pays for air pollution control"—whether through tax-supported government agencies or effects on industry passed along in the price of products. The pollution problem is world wide and was growing worse.

Dr. Hendrickson said that in industrial fields the air pollution problem must be studied industry by industry. Many industries are united to be good neighbors and take a progressive approach to eradicating impurities in waste products. An element of competition and compulsion here and there might be necessary.

The steel and phosphate industries had made great advances in self-control of pollution. The chemical industry could do better. The automobile industry had been reluctant but was willin' to be pushed Government itself was one of the most persistent offenders through uncontrolled buildings.

Dr. Hendrickson and many other delegates urged in panel discussions and in interviews that municipalities need good, workable control legislation and put qualified officials in charge. Trained technicians should be hired.

"Don't appoint the dog-catcher," the association member, speaking of an Ontario town which has complex control bylaws and no qualified expert to enforce them.

Dr. Hendrickson said control should be viewed as preventive medicine.

It was less costly to take effective measures before pollution occurred than to apply curative medicine.

Imports Show Drop in April, Up for Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Commodity imports in April were valued at $629,800,000, a narrow drop of $1,400,000 from April imports in 1964, the bureau of statistics reported today.

Exports during the month, announced earlier, were off seven per cent to $665,200,000, leaving Canada with a commodity trade deficit for the month of $35,400,000.

However, imports for the first four months of the year rose 7.9 per cent to $2,565,000,000 and exports rose 2.5 per cent to $2,515,700,000.

Last year's commodity trade surplus of $95,500,000 in four months was switched to a deficit of $29,900,000 this year.

DBS reported that imports from the United Kingdom fell 8.4 per cent in April to $80,000,000 but were 2.3 per cent higher at $330,000,000 for the four-month period in 1965, as compared with 1964. Exports were down 11.8 per cent in the month to $85,300,000, and off 3.6 per cent at $251,400,000 for the four months.

April imports from the United States fell one per cent to $482,000,000 but were up two per cent in the four - month period to $1,857,200,000. Exports to the U.S. rose 10 per cent in April to $463,600,000 from a year earlier, and were 11 per cent higher in the four-month period at $1,486,100,000.

SPORTS SLICES

"Gary Player, the disinucated South African," quoth Mackenzie, Our Man in Zwick's Island, picking his words carefully, "has immortalidomed himself in the eyes of the American public."

The little golf gaffer who dresses like a New Zealand All-Black, talks with an Australian accent and trains on nuts, wheat germs and dried fruits, gave away $27,000 the other day and like a tiger-filled refrigerator grew from 5-7 to ten feet in a few minutes.

"The greatness of a man," quoth the bayside philosopher "comes out in one big moment and is measured on what he has planned and how he discharges what he considers his duty."

"Another great in my water-soaked log of sports," said the Mush, "is the fabulous New Zealander, Peter Snell. The wreckage of his world mile record gnawing at a rain-wracked body, he finished a poor tenth in the $5,000."

"He did not seek the solace of a lonely dressing room. He did not seek alibis. The cream of sportsmanship surged to the top and he went to a public address system and apologized to the huge crowd for his poor showing."

"That is the stuff of which true champions are made," gushed the Mush.

Player's magnificent gesture in giving $20,000 to the development of junior golf in the United States, "because golf and the U.S.A. have been good to me"; $5,000 to the Cancer Fund and $2,000 to his caddy set some sort of a precedent.

It might, according to some top sportsmen, prove embarrassing to his buddy-pros on the tournament circuit.

They eye with some misgiving, it is reported, the donation of that two grand to the caddie laddy. After all two thousand bucks is pretty hard to succeed at —and is far above any post-tournament gratuities shelled out by any other member of golfdom's loot list.

In fact it is stated that the amount is just twice that given his club-toter by Arnold Palmer after a major victory.

They wonder if the Player generosity may set a new high in caddy fees and if they will be expected to "go thou—and do likewise" in future tournaments or be considered members of the piker class.

But as Mushmouth points out, "Player has immortalidomed himself with the American public." His gesture has grown to giant-size in the minds of those who are aficionados of a sport that has been untainted with the blemish of "fix, phoney and pushover."

It has brought professional golf to a plateau far above those of professional boxing and basketball, leaving the stench of favoritism and other putrid fragrances well in the rear.

Top professional athletes have never been noted for philanthropic gestures on the grand scale. A lot of topnotch boxing champions "gave" their money away via "painless extraction on the part of flunny managers and the usual swarm of camp hangers-on.

But, it is pointed out, there have been exceptions. Babe Ruth once "gave away" $18,000 simply because he lost it and came up with the quip, "So what, it is only money."

Joe DiMaggio donated the proceeds of a "night" given him in Yankee Stadium to charity. Yogi Berra diked but gave the money to set up scholarships. Doug Harvey made a big donation to a children's fund after a "night." The famous Ty Cobb, who died a millionaire, built a hospital in Georgia and gave it to the state.

Five Bunched In Race For AL Lead

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mickey Mantle is out, Roger Maris is out and Whitey Ford pitches only when the weather is right.

New York Yankees are 10½ games back with a team batting average of .224 and manager Johnny Keane says everything is fine and dandy.

Which should make Mr. Keane the optimist of the year.

"We have as good team or better than anyone in this league, when we're able to get the regular team in there," he says. "We just need to get straightened out. You know, win five, then maybe drop one and come back with five or six in a row."

Which makes good sense. There's just the problem of getting the regulars in there and (2) winning five in a row. Or four. Or even three.

With the M and M boys on the sidelines again—Mantle with a pulled left hamstring and Maris with assorted ailments—the Yanks dropped a 6-2 decision to Kansas City Athletics Tuesday, snapping a five-game winning binge and marking their eighth loss in 12 games.

The leaders, meanwhile, made things even tighter. Cleveland Indians downed Minnesota 3-1 and moved within a half game of the leading Twins. The idle Chicago White Sox also moved within a half game of the top. Baltimore Orioles, 4-1 victors over Boston Red Sox, clinched within one and Detroit Tigers edged Los Angeles Angels 3-2 to trail the twins by two.

PLAGUED BY PROBLEMS

The National Association of Baseball Haters is having its grandest time in two decades. The Yanks, everybody's choice to win their 15th pennant in 17 years and a record sixth in a row, have had problems in bunches.

There have been injuries galore, principally to Mantle, Maris and Elston Howard. Everybody is hitting much. They're losing the close ones. And the lop-sided ones.

And it must have been rubbing salt into a profusion of bleeding wounds when Roland Sheldon, who went to Kansas City for catcher Doc Edwards earlier this season, clouted a strong six-hitter against his old mates.

He was supported by a three-run homer by Ken Harrelson and a three-run burst in the eighth. Joe Pepitone had a homer for the losers.

Ralph Terry, another ex-Yankee, won his seventh of the season in pitching the Indians past Minnesota, allowing only five hits before leaving in the eighth.

Sleepy Boston—manager Billy Herman said he fired an undisclosed number of Red Sox for missing an early morning bed-check — couldn't handle Mill Pappas, who spaced seven hits in going the distance. A three-run homer by Brooks Robinson and a solo shot by Luis Aparicio gave him more than enough margin.

Denny McLain's five-hit pitching and a two-run double by Jerry Lumpe won for Detroit.

Crush Dodgers 13-3

Bucs' "Willie" Clouts 3 Homers

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Staff Writer

Say boy, Willie's really clouting them.

Not Willie Mays this time, nor Willie Horton, Detroit Tigers' fearsome rookie.

The name is Stargell, an outfielder with Pittsburgh Pirates who takes his glasses off to play baseball.

Without visual aid, he slammed three home runs and a double Thursday night driving in six runs against Los Angeles Dodgers as the Pirates crushed the National League leaders 13-3. That brought his homers for the year to 20, just two behind the league-leading total Mays has clubbed for San Francisco Giants.

Stargell, at 24 Mays' junior by 10 years, is only in his third full year in the majors. He has given ample evidence of his left-handed power since he entered the Pirate organization in 1959, but his highest major league output of homers was 21 last season.

Against the Dodgers, Stargell homered with the bases empty in the first and with one on in the third against 11-game winner Don Drysdale, struck out in the fourth, then connected for his third homer against reliever John Purdin with two on in the sixth.

He came up in the eighth against Mike Kekich and shot a line drive down the left field line that fell two feet short of the stands for a double.

While Stargell was leading a 15-hit attack, St. Louis Cardinals belted Cincinnati Reds 11-4 with a 12-hit offensive, Philadelphia Phillies downed San Francisco 3-1, Chicago Cubs defeated Milwaukee Braves 3-1 and Houston Astros whipped New York Mets 4-2.

Stargell was joined in homer hitting for the Pirates by Bob Bailey and Jim Pagliaroni. Wes Parker drove in all the Dodger runs with a sacrifice fly and a two-run homer.

The Cardinals, gaining only their eighth victory in 29 games did most of the damage against Jim O'Toole, 5s, Phil Gagliano rapped a three-run homer and Lou Brock and Bob Uecker each stroked two-run singles.

The Giants scored in the second inning on singles by Len Gabrielson, Tom Haller and Hal Lanier but the Phillies moved ahead to stay with a two-run sixth built on a walk and singles by Cookie Rojas, Callison and Tony Gonzalez.

Dick Ellsworth scattered six Milwaukee hits as he brought his record to 8-3 with his fifth straight victory. He has not lost since May 15 when he pitched a one-hitter and was beaten by the Dodgers.

The Astros put it away against the Mets with a three-run second inning helped along by New York pitcher Jack Fisher. Fisher wild-pitched one run home, made a throwing error that let in another and failed to cover first on a bunt that brought in the third run. Claude Raymond of St. Jean, Que., was the winner.

Wimbledon Tennis

Aussies, Americans Favored

WIMBLEDON, England (CP) — The men's singles event at the all-England lawn tennis championships was shaping up today as a battle between the Australians and Americans.

Five players reached the fourth round of the event Thursday.

They are defending champion Roy Emerson, Bob Hewitt and John Newcombe, all of Australia and American Dennis Ralston and Jim McManus.

It was a bad day for Canada. Both of its representatives lost.

Vicki Berner, 20 - year - old Vancouver brunette, played what she referred to as one of her worst matches and lost to Margaret O'Donnell of Britain 6-3, 6-1. It was her first round match twice postponed due to inclement weather which has plagued the tournament since it began Monday.

Keith Carpenter, lanky 23-year-old southpaw from Montreal, was defeated by Ingo Buding of West Germany 9-7, 6-2, 6-4 in a second - round match. Carpenter, a member of Canada's Davis Cup team for the last two years, is ranked third in Canada.

Carpenter was only entered in the singles of the tournament and will not see further action.

Miss Berner, however, will join with Miss M. E. Habicht of the U.S. against Katy Bartholdson and Christina Sandberg, two Swedes, in the women's doubles today.

So will also play in the mixed doubles next week: Her partner in that event will be American Roger Werksman. They will play the U.S. brother-sister team of Clarke and Carol Graebner.

London Pontiacs aren't about to remove Brian Pearen from the lineup.

Pearen has hit safely in all 10 London games this season to lead the Pontiacs into first place in the Senior Inter-County baseball series.

Thursday night, Pearen contributed a two-run homer and two singles as London walloped Listowel Mustangs 13-2.

In other Thursday games, Kitchener Panthers shut out Stratford Chiefs 2-0 and Brantford Red Sox edged Galt Terriers 2-1.

City Hotel Win String Clipped

Stewart Warner brought City Hotel's winning streak in the Commercial Softball League to an abrupt end last night, whacking the league leaders 7-2 at Zwick's Island.

The loss was City Hotel's first in 11 starts.

Stewart Warner never trailed. They took a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the fourth frame. City evened the count with Martin's home run in the top of the fifth but the winners ripped right back with four in their half of the inning. A final in the sixth completed the scoring.

Les Masters hurled excellent four-hit ball for the winners and got good support, led by a sharp-fielding Floyd Crawford. Masters struck out three and did not walk a batter.

Dusty Feeney was the loser, allowing all seven runs and 12 of the victor's 13 hits in five innings pitch. He fanned two and walked none. Gerry Genereaux cleaned up, neither failing or walking a man.

Masters helped his own cause at the plate by hammering a triple and single. Gary Coe banged a double and single with two singles each going to Rod Turner, A. Mott and Jack Caddick. Chuck Rowbotham, Floyd Crawford and Bob Benn completed the attack with base hits.

Outside of Jack Martin's homer, the only City Hotel hits were singles by Feeney, Genereaux and Tom Coolen.

The teams were charged with one error apiece.

Record Field For Meet

"There's one born every so often—and the pasture fields are full of 'em."

That is Driving Club's president Gerald Vance's paraphrasing of P. T. Barnum's famous "sucker" cliche.

But the QRDC president was referring to the upsurge in standard-bred horses over the past year or so.

"There are more horses now than ever before," he said. "If it keeps up we'll have to build larger tracks or hold all-day meets."

Seven new equine faces will be on hand tomorrow night at the QRDC meet. They round out a record field of 46 horses, the largest entry since the pari-mutuels were introduced here.

For the first time this season the card will be featured with three mile dashes. The other six events will be double heats.

Last Saturday the handle of the mutuels was $9,000, some short of the record of last season.

"If the weather man will only give us a break, we should break all existing records this year," said President Vance.

There will be no free-for-all race at tomorrow night's meet.

Leafs Split With Hens, Chiefs Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Billy (The Kid) Rohr lost a game and his chance to make the International League record book on one swing of a baseball bat Thursday.

Rohr, 19-year-old newcomer to Toronto Maple Leafs, gave up a single to Bob Schmidt of Toledo Mud Hens with one out in the last inning. The hit, the first of the game off the young left hander, knocked in Roger Repoz with the only run of the game as Toledo won 1-0.

Toronto rebounded to take the second game of the doubleheader 8-3 as Bill Spanswick ran his season record to 6-1.

McAllister Leads Open With A 66

Three Amateurs Tops

By STERLING TAYLOR

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — Although the Trafalgar Golf and Country Club layout is basically a driver's course, the field of 150 in the Ontario Open golf championship discovered they couldn't do a thing Thursday without sharp chipping and putting.

Two amateurs, Tom McAllister of Woodbridge, Ont., and Milton Mason of Toronto, demonstrated the effectiveness of the wedge and putter to take the first two spots after 18 holes of the 54-hole tournament.

McAllister, a 27 - year - old salesman, covered the 6,505-yard course with 29 putts and hit at least three chip shots within a foot of the hole.

Mason, 19, a high school student, used his putter only 25 times and holed one chip shot from 40 feet out.

Defending champion Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., carded a 68 to give the amateurs a clean sweep of the first three places.

Tied in fourth place in the three - day tournament, which winds up Saturday, were professionals Bob Panaiuk of Windsor, Ont., Bob Breen of Woodbridge and Jack Kay of Toronto with 70s.

Five other golfers, amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener, and professionals Ernie Della Torre, who came to Toronto from Italy a few weeks ago, Bob Rose, Alvie Thompson and Gary Fawcett, all of Toronto, stroked par 71s.

McAllister, who teamed with Tom Woodall of Toronto to win the Ontario best-ball championship last week, was non - committal after his spectacular round.

On EINED WITH EAGLE

He opened with an eagle on the first hole and was three strokes under on the front nine. Three more birdies on the back nine and a one-over-par on the 15th tied the course record.

The driver - putter contrast was sharply demonstrated in the case of Della Torre.

The 130-pound Italian, who boasted one of the best drives on the course, ran into trouble on the back nine.

He was three under par after 14 holes, but his tee shot off the 15th was caught by the stiff breeze and landed out of bounds.

"One bad tee shot," Della Torre said. "She went up and zip," he indicated how the ball had veered off the fairway with his hand.

WAS TWO_OVER PAR

He wound up with a two-over-par six on the hole and threeputted the 16th.

The 88 professionals are competing for $5,000 in prize money with $1,200 going to the golfer with the lowest 3 - par - 54 score. The leading professional also gains a berth in the $200,000 world tournament at Sutton, Mass., in August.

The championship, along with the qualifying round of the Ontario amateur, make up the trials for the Ontario Willingdon Cup team.

Trenton Blanks Madoc 3-0

MADOC (Special) — Errors marred a tight pitching duel here last night as Trenton Commercial Printers scored a 3-0 Belleville and District Softball League win over Madoc.

Trenton climbed into a fourth place tie with Trudeau Motors by virtue of the victory.

The veteran, Pat Maracle, of Trenton, and Madoc's young Darrel Kramp, hooked up in the pitcher's delight.

Each pitcher gave up five hits and there was not a base-on-balls in the contest. Maracle set 15 down on strikes and Kramp struck out 10.

The error total told the story. The winners played errorless ball and Madoc miscued five times.

Next league action has Trenton visiting Stirling in a postponed game at 8.15 Saturday night.

The Printers scored two runs in the fourth frame last night. A throwing error by Kramp put a man on second and Cole doubled to plate him. Another bobble sent the second run across the plate.

An error was the wedge again in the fifth, placing a man on second. He went to third on a ground out and raced home when Mowatt singled.

Madoc blew their best scoring chance with poor base running, cutting off dangerous threats in the second and ninth innings.

Jim Whyte had a triple, Don Cole a double, Leon Mowatt, Billy Mitts and Ron Chambers a single apiece off Kramp's slants.

Maracle gave up a double to Larry Griffin, a pair of singles to Albert Reid and one each to Larry Stickwood and George Atkinson.

Blank Trudeaus 5-0

Juniors Grab Top Spot

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Costly errors and another strong pitching effort by Bob Ebbier led Ellis Juniors into sole possession of first place in the Belleville and District Softball League last night.

Ellis' blanked Trudeau Motors 5-0 before an improved crowd at the Fairgrounds, going two points up on Bloomfield with the win.

Trudeaus jumped into a 2-0 early lead despite being held to a pair of bunt hits until the sixth frame.

Moon's bunt single led to a first-inning tally. An overthrow on an attempted double play got a man to second with two out. Mulvihill dropped a ball to centre which Plane caught running full tilt toward the infield. Weston ran into him coming from the other direction, jarring the ball loose and sending a run home on the error.

Trudeaus made it 2-0 without a hit in the fourth. A two-base bobble, Ebbier's fly out and a wild pitch did the damage.

A throwing error after a dropped third strike ignited the windup three-run sixth frame. Chatland slammed the Juniors' first solid hit of the game to score one. Ebbier got credit for a single when his hard-hit ball hit Chatland for the second out. Rutherford followed with his second homer of the week, and it was 5-0.

Ethier allowed four hits in all and walked a pair but never permitted Trudeaus more than one runner per inning while getting perfect support. He struck out 14, including the side in the fifth and nine innings.

Bill Baldwin allowed six hits, but got little support at the plate or afield. He struck out five and did not walk a man.

Second baseman	Wayne Woods	and	Bob Wannamaker traded the game's fielding gems with Woods' snag in the eighth starting the game's only twin killing.

Jim Rutherford's homer was Ellis' lone extra-base blow. Singles were divided among Bob Moon, Mike Chatland, Ethier, Wayne Woods and Larry Soule.

Larry Mowry cracked two Trudeau singles with one each for Ralph Plane and Bill Baldwin.

Plate umpire Al Kelleher threw Trudeau's "Pug" Keller off the bench for remarks in the bottom of the sixth.

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Ron Feagan, 23-year-old native of Goderich, Ont., registered his 72nd win of the year at Garden City Raceway thursday night as he drove Baron Atom to first place in the sixth race.

Feagan is Canada's leading driver this year. Last year he finished ninth in the final standings with 82 wins.

Baron Atom, Canada's pacer of the year four years ago, returned only $4.40 for the win. He beat Armbro Electra and High Patch.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The fourth race at the Western Fair Raceway Thursday night paid to an exacta of $185.70 when Hal Spirit finished first at $19.70 and Dr. Lea Baker second at $6.

Flyalong Early Pick

Taylor Entry Rated Plate Favorite

TORONTO (CP) — Sixty-six years ago a game little three-year-old named Buttercotch broke an eight-year winning streak by J. E. Seagram by winning the Queen's Plate.

Saturday, another three-year-old by the same name will attempt to break a three-year streak by industrialist E. P. Taylor.

The current Buttercotch, winless this year, was a surprise entry for the 106th running of the Plate. Owned by Viscount Hardings of Montreal, he drew the No. 3 post position for Saturday's gallop for the Queen's 50 guineas.

In the 1899 race, William Hendrie of Hamilton got his first win in 15 years of trying. The Buttercotch of that year, off at odds of 6 to 1, outlasted Seagram's Dalmoor.

Taylor horses have won nine of the last 16 Plates and his entry of Native Victor and Top Victory are expected to be favorites by post time.

Buttercotch, with Don Hale in the irons, will likely be the outsider this year. Oddsmaker George Duffus of the Jockey Club has established it as a 30-to-1 shot in the morning line.

All trainers but one expressed satisfaction with post positions drawn for their horses Thursday.

Jerry Meyer, trainer of Good Old Mort, which will race from the No. 1 post, is puzzled rather have his horse start from the middle of the track.

Ed Lumley of Toronto, owner of Good Old Mort, which won a Queen's Plate trial here Monday, disagreed slightly with his trainer.

"Good Old Mort will be able to save ground along the inside. He can shoot to the front and get a good position," he said.

Duffus installed Flyalong, owned by Tom Hays of Oakville and D. B. Weldon of London, Ont., as the early favorite at odds of 5 to 2.

The Taylor entry was next in Duffus' book at 3 to 1, Good Old Mort was third choice at 7 to 2 and the entry of Whistling Sea and Spotted Flyer will open at 6 to 1.

Whistling Sea, owned by the Olivier Ranches of Calgary, surprised many onlookers by winning the first division of the Plate trial Monday by sprinting to the front and staying there. Spotted Flyer, owned by Max Bell's Golden West Farm of Calgary, has won only one race this year — a $3,000 claiming race.

The other entry in the 12-horse field will couple Des Erables, owned by Mrs. Simone Thomas of Montreal, and Flyalong.

Other horses in the $50,000-added race over a mile and a quarter will be Lucky Marine, owned by Toronto's Larkin Maloney; Chief Brant, which belongs to Mrs. Verne Martin Jr. of Paris, Ont.; Super Flow, owned by Bill Beasley of Toronto, and Blue Mel, owned by Phil Boyien of Toronto.

The winner of the race will receive a total of $47,893.75. The Queen's 50 guineas will be presented to the winning owner by the Queen Mother, who is on a five-day visit to Toronto.

The disappointment of placing second in the Plate will be softened by a purse of $14,675. Third place is worth $7,337.50 and fourth $3,668.75.

Expansion Out In AH League

QUEBEC (CP) — The American Hockey League has decided against expansion in the next season, league president Jack Riley said Thursday at the conclusion of a three - day annual meeting.

Washington, D.C., and Syracuse, N.Y., had asked the league for information concerning possible admission into the AHL but league directors expressed no interest in the applications.

Riley said no interview the league also decided against changing from the current division into eastern and western circuits.

Terrell Says He's Ignored

CHICAGO (CP)—Ernie Terrell, who holds the World Boxing Association's version of the heavyweight title, berated the WBA Thursday for failing to propose his first championship defence.

Terrell, six - foot - six Chicagoan, said a press conference at which he disclosed plans for a possible bout with Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo.

Terrell, who plays guitar, has been making a living entertaining in Chicago night spots since the WBA crowned him champion after his 15-round victory over Eddie Machen here March 5.

The generally - accepted heavyweight champion, Cassius Clay, is not recognized by the WBA which stripped the Louisville Lip of the title for violating its no-return bout rule by twice meeting Sonny Liston.

SAYS 'GIVE UP'

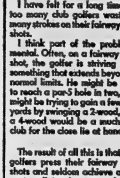
"The WBA has just about got me tied up so I can't fight anybody," said Terrell. "They recognize Floyd Patterson as my No. 1 challenger, but they do nothing about making Patterson fight me for the title."

Clay has indicated he wants former champion Patterson as his next opponent.

Terrell said L. M. McKenzie of Toronto, WBA president, ignored an invitation to attend the conference.

"All the WBA gives me is their blessing," said Terrell. "What kind of a world champion am I without anybody urged by the WBA to fight me?"

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method



by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

CONTROLLING THE FAIRWAY WOODS

I have felt for a long time that too many club golfers waste too many strokes on their fairway wood shots.

I think part of the problem is mental. Often, on a fairway wood shot, the golfer is striving to do something that extends beyond his normal limits. He might be trying to reach a par-5 hole in two, or he might be trying to gain a few more yards by swinging a 2-wood, when a 4-wood would be a much safer club for the close lie at hand.

The result of all this is that some golfers press their fairway wood shots and seldom achieve a compact, well-timed swing at the ball.

I'd rather see the average golfer take a short, well-controlled swing on fairway wood shots. Try hitting these shots with a shorter grip on the club (see illustrations) to help give you a better swing. Occasionally this might cost you a few yards of distance, but on the average I think your fairway shots will travel farther, you'll hold a lower iron, mis-hits, and your accuracy will increase.

Fun Brings Fines

Baseball Playboys Walloped In Wallet

By MIKE RATHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's a fine year for baseball—more players are getting fined every day.

The Boston and Philadelphia stay-ups and the St. Louis sleepy-heads are the latest to be added to a list that already included the whistling New York Yankees and the basketball-playing New York Mets.

The latest developments came Thursday when about a half-dozen Red Sox players were fined for missing an early-morning bedcheck and it was reported that several members of the Phillies had been hit in the pocketbook for similar curfew violations.

Also joining the club that is fast losing its exclusivity were Ken Boyer, the most valuable player in the National League last season, and Cardinal teammate Phil Gagliano—both fined for not being alert by freshman manager Red Schoendienst.

In both the Boston and Philadelphia cases the players involved were not named. However, it was indicated that the levies against the Red Sox stay-outs would run about $100 each, while the reported after-hours activities of the Phillie players would cost them about three days' pay each. For a player making in the neighborhood of $10,000 for the six-month baseball season, that would be about $133.

The Yankees started the fining binge June 8 when they revealed that three unidentified players — reporters travelling with the teams said they were outfielder Mickey Mantle and pitchers Pedro Ramos and Hal Reniff — had been fined $250 each for breaking training. That included drinking and whistling at waitresses.

Then came the revelation of the Mets' fines, with pitchers Al Jackson and Larry Bearnarth and first baseman Ed Kranepool socked $250 each for playing basketball during the winter.

Round 2 ended late Thursday when Schoendienst, whose fledgling world champion Cardinals are languishing in seventh place, said he had fined Boyer and Gagliano — "not much, just to keep them alert" —for mistakes at Milwaukee.

Boyer was hit for staying off second base when he lost count on the number of strikes on a batter and Gagliano for stopping at second base on a hit-run single.

"They made the mistakes," Schoendienst explained. "Three hours is more than generous. I started calling at 1:30 a.m., and those I didn't get. I called again at 2:30."

Baltimore, in San Francisco, there was no word from Gene Mauch, whose Phillies made a run at the National League pennant last season and currently are running in sixth place.

The latest fines — outfielder Tony Gonzalez was fined two weeks ago for lackadaisical play—were assessed in Houston earlier this week.

The Phillies' curfew, enforced only on the road, is midnight after a day game, and 1:30 a.m., following a night game.

Paul Hall pitched the victory for the Cleaners, being tagged with only two hits, striking out five and walking 10. Terry Pope was behind the plate.

Allan Neill and David Nelles handled the losers' pitching chore, and between them they gave up five hits, striking out eight besides walking 21.

Terry Pope led the Cleaners to victory with a homer and triple. Billy Cole, Paul Hall and Terry Lynch all hit singles.

For the Jaycees, Randy O'Neil and Kirby stroked singles.

NHL Brass To Study Entries

NEW YORK (CP) — The National Hockey League's board of governors is holding a special meeting called to process applications from 12 groups seeking league franchises.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said Thursday night that a statement will be issued at the end of the meeting today.

The league announced its intention to expand following a meeting of the team owners in New York two months ago.

It is believed that at least two among those to be chosen for the new six-club division will be revealed.

Among the cities most prominently mentioned in an expanded NHL are Vancouver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, St. Louis, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Minneapolis.

Sprints Highlight Opening Day Card

By W. R. WHEATLEY

ST. LAMBERT, Que. (CP)—The 100-yard dash and the 440-yard run, with competition in both the men's and women's divisions, offer two of the highlights for today's section of the two-day national track and field championships.

The distance men come in for their share of attention in the six - mile run and the 3,000-metre steeplechase. Two hurdle events are scheduled, the 80 metres for women and the 120-yard high hurdles for men.

On the infield, the men will bid for titles in the broad jump, high jump, shot put and hammer throw. The women will decide the javelin and discus-throw championships, and Nancy McCredie of Toronto's Don Mills is a standout favorite for both.

Heats for the mile run, which has attracted 27 spirits, will weed out the field. The final is the last scheduled event Saturday.

More than 300 athletes, including the Oxford - Cambridge team, have entered the two-day show, held under auspices of the St. Lambert branch of the Royal Canadian Legion. The setting is the gale and span Seaway Park across the St. Lawrence River from Montreal.

The 28 - member Oxford-Cambridge team, which fared poorly against Harvard and Yale earlier this week, has contrants in all of today's events for men except the hammer throw.

The 100-yard sprint for men has a whopping field of 34 and there will be swift eliminations in the opening five heats, with three to qualify for semi-finals from each heat.

CANUCK WIN POSSIBLE

Despite a three - man United Kingdom entry, any one of half a dozen Canadians may grab the title. Terry Tomlinson of Winnipeg has done 9.7 seconds, and other highly rated speedsters includes Kelly Mancarl and Dave Austen, a former St. Lambert boy, of the London, Ont., Lions Club, and Frank Baines and Ed Hearne of Toronto's East York club.

The U.K. entrants are Jeffrey Archer, John Smith and Graham Plowt. Both Archer and Smith have done 9.8.

Jenny Wingerson of Toronto is top-rated for the women's 100, with Judy Dallimore of Ottawa Uplands next choice.

The men's 440 may go to Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., second in the 800-metre run in the 1964 Olympics, in a likely tussle with Wendell Mottley of Cambridge. Mottley won the 440 and 220 for his team's only victories against Harvard and Yale at Cambridge, Mass.

ABBY LOOKS GOOD

Abby Hoffman of Toronto Olympic looks to be the standout in the women's 440, with Sandy Opbol of Winnipeg and Karen Emery of British Columbia supplying the toughest opposition.

Jenny Wingerson is favored for the women's 80 - metre hurdles, with Cathy Chapman and Marg Chatland of Toronto Don Mills as likeliest threats.

The U.K. is expected to supply the winner with Geoff Hay in the men's 120 - yard hurdles. Canada's best appear to be Ken Pedlar of Edmonton and Brian Donnelly of Oakville.

Hebert Mayer Top Tied

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Lionel Hebert and Dick Mayer, a pair of oldsters as professional golfers go, hope the aches and pains of age stay away long enough for them to repulse the assault of younger challengers in the $160,000 St. Paul Open.

Hebert and Mayer went into today's second round tied for the lead after shooting 64s in Thursday's opening round over the par 36-35—71, 6,700 - yard Keller Golf Course in a par-busting day when 44 broke or tied par.

One - stroke back were 22-year-old rookie Tom Weiskopf, Joe Campbell, who is 29, and Tommy Jacobs, who is 30.

Resting comfortably at 66 and giving every indication he is ready to charge after failing to make the cutoff in last week's U.S. Open was Arnold Palmer.

George Knudson of Toronto had a 71.

DONATES WINNINGS

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto has donated $7,000 — her winnings from a golf tournament in Oslo, Norway, last week—to the Ontario branch of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union to be used for the development of junior women golfers. Because she is an amateur, Mrs. Streit can not keep the money earned when she defeated U.S. professional Marilyn Smith in a television match.

Canadian Horse Favorite

LONDON (CP) — As far as trainer Paddy Prendergast is concerned, Canadian - owned Meadow Court has "never been in better condition" than he is for the £50,000-added ($180,000) Irish Sweeps Derby at Dublin's Curragh Race Track Saturday.

Prendergast said in a telephone interview from his home near The Curragh that 4-year-old chestnut Irish bred, owned by Calgary publisher Max Bell, has trained well and seems to have improved since running second to the flying French colt Sea Bird II at the Epsom Derby June 2.

But clothing manufacturer Jean Ternynck of France has decided not to enter Sea Bird II in the Irish classic and punters have made Meadow Court odds-on favorite at 11-10-10 on the basis of his three seconds this year.

"It wouldn't have mattered how we ran Meadow Court at Epsom, we still wouldn't have come close to that French colt," Prendergast explained.

THEY ALL THREATEN

"Even in this race everything is competition and I wouldn't discount any of the entries."

Twenty-two colts have been declared for the 1½ mile run for three-year-olds which forms the basis for the Irish Sweepstakes and means £50,000 prizes for dozens of persons around the world, including Canadians, who draw tickets on the winning horse.

Lester Piggott, 30 - year - old British champion jockey in 1964 who rode Meadow Court at Epsom, has again been engaged by Prendergast to ride the Bell entry. All the colts carry 126 pounds.

The derby is scheduled to be the first European horse race televised in North America via Early Bird satellite.

Dislikes Raid Tactics

KENOSEE LAKE, Sask. (CP) — The Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League Wednesday decided it may have to file a strong complaint to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association about the CAHA's "questionable" raiding tactics.

Delegates to the SJHL annual meeting were told two of the league's top players, both with another year of junior eligibility, have been approached by a CAHA representative with offers to join Canada's national team next season.

The players involved are Fran Huck, Regina Pat centre, the league's most valuable player last season and the 1963-64 scoring champion, and Morris Mott, sophomore centre with Weyburn Red Wings. Both are university students.

Frank Boucher of Regina, SJHL commissioner, said "we will file a strong complaint with the CAHA for the somewhat questionable tactics under which both boys have been approached by an official of the governing body."

He said under their own regulations, teams are forbidden to approach players who are under any obligation to a team, "and yet they (CAHA) themselves apparently disregard the regulation."

QUEBEC (CP) — Lionel Fleury, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Thursday night it is "extremely normal" that his organization should attempt to obtain Fran Huck and Morris Mott to reinforce the Canadian national team.

Fleury said he could not blame players who want to be members of the national team while pursuing their studies.

"They can't be blamed for wanting to wear the colors of their country," he said, pointing out that Huck finished the last season among the league scoring leaders. Fleury said the national team was the perfect place for such an athlete.

Fleury said no regulations had been broken in the case of Huck and Mott. Both have another year of junior eligibility.

$67,296 Paid To Amateurs

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP) — Teams which competed in the Canadian junior and senior hockey playoffs received a total of $67,296 from the series surpluses, Gordon Juckes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Thursday.

Largest single share went to Edmonton Oil Kings, who lost the Junior Memorial Cup final to Niagara Falls Flyers. Edmonton received $19,333 as its share of series against Regina Pats, Winnipeg Braves, and the Flyers.

The Flyers received $11,985, Regina $8,027, Winnipeg $5,554, Lachine Maroons $3,038, Port Arthur North Stars $1,185 and New Westminster Royals $1,342.

Packes said the CAHA lost $5,879 on an eastern round-robin series involving Lachine, Sault Ste. Marie Bears and Sydney Bombers.

Memorial Cup games grossed $183,800 and $40,500 went in payments for transportation, hotels and meals, $50,376 in distributed surpluses and $11,700 to the CAHA.

Senior teams which competed in the Allan Cup playoffs divided $16,321 in surpluses from a gross gate of $91,700.

Nelson Maple Leafs and Sherbrooke Beavers, the series finalists, got $5,067 and $4,119 respectively. Expense allowances paid to Allan Cup contenders totalled $60,300 and the CAHA received $7,750.

'Ben Casey' Is Considering Leaving TV for Movies

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This could be the last year for television's Vince Edwards who, as of now, wants to concentrate on a movie career.

"My five-year contract is up after the coming season," says Dr. Ben Casey. "As of now, I don't think I'll renew. I think I'd like to take a crack at the movies."

Edwards has some commitments with Columbia and was recently offered a big role in The Chase, with Marlon Brando and Peter O'Toole.

"It's a five-month shooting schedule," says Vince. "With a television series, I haven't even time to take a girl out to dinner, let alone work five months on a movie."

Edwards was in 24 movies before Casey.

"I spent most of my time at the Hollywood unemployment office, but I managed to keep busy starving. Then came Casey."

HAS GAINED WEALTH

Since becoming TV's most famed neurosurgeon, Vince has become a swinging man, his dressing room office at Desilu studios is like that of a studio tycoon.

"The one thing success has brought me is a lot of pressures that I never had before, but I'm not squawking. It's nice to have pressures in such luxurious surroundings."

The handsome bachelor has been linked romantically with a number of girls, but so far he is not altar-inclined.

"Shooting a television series is the world's greatest deterrent to romance," says Vince. "In the old days, I could dedicate an afternoon to romance—now I'm studying scripts—or looking at sterile hospital walls."

Edwards worked one movie into his TV schedule, The Victors.

"I liked what I did in the movie but the movie itself was the downbeat. That's why I didn't do business."

Edwards, young and virile, is a movie natural. He doesn't feel that free TV exposure hurts the paying movie audience star appeal.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Aided by Elke Sommer, Bob Hope discovers life is a risk. Ingenuity can make a wicked bottle serve as a baby's bottle in one of the hilarious scenes in the Michelle-Seven Arts presentation, "A Global Affair." The comedy revolves about Hope's predicament when he is made the foster-father of an infant abandoned on the grounds of the United Nations Building, whereupon a number of international beauties vie for the role of the baby's mother. Co-starring in the fun packed feature-comedy tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. Also on the same program "The Price", a brand new look in suspense stars Paul Newman, Elke Sommer and Edward G. Robinson.

George Jessel Plays Himself In Life Movie

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Producers Hal Bischoff and David Diamond are going to bring George Jessel's life to the screen.

Jessel has more than a half-century of showbusiness history behind him.

This is the casting the producers would like: Dean Martin as New York Mayor Jimmy Walker; Frank Sinatra as George M. Cohan and Betty Grable as Lillian Russell.

And Bob Hope, Jack Benny, George Burns, Jimmy Durante and Milton Berle will play themselves. And, for the most part, so will Jessel.

Unusual Program Aimed At a Minority Audience

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — An unusual program aimed at a minority audience will occupy 90 minutes of CBS-TV's expensive prime television time Monday night.

The show (9:30-11 p.m. EDT) will present the latest in beat music by more than 20 top singing acts beloved by the younger crowd. Between numbers, there will be non - commercial commercials — in a language older viewers may find puzzling.

The show is It's What Happening, Baby!, a public service "swingin' soiree" on behalf of the U.S. government's office of economic opportunity. The special audience is youngsters between 16 and 21 who are thinking about quitting — or already have quit — high school before graduating.

The host is a 38-year-old disc jockey named Murray Kaufman...called "Murray the K" by his young fans. Murray was a high school dropout, has an enormous ego, a fast following and speaks (and invented) a lot of slangy, hip talk.

CAN REACH THEM

"The government looked around and found that I was able to reach them," Murray said during a rehearsal break. "When they first came to me with an idea, I thought they were trying to intellectualize the problem and said that I could perhaps present the idea another way. The special is my idea.

"As a dropout myself, I've been there and I know what those kids on the streets of New York or in the hills of West Virginia or any place else thinking about. I couldn't care less about the nice little girls from Scarsdale or Shaker Heights—it's boys mostly. And the rapport will be mostly that it's what's happening."

"I'm going to tell them that there's a way that they can make some money and be what's happening. . . ."

"Be what's happening — that just means be somebody," Murray said. "I'm no messiah but I'll be telling those kids that there are five or six different government programs where they can earn and learn. I don't even care if we reach the kids—if we can hit their friends, they'll go back and they'll sell them the message."

Canada Outdoors

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The trapper finished off the injured animal with his rifle. He got 65 for the pelt. But now there were no wolverines left in that great area.

This episode story illustrates a that man's sense of responsibility has not grown in proportion to the intelligence that gives him dominance in the forest.

So I told Scott Gordon (Condor in Wild Captives (MacMillan) by Donald G. Dodds, an expert on wildlife management and conservation, who has studied the processes of waste and extinction in the Atlantic provinces.

Dodds sat under a kerosene lamp at the Newfoundland woods in 1953 and relaxed by writing these life-cycle dramas of the lynx, the beaver, the moose, the caribou, the bear and other animals. During his work day he carried out an intensive provincial biological research project.

This is no dry recitation of conservation ideals and statistics. Each story is beautifully told with an authentic ring and includes the stir and color of the forest and certainly an unsettling shock as a climax.

Dodds is associate professor of wildlife biology at Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S., and previously served as assistant director of wildlife conservation in Nova Scotia.

The skilful full-face animal illustrations are the work of Ronald T. Andrews of the Buffalo Musuum of Science.

As the author says: "These are the animals' own lives in the wild. Man's influence on the individual animal, the environment and the species is shown in the strong factor in the destiny of animal 'populations.'"

He puts his finger on man's irresponsibility in many of the exciting adventures. Predators have a fear and hatred of man's motor—man. If the book has a message, it is the violence that surrounds the lives of wild-life with the greatest violence coming to them from man either directly or through his unthinking disturbance of wild-life ecology.

There is the story of the killing off of a caribou herd, with off - season shots the order rather than the exception. The hunter tells a familiar Canadian story: "Of course, they got caught, but it was only an accident that the warden happened along and they set off from Ferry."

It was the white man who changed the lanscape. The Indians lived from the soil, the water and the forests and left them with few scars. The white man burned, cut, plowed, grazed, damned, fished, hunted, trapped, poisoned and built.

And so the wolverine was among the animals that became extinct in an area where it had been plentiful.

Douglas Fisher Under Attack By Newsman

TORONTO (CP)—I. H. Macdonald, deputy chairman of Thomson Newspapers, said Liberal backbencher Douglas Fisher, New Democratic Party member of the Commons for Port Arthur, "completely misrepresents the facts" in attacking the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association.

Mr. Fisher said in a Commons speech that the association is designed in the main to protect financial interests and it and its member publishers "have not been fanatically concerned with the freedom of the press, with the odd exception." He described the association, which has protested the government's controversial magazine-and newspaper-tax legislation, as a "down - to - earth lobby organization."

Mr. Macdonald, general manager of CDNPA 1941-1961 said in an interview that in several approaches to the federal government over the years the CDNPA has "never found a government action which tended to make it more difficult to publish was a restriction on freedom of the press, and in fact the only time the association was the right to publish without government interference."

"These submissions Dr. Ostawa were never in the nature of self-pleading on behalf of the publishers, contrary to the implications of Mr. Fisher's remarks," he added.

Mr. Macdonald said that, besides unsuccessfully seeking statutory guarantees for freedom of the press in Canada, the publishers' association has taken up the cudgels on behalf of a free press in other countries.

In 1946, it had protested against the export of Canadian newsprint to countries where it was being used for propaganda - minded newspapers. In later years it opposed government withdrawal of advertising because of resentment of political criticism in India and Pakistan, and it opposed legislation in Ireland and New South Wales advising what publications were undesirable for the public to read.

Towing Firm Described as 'Vulture-like'

TORONTO (CP) — A towing firm that removes parked cars, usually at the request of Metropolitan Toronto police, was described in magistrate's court Thursday as "parasitic" and a "vulture-like."

Magistrate Joseph Addison made the reference when he convicted David Howson, 33, of Ace Towing Co., of car theft and suspended the sentence.

Magistrate Addison said Howson had the right to tow a car owned by Bruce Marshall of Toronto, from a parking lot, but had no legal rights to withhold the vehicle from the owner.

PREPARE FOR HOME — German prisoners of war at Farnham, Que., talk over plans for repatriation to the homeland following the end of the Second World War. Jack Brayley of The Canadian Press, who covered both the arrival and departure of the prisoners, says they arrived in arrogance but left without spirit discouraged by what awaited them at home. (CP Photo from National Defence)

RECREATION PERIOD — Favorite indoor game of German prisoners of war in Canada was chess. Most internment camps had a large concentration room. Prisoners were not required to work unless they wished to earn the 20 cents a day allowed for those doing productive labor, most often in garden patches. (CP Photo)

Recalls Years of Nazi Stay In Canadian Prisoner Camps

Jack Brayley, now Canadian Press bureau chief at Halifax, covered the arrival of the first German prisoners of war at Montreal July 1, 1940, and the departure of the last remaining ones in 1946. In this story he recalls these events and some of the lively history of their stay in Canada.

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Many came swaggering. They left as beaten men, returning to a beaten country. Today, 25 years later, most are enjoying the prosperity of their German homeland. Some are back in Canada fitting comfortably into a world which has forgiven and almost forgotten.

For events have turned almost full cycle since that hot July 1, 1940, on the Montreal waterfront when the first Nazi supermen, looking more like conquerors than prisoners of war, arrived from Britain for the long internment. The war record at the time was certainly in their favor. One of the few prizes of the sagging Allies was this first bag of prisoners, mostly Luftwaffe flyers shot down over Britain.

There was the blonde officer who clattered down the gangway, the cleats of his jackboots ringing on the iron treads. Behind him followed a file of fellow airmen in field grey, surly and scowling.

When I stepped from behind a security barricade to ask a question, the officer spat in contempt.

The British Tommies guarding them said they had boasted the war would be over in another six weeks.

They were no longer arrogant on their departure from Halifax 6½ years later. Without spirit, they faced a bleak future in a fatherland battered by war.

WANTED TO STAY

It was no trouble getting them to talk this time. A corporal said: "It is no good to leave this country. We could be happy here and make money if we stayed. There is nothing left for us in Germany—no job, no food, no nothing. I do not want to go back there."

In the years between their coming and going, it had been a unique experience for this country — thousands of men from the battlefronts and under tight restraint; escapes; man-hunts; riots; killings; hair-raising adventure, most of it kept from the public by censorship.

By the end of the war, there were 31,385 German prisoners in Canadian camps, including four of Hitler's generals. They were housed in 15 camps in New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario and Alberta.

There were 600 escapes, but generally the prisoners were quickly rounded up. Some were killed resisting capture; the number was never announced. By the time the last prisoner contingent sailed on Dec. 24, 1946, 22 were missing. Of these, 10 had broken out after the German surrender, preferring to take their chances as fugitives in Canada rather than be repatriated.

STILL MISSING

A few probably have meshed into Canadian life. In 1949 a dozen were still listed as missing. But the authorities haven't been actively looking for them in years.

The adventures of some of the escapers rivalled fiction. Baron Franz von Werra, a Luftwaffe officer, got out and fled to the United States in 1940, before the U.S. was at war. Freed on bail, he made his way to Peru and then back to Germany. He was killed in 1941 while leading his pursuit squadron in action.

Lieut. Willy Manhardt, another flyer, was the kingpin of those missing at the war's end. Shot down in the Battle of Britain, he escaped twice in 1941 but was caught each time. In 1944 at the Gravenhurst, Ont., camp, he powdered his black hair to pose as an older guard and cut his way through barbed wire. Authorities later learned he hitch-hiked to Montreal, visited a couple of prisoner-of-war work projects in disguise—picking up some Canadian and U.S. money and forged identification papers at one—and headed for the U.S. He was last reported in Argentina.

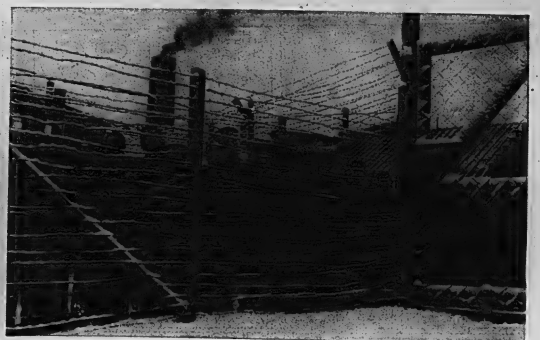
Undoubtedly the authorities' pet prisoner was Lieut. Werner Janowski, who was landed near New Carlisle, Que., by submarine in 1942 and quickly roped in. He was put to work in counter-espionage, sending false reports back to Germany. Then he was handed over to the British intelligence service near the end of the war to help identify captured top Nazis.

LIVED IT UP

Another tame prisoner was a man revealed only under his pseudonym of Alfred Haskins. He, too, was landed by submarine—on May 13, 1942, near Saint John, N.B.—but immediately buried his radio transmitter and took off for the good life with the $7,000 with which his spy chiefs had outfitted him. He lived it up in Ottawa and Montreal—once almost getting trapped in a brothel raid in Montreal—until his money ran out and he gave himself up to unsuspecting officials late in 1944.

He apparently had done no spying and the RCMP found him a good source of information after he checked in. He went to an internment camp and later was sent home to his wife.

But beneath the amicable incidents were undercurrents of violence. In the Thanksgiving weekend of 1942, there was a bloody encounter between hundreds of German prisoners and members of the Veterans Guard in the prison camp at Bowmanville, Ont. It was touched off by plans to manacle prisoners in reprisal for such action against Canadians captured in the raid on Dieppe.



The prisoner contingent consisted of 1,267 German officers. When the manacling order came, they slugged and wounded one Canadian officer and seized another, holding him hostage as they barricaded themselves in four buildings. Eight hours later 300 soldiers smashed into the buildings, using axehandles and blackjacks to subdue the prisoners. Fifteen Germans and three Canadians were injured.

SEIZED OFFICER

In July of the same year at the Ozala camp in Alberta, almost 15,000 former Afrika Korps men refused to parade because authorities wouldn't let some of them wear badges indicating higher ranks they claimed they were entitled to by promotion since capture. Next day, they captured a lieutenant - colonel and three other Canadian officers on an inspection tour, but guards quickly freed the captives.

There were a few murders among the prisoners. In 1945, four German prisoners were hanged together at Lethbridge for killing a fellow-prisoner in the Medicine Hat camp in 1944. Three men were executed with executing another—said to be an anti-Nazi—by hanging in the same camp in 1945. Two were convicted. One had his sentence commuted, and the other was hanged in 1945.

In the end, many were reluctant to see the prisoners go home. In the period of civilian manpower shortage after the war before Canada's troops were fully repatriated, about 22,000 were put to work, most in the lumber camps and others at seasonal crop harvesting such as in the Ontario tobacco fields. Employers paid the going rate, with the prisoners getting 50 cents a day and the rest going to the federal government. The government got back some $3,000,000 in repayment for the assorted headaches of a half-dozen years of custodianship.

PUT TO WORK — A total of 34,354 German, Italian and Japanese prisoners were in Canadian camps at the end of the Second World War. Among them was this group at Sherbrooke, Que. To fill the manpower gap between the end of the war and repatriation of Canadian troops, about 23,000 prisoners were put to work in the bush and fields. (CP Photo from National Defence)

House Heading For Vote

By WILLIAM MEVELLE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons is headed for a showdown vote on the Liberal government's controversial tax proposals affecting newspapers and magazines.

After two earlier bids proved unsuccessful, the New Democrats finally got the issue before the Commons Friday and thus set the stage for what appears at first glance to be a crucial roll-call vote of MPs.

The vote, expected Monday, could pit all four opposition parties against the minority government for one of the few times in the current Parliament.

If so, attendance on both sides of the Commons will decide whether 128 Liberals — Speaker Alan Macnaughton does not vote except to break ties—can withstand the combined opposition of 93 Conservatives, 18 New Democrats, 15 Creditistes, nine Social Credit members. There also are two independents and one seat is vacant.

The issue at stake is a double - barrelled government proposal to aid Canadian magazines against foreign competition and to prevent Canada's daily newspapers from falling under foreign ownership. The proposed method is the same in both cases — to disallow advertising in any publication with more than 25-per-cent foreign ownership as a deductible expense for income tax purposes.

The NDP amendment, moved by rules expert Stanley Knowles, is primarily a procedural one and, as such, does not appear in itself to involve

Information On Assays Leaked Out

TORONTO (CP)—A Kirkland Lake mining engineer testified Friday that assay results from Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. had leaked out three days before the results were made public.

Frank Hughes told the reconvened Windfall royal commission that the results, which showed no commercial ore values, had been given to E. J. Smith, a Kirkland Lake businessman, and Ralph Taylor, a stock salesman with Doherty, Roadhouse and McCuaig Brothers.

The results were given to Mr. Smith by an employee of Swastika Laboratories, Mr. Hughes testified.

He said he knew this because Mr. Smith had told him. He also said Mr. Smith admitted paying the assay office employee for the information.

Mr. Hughes said he did not know the identity of the assay office employee, but that he (Mr. Hughes) had been told the man was "young, married and had two children."

He said Mr. Smith sold all his Windfall shares July 27 and took a "short position" when he learned ore had been found.

Mr. Hughes said that from the time Mr. Smith sold Windfall short he became "a big operator in the stock market instead of a small operator."

He also testified that Mr. Smith had received assay results of at least one drilling company from his Swastika informant.

Mr. Justice Kelly said Mr. Smith will be questioned by a royal commission investigator.

Queen Mother Presents Colors To Her Regiment

By ROD CURRIE

TORONTO (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth goes back to the racehorses again today but this time she sees more action —the 106th running of the Queen's Plate Stakes, Canada's premier racing event.

This will be the third time Her Majesty, herself an owner with an enviable win record, has witnessed the classic for Canadian - bred three-year-olds. She saw it in 1939 during a Canadian tour with the late King George VI, and again in 1962.

Friday brought a mixed bag of entanglements, including a tour of the National Stud Farm near Oshawa where she saw some of Canada's most renowned horses on parade. In the evening, there was a majestic and touching ceremony in which she presented new colors to the Toronto Scottish Regiment.

The day also brought the two largest and most enthusiastic welcomes the Queen Mother has received since arriving by air Wednesday afternoon for a five-day visit suggested by the retirement, of which she is colonel in-chief.

CROWDS SLOW CARS

At Oshawa, nevertheless large crowds slowed her motorcade to about eight miles an hour and obviously caught tour officials off guard. Because the roof of her pale blue convertible was up, many spectators, including children from five schools along the route, found it difficult to see her.

"Her Majesty was very much upset that people could not see her very well," said Lady Jean Rankin, lady-in-waiting, when the party arrived at the farm.

To set things right, the Queen Mother sent word back to the city that her schedule would be rearranged to permit a slow return journey—with the car top down.

This kept her 40 minutes late for a luncheon at the home in Port Hope of Vincent Massey, a former Governor-General and longtime friend of the Royal Family.

For the farm tour and luncheon the Queen Mother wore a dress and coat of print silk in coffee brown and yellow on white and a white hat.

In the evening she arrived t Varsity Stadium, to a standing ovation by the capacity crowd of about 20,000, wearing a dusty pink dress and coat with pink tulle hat and carrying a cream-colored mink stole.

There she was welcomed by publisher Lord Thomson of Fleet, honorary colonel of the regiment, and the two sat together on the reviewing stand to witness the spectacular display of precision drill as the men moved back and forth across the carpet-like turf.

A note of nostalgia crept into the ceremony from time to time, particularly when the old colors were paraded off to the playing of Auld Lang Syne, and when the Queen Mother re-

Rain-making 'Gamble' To Go Ahead

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister William Stewart of Ontario said Friday the province will go ahead with its rain-making plans despite attempts to pour cold water on them by experts and the federal agriculture minister.

"It's a gamble," Mr. Stewart said. "I've said that from the beginning. But a situation like this is worth a gamble.

Parts of Ontario, especially eastern areas and the Ottawa Valley, are suffering drought conditions.

Mr. Stewart said studies show there is a possibility that a United States firm hired by the province will produce rain for a cost of about $100,000 to taxpayers.

Harry Hays, federal minister of agriculture, said Thursday he doubted Ontario's plan would work.

More Separatist Agitation Expected on Dominion Day

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Most of Canada will celebrate Dominion Day, July 1, with band concerts and 21 gun salutes but Montreal is bracing for more separatist agitation.

Dominion Day, which celebrates the 98th anniversary of Confederation next Thursday, is the spark that has fired the ire of the separatists.

No definite plans by any of the Montreal separatist groups have been announced but they are expected to be out in full force.

Pierre Bourgault, president of Le Rassemblement pour l'Independence Nationale, said: "From now on we will be announcing our demonstrations only at the last minute."

St. Jean Baptiste Day—June 24—went by unusually smoothly — there were demonstrations in Montreal, but rallies were passed around urging Quebecers to celebrate the day peacefully but show their displeasure on Dominion Day.

In Quebec City, the RIN chapter has received police permission for a public meeting Wednesday night.

A 30-minute meeting at the foot of Champlain's statue in the heart of the city is planned.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council said Friday 15 persons may be killed and 450 injured on the one-day holiday.

Plane, train and bus agencies already reported brisk business.

Many holidayers will start their yearly vacation Thursday and many will be travelling just for Dominion Day.

Carrefour, Ont., is having a Sport Shirt Day. Anyone caught not wearing a sport shirt will be fined.

In Brantford, the day is the deadline for a bartenders strike and Toronto will see the opening of an Alcoholics Anonymous convention. But licensed establishments elsewhere are expected to do booming business.

Parliament Hill will be the scene of the usual Dominion Day ceremonies, a 21-gun salute, a carillon concert, a massed military band concert and a folk song and dance recital by ethnic groups.

Judge Denies Appeal

TORONTO (CP)—An appeal by former United Church minister Russell Horsburgh against conviction on five charges of aiding and abetting juvenile delinquency was denied Friday in Supreme Court.

The appeal was heard by Mr. Justice Eric Moorhouse.

Horsburgh was sentenced to a year in jail Nov. 16, 1964, after a two-month trial in Chatham.

Interviewed in Chatham before decision was handed down, he said:

"If my appeal is denied, I plan to take my case to a higher court."

Justice Moorhouse took 15 minutes to read his judgment and said the appeal centred around "the validity of testimony offered by teen-aged witnesses."

"I have examined court cases and I cannot find a ruling which states children over seven years of age cannot understand a court oath."

HAS THREE GROUNDS

Horsburgh's lawyer, Charles Dubin of Toronto, had based the appeal on three main arguments. He contended that teenagers did not understand court oaths and that teen-age testimony could not be accepted without corroboration. He questioned the credibility of the 14 teen-agers who gave evidence at the trial.

"The appellant has a heavy obligation to convince this court that the witnesses' testimony was not credible," Justice Moorhouse said. "And I feel Judge W. H. Fox, who presided at the trial, satisfied himself in judging the credibility of testi-

Viet Nam Truce Said Necessary Prelude To Talks

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP) —The Commonwealth prime ministers ended their 14th conference Friday with an appeal for a ceasefire in Viet Nam as a necessary prelude to peace talks aimed at uniting the divided land.

The 21-country conference issued the appeal in the form of instructions to a four-country Viet Nam peace mission set up at the outset of the nine-day meeting.

The Commonwealth leaders called for an end of all U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam and an undertaking by the Hanoi government "to prevent the movement of any military forces or assistance or material to South Viet Nam."

British Prime Minister Wilson told a press conference the mission will set out on its mission for peace as soon as it is able to visit enough interested capitals to make its endeavor meaningful.

The key question, Wilson said, is whether the North Vietnamese government agrees to talk to the mission. He personally did not believe the mission should go to Saigon if it is unable to go to Hanoi.

FORMS SECRETARIAT

As its major immediate accomplishment, the conference established a central secretariat. This idea of co-ordinated action once was strenuously resisted, notably by Canada's late prime minister Mackenzie King in fear that a more formally organized Commonwealth would become a new version of the British Empire. But it was the newly - independent members who gave strongest support to the new central liaison body.

As the conference ended, Canadian Prime Minister Pearson said "the Commonwealth is expressing views on world matters that never would have been considered as subjects for discussion a few years ago."

The hottest argument was provoked by the Rhodesian issue, on which Wilson won time against African pressure to smash the minority white regime and establish a government under majority Negro rule.

This time, however, the British government agreed to take some action to call a constitutional conference to give the Negroes their share. If this cannot be achieved, through negotiations with the whites, a year ago, the British government merely noted that the Africans wanted a constitutional conference but gave no indication it would bow to such demands.

Rhodesia has a white population of 220,000 and a Negro population of 3,500,000.

The Rhodesian issue proved to be the most emotional subject by the leaders. Informants said at one stage Friday the conference was threatened by edge of a dangerous split.

But in the end, the leaders reached a compromise that appeared acceptable to most of them. British agreement to seek "reasonable speed" in reaching a final settlement. Outside the conference, some Africans described this decision as an African "sell-out" to Britain.

Rhodesian Negroes Bitter Over Conference 'Sellout'

LONDON (CP)—The outcome of the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference, producing no definite deadline from Britain to hasten Negro rule in Rhodesia is bitterly denounced by Rhodesian Negroes in London as a "sellout" and "betrayal" of their people.

The prospect of imminent violence, voiced by President Kenneth Kaunda of neighboring Zambia, (formerly Northern Rhodesia), moved close as spokesmen for Rhodesia's two banned nationalist parties made it clear they had lost all faith in British sincerity and now must act on their own.

Prime Minister Wilson is reported in the conference communique as saying that if negotiations with the minority white regime of Rhodesia to establish majority rule are not concluded with reasonable speed, Britain then will consider promoting a constitutional conference to give the Rhodesian Negroes the vote and "ensure Rhodesia's progress to independence" on a basis acceptable to the people as a whole.

But Wilson accepted no dead-line on when this would be done, though African prime ministers had asked him to establish a constitutional conference in three months.

Representatives of the rival parties Zanu and Zapu in separate interviews rated their followers will give Wilson no more time to work out a solution with Rhodesia's white-supremacist leader, Ian Smith. They said violence is coming in the white-ruled colony.

Nelson T. Samkange, London representative of Zapu, led by imprisoned Joshua Nkomo, said: "We are not Communists, but we will accept help from Communists in our fight for freedom."

Samkange described the final communique to Rhodesia as a "complete sellout."

Both he and M. K. Hamadziripi, deputy secretary of the rival Zanu, described by many African experts as attracting more moderate, intellectual Negroes, bitterly condemned what they regarded as the cynical betrayal of Wilson in collusion with the Commonwealth.

LBJ Calls on UN to Aid Bring Peace to Viet Nam

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) President Johnson marked the 20th birthday of the United Nations Friday by calling on the UN to help promote peace in Viet Nam and establish an "alliance for man" to fight poverty, the arms race and the population explosion around the globe.

Johnson, addressing a special UN convocation in the city where the organization's charter was signed in June, 1945, said "clear and present dangers in Southeast Asia cast their shadow across the path of all mankind."

Declaring "the United Nations must be concerned," he said:

"I call upon this gathering of the nations of the world to use their influence, individually and collectively, to bring to the tables those who seem determined to make war. We will support your efforts as we will support effective action by any agent or agency of these United Nations."

Aides said this did not represent a formal presentation of the Viet Nam case to the UN but rather was a suggestion that any effective peace-seeking initiative by the world or any initiative by the world organ was support.

Johnson said the processes of peaceful settlement in Viet Nam "are blocked by willful aggressors contemptuous of the opinion and the will of mankind." He asserted:

"We must redouble our bold and effective action any who place their ambitions or their dogma or their prestige above the peace of the world. We must find a way to do that. It is the most profound and urgent imperative of our time."

In calling for effective UN peacekeeping machinery, he said:

"Where the united nations requires readily available peace forces it must have them—and weeks or months—let all pledge to provide those forces. And my country is ready."

mony. . . . The trial judge knew he was dealing with those of loose character on one hand, and an ordained minister on the other."

Justice Moorhouse also commented on appeal arguments which said the witnesses were much of the evidence against defendants and their testimony as to character.

Horsburgh was given by youths who were "delinquents or of loose or of questionable character."

"I am satisfied Judge Fox treated the witnesses as competent. We do not form opinions as to capability and Judge Fox was not wrong in believing statements as to character. Corroboration was not necessary and I believe all evidence was carefully considered."

Justice Moorhouse described evidence given by teen-agers on sex acts as a "state of mind" and said "declarations must be accepted as evidence."

DESCRIBES TRIAL

He closed by calling the trial a "succession of incidents" and said "the testimony of teenaged witnesses must be accepted as a part of these incidents."

Horsburgh's sister, Mrs. Mary Peddle of Oshawa, said after the decision:

"I am going to talk to the decision over with Russell (Horsburgh) and we are going to try another appeal."

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong forces overran a district town and a battalion command post separate attacks today, it was their first major offensive in South Viet Nam since the battle of Dong Xoai six weeks ago.

Military spokesmen said 44 government infantrymen were killed and 40 wounded at the command post near Duc Hoa, 30 miles west of Saigon. Viet Cong dead were given as 34.

The Viet Cong overran Tan Maroog, 45 miles north of Kontum, near the Laotian border. Spokesmen said radio contact was lost with the town's 200 defenders.

Five U.S. marines were drowned today when the M-48 tank in which they were riding plunged into a 12-foot hole in a stream, a U.S. marine spokesman announced. Three other marines in the tank escaped, he said.

An explosion ripped through a crowded truckload of Australian and American soldiers today, killing one American and two Australians and wounding 16 other Australians, a military spokesman reported.

He said the explosion, at Bien Hoa air base, was believed to have been accidental, possibly fired by a mine.

The new fighting and mishaps came a day after terrorists blasted a floating restaurant in Saigon and after the Viet Cong had established an underground government.

Latest casualty figures from the restaurant blast were 42 killed and about 80 wounded, U.S. officials said. The dead included 12 Americans they said.

Among the Americans was U.S. Army Sgt. Harold George Bennett. His killing was in retaliation for executions of Viet Cong terrorists by the Saigon government.

Chrysler Dealer Moves To 'Motor Row'

Belleville's "motor row" along North Front Street will have another sales and service establishment after this week-end.

It will be Kennedy Chrysler-Plymouth which today (Saturday) is making the big move from the present cramped downtown site to its brand new location.

Company president Hugh J. Kennedy, who took over the J. B. Boyce and Sons auto agency just a year ago, says it will be business as usual on Monday but from the North Front Street site, now in the last stages of completion.

The new sales and service building, finished in glazed white brick, features an airy two-storeys-high showroom and a service garage with six double-end bays, with work space for an even dozen mechanics.

Also there will be a gasoline service station with wash and lubrication departments and a separate body shop.

The used car department is on an adjoining paved lot directly to the north of the main garage.

One feature of the new Kennedy Chrysler-Plymouth garage will be a new "While-U-Wait" department where speedy muffler, shock absorber, and other installations will be offered.

"A completely integrated service, sales, mechanical repairs, body work, washing, installations and gas service will be offered," Mr. Kennedy said.

Students of Theatre School Delight in Varied Program

TRENTON — Students of the Eastern Ontario Theatre School performed for a near capacity audience at the auditorium at the high-school auditorium at Trenton last night.

Teachers Rhoda Bain (ballet), Lois Conklin (tap), Margery Parker (elocution and acting), Beverly Bain and Carol Dershner put the small ballerinas and tappers through their paces and a performance of high calibre.

Numbers ranged from Irish jigs to a Scottish sword dance, from traditional Russian dances to classic ballets, from a waltz clog to a minstrel tap and the present generation was represented by a calypso.

The Eastern Ontario Theatre School is a school where children are given the opportunity to receive training in any branch of the theatre from beginners to professional standard. Ballet students are entered for the Cechetti Society examinations, the system used by the Royal Ballet of Canada.

Tap students may also try examinations and acting students receive full training in diction, stage performing and terminology. Recitals and stage productions help to give the children confidence.

The Eastern Ontario Theatre Company is an amateur theatrical company and welcomes members who are over 16. The company produces original musical comedy plays and performances have been given over the past year in many Quinte centres.

Queen Mother

called the day is May, 24, when all of the grass is coloured colors to the regiment.

Throughout the audience, sifted with the help of the grass in wheelchairs, were many veterans of the regiment. The Queen Mother referred to them when she said:

"I am certain that all at this parade, who have ever worn the hodden grey, are proud of you, as I am, this night."

After the new colors were brought in and consecrated, the Queen Mother went forward to make the presentation. Then, on a brisker note, after the ceremony of trooping the colors, the pipe and drum played such lively tunes as All the Blue Bonnets are over the Border, Black Bear and Robin Adair.

After the regiment gave the colonel-in-chief three cheers, the crowd took up the cheering and continued it as the Queen Mother's car circled the field and finally disappeared.

The new colors are the Queen's color and the regimental color—dark blue with a gold centre and bearing the regiment's crest, the motto Carry On, and 20 battle honors of the two world wars.

As the tour moved into its fourth day some of the more than 300 reporters, photographers and television and radio people covering it were showing signs of fatigue—putting their feet up when possible, taking catnaps as they travel by bus from one appointment to another.

But the Queen Mother, always cheerful and smiling, showed no sign of weariness.

Sunday, final day of the visit, brings perhaps her most crowded schedule. After attending services at St. James' Cathedral she goes to Fort York Armory for luncheon with the regiments serving officers and later meets officers' wives.

Then she goes to Knox Presbyterian Church for the service of "laying up of the old colors" and visits university college for a march past of the regiment.

Finally she departs by RCAF Yukon for London, taking off from Toronto International Airport at 8:30 p.m.

Fire Destroys Frame Barn in Thurlow Twp.

A large frame barn on the farm of Ernst Kreisel, 6th concession of Thurlow township at Foxboro, was completely destroyed by fire early Friday afternoon.

Homes in a nearby housing sub-division were threatened as a result of a grass fire started by the blaze.

City firemen were called to the scene shortly before 1.00 o'clock but had no chance to save the 40 by 60 foot barn, containing only a few bales of hay. Firemen saved a nearby tractor shed but it was too far to call for a second pumper truck to help control a grass fire which burned over about an acre before it was extinguished.

Home owners in a nearby housing sub-division wet down their lawns as the grass fire headed in their direction.

Also Friday afternoon firemen were called to the Ontario School for the Deaf. It was a false alarm.

Parched Meadows in County Signify Feed Shortages for Beef And Dairy Herds Temple Shown

The weather was again perfect for a day in the country yesterday.

Not for countryfolk in Hastings County the weather has been perfect too long. The sun may be smiling down all day — and every day. But many county farmers are far from laughing at what they consider another of Nature's bad jokes.

For drought has struck the countryside and the parched meadows signify feed shortages for dairy and beef herds which are a staple of local farm economy.

It has placed a premium on so ordinary an item as a bale of hay. So hazardous are the prospects that some farmers have started trimming their herds, disposing of cattle to conserve feed stocks.

The situation sent Robert Temple, MP South Hastings for a trip through the countryside yesterday, to gather firsthand impressions.

At the end of a 180-mile swing through six townships he said the first need was to move feed into the area where farmers could maintain their herds. Federal assistance, possibly by aiding with transportation costs was one suggestion he made.

The MP said he would take the proposal up with Agriculture Minister Harry Hays.

"We've got to move this coming week on it," he added. If we don't the small farmers could be back against the wall."

WAS FRINGE AREA

The area is on the margins of the Ottawa Valley region where farmers now are reaping the disastrous affects of prolonged drought.

It's close enough for some of the effects to have rubbed off in the past two years.

"Last year we were classed as a 'fringe area and they brought in over 2,000 tons of feed", said Doug Tipper, provincial agricultural representative for the county at Stirling.

This was fed into the north and eastern areas of the county. This year, the scarcity is even more severe, said the agricultural representative.

A survey indicates the north and eastern sections of the county again appeared in more grievous trouble. In the more fertile southwestern end — like Sidney Township's fourth concession — while the yield is down in many places the situation did not appear as serious as neighboring townships.

HAY GETTING DEARER

Rawdon township farmer Jim Spry said he and a neighbor travelled as far as north of Toronto and were offered hay at 50 cents a bale. Transportation costs would have added another 25 cents a bale. Even if he were willing to meet the price he is unsure of securing any of the feed now.

Much of the feed yield is down anywhere from one-third to a half from last year.

Glen Elliott of West Huntingdon has had even poorer averages. From 20 acres which normally return about 2,000 bales of hay, this year he has cropped 400 bales.

Like others he has sold off some of his dairy and beef cattle to conserve stocks.

CATTLE PRICES DECLINE

This is cause for further anxiety since the law of supply and demand is an inexorable fact of farm life. With more and more cattle on the auction block a steady decline in prices is inevitable.

"If we have to sell our cows we will have to take a loss because there's sure to be a rush on the market," pondered Stirling district farmer John Ryan.

"These cattle I'm selling should have been kept another year to get top money for them," said Jim Spry.

"With a cash crop you can grow another next year," added Mrs. Jeanne Williams of Spring brook. Women's President of the Ontario Farmers' Union, who accompanied Mr. Temple on part of his trip. "But what happens if you sell a herd you've been building for years."

The feed shortage is compounded by the fact farmers have had to turn cattle out grazing in fields normally preserved for growing feed.

Lower milk yields also are another side affect of the scarcity.

SOME EXTREME CASES

An extreme case was cited by Cy Courneyea of Stoco, who said last year he was drawing six cans of milk a day from his small herd. Earlier this year the yield dropped to four and yesterday had further decreased to three cans.

"Unexpected frost on low-ground pastureland also was contributing to the shortage in his area," he said

Earlier Mrs. Williams summed up the dilemma:

"You can plan for years ahead, but you can't plan old Mother Nature."

Heads Secretariat

The appointment of Toronto-born Arnold Smith as head of the Commonwealth's new Secretariat has been well received.

The 50-year-old former newspaper editor and ambassador to the Soviet Union, has had an interesting career with the Canadian diplomatic service, beginning in 1943 after a period with the British service. In the early months of the Second World War he represented the British Council—a cultural organization—in Estonia and then became press officer at the British legation in Tallinn. Subsequently, he went to Cairo as British propaganda officer in the Middle East.

Mr. Smith's association with the Baltic countries started after his studies at Oxford. About to return to Canada, he detected a sense of isolationism in North America and instead took a job editing a newspaper in Tallinn. He also served as professor of political economy at the University of Tartu, Estonia.

When the Soviet Union invaded the Baltic countries, Mr. Smith and his wife were kept under close surveillance by the Russians for several months.

In his new job, Mr. Smith says it will take time to work out programs and he intends to move slowly. "I don't plan anything dramatic," he said. "I intend to increase consultations among the member countries and to improve understanding. I will do a lot of travelling after I get my staff together."

The wonder is that the Commonwealth, now consisting of 21 members, has stuck together as closely as it has. This could be because the association of members is, in the words of Prime Minister Pearson, "indefinable and had better remain so."

This nebulous quality will call for tactfulness on the part of Mr. Smith. To make haste slowly then, as he has indicated, is probably his wisest course.

It is interesting to recall that the idea of setting up a secretariat was suggested by Ghana —an African member—at the last conference of Prime Ministers in 1964 and Mr. Smith's name was one of the first proposed as its chief.

How Berlin Was Lost

Probably the biggest blunder made by the Western Allies in the last war was their failure to get Berlin ahead of the Soviet armies advancing from the east.

The Russians got there first, achieving in one fell swoop a political as well as military advantage that was to cause the Allies immense problems in the postwar years.

That the Russians knew Berlin held the key to political advances is confirmed by Marshal Ivan Konev. In his memoirs just published, Konev tells that Stalin gave him and Marshal Georgi Zhukov 48 hours' to prepare a plan for capturing the city.

Summoned to Stalin's headquarters in Moscow on April 1, 1945, the marshals were informed of a secret report indicating that Allied armies under Field-Marshal Montgomery were ready to advance on Berlin. This is borne out by Montgomery in his own memoirs.

The two military leaders worked non-stop for more than 24 hours on a plan to take Berlin. Stalin approved it and the race was on; Konev said he and Zhukov rushed back to the front and each tried to beat the other. Both entered the city about the same time.

The result has long since part into history, but the immediate consequences and the events of the years that followed had far-reaching implications for the postwar world.

Germany was divided and Berlin itself turned into a fragmented shadow of its former self. Today the city is still a symbol of the east-west struggle and of the varying ideologies that divide men to this day.

Illegal

At Burlington, councillors are considering a by-law to control noises. One section would prohibit any person ringing a bell, sounding a horn, shouting or creating any unusual noise calculated to disturb the inhabitants." A Canadian Press report points out that a telephone call, knocking on a door or ringing a doorbell are usually intended to "disturb" a person into answering.

The by-law also provides that it shall be illegal to pass other than sweet-smelling odors or fumes from one property to another.

With ideas like this, councillors are going to have difficulty making it home without illegally stinking up the joint.

To Your Good Health

Must Close Off All 'Leaks' To Slim 140-lb. Girl of 10

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter is 10, weighs 140 pounds, and has been on and off diets all her life. I put her on a 1,000 calorie diet about two weeks ago and she hasn't even lost an ounce.

We have taken her to doctors and they can't find anything wrong. Can you help me? (I am a diabetic.)—Mrs. K. R.

The overweight child who can't seem to lose is quite a problem. I don't know any easy solution, but can offer some suggestions which may help in the struggle.

Since you are diabetic, your daughter most decidedly must learn to be weight-conscious and calorie-conscious. Being overweight is one of the strongest invitations to developing diabetes.

Weighing 140 pounds when she is only 10 years old means that you (and she) must fight together. Yet people — including children — can lose weight if they achieve a balance of eating less than they use up in calories.

One pitfall with an overweight child is eating, or drinking things which aren't supposed to be in the diet. Youngsters often don't realize that a bottle of pop contains a lot of calories. It's not that they mean it's not the eating solid food. But it is food — the sugar dissolved in the drink.

Or they snatch some cookies as they go through the kitchen, or think you won't notice that they've had a candy bar, or they just feel hungry and find something to eat — and there goes the diet! (This practice is hardly restricted to children, naturally.)

Another pitfall is in circulating the 1,000 calories. For the sake of simplicity, most diets are dedicated in terms of "one normal helping of potato," or "a chop with fat removed," or "one slice of toast." The person who needs to reduce is usually one to whom these definitions don't at all mean what they should. The "normal serving" may be twice as big as someone else's. And twice the calories. A slice of bread may be from a loaf that is twice as big. The fat on meat, which the thinnes may not even want to touch, may be consumed by the person who, being overweight, is a hearty eater. Fat is highest in calorie content of all foods.

You have to watch the amount of butter used at the table, the amount of jelly that goes on the bread. (Best way is not to put either on the table.) There are calories in the sugar that has gone into "sour" things like relishes, and in the oil in salad dressings. You have to close off all these "leaks" to have an effective diet.

And what can be most important of all? Exercise. Very careful observations have been made on overweight children, with the discovery that they, with few exceptions, don't like to exercise. They learn the least strenuous way of taking part in games, or mostly prefer to sit, or walk and move slowly. The active child burns up thousands of calories, which for the inactive child, become fat. And the fat stays and stays and stays;

So urge exercise. Sometimes, I suspect, fat youngsters get a hopeless "what's the use" attitude. Your daughter may need a lot of encouragement. Tell her if she'll work at it, and work at the diet, and not give up, she can shed fat and be like the other youngsters.

Finally, little by little, teach her which foods are high in calories (sweets, starchy foods, fats, sweetened drinks, etc.) because she's going to need that information all her life.

R. B. Bennett, Conservative prime minister of Canada 1930-35, died at his estate in England 18 years ago today — in 1947. Born in Hopewell Hill, N.B., Bennett practised law in Calgary and served briefly in Arthur Meighen's government. He took office as prime minister after winning the general election on a platform of Imperial trade and unemployment relief. He put the former first, but most economic programs were wrecked by the world-wide depression. He announced broad social legislation early in 1935, but the Conservative government was defeated that year's general election.

Censorship In Ireland

Peterborough Examiner

A newspaper reader has arrived at an ingenious solution to the problem of censorship in the Republic of Ireland. Drawing attention to the Government's annual and extremely long list of banned books, he has suggested that the Government has an even greater concern for the preservation of the Irish language. Why not, therefore, publish all the banned books in Gaelic? This would, of course, hand them on a plate to people who already speak Irish but it would be a powerful stimulus to eager English-speaking readers.

It is interesting to speculate whether this idea is applicable to Canada's quest for bilingualism. Certainly, attempts to ban books here have been failing frequently recently and many books which were formerly taboo, such as Henry Miller's Tropics, are now on sale everywhere in inexpensive paperback editions. On the other hand, only the other day the Supreme court of Canada upheld an obscenity ruling on a number of girlie magazines and lurid pocket-books. And Canada's linguistic boundaries are sharper than Ireland's.

Conceivably, this idea could be extended to screen censorship. For instance a French movie destined for cutting could be shown with no subtitles thus forcing the viewers to struggle with the French dialogue. Unfortunately there are insuperable difficulties involved — not the least of which is that many of the books and magazines in question are published in the United States. And the prospect of having to go to Quebec to buy a desired book or magazine in English would be the last straw for the already sensitive Ontarian.

Ottawa Offbeat

Wheeler-Dealer in Fact, Harry Hays Barefoot Boy in Fiction

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — That obstinent and expensive Parliament Hill personality who, with becoming modesty, has billed himself in his own speeches as "just a simple country boy from out Calgary way," the Honorable Harry William Hays, the far-out of the ordinary Minister of Agriculture, was just returned from Europe.

And hardly a word was said by the Honorable Members of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition who, not so long ago, used to have all kinds of a field day with Parliamentary time kidding "Poor Old" Harry, as they called him.

Had he returned from Paris in the first few months or even the first year after his eastern migration to the Capital it would have been an occasion for much merriment in a House that so recently could get instantly hilarious over anything having to do with Harry.

Imagine, they would have roared, rolling and rocking with glee, imagine tal 'I'll ol' country boy on the prowl in Pigalle!

It took the House about a year and some of the smart-crackers a mole-skinning to find out that Harry Hays wasn't really the innocent barefoot boy he sometimes pretended to be.

A few of the western Conservative MPs, Diefi's Alberta Cowboys, as they're called, knew this all along.

WHEELER DEALER

The Tory MPs from the Foothills cattle country knew that Harry Hays, in the real world of business a wheeler-dealer and millionaire, was "only funnin'" when he made out in the make-believe world of Parliament that he was a hayseed.

They recalled him in his pre-Parliamentary days as a big deal of the affluent, almost-do-as-you please pleasant kind of life as North American sporting and most financially successful successor of pure-bred cattle.

His base of operations was a 40-acre estate-type home once located on the outskirts of Calgary, but it's expanding and entirely surrounded by its mushrooming suburbs, and now worth a king's ransom in real estate value.

As a money-making hobby, he has a 3,000-head cattle ranch in the "Prince of Wales" country southwest of the EP Ranch at High River.

From these two establishments he would venture, perhaps once a week or even less, on an entrepreneuring expedition, to put in not more than four or five highly productive working days with stump and gavel.

He always took Mrs. Hays with him, and they travelled really first class, occupying an ultra-exclusive suite in the best hotel of whatever city he was working, and as he regarded it, holidaying.

The auction done, the cattle sold at blue ribbon prices, he would hie to the nearest airport and spend two or three days touring the countryside and whistle-stopping.

SPRING IN HAWAII

And it got him, this so-pleasant way of life, a rather satisfactory compensation of about $50,000.

Every Spring Harry and his wife vacationed in Hawaii.

So why did he give it all up for Ottawa?

"I sometimes still ask myself that," he has answered on occasion, but very question so many others ask.

Truth is, he has also said, he grew it up from a little simple Senator Wallace McCutcheon gave up big business, high finances and Bay Bahamas, simple he founding proprietor of the fabulous Lyford Cay Club in Nassau, The Bahamas, simple because he felt, as he has put it, that he "owed something to this country which has done so much for me."

Corny? It you're a cynic, yes. But fact, too.

Against this background of the actual wheeler-dealer and the fictional barefoot boy, how come the deepening respect in Parliament and at Agriculture and now almost any Cabinet Minister but Harry Hays?

Perhaps New Democratic MP Arnold Peters put it best.

"Harry's an auctioneer, and an auctioneer will look after his self in the verbal clinches like nobody else.

"He will tame drunks, skin wise-crackers and scalp smart Alecs.

"When you remember that, you get careful with Harry, handling him with kid gloves. For if you start fooling around, he's as liable as not to give you the stump and gavel treatment, and then you'll know who's the man and who's the simple country boy."

And that is just what has happened.

So Harry Hays could come home from Gay Paree in peace and quiet.

Letters to the Editor

Officer Comments On Beatles' Award

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

With reference to this recent award of the M.B.E. to the four "Beatles" by the British Cabinet.

The decorations known as the O.B.E. and the M.B.E. have often been awarded both to military men and also to civilians. It is known that the Beatle awards were due to the large sums of American exchange picked up by this group, both for engagements in the U.S.A. and also for the sale of their records.

The Beatles are not really musicians at all, but rather clowns or jesters whose music has reverted to the beat of the African drums, and many military men, especially those with decorations feel a good deal of resentment at being put in the same class with the Beatles.

There is nothing new in the award of decorations and even knighthoods to actors. Queen Victoria made Henry Irving a knight and in the past 80 years British royalty has granted a few knighthoods and titles to other decorations to actors and musicians.

Within the last fifty years our Empire or Commonwealth has been deeply engaged in two great wars and a number of smaller ones. Our losses in deaths alone have added up to nearly two million men and all those veterans who have been awarded any decorations have many sad memories of their fallen comrades who still lie "in Flanders Fields" or in far flung countries of the world. These men would much prefer if the two types of awards, military and civilian, were kept entirely separate by the use of differently lettered initials, the these two types of awards for service to the Commonwealth.

Contract Quoted Maximum Rates

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Regarding the news item of June 18, "Northern Electric workers reject company's offer of 3-year wage increases", I would like to point out the following.

The maximum rates quoted were skilled workers, $3.41 an hour and production workers $3.06 an hour by 1967. At present, it is possible there are no hourly rated workers in these categories, or very few if any.

Female workers are mostly paid under Grade 2 with a starting rate of $1.60 an hour and with good luck can reach the $1.76 an hour. The majority of workers (male) are paid under grade 3B, which runs from a low of $1.85 to a high of $2.08 and with top rating can reach $3.14 an hour. So with this in mind and with the present contract offer, a woman could earn $1.98 an hour by 1967. A man could earn $2.38 an hour by 1967. The above is a fair average of a Northern worker.

I think it unfair to print the highest rates attainable, so the general public gets the conception we are getting a gold mine and may have an overall effect on the economy of this district.

Another point in closing, these people, in the majority of cases, have worked with Northern Electric Company from K. G. Campbell, twelve to twenty years.

Dept. 9867,
Northern Electric.

20 YEARS AGO

Graduation 1945 of the School of Nursing of the Belleville General Hospital on Thursday evening was an occasion of two-fold significance in that the event celebrated the Fiftieth Graduation, the Golden Jubilee of the School of Nursing. Nineteen nurses in their traditional white uniforms and carrying an arm bouquet of red roses, repeated after their Director of Nursing, the Florence Nightingale Pledge before a very large audience in the Collegiate Auditorium. The solemnity and sincerity of the graduates pledging themselves to serve their profession faithfully was an inspiring scene in itself. The presentation of their pins and diplomas was the beginning, the first milestone in their chosen career. In a quotation by the Director of Nursing to the graduates, she said "The traditions of the past are inspirations of the future."

50 YEARS AGO

June 28th, 1915

In a baseball match between the Ontarios of this city and the town of Picton, played in Belleville boys won, the score being 12 to 2. To Freddie Goyer, the Ontario pitcher, great credit is due for clever pitching held the Perth sluggers within bounds. The following composed the Belleville team: Mills, Goyer, Gerow, Stark, Pegg, Kelleher, Little, Symons and Scott.

Mrs. Charles Champaign, of Avondale Tweed Road, brought in the editorial room of the Daily Ontario today a box of new potatoes. They are a large and good sized hen's eggs. This is a remarkable development for this time of the year. The unusually cool season evidently has not retarded the growth of the potatoes as they were well and transplanted, but were put out in the regular way in the early spring.

Charmed Circle

Oshawa Times

In honoring the Beatles, the Queen and her advisers have followed a pattern of recognizing that there are great values worthy of distinction in all levels of the entertainment world. Mr. Dupuis' attitude of discarding his honor because he objects to the Beatles being admitted to the charmed circle to which he had himself been raised makes one wonder if it was wisely bestowed on him in the first place.

But Lei Not for Free

Hawaii Casts Its Spell on Visitor

By BARRY McCULLAGH

Visitors arriving by sea in Honolulu these days step down the gangway to a welcome pretty much as they would have expected. Hula girls dance at the dockside and you can step from the shade of the terminal building into the sunshine sporting a lei around your neck.

But times have changed somewhat; at least they differ from what travel folders suggest. If you want the traditional floral emblem of Hawaii you buy one from one of the ample ladies selling them on the sidewalk.

A beautiful young Hawiian girl, dark hair nestling on her shoulders and smiling, stepped up beside me — and there was a photographer taking a picture of us, copy to be available at 4 p.m. price $1.

If you did not want the picture there was no obligation to buy it, but this little girl — as she stood there me she barely came up to my shoulder — was so pleasant that only the most churlish or mercenary of characters would not have gone along and paid his dollar.

Hawaiians have an inborn grace and sense of fun — from the laughing chattering school children of many races you meet downtown or standing at bus stops or in restaurants drinking coke to the students of the mainland, to the staff of the bank where I cashed travellers cheques, and the dancers who sang "Aloha" as the ship slid into the darkness and I stood on deck watching the lights of the homes clinging to the craggy slopes around the city.

And there was the cripple young man who sold bracelets, beads and the like from a wheelchair at Waikiki. He said he was from Milwaukee and knew the Hamilton and Toronto area of this country. He talked of the car with special controls he hoped to buy, so he could get about more. Nearby were the swaying palms and the beach and the sun-drenched sea and in the distance, Diamond Head, and here was one who had lost both legs.A war veteran perhaps ,but he did not say; nor had he any complaints about his condition.

A woman was buying something from him when I stopped for a chat and made a purchase too. In Honolulu, as in other parts of the world, there are people who are handicapped in one way or another but still manage to put a brave face on life. As we talked, the waves lapped gently on the beach and out in the bay I could see two of the outriggers that are such a feature of the Hawaiian scene.

Honolulu is like other cities, but the impact of its many races and cultures is unmistakable — in the faces in the street, in such institutions as the University of Hawaii with its famed east-west cultural centre, the Bishop Museum housing the treasurers of Polynesia, and the Iolani Palace, former seat of Hawaiian Royalty and now the State Legislature.

There is no written record of the earliest settlement of Hawaii. However, it is believed that it was settled more than 1,000 years ago by Polynesians, probably from the Society Islands.These people remained in a relatively primitive state until Captain Cook discovered the islands on his third voyage of discovery in 1778.

He named the group the Sandwich Islands after the Earl of Sandwich, who sponsored the expedition. Cook was killed the following year in a fight between his men and Hawaiian warriors.

In 1795, the chief of the main island of Hawaii, Kamehameha, brought all the islands under his control. He became their first king and he and his descendants ruled for almost 100 years.

In 1820 the first missionaries arrived by sailing ship from New England and by the middle of the 19th century Hawaii was at least nominally Christian (It is interesting to note it was these same missionaries who introduced the women of Hawaii to the voluminous Mother Hubbard, the modern version being the popular muu muu).

Hawaii remained independent almost to the end of the 19th century. Then a revolution deposed the monarchy and a republic was declared. Soon afterwards Hawaii became a part of the United States and in 1959 achieved statehood.

The photographic efforts took on a new dimension in Hawaii. The manufacturers of the small camera I was using there recommended that color pictures should be taken only in bright sunlight. However, two pictures I took at Waikiki as the sun was going down, and in sharp, clear atmosphere, were far superior to others I have taken before or since in the heat of the day. Later, in Tahiti, I was to discover the same phenomenon with pictures taken while the sun was on the ground floor and apartments above.

The transformation of the old house was the brainwave of Mrs. Jean Riley. She made sketches of the old place and working from those, she redesigned both the interior and exterior of the building.

"Decorating is a hobby of mine, she said, "but this is the first time I've really had a chance to work on an old building. It was really fun."

The outside of the house has been painted white, and moss green shutters, in keeping with the color scheme throughout the studios, were added. The lawn area was completely landscaped.

Upon entering the building, one notices the striking decor of the reception area with its moss green carpets, teak panelling and gold wall areas. Fan lights over the entrance door also add to enhance the interior as does the bay window which was designed inwardly.

"We wanted to follow traditional color schemes," Mrs. Riley said, "so that we could keep the Georgian atmosphere of the house intact."

FRENCH DOORS USED

Swinging French doors open out from the reception area into the centre hall. The hall, featuring moss green carpeting and a wall covering of white Grecian figurine designs, is beautifully set off by a crystal chandelier. The carpeted stairway, running to the upstairy apartments, is set off by a newell post that was brought in from an outside veranda and reconditioned to act as a newell post.

Studio One, designed for wedding and family portraits, and easily convertible to commercial photography, features settees covered in brocades in gold and white, set off by a subtle gold rug. The natural beige wall and champagne drapes add to the beauty of the room.

Studio two, designed mainly for male portraiture, features new hardwood flooring and a walnut panelled wall.

The office and workroom runs off the reception area. It features teak panelling, gold cupboards and gold and beige floor tile.

Another workroom at the back of the house used to be the old kitchen in the house. This room also has a covering of plastic coated vinyl covering gyproc in a wood design. The design of the workroom's walls is birch.

The new darkrooms also used to be part of the old kitchen, as was the film room.

"We put a whole new heating system in the house", Mr. Riley said. "We also had to tear out all the plumbing and electrical facilities and completely rewire and re-plumb it".

Mr. Riley has been working out of the basement of his house at 7 Strathcona Drive since the fire in February at the old studios.

William E. Riley, Photographer, held the grand opening of his new studio yesterday.

He is located in what was a run-down old building at the corner of Victoria and George, but what is now an enchanting Georgian style home with the work area on the ground floor and apartments above.

the confidence of the minority government.

It asks the House to send clause four of the 29-clause income tax bill—the one covering newspapers and magazines — back to committee of the whole House for further consideration.

But, as Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox - Alberni) remarked Friday, the amendment, if passed, could have the effect of requiring Finance Minister Gordon, the only man who can make such changes, to amend his bill.

And, as Larry Pennell, Mr. Gordon's parliamentary secretary, was quick to put it, this could involve "something far more serious."

Mr. Gordon has said previously the government is determined to "stand or fall" on its proposals.

While Mr. Knowles' amendment does not specify which aspect of the measure he wants reconsidered, the veteran MP made it clear in introducing it that his concern rests with the proposed exemption for non-Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest from the magazine tax penalties.

Both magazines are owned by United States parent companies.

But the government has decided, on the grounds that the two publications have been operating here since the 1940s, to consider them as Canadian periodicals for the purposes of its legislation.

Some other opposition spokesmen, notably the Conservatives and Social Credit Leader Thompson, pinpointed most of their criticism at the news paper measure.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker denounced the press section as "one of the most serious potential invasions of freedom ever seen in this country." He said he doubted the measure would hold up in court against provisions in the Bill of Rights guaranteeing freedom of the press.

Mr. Diefenbaker also accused Prime Minister Pearson of misleading and deceiving officers of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association over the bill.

The prime minister had told the CDNPA executive last month he would welcome alternatives to the government measure. Now, Mr. Diefenbaker said, after the CDNPA had asked for time to come up with such proposals, the government was pushing ahead with the bill.

Mr. Thompson caused a mild surprise in indicating his group, which supported the government in earlier vote on the bill, would go along with the amendment.

"This section strikes at the freedom of the press and at the heart of private enterprise," he told the House.

Counsel Says Co-operative Too Hasty

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — Purchase of a Burlington meat packing plant by Farmers' Allied Meat Enterprises Co-operative Ltd. was described Friday as "a completely unsound business undertaking."

Commission Counsel M. A. Craig of Owen Sound, in his summation at the conclusion of a royal commission inquiry into the affairs of the co-operative, levelled criticism at the directors for negotiating an agreement which cost shareholders $1,500,000.

"They were entirely hasty," he told Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of Walkerton who headed the investigation.

Alouette Club Enjoys Picnic At Cove Beach

Last Sunday afternoon, the Alouette Club for Belleville and region held its annual picnic on the occasion of St. John the Baptist's Day. Members and friends as well as a number from Toronto and Ottawa, gathered for the festivity at Cove Park on Cherry Valley early in the afternoon. The attendance reached 160 persons, including 55 children, all wearing the three-color blue-red-white tag of the day.

After the president of the club, Mr. James Holtquist, welcomed everyone, children were taken care of by Mr. Michael Thiffault, "uncle Michael" assisted by Miss Carmen Lilalien and Paul Bourgeois of the committee. A number of events were enjoyed and included games and songs with prizes given. During this time, parents also enjoyed a time of fellowship and making new acquaintances. Just at dusk a campfire was lit and everyone enjoyed a sing-song of favorite French songs.

Few of Girls Coming To Haven Ask for Help

Little Girl Gets Chance to See Royalty

OSHAWA (CP) — As Queen Mother Elizabeth moved down the shady walk leading from the National Steel Farm Friday, a little girl with long golden curls planted herself firmly in her path.

While photographers' cameras clicked, four-year-old Cynthia Henrigan of Hamilton, Ont., clutched a nosegay of garden roses and smiled tremulously at the royal lady before her.

"Are those for me?" asked Her Majesty, bending down to smile at the girl and take the bouquet.

After thanking the child the Queen Mother moved on to see more of Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor's horse breeding farm where she had already viewed 17 of Canada's best horses, including all-time Canadian money - winner Northern Dancer.

And Cynthia fled to hide her face against her mother's knee.

Mrs. Hourigan, who had come to the farm with her husband, a photographer for the Hamilton Spectator, explained that Cynthia had brought up the idea of presenting the flowers herself.

"She saw a picture of a girl presenting flowers to the Queen Mother in the paper yesterday and she wanted to do the same.

"So I picked the flowers for her from my garden. I didn't think she'd get a chance to give them to her though."

45th Wedding Anniversary Celebrated

RAWDON — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoard, Seymour Township, were honored on Saturday on the occasion of their 45th wedding anniversary with a dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Thompson.

Seventy relatives and friends from Guelph, Toronto, Brantford, Bowmanville, Woodstock, Peterborough, Galt, Campbellford, Ottawa, Fergus, Carmel, Stirling, River Valley and Ivanhoe enjoyed a noon hour luncheon.

Rev. Gordon Whitehorne, minister of Seymour United Church circuit, was master of ceremonies.

Mr. Ernest Bradley, Bowmanville, proposed the toast to the "bride" and "groom."

Mr. Robert C. Hoard, who resides on the homestead, on the Rawdon Township spoke briefly on behalf of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoard received several gifts.

Mrs. Hoard was the former Helen Taylor, Guelph. Her three sisters, Mrs. Alex Grant, Guelph; Mrs. H. A. Cockburn, Guelph, and Miss Ward, also of Toronto, were in attendance at the party. Two brothers reside in the north. They are Mrs. Hoard have one son, Robert, and three daughters, Mrs. Clayton Thompson (Betty), Seymour Township; Mrs. Jack Bush (Joan), River Valley; and Mrs. Allen Wells, (Doris), Stirling, and 13 grandchildren.

On Sunday, 40 members of the family enjoyed a picnic dinner along the Trent River Beach at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bush.

Following their marriage in 1920, Mr. and Mrs. Hoard set up family lived on the Hoard homestead, situated on the boundary between Rawdon Township and Seymour township. Later they took up residence at Hoards Station in Seymour Township. They are members of Hoards United Church.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Norman McLeod, Woodstock; Seymour and Charles were classmates at O.A.C. in Guelph and enlisted together in World War I.

START CEREMONY

OTTAWA (CP) — The daily changing of the guard ceremony on Parliament Hill will begin its seventh summer next Monday morning, the defence department announced Friday. It is the capital's biggest tourist attraction.

TORONTO (CP)—The sign on the door says: "You are not welcome if you are coasting (after taking narcotics); if you are on goofballs (have just taken barbiturates); or are drunk."

But if you are habitually any of these things, you are welcome in the room behind the door. Called Street Haven, it was opened in March by Peggy Ann Walpole, a nurse.

Street Haven has no program. It offers acceptance, a meal, a coffee, a place to sit to girls who are dope addicts, lesbians, prostitutes. It offers help if they want it.

Miss Walpole says that few of the more than 100 girls who have come to the Haven have asked for help.

"Most of them don't know that they want anything different. But if being here gives them one night off the street, one less pregnancy, one less fix, it makes it all worthwhile."

The Haven is open 9 a.m. to 2 a.m. every day except Sunday, when it opens at 1 p.m., and Miss Walpole says in spite of the live-and-let-live policy, it has helped some of the girls.

SOME OFF DOPE

"It's been more successful in visible results than I thought it could possibly be; some are off drugs, some have rehabilitated themselves.

"You can't say they're rehabilitated for life—but if you can give a gal one week one day, six months, you've done something. Then maybe she'll get up faster. You never refuse help, no matter how many times a girl falls.

"Love is a misused word in our world, but that's really what we're offering."

The Haven is patterned on the Village Haven in New York's Greenwich Village. It started three years ago by Rev. Daniel Egan, known as the "Street Priest."

The girls themselves pay it the tribute of behaving well there. Asked if anyone used the Haven as a convenient spot to take a fix, two of them said in unison, "people fixes here."

Miss Walpole says, "That's one thing the girls have always asked. The Haven is for fixes, and we don't want to ruin anyone else's chances."

GOOD LUCK CHARM

The chances of some sound slim. One girl says:

"Those little times I've Haven saved my life. If it hadn't been for here I wouldn't be alive. This is the only place I've visited.

"I went to a hospital to get treated so I could kick the habit. But I'm back prior to coming here. So I took 15 goofballs. Peggy Walpole helped me and they sent me to a mental hospital.

"But I still need about two fixes a day. What good is a mental hospital if it doesn't help you kick the habit?"

A tangible sign that Street Haven may help is that a number of the girls have had tattoos removed since they started going there. Says one, "If you have a legit job you can't have tattoos."

Another girl had hers removed by plastic and scar tissue removed from her wrists—the scars of repeated suicide attempts. Now aged 20, an infant, she is off drugs and wants to work with children. She was once a playground supervisor.

Mother's Helper

A COMIC CAMERA is a small cardboard box (cereal type) with a hole cut in front and a top that opens. Inside are funny pictures cut out of magazines, etc., and hidden there by the photographer before he snaps his friends. He pulls one out for each "portrait" he makes.

Mrs. Pearson Buys Trinkets At Craft Shop

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—Mrs. Lester B. Pearson strolled other Commonwealth prime ministers' wives Friday on purchases from the Commonwealth Crafts Centre in Westminster and expressed hope it has a good year to contribute financially to the co-operative venture which sends its profits to those who make the products.

The wives of three Commonwealth leaders from Canada, Britain and New Zealand — together with officials to other countries and some high commissioners' wives, crowded into the tiny shop near the Houses of Parliament to sip sherry and inspect handicrafts of all kinds from all over the Commonwealth.

Mrs. Pearson arrived first and spent some time looking at goods on the glass shelves before settling on her first buy—a handwoven, pink and black bandana scarf from India, patterned in red and blue. Mrs. Harold Wilson bought an almost identical scarf.

Mrs. Pearson also chose three dolls for her grandchildren in Ottawa — a doll on a donkey from Jamaica, and two dolls dressed in national dolls from India and Pakistan.

TRIES SANDALS

Mrs. Peter Holyoake, the New Zealand premier's wife, casually took off a shoe to try on a red-gold Indian sandal. She bought two pairs, as well as a Jamaican donkey doll.

Disappointed that Canada's display was so small, Mrs. Pearson promised Mrs. Molly Huggins, store organizer, that she would talk to the prime minister about the possibility of allotting £500 ($1,500) as five other governments and Britain have done to help keep the centre going.

Billed as "a venture in partnership," the Commonwealth Crafts Centre opened last December and has been moderately successful. But its devoted workers fear financial hardship unless more Commonwealth governments agree to help.

Mrs. Pearson said she was disappointed not to see any Canadian ceramics at the centre. A display of Canadian ceramics opens July 6 in London at a west end store called the Craftsmen's Potters' Shop.

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham
MADAME SECRETARY

"The quiet, little lady in the tricorne hat (Miss Frances Perkins) was co-architect of many of the New Deal reforms that gave labor a dignity it had never previously enjoyed and that also contributed enormously to the stability and strength of American institutions." — from an Editorial, New York Times, May 16, 1965.

* * *

The news of Miss Frances Perkin's death which recently occurred, sent our thoughts flying back to "an April day during World War II" in silent dedication to a loving memory.

This is why:

On that day Miss Frances Perkins, then Secretary of Labor of the United States, came to Montreal (where we were then living) to attend a three day conference of the Joint Canadian American Women's Committee in International Relations.

We happened to attend that afternoon session when Miss Perkins spoke.

She was dressed in black wearing a modish tricorne hat edged with straw and (as one reporter said) ". . . she is more attractive than her pictures would lead one to believe, less serious looking with a most attractive smile."

By way of expressing our gratitude for her presence, all she was "the embodiment of a conviction, a concern about social justice", we, who have been tremendous responsibility, yet found time to lend so generously a helping hand along with a gift of words to live by "...but for trying, you know, to triumph is achieved . . ." we wish to pay tribute to Miss Perkins and quote in part "Madame Secretary" was "a most sincere free-lance novice that long ago day one April during World War II.

As we (being writer-minded at this time, long aware of, yet hesitant to write, interviewing as a means to a writing career) listened to Miss Perkins and noted her gentle, modest way of answering the many questions asked her, with care and deliberation, we heartily wished we were prepared as an interviewer for this golden opportunity.

But to begin as a free-lance writer—and how! Sure-ly not with top level personalities . . . !

Then fantastic things began to happen.

Chance stepped in, introduced us to Miss Mary LaDame, special assistant to Miss Perkins, and thanks to her, within the hour we were scheduled for tea with Miss Perkins in her elegant, mid-Victorian suite at the Windsor Hotel, saying:

"At this hour, tea is so refreshing, don't you think? It will be informal, for I'm a free-lance interviewer! I should think that such tea would suit you, and what an honor to be included on your list . . . "

"I have never been one to years after youth, for I find the years of middle life most exciting. There is such satisfaction in maturity. There is none of that uncertainty that sometimes besets youth. I enjoy only youth knows. I must say I find these middle years offer real and true enjoyment."

So said The Honorable Frances Perkins, United States Secretary of Labor, when asked for her secret of being youthful.

What a pleasure it is to chat with her. Her graciousness at once sets you at ease. Before you realize it, you find yourself eagerly plying her with questions. Such is her great charm, she makes you feel that she is pleased to answer them, and you enjoy listening to that low-toned voice of hers.

"I have no so-called hobby, though I do a great deal of reading. No, not novels. Novels I feel sure are for the very young who are still in that illusory state about life, or for the very old, who are willing to lay aside activity and dream. I like reading essays, poetry and bi-o-graphy. Travel? Ah, as for books of travel the only ones I seem to find time to read are time-tables, since I'm so busy often between trains. But I'm no busy often between trains. But I'm no busy often between trains. But I'm no

'Business Girls' Chapter 55 O.E.S. Complete Season

"Business Girls" Belleville Chapter, No. 55, O.E.S., held their June meeting at the home of Mrs. Morley Davidson, in the form of a "potluck" supper on June 23rd.

The tables covered with floral tablecloths and centred with a floral arrangement of blue and white mums, surrounded with blue and gold candles, were exceptionally pretty. The assortment of delicacies left nothing to be desired with each member contributing a favorite dish.

The hostess served a tasty glazed strawberry pie and cake.

A short meeting took place and Mrs. Queenie Fox, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting. Mrs. Herbert Tomlinson, president, gave the report on the yearly project of a scholarship bursary for a student minister. Plans were discussed on the fall bazaar. Mrs. Ruth Mary Carmichael, vice-president, distributed interesting material for items to be made, also plans were made for a rummage sale to be held in November. Mrs. Randall Berry, treasurer, gave the financial report.

Next meeting is to be held October 4th, at the home of Miss Irene Harris.

A hearty vote of thanks was given to the hostess in opening her home for such a large number.

A well-earned rest and pleasant holiday was wished by Mrs. Tomlinson for the summer recess.

Going Places

Rich Shippers, Gay Strippers Make for Spicy Hamburg

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

HAMBURG, Germany — At last count there were 670 certified millionaires in West Germany's largest city, and 336 nightclubs.

In other words, Hamburg may be the richest, honky-tonkiest city in Europe.

The millionaires, of course, live in reserved splendor in their Mediterranean style villas on Bellevue, the strip known as 'Little Riviera' along the lovely green Alster River basin. Then, may venture out occasionally to feed the swans, but spend most of their time counting their shipping lines. (And one man is up to 76.) It's not the shippers who patronize the strip joints on the St. Pauli district's Reeperbahn.

The Reeperbahn is Sailor's Paradise on the Elbe, the Wan Chai of the Western World, the Coney Island of the North Sea. Its fame it is hardly exceeded by Berlin's Kurfurstendamm, a street to which it bears a marked resemblance.

Well, it looks more like Kurfurstendamm gone downhill. Where there are graceful sidewalk cafes in Ku-damm and there are strip joints on the Reeperbahn. Each flames with neon signs, and each sports billboards, and each is equipped with doormen dressed, as a rule, in striped T-shirts. Until the police stopped them, they used to accost passers-by to get them inside. Now they just chase them down the street.

One thing the police did not stop, however, were the shows inside. Not one was cut. Cultural bureau would have been closed in Paris. The names of some of these clubs would be enough to put them out of business in Milwaukee. One is blandly called "Sex Shows."

The most famous street off the Reeperbahn is Herbert Strasse, just around the corner from Hamburg's 15th precinct station house, said to be the busiest police station in the world. The street is boarded up at both ends and plainly labelled "Children Prohibited." There isn't a word about it in all the tourist literature we have on our desk, and it is not difficult to see why.

STREET OF WOMEN

This is the notorious Street of Women. The houses on both sides are equipped with eye level picture windows looking into dimly lit little parlors. The pictures in the windows are live, and are of females in an assortment of sizes, shapes and ages. Men, ranging from sailors to businessmen with briefcases, parade the street and gape, occasionally stopping to dicker with the ladies over some business or other. When the ladies do not wish to dicker, they simply close their windows and draw the drapes.

Interestingly enough, not all the Reeperbahn's entertainment is tawdry. Some of it, like the penny arcades and the second run cinemas, are just tasteless. But some of it is fascinating. There are a number of sailor clubs here. The language barrier is flimsy, and after all those years of restraint, German sailors can be incisive.

There is also Zillertal, a Bavarian beer hall that provides an unaccustomed release of gemutlichkeit for reserved Hamburgers. Another attraction is one of the few theatres in Germany showing plays in Platt-deutsch, the old Low German.

For those who can't get their minds off the opposite sex, there are grills and semi-polite places like Mabree, where each table is equipped with a red telephone that, through a central switchboard, anyone at another table may easily appeal to you. This sort of thing has spread as far as San Francisco of late, but it all started in Hamburg.

At Kreese, the girls go one step better than phoning the girl they walk up and ask them to dance. It's a little and to you male wallflowers, guzzling Scotch after lonely Scotch, just hoping some girl will find them attractive. But it's all very strict and chaperoned, and one violating the rules of etiquette may be invited to go elsewhere, the Mehres.

If sex isn't all there is to The Reeperbahn, the Reeperbahn isn't all there is to Hamburg.

Hamburg is much like Hamburg, unlike many German cities, is more occupied with its commercial past. It had the misfortune to have its best features — the harbor, residential sections, and the old city — buried out in the war. It's least attractive parts survived.

Mostly they are a conglomeration of nondescript prewar office buildings, ugly Hitler-era brickpiles, and some even uglier postwar steel-and-glass monoliths. The nadir of taste is Chilehaus, a mammoth brick office building with a prow like a ship, catwalks along the roof tiles, and a tower like a ship's bridge.

Along the Alster and in the residential sections it is a different story, and Hamburg becomes a charmer. The river has been dammed in the heart of the city. It is divided into the Inner and Outer Alster by the promenade known as the Jungfernstieg, and is laced with secluded and peaceful canals.

Everyone who can afford it clings to the park-lined banks of the Alster or Isebekkanal, and those who cannot still may promenade around it Sunday morning. Yacht clubs and dining pavillions line the shores, and for a few cents visitors may rent a rowboat of any size, length, or even rent a boat.

The port of Hamburg, Hamburg is the world's fifth largest, and its third most extensive. To visit it you get a glimpse of it. Near where the sightseeing boats leave is an inspection pier 50 feet underneath the quarter-mile tunnel under the Elbe to the free port.

The boat pier takes in hardly 10 percent of the harbor. It staggers the imagination to conceive of the whole. A vast complex of quays, canals, basins, moorings, floating docks, cranes and shipyards, it is a forest of steel and water, a spiderweb of steel beams and cables, a tangle of tugs and lighters and wharves and warehouses.

Each year thousands ships of 30 nations call here every year — as many as 300 at a time — even though the city is 65 miles from the North Sea.

No wonder there are more Swedish consulates in Hamburg than in any city but New York. There are millionaires and nightclubs.

Jets of Lufthansa — German Airlines are the only carrier operating from both the United States and Canada to Hamburg. Direct connections are made at Frankfurt to fast and quiet Boeing 727 of Lufthansa, the only line in Europe operating these remarkable new jets.

Unwed Mother Shares Experience to Help Others

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am an unwed mother who feels she is speaking for all unwed mothers who have gone through the agonizing experience of giving up a child.

The letter that prompted me to write was signed "Grateful." She was the woman who thanked the young unwed mother who gave up her baby. "Grateful" wished the young mother to know that she blessed her in her nightly prayers for having the courage and unselfishness to give up my own beautiful son. Her letter gave me the strength and the courage I needed that day. I want to thank her from the bottom of my heart.

ANN LANDERS

I pray that the couple who adopted my son will do as "Grateful" has done — let him know that I gave him up because I loved him and I wanted him to have the normal, happy life I could not give him. — STRONGER NOW.

* * *

DEAR STRONGER NOW — Thank you for those words. I'm sure your letter will make other girls who share the problem stronger, too.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I married a man I love very much. He is 22 years old. But I am worried about him. He still has temper tantrums.

If he is fastening around in his wood shop and makes a mistake he curses and screams. Then he throws things and breaks up the furniture. Once when he pounded his fists against the basement wall he broke his hand.

If I say anything to him he shouts, "It was your fault. You made me do it." Of course this makes no sense since I wasn't even in the room at the time.

We've been married only six months. He has destroyed several lamps and some of our nicest pieces of furniture. I wonder where all this will end. Can you tell me how to get him to control his temper? Not knowing when he is going to blow up is making be a nervous wreck. — AFRAID.

DEAR AFRAID — Living in the eye of a hurricane, as you are, would make anyone a nervous wreck. I hope you'll do something about it for your health and safety's sake as well as for his.

A 22-year-old who reacts to frustration and anger in an infantile manner needs professional help. Insist that he go to his physician and ask for guidance or "all this" could end up in a morgue.

* * *

DEAR ANN — I've been going out with Clayton for three years. He says he loves me and we've talked of marriage. Since we aren't children any longer I've told him I see no reason to wait. I want to get married now.

Clayton says the problem is money. I know this is only an excuse because we both have good incomes, paid-for furniture, cars and savings.

I believe Clayton is afraid of marriage. I know, too, that he is very much attached to his mother. She keeps house for him and often he brings her along when we have dinner and go to the theatre.

I told Clayton last week that two men at work have shown an interest in me and if he's not serious about marriage I'd like to date them. He became furious.

I am tired of waiting. But it's not just marriage I want, it's him. What should I do? — HELP.

DEAR HELP — If you must hit a man over the head to get him to marry you, what good is that marriage?

My advice is to accept invitations from the others. If Clayton doesn't love you to set a date within three months, try to forget him because he will never marry you. He'll just keep you tied up so nobody else can.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send for her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Lighting the Way

HIGH PRESSURE PRECEDES THE BLOWOUT
It happened recently. An automobile went out of control on one of our major highways. Careening wildly for a hundred feet or more, it swerved off the highway and went crashing to the bottom of a steep embankment. The car was reduced to a shambles, but lying amidst the wreckage were unscathed bodies. An entire family had been wiped out, father, mother, and five children. Perhaps accidents like this are becoming so common, that we think little about them anymore. However, this terrible loss could have been avoided. Investigating this accident, both the police and the insurance adjusters agreed it was the result of a tire failure, a blowout. The tires were in very poor condition. It happened on a very hot day. Apparently, pressure had built up to the point where the tires couldn't take any more, and something had to give. But what a price to pay!
Most of us are living too fast. We are always in a hurry, and though we were taking on this load, this feverish pace is but a continuation of inward tension and pressures. These pressures, are often caused by some unhealthy fears. To avoid the blow-outs of mental crack-ups, heart attacks, and strokes, we must replace unhealthy fear with faith. We should commit ourselves and all that concerns us into the hands of our loving Heavenly Father. We must learn to take life, as it comes each day, from life capable hands, and trust Him for all things. He who once said unto the winds and the waves, "peace, be still" says to us today, "My peace I give unto you."
TEXT FOR TODAY: "The just shall live by his faith." (Romans 1:17)

MR. AND MRS. CLAUS DEMCZYNA
Demczyna — Woods

Orange blossoms and pink and white peonies on each side of the altar formed a lovely setting in Wallbridge United Church, on Saturday June 19, when Joan Louise Woods, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Woods, Belleville R. R. 5, became the bride of Claus Demczyna, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stefan Demczyna, of Plainfield. Rev. Doug Kellar presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Miss Lois Elliott, in two appropriate selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length bridal gown of peau de soie and satin, featuring long lily-point sleeves and highlighted with a flowing train attached to the gown with two satin bows. A shoulder-length veil of nylon tulle was held by a crown of flowers. She carried a bouquet of pink and white baby roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. L. Carleton, sister of the bride, was dressed in a pink lace over rayon taffeta sheath styled dress enhanced with pink satin rosettes. The bridesmaids, Miss Anna Demczyna and Miss Lana Woods, were similarly attired but in pastel blue with white overlace. All wore white accessories and carried bouquets of mums tinted to match their dresses. The little flower girl was Miss Tracy Demczyna, dressed in a pink lace dress with pink flowers in her hair and carried a basket of sweet peas. Her twin brother, Master Terry Demczyna, dressed in navy jacket and grey trousers was ring-bearer and carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

Mr. Joseph Ohlmann of Plevna was groomsman, while Mr. Lorne Loucks of Belleville and Roger Hermer of Plevna were ushers.

A reception was held in the church dining hall where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a two-piece pink suit, pink hat and white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations and baby's breath. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a blue flowered dress with white accessories and a corsage of blue tinted carnations and baby 'mums.

For the honeymoon trip in the Thousand Islands and other points east, the bride donned a two-piece suit consisting of a white lace top and navy skirt with navy and white accessories and a corsage of white baby 'mums.

Previous to the marriage a miscellaneous shower was held in Wallbridge when the Misses Rose Ann Clare and Carol Spencer were hostesses. A linen shower was also held at Foxboro when Mrs. J. Elliott and Lois were hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Demczyna will reside at 389 MacDonald Ave., Belleville.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

He was sitting in a plush Broadway restaurant with a group of well-to-do friends. A befuddled, bewhiskered member of Skid Row beckoned to him through a window. While his friends stared he got up, peeled some bills off a roll, went out and handed them to the derelict.

He answered the questioning look of his friends, "Once when I was poor and hungry an old tramp gave me some money. I told him I would pay it back some day. This old guy could have been him."

Gary Player, the golfer, gave away $27,000 the other day but it is estimated that this man has given away over a million in three decades to old friends down on their luck and to strangers like the tramp.

He is one of eleven children and at the age of seven he went to work with his father and brothers on the farm. He milked cows, plowed, cut wood and helped bring in the crops.

When he was ten his father opened a "hashhouse" in Montrose, California. He was chief dishwasher, night chef and boy of all work. The day chef was an ex-Negro pugilist and the boy spent hours listening to colorful stories of the ring and prize-fighting.

The 1926 hullabalioo over the Tommy Burns-Jack Johnston fight convinced him he could make boxing his business. With a brother, Bernie, he turned an old chicken house into a training barn. Their only punching bag was a sack of sand and sawdust that hung from the ceiling.

His first fight was with a "Fighting Blacksmith," whom he knocked out. The take was $40 and his share after expenses, $3.80.

There was no money to be made fighting so he got a job in a copper mine as a mucker for $3.00 a day. Later he worked in coal mines. He toiled as a fruit picker and once shovelled tons of beets into freight cars.

Then he turned a bobo, a "knight of the road." He got his "kicks" from beating railroad "dicks" who he blasted at every opportunity.

"I was never so hungry in all my life as in those days," he recalls. "Once I ate garbage, including orange rinds and banana skins. I have eaten in the best restaurants in the world since, but nothing tasted so good as that bobo-days' garbage."

Once a fellow bobo rode with him on a sheep-train. They sneaked off a couple of ewes or rams at every water stop and sold them to the nearest butcher for a dollar a pair. By the time they reached their destination they had split $70 in "profits."

They got a railroad job laying tracks but missed their first meals. Told they would have to wait, they "hooked" into the cookhouse, grabbed all the food in sight and made for the woods.

He started fighting again, getting $50 to $100 for each ten-round bout. But after expenses he seldom had anything left. Came the crash years and he had to fight men for peanuts. "Hell," he says, without those bruising battles of 1916, 1915 and 1916 I doubt that I ever could have become a champion."

With one exception he never felt enmity for a man he fought. This was one Carl Morris who hired him for a fight, backed out and left him stranded. He "rode the rods" to Pueblo where he hoped to get work. Morris said he would forward his one old blue suit and a pair of trunks. They never arrived.

Later when he was on his way to Battle fame he was matched with Morris. The fight was the fouiest and dirtiest in years. Both men went for kneeing, eye-thumbing and gouging. By the sixth Morris was a blubbering, bloody mess and deliberately fouled to stop the fight.

The winner was a cyclone in action, a two-fisted Roman candle, bobbing weaving, slugging every second.

But, he admitted later, "I was scared to death in every fight. It was kill or be killed and I didn't want to be killed."

He won on to fame and fortune. Today his black hair is streaked with grey and his dark eyes youthful and alert. He is as straight as an Indian and his shoulders are broad.

He once refereed a wrestling match here. I interviewed him and brought along Eddie Lee as a guest Eddie picked up his $75 pure white somhrero. He smiled.

"Be careful," he said, "that thing costs me $15 every time I have it cleaned."

He was 70 the other day and top figures in the world of sport honored the greatest fighting heavyweight the world has ever known.

You've guessed his name before this.

He is the Ole Manassa Mauler, Jack Dempsey.

Giants Win 4-1 ★★★★★ ★★★★★★ "Finger-Lickin' Good"

No-Spitter, One-Hitter Beats Phils

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Shaw's wife probably has another silly question for her husband.

Like why does a 31-year-old pitcher find himself accused of sticking his fingers in his mouth?

Mrs. Shaw, who married the San Francisco pitcher two years ago, said Friday that she knew it was love when "I asked silly questions and he didn't laugh."

Mrs. Shaw may still be a little puzzled by what happened Friday night while Shaw was pitching a one-hitter—allowing only a second-inning homer by Wes Covington—and the Giants were beating Philadelphia Phillies 4-1.

Well, Mrs. Shaw, hubby was accused of throwing a spitball.

He was accused so often by the Phillies, and so vehemently, that he wound up playing catch with the umpires throughout the game. Bob had to surrender the ball 11 times to plate umpire Chris Pelekoudas and twice to base umpires for inspection.

Twice the umpires made Bob wipe his pitching hand on the resin bag or his uniform.

But though the Phillies fumed and umpires fussed, Bob maintained his composure.

So, Mrs. Shaw, everything turned out all right. But if Bob brings the game ball home and it's a little damp, just throw it in the dryer with the kid's clothes.

While Shaw was pushing his seventh victory, Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles and Sammy Ellis of Cincinnati became the National League first 12-game winners as the Dodgers defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 4-1 and the Reds edged Milwaukee Braves 3-1 in 11 innings. Chicago Cubs pounded St. Louis Cardinals 12-4 and Houston Astros downed New York Mets 6-2.

Shaw, now 7-3, never allowed more than one Philadelphia base runner at any one time and Covington was the only one to get past first base.

Koufax, striking out 12 while bringing his record to 12-3 with his sixth consecutive triumph, also singled home the tie-breaking run in the fourth inning.

Ellis, also 12-3, checked the Braves on eight hits through the 11 - inning game. Batterymate Don Pavletich provided the decisive runs with a two-run homer off Billy O'Dell.

Billy Williams and George Altman each drove in three runs and Doug Clemens stroked four hits, including a homer, as the Cubs pelted the Cardinals and hopped over the defending world champions into seventh place.

Joe Morgan's two-run triple in the second inning and another triple by Jim Wynn in a four-run fifth inning against Warren Spahn gave the Astros more than enough against the Mets.

Aaron Midway Leader

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—That pounding noise behind Tommy Aaron, hallway leader in the St. Paul Open, is a familiar sound to the 28-year-old golfing professional from Gainesville, Ga.

It's the Arnold Palmer - led pack wailing for Aaron to falter again.

He has slumped twice on this year's pro tour after holding the halfway lead in a major tournament.

He jumped ahead to the $100,000 St. Paul Open Friday with a five-under-par 66 that gave him the 36-hole lead at 133, nine under par. Palmer and five others were two strokes back going into today's third round.

George Knudson of Toronto blew himself right out of the tournament with a 77 for a 36-hole total of 148, far above the cutoff point of 143.

OLYMPIA WINS

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Olympia defeated Toronto Hellas 2-0 Friday night in a National Soccer League game. Klaus Woitschatzke scored both goals for the winners in the last 10 minutes of play.

Ontario Open

Weslock Tops Field By 4 Strokes

By STERLING TAYLOR

MILTON, Ont. (CP)—Martin Mason, 19, who has been learning the finer points of golf for the last eight years, gets a lesson today from the greatest amateur golfer in Canada.

The lanky Toronto high school student is scheduled to tee off with Nick Weslock in the final round of the 54-hole Ontario Open golf championship.

And although most aspiring young golfers are wondering when old Nick is going to turn in his clubs, Mason is probably happy Weslock stayed around at least for this season.

SHOOTS LOW

Weslock, the Burlington, Ont. efficiency expert who won the Ontario Open last year for an unprecedented fifth time, posted a four-under-par 67 during the second day of the medal play tournament Friday to fashion a 135 total for 36 holes.

It gave him a four - stroke lead over professional Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., who carded 69 to bring his total to 139.

Mason, despite near - perfect driving, became a victim of stage fright on the putting green Friday after collecting a 67 Thursday and wound up with a 73. The 140 total gave him third place.

"I was scared," Mason admitted. "I was hitting my putts stiff."

Tom McAllister of Woodbridge, Ont., who tied the course record of 66 Thursday, ended up with a 77 to tie with of another amateur, Gary Cowan of Kitchener. Both had 146.

Al Johnson of Montreal, the only other Quebec player in the tournament, was well off the pace with a 148 total, while Kenneth Yount of Niagara Falls, N.Y., had 149.

Weslock, three - time Canadian amateur champion and five - time Ontario amateur champion, was true to form Friday.

The 47-year-old ace, who has a habit of coming on strong as the tournament progresses, started the round with an eagle on the first hole.

His second shot landed four feet from the hole and he easily sank the putt on the par five.

LOSES STROKE

He was even par over the next eight but lost a stroke on the par-four 10th because of a bad lie.

He made it up immediately, shooting an eagle on the 11th and a birdie on the 12th.

The field of 130 was trimmed to 67 after Friday's round. Only 42 professionals and 25 amateurs managed to survive the cutoff point of 152.

The professionals are competing for $5,000 in prize money with $1,200 at stake for first place as well as a berth in the $100,000 World Tournament in Sutton, Mass., in August.

Weslock, defending Canadian amateur champion, and Toronto's touring professional George Knudson have qualified for the cutoff event. The professional each from open tournaments in Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia will bring Canada's entry in the world tournament to seven.

The Ontario Open championship and the qualifying round of the Ontario amateur make up the trials for the Ontario Willingdon Cup team.

L. A., St. Louis Head For NHL

Two Million Ante

By AL COLLETTI

NEW YORK (CP) — Major league hockey is going to expand to the West Coast no later than 1968, from the way plans are shaping up in the National Hockey League.

At this stage, Los Angeles and St. Louis seem well on their way toward nailing down NHL franchises at a cost of $2,000,000 apiece just to get off the ground.

The NHL is going ahead with a radical expansion program that will bring about the first changes in more than 30 years. The league was reduced to its present six clubs in 1942 when Brooklyn Americans dropped out.

In addition to Los Angeles, other West Coast cities in the running for franchises in the NHL are Vancouver and the California cities of San Francisco and Oakland.

Last March 11, the NHL agreed to expand to a 12-team league by creating a second six-team division.

WILL ACCEPT BIDS

Friday, the NHL board of governors formally agreed to accept applications immediately for new franchises and set the date for expansion no earlier than the 1967-68 season and no later than the 1968-69 season.

In the process, the NHL for the first time disclosed the dozen cities that are being "principally considered" for franchises.

In addition to Los Angeles, St. Louis, Vancouver, San Francisco and Oakland, they are Baltimore, Houston, Minneapolis and nearby St. Paul, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Washington, D.C.

Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, said the governors at their two - day meeting approved Los Angeles and St. Louis as the first two acceptable sites. But the NHL still must approve "suitable" applicants from the two cities.

Applicants from these another cities may be scrapped at the next NHL meeting in October, probably in Montreal. "Los Angeles and St. Louis could go tomorrow," Campbell said.

MEET REQUIREMENTS

"Both cities meet the requirements for standard arenas and we are satisfied also with the solidity, integrity and financial stability of the applicants."

Campbell did not name the applicants, but the New York Herald - Tribune said that it had been previously reported that Bing Crosby is behind "the West Coast group," meaning, apparently, Los Angeles.

The Las Angeles sports arena and St. Louis arena, which seat the required 12,500, at present house hockey clubs. Los Angeles plays in the Western Hockey League and St. Louis is a member of the Central Professional League.

There will be a partial interlocking schedule calling for a total of 74 games in the regular season, compared with 70 now. Each of the present NHL clubs will play two home and two away games with each team in the new division. Playoffs, too, would be inter-divisional.

Came 11, in a statement after the NHL governors wound up their two-day meeting, said the governors "in effect are laying the ground rules to be followed by applicant. for new franchises."

NEED $2,000,000

The governors said each new franchise will be required to put up $2,000,000 for franchise fees and 20 professional players to be drafted from the six existing NHL organizations, which all have minor league affiliates.

A total of $12,000,000 thus will go into the NHL kitty for the expansion program, but it will take a lot more money to operate it. The $2,000,000 payment for each franchise would be exclusive of various other basic costs of running the franchise, including minor league operations, junior player development, territorial rights and working capital.

Each NHL club would have to contribute some top - calibre players to draft list making the new clubs would have to get their talent from the NHL raiders' area affiliates.

Campbell said plans for a formal draft have not been fully worked out but they will involve a number of reasonable draft choices.

"We hope to provide the new clubs with a sufficient number of established players to enable them to become competitive quickly," he said.

PLAYERS AVAILABLE

The NHL governors, in their statement said that there are numerous players in the minor pro leagues who could play effectively in the NHL.

"With the draft by the new franchises of certain top-calibre players from the existing teams, these other players will help provide the additional talent for competitive teams.

"Further, with twice the number of NHL jobs available there will be more of the fine Canadian junior players will continue their hockey careers than is now the case. An additional factor will be the potential introduction to NHL ranks of a substantial number of young United States players."

The new teams will be expected to form their own farm systems and junior hockey programs.

Campbell said he didn't think there would be much of a problem in bringing the proposed division up to NHL strength.

"There are in the minor leagues players who can't make the big leagues because there just isn't room for them," Campbell said.

PREDICTS MORE INTEREST

Interest in hockey will increase across the United States with expansion, Campbell predicted. He noted that the average NHL salary is $14,000 a year and many players earn more than $20,000. This should be conducive to future players aiming at a big league career.

The NHL owners have been pushing expansion in recent months with an eye on possible coast-to-coast television. However, Campbell said the NHL governors did not discuss television here.

Campbell said he hopes that a continent-wide league would offer an attractive product for the U.S. television market.

Of the six NHL clubs, only Montreal and Toronto are well paid for telecasts of their games, particularly on Saturday nights, because the clubs have lucrative contracts with the CBC.

The other four clubs in the U.S. haven't done well at all because sponsors feared hockey had only a limited nationwide interest.

With expansion, Campbell figures it will be a different story.

"We now have the prestige of a coast-to-coast operation," he said.

Flyalong Morning Choice

Taylor Looks For Plate Repeat

TORONTO (CP)—A crowd of about 30,000 was expected for the 109th running this afternoon of Canada's richest horse race —The Queen's Plate.

Many persons will be drawn to Woodbine Racetrack by the presence of the Queen Mother, who will present to the winner 50 guineas, a present from her daughter Elizabeth II.

But most will come to watch the 1¼-mile race for Canadian-bred three-year-olds.

RACE OPEN

Twelve horses will go postward about 5:35 p.m. EDT for what experts are calling the most wide-open plate in years.

The E. P. Taylor entry of Native Victor and Top Victory will probably go off as favorites despite the fact that oddsmaker George Duffus has established Flyalong, owned by Tom Hays of Oakville and D. B. Weldon of London, Ont., as the morning line favorite.

Taylor, Toronto industrialist-sportsman, has seen his horses win the last three years in a row and nine times in the last 16 races.

The winner of the race—North America's oldest continuously run sporting event — stands to pull down $47,682.75. The plate is a $20,000-added affair, meaning that the winner gets all the entry money.

Westerners get what is probably their best chance at a race they have ever won.

Whistling Sea, owned by Paul Olivier of Calgary, won the first division of the plate trials Monday in a time just one second off the track record for the distance.

He will be coupled with an Ontario, Spotted Fleet, owned by Max Bell and Frank McMahon of Calgary. Spotted Fleet won just two races in 14 outings.

HOPES FOR RAIN

At least one contestant is hoping for a touch of rain before the race. He's Jerry Meyer, trainer of Good Old Mort, Canada's top two-year-old last year.

Good Old Mort, winner of the second division of the plate trials, has had just two other races this year and finished second and fifth.

Meyer figures an off track would help the colt, which was bought for $4,500 at a yearling sale in the autumn of 1962.

Bettors who bet on stable form will be sure to take a look at Super Flow from the Toronto stable of Bill Beasley.

Beasley horses have never finished worse than third in the late and see, Canadian Champ, won the race in 1958.

SENTIMENTAL CHOICE

Veteran Jockey Pat Remillard, 59, will be aboard the horse. He has won the plate only once—in 1943.

All but two of the jockeys in the field have been from the Ontario circuit and another—Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B.—graduated and is now riding in New York city and on other American tracks.

Only outsider is Hank Gustines, who also rides in New York, who has been imported to ride Native Victor.

All horses will carry 126 pounds.

Twins Shade Tigers; Tribe, Chisox Win

Calvin Griffith told Bernie Allen to get into shape. Allen told Griffith he already was in shape.

Allen also said he would quit if Griffith insisted on giving him an all-expenses paid trip to Canada.

But Allen eventually accepted the trip and now is back helping Minnesota Twins stay on top of the American League.

Allen drove in his first run of the season Friday night as the Twins edged Detroit Tigers 4-3 and retained their half game lead over Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox.

The Twins were trailing 3-2 and had two out in the ninth inning. Fred Gladding had just replaced Detroit starter Dave Wickersham, who walked Harmon Killebrew and Don Mincher on 3-2 pitches.

Gladding pitched to Allen and lined a single into center field, bringing home the tying run. After an intentional walk to Rich Rollins, Joe Nossek beat out an infield single while Mincher raced home with the winning run.

SOX BLANK ORIOLES

Elsewhere in the AL, the Indians blanked Kansas City Athletics 2-0, the White Sox stopped Baltimore Orioles 6-0, New York Yankees defeated Los Angeles Angels 5-1 and Boston Red Sox trimmed Washington Senators 8-6.

Cleveland's Sam McDowell won his ninth game against three losses, giving up four hits and striking out 13. Rocky Colavito hit his 17th homer while Fred Whitfield also connected for the Indians.

Joe Horlen brought his record to 7-5 with an eight-hitter against Baltimore. The White Sox added him with four double plays.

The Yankees snapped a 1-1 deadlock with four runs in the eighth. The Angels' Bob Lee walked Horace Clarke with the bases loaded, forcing in the first breaking tally, and Bobby Richardson added two more with a single.

Boston erupted for its biggest inning of the year—seven runs in the fifth—and held on against Washington. Felix Mantilla singled across two runs in the collapse, and Rico Petrocelli drove in another pair with a double.

Wimbledon Tennis

Women Stars In Round 4

WIMBLEDON, England (CP) — Maria Bueno of Brazil turned in a brilliant performance but women stars to the fourth round of the all-England lawn tennis championships.

Meanwhile, experts were choosing favorites in the men's singles, shaping up as a United States - Australia battle with the field scheduled to be narrowed to eight today.

Two of the eight matches will be all - Australian affairs. Roy Emerson, the defending champion and top seed, will meet Ken Fletcher, while lanky Fred Stolle, runner-up for the past two years, plays Bob Hewitt, with whom he won the 1964 Wimbledon doubles title.

Leafs Drop Pair To Columbus

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sometimes it's hard for even the league leaders to get a run.

Atlanta Crackers of the International League have proved this in the last three nights. After being shut out Wednesday and Thursday, they finally scored in the 10th inning Friday to eke out a 1-0 win over Rochester Red Wings.

The win gave the Crackers a 3½-game lead over the second-place Columbus Jets, who won a doubleheader over Toronto Maple Leafs by scores of 4-0 and 4-3.

In other Friday action, Toledo Mud Hens edged Buffalo Bisons 2-1 and Jacksonville Suns defeated Syracuse Chiefs 5-3.

A single by Adrian Garrett and Jim McKnight's two - out double scored the only Atlanta run. Darold Knowles, who pitched the full 10 innings, took the hard-luck loss.

Records Unbroken At Wind-Blown Meet

By AL McNEIL

ST. LAMBERT, Que. (CP)—The Canadian track and field championships move into the second and final day today with national records still eluding the heavy field of competitors.

In Friday's opening events no performer came close as a stiff wind, which persisted, most of the day and into the evening, played havoc among field competitors and distance runners.

The wind was, which reached 18 to 20 miles an hour at times, should have been a boon to sprinters. But even with the wind at their backs no spring records fell.

Nancy McCredie at Toronto's Don Mills club was the only double winner, but her distances in the javelin and discus throws fell well short of Canadian open and native records.

Wind or no wind, Bill Crothers, Don Markham, Ont., shamacist, running for the East York Track Club, won the 440-yard event in 46.4 seconds.

Highlights of an otherwise mediocre day were the men's high jump, the six-mile run and 100-yard dashes.

Despite the wind velocity, 19-year-old John Hunter of the Toronto Olympic Club cleared the bar in the men's high jump at 6 feet 10 inches. Hunter's best previous performance was 6 feet 5 inches, when he captured the junior record earlier this year.

Eddie Alasdair Heron of the Oxford - Cambridge team had the crowd in an uproar as he edged one upset by beating Ron Wallingford of Hamilton in the men's six-mile race.

The 128-pound Scot and Wallingford battled stride for stride for almost the last half of the 24-lap event, with first one and then the other taking the lead.

TAKES LEAD

With Wallingford leading at the start of the final lap, Heron moved in front with a sprint only 30 yards short of the wire. He succeeded in holding on to the one-yard lead and finished with a time of 28:32.8 to Wallingford's 29:33.2.

In the men's 100-yard dash, Ed Hearne of East York, Jeff Archer of the Oxford - Cambridge club and Bruce Kidd of the second of Winnipeg could scarcely be separated by the judges at the finish. All three were timed at 9.6 seconds, with Hearne officially declared the winner.

Judy Dallimore of the Ottawa Uplands Club beat out Jenny Wingerson of Toronto, an Olympic team member for Canada last year, in the women's 100-yard dash. Her time was 10.8, while the Canadian open native record stands at 10.7 seconds.

The Oxford - Cambridge entry was dealt a harsh blow when their one quarter - miler Wendell Mottley was sidelined with a pulled tendon in his right knee after covering only 100 yards of the 440 elimination heat. Mottley won a silver medal for Trinidad in the 400-metre event at the Tokyo Olympics last fall.

Abby Hoffman of Toronto Olympic whizzed along in the qualifying heat for the women's 440, but was upset in the final by Cecilia Carter of Hamilton Olympic, who won in 57.3 seconds.

Ergas Leps of Toronto Track Club won his mile heat easily Friday in 4:21.1 and the three other qualifiers in the same heat were all under 4:22.

The second heat went to Dave Bailey of East York in 4:21.8. The other qualifiers behind Bailey were Keith Coates of the Toronto Track Club, Ron Champ of Cambridge - Oxford and Chris Williamson of Saint John, N.B.

The Trots

WASHINGTON, Pa. (CP) — Armbro Flight, owned by the Armstrong Stable of Brampton won the $12,000 Hanover-Hempt trotting stakes for three-year-olds at the Meadows Raceway Friday night.

Trainer - driver Joe O'Brien from Alberton, P.E.I., celebrated his 48th birthday by easing the Canadian - bred filly home in a 2:06 mile, five lengths ahead of Old Flame. Lansbury Hanover was third.

Armbro Flight is a leading candidate for this year's Hambletonian, the three - year - old trotting stakes Sept. 1 at Du Quoin, Ill.

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Giddings, a five - year - old campaigner from Willow Downs Stable, won the featured fairview purse at Woodbine Race Track Friday in three straight for next Thursday's $25,000-added Dominion Day stakes.

Avelino Gomez of Hanover, riding the veteran horse for the first time, drove Dr. Giddings to the wire in front of Lee Frosty and Austral H to pay $8.10, $2.30 and $2.10.

Dr. Giddings, trained by Jerry Meyer, ran the mile and 1-16th in 1:44 1-5, just 1 1-5 seconds off the track record.

Hego Dittfach, Woodbine's leading rider, had a big day as he piloted the third, fourth and seventh races. This brought his total for the meet to 17.

Dittfach's first win came aboard Eddie Shack, named for the popular hockey player with the Toronto Maple Leafs. Eddie Shack, owned by Phil Boylen, won his first race in two years, paying $8.00, $4.20 and $2.60.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Betsy Herbert, a trotter no one wanted to buy at a bargain price at a yearling sale in Montreal five years ago but there were no buyers. Herbert was forced to pay $550 himself to buy the horse back.

A charge of interference by Ralph Flinder, driver of Night Shift, was disallowed by the stewards after viewing the photo finish which ended in the race.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The daily double paid $113.80 at the Western Fair Raceway Friday night when Sadie P. Scott came in first at $12.70 and Miss Doris McGregor second at $3.90.

NEEDHAM BOONORD

OTTAWA (CP) — Acting Prime Minister Martin Friday gave a luncheon in honor of Robert Wilfred Needham, Ottawa correspondent for the London Free Press for the last 39 years. Mr. Needham is leaving Ottawa to become associate editor of The Free Press.

200 TO ATTEND

OTTAWA (CP)—At least 220 coaches from across Canada—including 40 each from Quebec and Ontario — will attend the national track and field clinic at Guelph next month. The Royal Canadian Legion, which sponsors the annual affair, said Friday other names may be added before the Aug. 19 opening. Head coach will be Geoffrey Dyson, former British chief national coach who now heads the legion's sports program.

New Regulation Adopted

CFL Ousts Hot Import Rule

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian Football League has officially backed away from its hotly - contested import legislation.

At its semi - annual meeting Friday, the CFL scrapped the rule enacted last spring that would have classified naturalized Canadians in a three-way category. It substituted a new regulation basing a player's import status on the country in which he received his football training rather than citizenship.

Commissioner Sydney Halter said the new rule, which will not affect the status of players acquiring Canadian citizenship by July 30 of this year, defines as an import any player who plays football outside Canada before his 17th birthday.

Also exempt will be players who have lived in Canada for 17 of their first 21 years. The rule will not affect the status of players who now are classified as non-imports.

The import rule was drafted at a special meeting in Calgary last month to meet criticism by the league's coaches. The original proposal would have limited each of the nine CFL teams to three naturalized Canadians.

Ottawa and the press claimed such a restriction was discrimination. Professor Bora Laskin, constitutional law expert at the University of Toronto, advised the CFL it probably violated legislation as the Ontario Human Rights Code.

CFL clubs now are limited to 14 imports on a 32-man roster. Thirteen can dress for a game.

The CFL's eastern and western conferences decided they could do nothing to ensure that Canadian games will be televised.

It has been reported that the advertising agency which purchased 1965 television rights is having problems getting sponsors.

A 1966 schedule drawn up at a general managers' meeting Thursday was approved. It will start July 2 with an intersquad game with Saskatchewan Roughriders visiting Edmonton Eskimos.

Successful Living

Withdrawn Husband Needs Further Psychiatric Aid

DEAR DORIS — For the past year my husband has not been feeling well — mostly mentally. He is withdrawn and uninterested and says he cannot concentrate. He has been to the local doctor who has given him pills, and also sent him to a psychiatrist, who gave him a book to read and my husband said they had a nice visit. They are personal friends.

Is there such a thing as change of life with men, and does it last long? I don't know how long it is wise for my husband to be like this. — WORRIED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR WORRIED — A man does suffer change, with age, but it is a more gradual slowing down of physical functions. With this may come a certain depression in the realization that he is growing older.

It would be folly for me to go farther than this in suggesting what might be wrong in your husband's case. If he is really floundering up, his withdrawal should be halted. He should be drawn out, encouraged to express his fears, whatever they are.

A trained counsellor is needed. Perhaps one who is not a personal friend might manage better.

* * *

(Are you in doubt about the proper etiquette to use for your special occasion? Ask Doris, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply.)

The Golden Years

You Can Step Up in Status After Your Pension Starts

By THOMAS COLLINS

The biggest, and easiest promotion in status you have ever had may be within your grasp at the time you retire. If you care for that sort of thing.

You can be a blue-collar worker, and retire as a white-collar man. You can be Employee No. 16489-G in a large corporation, and retire as an executive. You can be a lowly teacher who never earned a Ph.D., and retire to be called "Doctor" the rest of your life. You can be dumb, and retire smart.

The technique for doing this shirts close to fraudulent behavior. So be careful. You can't be a fraud. And nothing here is intended to suggest that you be an imposter.

Essentially, the technique requires that you move to a new town when you retire, and that you just not talk too much. The moving part is honorable enough. The curb on your tongue while debatable, is pretty well what you have done during your working career — after all, you never told people you beat your wife or kittens.

The thing works this way, according to Employee No. 16489-G:

"You went to work for your company back, say, in the 1920's. You didn't have much education in that day, and you started out delivering the mail, running the errands, and sometimes sweeping out. You pushed, and began rising. But never too far because somebody always remembered you had been a flunky once. Then as the educated boys began moving in, particularly after World War II, they noted your education, or lack of it, and sooner or later they learned of your lowly background with the company. So you rose just so far in the company echelon, and there you sat.

FATE WILLED OTHERWISE

"You may have been one of the smarter men in the company. Under different circumstances you might have become chairman of the board. But fate willed otherwise. So you plodded through, and now you retire. You move with your comfortable pension, to a new town that doesn't know you once were sent out for the coffee. And couldn't care less.

"So you don't talk about it. And when people ask you what you did with your company you don't say you were an executive or hired help, or vice president. You merely say, casually, that you were in a supervisory position. Natives of the new town will interpret that to mean you were an executive. You very likely were in a supervisory position because even if you were the janitor you supervised the mops.

According to Mr. 16489-G, the natives of a new town will always prefer to meet a newcomer executive than a newcomer flunky. They always are prouder to introduce you to their friends in such. And, he says, what harm does it really do?

Human nature is pretty much as Mr. 16489-G describes it. But you have to get into a new environment to give it play. People in the old town who "knew you when" seldom forget all the way down to the day they write your obituary.

SIMPLE SWITCH

The blue-collar worker who retires with an income of $300 to $400 a month, which many do nowadays, can switch over quite simply to a white-collar man once he sets himself up in a new town. If he wants to. With reasonable savvy — and by not talking too much — he can take his place in a new town in the civic, social and religious affairs that many towns seem to reserve for the white collars.

The professional man who retires faces even better, because in the language of our times, professional men are "in." A teacher has only to mention he took his graduate study at Yale, even though he never got any kind of graduate degree, and some natives of a new town will start calling him "Doctor." He can use the bad sums administrative duties at his school, and somebody will eventually introduce him as "Dean." All the retired pastors who are now being called "Doctor" really never had a Doctor of Divinity degree, there wouldn't be any preachers left.

The key to all this, of course, is that nobody is going to investigate the past of a nice retired man who moves to town. Unless, of course, he gets into a hot political campaign. Or into jail.

PET SHUNNED

LONDON (CP) — When John Donovan turned up at the London Divorce Courts he had to leave his pet locked in his car, since animals are not allowed in court. Occasionally an attendant volunteers to look after them, but not this time. Mr. Donovan's pet is a year-old Himalayan bear.

Teacher Honored At Close of Century Old School

MADOC JUNCTION — On Friday night about 70 persons — public school pupils, their parents, a number of former pupils and several other interested citizens of the community gathered at Eagleton School, S. S. No. 24 Sidney and Rawdon, to honor the teacher, Mrs. D. Godden, and to have a farewell party in the old school, which has served the community for about 100 years.

Mr. William McMullen was chairman for the program. He spoke briefly and called on Mrs. F. Smith who gave two readings.

Mr. Don Godden sang several songs, playing his own accompaniment on his electric guitar.

The pupils of the school sang two songs with Mrs. Godden at the piano.

At this time, Mrs. Godden was asked to take a chair at the front of the school. Lin Stapley read an address, signed on behalf of the pupils of the school, and Keith McMullen made the presentation of two framed pictures.

Mrs. Godden expressed thanks and spoke of the co-operation she had experienced with the pupils, the parents and the school board.

Short speeches were given by Clarence Fitchett, Bruce Stapely and Forde Stapely.

Refreshments and coffee were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Mrs. Godden has taught at S. S. No. 24 for the past three years, and during that time has made many friends who wish her success and happiness in the future years.

At the end of this school term, S. S. No. 24 Sidney and Rawdon will be closed. Latest arrangements are to send the pupils to Turner's School, S. S. No. 16, Sidney.

Rylstone

RYLSTONE — Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Spencer attended the formal opening of the new Maple Leaf Cheese Factory at Plainfield on Wednesday evening.

Beth Ashton of Campbellford was weekend guest of her friend Arlene Dunk.

Several from the Springbrook and Rylstone United Church congregations took part in the joint Communion service at Stanwood United Church on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton McComb of Peterborough, visited their daughter and her husband, Mr and Mrs. Don Stewart and Maureen on Thursday evening.

Agnes McKeown, Belleville General Hospital spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McKeown.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Petherick and their family and Mrs. Petherick's mother, Mrs. Minnie Morton, enjoyed a picnic supper at Cedar Park, near Brighton, on Father's Day. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Petherick and family, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Grills and family, English Line; Mr. and Mrs Douglas Bedore and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Jackson and family all of Oshawa; and Mr. and Mrs. Roland Jackson and children, Springbrook.

It was also a birthday celebration for Mr. Petherick and his daughter Norma, (Mrs. R. Jackson).

Don Stewart's farm is the centre of interest these days; His brother Alex's racing mare, Debbie, gave birth to a male colt on Sunday at the farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Shenehey of Cornwall were recent guests of his sister, Mrs. Austin Dunk, her husband and family.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Would you please explain to me the difference between naphtha gas and lysol. We were camping on the long weekend and ran out of lysol for our heater and could not buy any at the store. My question is could naphtha be used in a catalytic heater without harm, in place of lysol?

ANSWER: As this is a product of the Imperial Oil Company we checked with them and were advised that lysol No. 1520 is the correct fuel to be used in a catalytic heater. Any other fuel would damage the heater elements.

MARYLAND

NEW YORK

Niagara Falls — The Aquarium of Niagara Falls, U.S.A., the first inland aquarium of its size to exhibit extensively marine life in synthetic sea water, opened its doors to the public at 3 p.m. on June 12. Located at Whirlpool Street and Pine Avenue, the aquarium features sharks, dolphins, octopuses, starfish, sea horses, piranha and electric eels.

QUESTION: Could you please give us some historic places of interest which we may visit while visiting Kingston? —Mrs. W. S., Trenton.

ANSWER: For your information the following points of interest are all contained in the area of Kingston:

The Murney Redoubt — This imposing Martello tower in Macdonald Park has walls which, on the water side, are 15 feet thick at the bottom and tapering to 12 feet at the top. Its armament included a 32-pounder gun and three 32-pounder carronades. Together with Fort Frederick, the Shoal Tower and Quarter Tower on Cedar Island, it protected Kingston's harbor against possible attack from enemy warships. The Murney redoubt is now preserved as an historical museum.

Fort Frederick — The area at the tip of the peninsula on which the Royal Military College now stands was reserved for a battery as early as 1788. In 1790-91 a guardroom was constructed for the soldiers sent to protect the naval dockyard which was being established on the peninsula. During the War of 1812 a blockhouse and other works were built. The present Martello tower, together with three similar structures guarding Kingston, was built during 1846-51 during the Oregon Crisis. It is now operated as a military museum.

The Sloop Frigate — Following the Rush-Bagot Convention of 1817 limiting naval forces on the Great Lakes, a commodious limestone building was constructed 1819-20 to store gear from the fleet. In 1876, this structure, known as the Stone Frigate, became the dormitory for the first cadets to enter the Royal Military College of Canada.

Old Fort Henry established in 1832, the citadel of Upper Canada. This is a must for every visitor to Kingston, and time should be allowed to visit the luxurious officers' quarters, the military museum and watch the colorful drills of 150 years ago performed by the Fort Henry guardsmen.

The City Hall —Completed in 1843, this monumental limestone edifice is one of the province's finest remaining mid-19th century public buildings.

Foxboro

FOXBORO — Mrs. J. S. Demorest entertained a number of ladies at a trousseau tea on Saturday in honor of her grandaughter, Miss Toni Wall, a bride of this Saturday.

Rev. R. Reid and Mrs. Reid and family left June 23 to reside at Scarborough.

Miss Joyce Hollinger of Kingston was a weekend guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hollinger.

Ivanhoe

IVANHOE — Mr. and Mrs. Herb Farster, Tidonic, Pennsylvania, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Rollins.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Benson attended the funeral of Mr. Gordon Wann, held in Toronto on Saturday, June 19th.

Mr. and Mrs. William Rollins were guests at the Smith—Neal wedding held in Eastminster United Church, Belleville, on Saturday, June 19th.

A Lift for Living

One Should Learn to Treat Fear as Servant, Not Master

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Although wild creatures of forest and field live dangerously they never seem to worry. They know sudden fear, but they escape chronic dread and prolonged, fretful anxiety.

Yonder rabbit, peacefully browsing on low shrubs, experienced brief terror this very evening when a rabbit - hungry great-horned owl sailed in on muffled wings over his balsam concealment. But the panic of the moment now passed will not haunt that rabbit through the night, biting at his conscience, gnawing on his memories, bleeding off all control-ment of mind. The rabbit soon hops from hiding, trusts his keen senses to warn him of danger and, alert but not anxious, continues his browsing.

When dawn lies back the curtains of the night and birds rise from slumber, they will not begin the day chained to ugly recollections of yesterday's alarms. Yesterday a bluejay scolded his enemy, the skulking fox, until he was out of sight and then dismissed the fox from memory. Should another fox steal into that bluejay's view today, he will get individual attention and his own share of bluejay invective and rebuke. But as Jesus said, "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Yesterday's fox problems are kept separate from today's, and there is little carryover of past qualms.

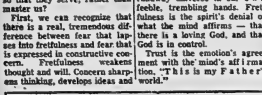
PRACTICAL USE

Creatures of the wild make practical use of fear. When alarmed, they take flight, or stand up and fight. Then, when fear has served its intended purpose, they dismiss it until it is needed again. To our lowly furred and feathered neighbors, fear is a servant, not a master.

Worry is fear that has come to stay, to be waited on, to be served.

How can we handle our fears so that they serve, rather than master us?

First, we can recognize that there is a real, tremendous difference between fear that lapses into fretfulness and fear that is expressed in constructive concern. Fretfulness weakens thought and will. Concern sharpens thinking, develops ideas and plans and strengthens purpose. Worry about your neighbor's welfare distresses you without doing him any good. Concern means caring enough to help, placing your spiritual and material resources at his service.



Worry about your health means sleepless nights and dread that devours peace and energy. Concern means engaging in well-recognized health practices, while getting the best diagnosis and treatment available.

Worry about worldly affairs means living under a cloud of foreboding of doom. Concern means being well-informed and prayerful, using the citizen's power of ballot and the power of protest or support, and it means becoming the kind of person whose conduct could be universal; the world would be better for it. The world needs much less worry and much more dedicated concern.

Second, let your response to fear be that of scarcely facing problems rather than running from them. Flight is "for the birds," and running is for rabbits. Take a stand, God being your helper. Our holy faith makes no promise that we can escape every kind of trouble. High religion expects problems, great ones, but without dread. And for good reason: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for Thou art with me." Awareness of God's nearness and his care makes the difference between worry and acceptance, between victim and victor.

John Wesley once said, "I dare no more fret than I dare curse and swear." Of course! While cursing may seem to befit God, fretfulness is emotional atheism. It means feeling and acting as if there were no God, as if we humans were alone in the world, with the reins of a runaway universe in our own feeble, trembling hands. Fretfulness is the spirit's denial of what the mind affirms — that there is a loving God, and that God is in control.

Trust is the emotion's agreement with the mind's affirmation. "This is my Father's world."

12 DROWN AS STORM HITS HOUSEBOAT

Schooner Sinks Off Northport, Couple Rescued

A Belleville man began his cruising holiday in dramatic fashion today by rescuing a Collins Bay couple from a sinking schooner off Northport in the Bay of Quinte.

The two-masted schooner carrying Arthur Phillips and his wife sank in about 14 feet of water after springing a leak.

The couple were taken ashore by Reg. Morley of Belleville, who spotted the incident while eating breakfast aboard his cabin-cruiser.

He took the couple to a Deseronto Marina and attempts to salvage the schooner were expected to be made later today.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips had left Belleville harbor earlier today.

Mr. Morley — off on a cruise through the Thousand Islands — spotted something peculiar about the schooner as it passed by the distance.

"I was at anchor in a little cove having breakfast and I just happened to see the boat go by," said Mr. Morley. "I noticed something odd about her so I got out the binoculars."

"By the time I got the glasses out she was sinking. It only took about 10 minutes."

Mr. Morley attributed the incident to a leak aboard the schooner.

"She didn't strike anything," he said.

He upped anchor and churned his cruiser to the spot — to find the schooner crew safe.

"They were in a dinghy and had everything under control," said Mr. Morley. "It was just a matter of picking them up."

Viet Cong Forces Capture Capital of Highland Region

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)— U.S. planes flew through overcast early today to strike 16 times against the district capital of Toumorong, held by the Viet Cong since Saturday, U.S. military spokesmen said.

Delayed previously by bad weather, U.S. B-57s and Phantom jets bombed one of two 105 - millimetre howitzers the guerrillas captured when they overran Toumorong, in the central highlands, the spokesman said. The other gun was damaged, they added.

The howitzers were the first field pieces of such size known to be in the hands of the Viet Cong.

The town's 120 defending militiamen were presumed either killed or captured.

Government relief forces apparently were held back because of the danger of ambush to convoys travelling to the remote region 200 miles north of Saigon and unsuitable flying conditions for helicopters.

The Viet Cong also were believed regrouping for another attack on Duc Hoa, 20 miles west of Saigon. The Communists overran that village Saturday, but the retreating government troops counter-attacked and the Viet Cong withdrew.

South Vietnamese troops with U.S. air support killed seven Viet Cong provincial and local officials in a helicopter-borne raid on the Mekong Delta village of Tan Hiep 35 miles south of Saigon. U.S. informants called it the biggest single bag of Viet Cong officials in the war.

They said 24 other Viet Cong were slain and 28 were taken prisoner. South Vietnamese officers estimated that the Viet Cong carried off another 50 dead. A Viet Cong hospital also was reported destroyed.

The dead Viet Cong officials included the provincial chief, the informants said.

In the air war Sunday, 68 U.S. planes struck at ammunition dumps, bridges, highways and military compounds within North Viet Nam, a spokesman said.

Deputy Chairman Huynh Tan Phat of the Viet Cong central committee was quoted in the current issue of Life magazine as saying the Communists "intend to step up terrorism and to continue it until every single American is out of the country . . . no American in Saigon is safe."

Phat also was reported as saying that the Viet Cong "is through with hit and run. Now we will attack in force to wipe out whole enemy units. These attacks will work well in the monsoon."

Phat was interviewed by Akihiko Okamura, a Japanese photographer who was held prisoner for 53 days by the Viet Cong. He was sent into Communist territory by Life.

On the political front, the Viet Cong joined Peking and Hanoi in rejecting the British Commonwealth peace mission, saying it was "rigged up by British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and is aimed at peddling the 'peaceful negotiation' swindle of U.S. President Johnson."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — The heat wave is likely to be of brief duration as cold Arctic air is pushing southward across Hudson Bay and should cover most of Ontario Tuesday. In fact the initial cold thrust should cross southern Ontario today, accompanied by thunderstorms.

House Close To Recessing

OTTAWA (CP)—If it weren't for the Dorion report, Parliament would almost certainly recess by Wednesday, on the eve of the Dominion Day holiday.

This may be accomplished anyway, depending on whether the long-awaited report is tabled immediately and what type of oratorical action it provokes. The report by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court, into charges of bribery and influence-peddling by ministerial aides, is expected to be handed to the government today or Tuesday.

Members will have an opportunity to debate the report during the interim supply motion, when any subject can be discussed as the government seeks the necessary funds to carry out its spending program during the summer months. While members are hopeful that a recess may be reached by Wednesday, no one is making predictions that the report is seen.

Liberal House Leader George McIlraith said Friday he hoped the House could recess Tuesday night.

HAS OTHER WORK

Apart from the unpredictable supply debate, the Commons must also deal with several other pieces of legislation that were left over from a productive five days last week. These include third-reading of income tax amendments with the controversial clauses on public loans. The Senate, with a vote on a New Democratic Party amendment, asking that Time and Reader's Digest be excluded from the category of Canadian publications.

Two bills dealing with veterans' legislation, introduced Friday, must also go through three stages and an amendment by the Judges Act remains to be cleaned up, along with the remaining bills with aid to industries in designated areas and assistance to workers moving to new areas of employment.

Apart from the publications legislation, none is expected to prompt a prolonged debate, By Tuesday, members expect the House to be headlong into the Dorion report, and regardless of what happens, no one expects the Commons to ease into recess without a smattering of fireworks.

A. Whaley, 36, Trenton, Killed Flying Gyrocopter at U.S. Show

TRENTON — Well-known exhibitor at Quinte - district air shows, Arnold Whaley, 36, of Trenton, died instantly when his home - built gyrocopter crashed Sunday at a Raleigh, North Carolina, air display.

Mr. Whaley was attempting a high - speed manoeuvre 20 feet above ground when his machine went out of control and dropped to earth while horrified crowds watched.

The remainder of the air show was cancelled following the fatal incident.

"Structural failure was not a contributing factor," said Heury Boyd, administrator of the Raleigh-Durham Airport.

The rotor blade was sent whirling into the cockpit where Whaley was sitting.

Airport officials said the machine had been modified with an oversized landing gear and other special equipment. They said the extra equipment and drag on the airframe prevented Whaley from completing the manoeuvre.

Since that time the machine and its builder were familiar sights at local air and sports displays. He had flown it earlier this year at Picton and two weeks ago at a fly - in at Belleville airport.

Mr. Whaley was also a member of the Trenton Citizens' Band.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Whaley, Wooler Road, Trenton, he is survived by his parents, his wife, a daughter, Suzanne, and a son Randy.

Commonwealth Peace Mission Surveys Wreck

LONDON (Reuters) — The Commonwealth Viet Nam peace mission met Sunday to "take stock of the present situation" following the collapse of its plan for a round - the - world peace-seeking trip.

The meeting among prime ministers Wilson of Britain and Williams of Trinidad and Tobago, President Nkrumah of Ghana and S. O. Wo, representing Nigerian Prime Minister Balewa, lasted half an hour.

Wilson intimated Saturday, after both China and Russia had refused to receive the four-country mission, that it has been shelved. It does plan to go to Geneva, however, for talks with United Nations Secretary-General U Thant.

Queen Mother Immensely Enjoyed Canadian Visit

TORONTO (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth flew back to England Sunday night after five days of spreading the noted royal charm around Toronto. Her parting words were that she "enjoyed every minute of it."

After a bustling day — two church services, a couple of sessions with her Toronto Scottish Regiment and a visit to city hall — she left fresh and bouncy and with smiles and waves for some 3,000 onlookers at Toronto International Airport.

Her departure on the RCAF's luxury Yukon aircraft brought an end to a series of appearances that brought her into touch with many facets of Toronto life since her arrival Wednesday night to help the Toronto Scottish — of which she is colonel-in-chief — celebrate its 39th anniversary.

Besides presenting the regiment with new colors and seeing to it that the old ones were laid up with ceremony, she was banqueted, visited hospitals, a museum, the legislature, a stud farm—she's keen on the horses —called on her old friend, former governor - general Vincent Massey, and was on display for mile after mile of citizenry.

She also went to the races Saturday and, perhaps for most of the crowd of 32,000 at Woodbine track, outshone Whistling Sea as that Calgary - owned

"After a while there was a banging and some more cargo came in but no one saw me," he said. "I was a bit frightened, so I didn't say anything. Men closed the door and I was locked in: Just after that I felt the engines going.

"I didn't know where I was going. After a while I got cold. I shivered.

"The trip took a long time (seven hours) and I got pretty hungry.

"When the plane landed there was more noise and I heard some strange voices. The cargo door opened and two men found me."

Ian was taken to hospital in Manila, found to be all right and given hot food.

Nine Members Of One Family Are Victims

DRYDEN, Ont. (CP) — A weekend cruise ended in death for 12 persons, including eight children, when a violent summer storm smashed and sank a houseboat on Lake Wabigoon Sunday.

The dead include nine members of one family—seven children ranging in age from three to 13 and their parents. A mother, her daughter and the daughter's two - year - old were the other victims.

Two adults reached shore and were taken to this northwestern Ontario paper mill town's general hospital.

The dead were identified as: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Graham of Wabigoon and their seven children, aged three to 13.

Mrs. Harry Finlayson, Wabigoon.

Mrs. R. Huckell, Wabigoon and her two-year-old child. Mrs. Huckell was Mrs. Finlayson's daughter.

Survivors were Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Lobreau of Dryden, owners of the boat.

A violent, shifting wind caught the boat, a large cabin craft supported by twin pontoons, as it ran for shelter in Bonny Bay, about seven miles east of Dryden.

TRAPPED IN CABIN

Witnesses said the boat was spun broadside to the waves. A window was ripped out and the boat rolled over and sank. It appeared all but the two who escaped were trapped inside the cabin.

One body had been recovered by the Sunday night.

Other craft were on Wabigoon, a curving, island-dotted lake about 12 miles long, when the storm blew up but all were reported to have reached safety.

From wide-spread points in the area, about 20 miles east of Winnipeg, came reports of damaged cottages and tornado-like funnels of wind and water moving across lakes.

At Eagle River, about 30 miles west of Dryden, summer resident W. E. Austen said about five cottages were damaged by wind-toppled trees.

Mr. Austen said the storm raised six-foot waves on Eagle Lake, swamping three boats carrying fishing parties. All reached safely.

At the Vermilion Bay airstrip, 25 miles west of Dryden, winds peeled the roof from a sheet-metal hangar and blew it 400 feet. There were no reports of aircraft damaged.

An account of the Lake Wabigoon tragedy was given by Lorraine Graham, 13, survivor.

He said the 14 persons set out from Wabigoon for a cruise on the lake. Mrs. Cyril was operating the craft.

ALL WERE IN CABIN

The houseboat was about two miles from the mainland when the violent storm came up. The 14 persons, all in the cabin at the time, were unable to reach the life preservers because of the suddenness of the storm.

"Cyril tried to get to a nearby island but was moving against the wind and waves," Lorraine said. "He attempted to turn around and go back to Wabigoon but was then hit broadside by the waves and the boat overturned.

"Cyril and Shirley (his wife) were able to open the door of the cabin and get out and swim to the surface. They held on to the boat until it was washed ashore."

Beatrix Will Wed German

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — Queen Juliana of The Netherlands today formally announced the engagement of Princess Beatrix to West German diplomat Claus von Amsberg—"the choice of her heart."

The queen, in a radio and television announcement from Soestdyk Palace, was outspoken about the controversy over von Amsberg's past as a member of the Hitler youth organization, but said the young couple had applied "reason and conscience" to their decision.

They, "like ourselves, were very clearly aware of the doubts and even the resistance to which their engagement might arouse among many people."

"Yet they finally felt the objections should not be allowed to outbalance their love."

Beatrix, eldest daughter of Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard, is 27. The princess met her 29-year-old fiance in Germany last year. They are expected to wed next spring.

POLICE ON HAND

Police were out in force today to guard against possible demonstrations. Strong opposition to the engagement has come from Dutch war veterans and resistance fighters.

At a press conference before the announcement, Beatrix, with von Amsberg beside her, appeared to be in high spirits.

Scottish Police Hold B.C. Pair

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — Scottish police have arrested two Canadians in connection with the theft of $1,250,000 worth of mutilated bank notes in Vancouver last February, it was today.

The men, James McDougall, 32, and Joseph Percival, 37, both of Vancouver, were expected to appear in an Edinburgh court shortly and to be ordered held in custody while investigations continue.

William Mungie, head of Lanarkshire County criminal investigation department, said the two men were arrested in police raids on the industrial villages of Blantyre and Cambuslang, near Glasgow, during the weekend.

McDougall was arrested in Cambuslang and Percival in Blantyre.

Mungie said at least 15 days had to elapse before they could be taken out of Scotland, in case there was an appeal or other reason for their remaining here.

Percival was a former Vancouver police officer.

FACE CHARGES

The two Vancouver men already are charged in Edmonton with possession of some of the cancelled money stolen from a Canadian Pacific Railway warehouse in Vancouver. They were free on $10,000 bail each.

The arrests in Britain were made at the request of Vancouver authorities. Vancouver prosecutor Stewart McMorran said proceedings now will be started to have the pair brought back to Vancouver to face charges of robbery with violence and possession of stolen goods.

The money was being shipped from Britain to the mint in Ottawa for destruction. Each bill had three holes punched in it.

Four thieves, one of them in a getaway car—held up a clerk in the money cage of the warehouse and escaped with three 300-pound boxes of money.

In April, Percival and McDougall were arrested in Ed-

Football Rained Out, Aussie Boy, 11, Steals 4,200-Mile Flight To Philippines

SYDNEY, N.S.W. (AP) — "Now I suppose I deserve a belting," said 11-year-old Ian McGinn as he returned home today after stowing away on a 4,200-mile jet flight to the Philippines.

But Gilbert McGloin held his son's hand and didn't look as though he'd give him a thrashing.

"I'm glad he's back and all right," he said.

Ian flew to Manila Saturday in the cargo hold of a Qantas jet. He returned first class, wearing a baseball cap and a Filipino shirt and carrying a big wooden spoon and fork given him in Manila by Qantas officials for his mother.

Ian told this story:

He left home to play football but the game was called off because of rain. He wandered out to the airport, saw the jet, climbed up the net into the cargo hold, settled down in a corner and went to sleep.

Later two Qantas men took him for a trip around the city.

A Qantas spokesman said Ian would have his trip to Manila free.

The boy's return fare normally would have cost $311.

Three Havelock Teenagers Seriously Hurt in Crash

Three Havelock district teenagers were reported seriously injured after they were found in the wreckage of a car on Highway 7, two miles west of Madoc, Sunday morning.

Taken to Belleville General Hospital were Larry Holland, Gary Kennedy and Robert Ellis.

The car, driven by the 18-year-old Holland, went out of control and smashed into a boulder by the roadside. Police said the impact moved the rock two inches.

It was not known the exact time of the accident or how long the three youths may have lain injured in the wreckage before their discovery about 8.30 a.m. by a passing motorist. Provincial police today attended the crash but had not yet ascertained details of the mishap from the three.

It was the most serious accident in the Quinte area during the weekend that brought heavy traffic on all local highways.

Last night at Mountain View on Highway 27, Wilfred McLeod, Foxboro, suffered internal injuries and cuts when his car crashed off the road.

In Belleville, 19-year-old Douglas Eugene Fife, Point Anne, was treated for cuts and bruises when his car skidded, struck a car ,then crashed into a tree at Bridge St. East and McDonald Ave.

The other driver, Frank Jeffrey, 40, 361 Bridge Street E., suffered shock.

On Sidney's fifth concession, Mrs. Dorothy Wicket, 127 Homewood Drive, suffered cuts when the car driven by her husband, Claire, went out of control about five miles west of Foxboro.

Canada Loses Health Study Grants From US

HALIFAX (CP)—The federal government will be asked to help soften the financial blow to Canadian medical research projects caused by the loss of grants from the National Institute of Health in the United States.

The Canadian Neurological Society passed a resolution at its three - day annual meeting aimed at "bringing the Canadian government's attention to a very serious problem." Society President Dr. George Monckton of Edmonton said in an interview Saturday.

The health institute began a planned withdrawal of its grants in university research projects outside the U.S. last year and by next year the cutoff will be complete. The move was made to help stem the flow of U.S. dollars to foreign countries.

Progress in medical research in Canada "is going to slow down or the Canadian government has got to step in," Dr. Monckton said.

"If these funds are cut off . . . young scientists will be leaving this country—something Canada cannot afford. We are hoping the government will . . . increase funds instead through the Medical Research Council." About $10,000,000 now is granted annually through the council to Canadian research projects.

Around the Tee

Howard Jagger and William Duncan Jr. of the Kingston Bowling Club, will represent this district in the second stage of the Provincial playdowns to be staged at Peterborough early in July. The Kingston pair defeated eight other rinks in doubles rinks from Belleville, Trenton and Madoc at the local greens on Sunday.

The Kingston pair defeated Bruce Miller and "Jerry" Ryde in the final match of a hard fought draw in a thrilling contest. Two four ends against the Belleville rink were a little too much to overcome and the winners had a two-point margin at the end of fifteen ends.

In the preliminary round Peter Locke and his fellows, Percy Locke of Madoc, defeated Harold Buck and William Duncan of Kingston, 19-13, but were defeated in the first round by the eventual winners, 19-6.

The Miller-Ryde combination defeated Clayton Maguire and Bill Locke of Trenton, 15-13, in a cliffhanger, while Jack Avery and Orie Smith of the Belleville bowling club clubmates, Bill Van Tassel and Percy Graham, 18-6. Norman Anderson and Bud Wright of the Belleville club, won over Ken Ashley and Keh Peacock of Trenton by a 19-15 count.

In the second round the Hyde rink defeated Orie Smith 14-5 and William Wright was defeated by the Kingston rink 14-12, which set the stage for the finals. It was a perfect day for bowling and the greens were in excellent condition.

A treles rink of Mrs. Vera McIntosh, Mrs. Jessie Hunter with Austin Walkin as skip won the three-rink event at a tournament sponsored by the Brighton club at Saturday. Two rinks journeyed to the club and journeyed to the invitation tournamment at Rahny Beach with Trenton and Madoc at the local greens on Sunday.
